Mr. BARBER: Are the same regulations applied at ports of entry from the United States?

Mr. POWER: No; we have no examination at all.

Mr. BARBER: No examination?

Mr. HEAPS: These regulations apply only to persons seeking permanent entry.

Mr. POWER: The ship has to be cleared just the same. It is not a close physical examination, but the ship must be cleared.

Mr. STIRLING: Does that mean that there is no examination on the United States line?

Mr. POWER: The customs officer has a look at the man coming in, and if there is any doubt a doctor who is on schedule of fees is called in.

Mr. BARBER: I have known of persons coming from the United States with the intention of taking up residence and, not being able to produce a medical certificate, they were turned back.

Mr. POWER: The immigration department must be satisfied; if not, they call in a doctor, at our expense presumably, to see whether the person is in sufficiently good health to be admitted. We have no doctors stationed at any port of entry in the United States.

Mr. HEAPS: It would apply only to people from the United States seeking permanent entry?

Mr. POWER: Yes.

Mr. HEAPS: Not to tourists?

Mr. POWER: No.

RADIO TRIPE.

(St. Catharines Standard)

RADIO PROGRAMS are falling into two classes, either they are excellent or a weariness to patience and an affront to taste and intelligence. The latter class is bulking more large. Some programs putting over quack remedies are terrible, nauseating to the nth degree.

But the crime serials being put on are coming in for a rightful scorching, and in homes where there are children thoughtful parents certainly exercise a strict censorship.

But how about homes where they don't and where censorship may be more essential?

In the old days our fathers tabooed the "dime novels," and similar literature, but those were innocuous and even meritorious compared with some of the stuff that assails the ears and inflames the imaginations of young excitable radio listeners today.

Boys and girls of tender years are ushered, blindfold as it were, into scenes of chicanery, crime and hideous violence. They are invited to listen to plots of robbery and murder. They hear shrieks of terror and agony and the groans of the stricken and dying. The noises of battles between police and gangsters become familiar to them. And in the end they are bound to become haunted and terrified or calloused and brutalized.

There are savages who wouldn't tolerate the stuff handed out in these ultra-modern and up-to-date times. A great invention, well calculated to benefit mankind, is being prostituted for sordid commercialism.

• A Newsboy Views the World News

(By Pearl Strachan in Christian Science Monitor)

"THE GREATEST examples of relation vs. isolation are prevalent today in the conflicts going on in Spain and China." This is not the beginning of a lengthy dissertation by a Harvard professor of government, nor the comment of a professional columnist. It is the first sentence in Peter Panteluk's editorial in the "Boston Newsboy." And the "Boston Newsboy" is a tabloid size weekly which prints important information concerning the doings of Newsboyville, with courtesy and dignity.

What the newsboys think about the news they sell is a subject which has no doubt aroused at least a passing inquiry in the mind of many a patron, ready with his two or three cents to make his purchase and "read all abaht it." Newsboys become working men at a very tender age. Bread or no bread is a question often dependent for solution on the number of papers sold. Education is a boot-strap achievement which may mean the elimination of playtime altogether. Newsboys of a metropolis come from all kinds of homes. If the disillusionment of an unemployed parent—say, a craftsman from Hungary, a farmer from Italy, or a shoemaker from Poland—should influence a son's activities; if anti-social ideas in his environment should warp a boy's outlook; if a sense of injustice should breed in him a spirit of rebellion, the street could exert no counteracting, constructive effect.

What are the Boston newsboys thinking about the news? To continue the quotation from the column of the youthful editor of the mimeographed organ of the Burroughs Newsboys Foundation, we read:

Why must brother fight against brother, father against daughter and son? Why must one yellow-skinned race try to conquer another? Improper relationships within the home—business and governmental establishments brought about what the loyalists and rebels are doing today—slaughtering each other for some causes that would never have arisen had both sides discovered some medium through which they could have established co-operative groups working for the benefit of the people as a whole and not for the benefit of any one political faction. Wouldn't it be a beautiful thing if the European nations would follow the examples of Canada, South America, Finland and the United States of America? If the nations would establish with their neighbors fair reciprocal trade agreements which would satisfy all major parties concerned? Canada would spend many millions, as would the United States, if both countries did not have a peaceful relationship with one another."

The comment is not unusual in its implication, for a member of the Burroughs Foundation. It does not represent an exceptional viewpoint in Newsboyville. It does, however, represent the type of thinking cultivated and encouraged by a man of outstanding character and ability, a man who was himself once a newsboy on Boston streets, the founder of its unique club for newsboys, a highly successful lawyer by the name of Harry Burroughs.

It represents also the extension of certain ideals which a devout and gentle Jewish mother implanted in her son in a far-off Russian village named Kashoffka. She was called "Saint Hannah" by the peasants who were the constant recipients of her benevolence in that now-vanished hamlet. The inscription of a tablet in a corner of the building in Somerset Street reads: "The Harry E. Burroughs Newsboys' Foundation dedicated to the preparation of youth for the responsibilities of life inspired by the loving memory of the founder's mother."

• The Human Touch Is Most Needed

DEAN C. E. JEAKINS, speaking in St. Paul's Cathedral in London, Ont., at the annual service of chapters of No. 5 district Order of the Eastern Star, is reported as having said in Part:

"Who is my neighbor?" has been the cry all through the ages, coupled with the deeper, far-reaching cry of humanity, "What must I do to be saved?"

"It is not to be saved in the life hereafter only. We must know how to be saved, for the life here on earth.

Every aspiration of your soul rests in that cry. Geography has nothing to do with this question, nor has race or creed.

"The answer is two-fold, based on our duty to God, and our duty to our neighbor.

"Not so long ago, the cry was "How can we save our own petty soul?"

"There's a danger today, in our many activities of charitable organizations, of forgetting that man's first duty is to God and then to his neighbor.

The young man's question was selfish. He asked for himself. Christ turned the question, and pointed out that his duty was to be a neighbor, and that is our need today.

"Throw away your denominational creeds and cloaks. Be a human being, with a throbbing soul, working for the uplift of the other broken human beings, who need the touch of your hand, and the sound of your voice, more than all else, to help them back to manhood.

"We have too many charities, well organized, which dispense help by the telephone, the ambulance, the hospital care, or the check book route, while, all along the road lie broken, wounded men, needing the human touch.

"Respectability and religion are apt to trace circles around us, in these days. What we need is another St. Francis of Assisi to show us how to live the Christian life of service, as laid down by the Greatest Samaritan of all, the Christ.

"It's a definite, personal service that is demanded today. It's the human touch, the giving of ourself. There is nothing more sacred than the zealous soul of one who strives to help his neighbor by giving himself, and in blessing others, we bless God."

"Let us always remember, that even Christ pleased not himself."

• Crocheting At A Murder Trial

(Halifax Herald)

A FEELING of revulsion results from reading of preliminary proceedings at a murder trail in New York State. A woman juror took her place with a full regalia of knitting-bag, doilies, needles, thread, yarn, hooks and all.

"I will take no judicial notice of your crocheting unless counsel object," the court ruled, and there were no objections, so presumably, as the gruesome tale was unfolded, the woman juror placidly crocheted her way to a decision.

One recalls ancient Paris hags sitting below the guillotine, stirred to new knitting frenzies every time a head dropped and the modern versions of the Roman circus, such as that at Flemington, New Jersey.

Fortunately, Canadian courts have not descended to these levels; here, when a human life is at stake or at any other time Justice alone is the goal, not headlines or pictures or doilies; moreover, there are ways of dealing with those who refuse to conform.

Once upon a time it probably was the same in New York state; Canadian ancestry has much in common with that outh of the border, but there some influen has been at work creating contempt for life, for the law for established institutions.

There is the danger, so easy is intercourse between the two nations, so freely is the printed and pictured and spoken word exchanged, that those same influences may be at work here. This is no reason for unreasonable prohibitions — but it is cause for close and continuous watchfulness.

ELDERLY MAN'S VIEWS.

(St. Marys Journal-Argus)

WE SAT IN front of a couple of elderly men on the train the other morning. They came from a town west of St. Marys. Both were deaf and talked loudly. These old chaps were hard-headed philosophers and discussed current topics from an original angle. Finally they started on municipal topics of their town and their conversation reflected the pessimism of present day property-owners. "I think I'll go back to the Pinery, or some place I can afford to live," said one. "They have spent a lot of money on a new school and now they want the town to build a rink. Those who want it should pay for it. What good is a rink for you or me? But no, nowadays they want everything paid by the town It's transients that want everything," he said. A lot of people who want to spend the town's money aren't real property owner They buy a place with $100 down They pay no taxes or interest for two years and then move out." BLANKET CHARGE.

H. S. MacPHERSON, president of the Associated Children's Aid Societies of Ontario, informs his organization's annual convention at Toronto that mothers are neglecting the training of their children when they devote many afternoons to social affairs. "Mothers going out to teas and such things are not giving their children the attention they should," says Mr. MacPherson. But this is another blanket charge, and like all blanket charges it's too sweeping.

Doesn't it depend entirely upon the calibre of the mother herself? Some do neglect their little ones when they go to afternoon teas or bridge parties. Others seem to manage child-training as deftly as they balance tea cups or shuffle the pasteboards. Why, thousands of our finest citizens come from homes wherein Mama had the lettuce-sandwich and no-trump urge.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AFTERWARD I came unto the house of Shemaiah the son of Delaiah the son of Mehetabeel, who was shut up; and he said, Let us meet together in the house of God, within the temple, and let us shut the doors of the temple; for they will come to slay thee; yea, in the night they will come up to slay thee.

And I said, Should such a man as I flee? and who is there, that, being as I am, would go into the temple to save his life? I will not go in.

And lo, I perceived that God had not sent him; but that he pronounced this prophecy against me: for Tobiah and Sanballat had hired him. Therefore was he hired, that I should be afraid, and do so, and sin, that they might have matter for an evil report, that they might reproach me.

So the wall was finished in the twenty and fifth day of the month of Elul, in fifty and two days.

ALL SOCIALISTS NOW.

(Ottawa Journal)

THE PIONEERS who opened the West, hardy adventurers seeking new frontiers, never heard of crop insurance. They no more dreamed of it than did the pioneers who, a few generations before, felled the forests and tilled the fields of Ontario.

It is different today. We talk of unemployment insurance, of health insurance; of state aid or guarantee of practically everything under the sun.

Where the thing is going to end, Heaven alone knows. For if we guarantee one man's livelihood, protect him against loss, then what of some other man's livelihood? A crop is no more sacred than a job; a field of wheat no more sacred than a factory; a crop in the West no more entitled to insurance than a crop in the East.

The truth is that collectivism, once begun, feeds upon itself; drives to the logical conclusion of collectivism to the end. Which is something worth thinking about.

LAW FACTORIES.

THE LEGISLATURES of forty-three American states in regular sessions last year enacted 18,483 new laws. The Cleveland Plain Dealer describes this record as a tribute to the ingenuity of the state senators and representatives who from coast to coast joyously assumed the burden of regulating other people's lives.

Only 1,245, or about seven per cent. of these bills were vetoed by state executives. The leadership in law tinkering among the forty-three states was won by the Minnesota state legislature which discussed 3,037 bills. Fortunately many of these were killed before reaching the legalized stage.

Large Unit School Areas Are Discussed at Keene Meeting

Section Ratepayers To Be Consulted Within Next Week

A new system of establishing larger territorial areas of school administration was explained to an audience of seventy Otonabee township men and women at Keene last night by V. K. Greer, chief inspector of public and separate schools in Ontario, and Dr. J. B. MacDougall, assistant chief inspector, and at the conclusion of a long period of discussion the trustees present decided to consult their section ratepayers and advise the township council within the next week whether they wish to proceed at once with the adoption of the system.

Most of the Otonabee school sections were represented, and among those present were Councillors John Barnes, A. W. Archibald and W. J. Grady of North Monaghan. The local rural public school inspectors, R. F. Downey and Leo Copp, were also present. Reeve W. A. Anderson was appointed chairman of the meeting which was sponsored by the township council for the purpose of obtaining information from Department officials regarding the details of the new plan of enlarged units of school administration.

It was explained that two or more school sections can combine under a joint board of five trustees. The request must come from the school sections that desire to take advantage of the new system. They apply to the municipal council to pass a bylaw authorizing the amalgamation which must be approved by the Minister of Education, and the bylaw to become effective this year must be passed before July 1. Schools adopting the plan will receive this year $100 each, payable in September or October, but the same grants next year will be paid into the joint board. The ideal objective, it was said, was the township board system by which all the schools in that township are administered by the one board of five trustees. Nomination and election of trustees are held at the same time and places as for the election of the municipal council. Three trustees are eelcted for two years and the other two for one year, subsequently requiring the election of two trustees annually to give continuity of administration.

School section boundaries are merged into the common limits of the school sections which decide to join their forces, and Mr. Greer said that at present trustees are paid only their mileage costs for attending meetings. He amplified that information with the hope that the remuneration of school trustees would not be sought because boards of education in the cities did not pay their members, and in spite of that fact they attracted men and also women of high qualifications for the duty of managing the schools entrusted to them.

To Remove Handicap

The main purpose of the enlarged administration area was to provide for rural boys and girls especially of those from fourteen to sixteen years of age a modern type of education that would better equip them for life, practical training which would be of definite advantage to them.

In a brief comment on the addresses by Mr. Greer and Dr. MacDougall, John Barnes of North Monaghan expressed his approval of the system because it would go a long way toward lessening the handicap under which rural youth enters the world of industry and business. The boys and girls of the country, he said, had just as much intelligence and natural ability as those of the city, but the farms could not absorb all the young people who are born and grow up on the farms. They have to look for a future in the towns and cities throughout Canada, and they have to enter into competition with the urban children who receive special courses in the high schools and collegiate institutes. Mr. Barnes believed that the larger units of rural school administration would go a long way to make up the deficiency that now exists in the system of rural school education.

At the conclusion of the meeting Edward Butler moved that the township call another meeting for the explicit purpose of obtaining an expression of opinion from the ratepayers, but trustees generally preferred to go back to their section ratepayers, explain the new system to them, and get a definite decision from them as to whether they wished to proceed with the new plan.

Origin Of Sections

"In the 1790's the people of Upper Canada got permission to have common schools." Mr. Greer said in an introductory review of the antecedents of the present public school system in Ontario. "In the old Family Compact days the leaders did not take kindly to the education of the masses. The only schools were known as grammar schools, probably the equivalent of our high schools, and there were only seven of them. However, from 1790 until 1840 when Edgerton Ryerson became superintendent of education there was a growing demand for more schools. In the beginning it was required that a school should have at least twenty pupils, and three trustees were elected to take charge of it. At first they selected a soldier or some one else who could read and write to act as teachers. Then in 1840 township councils were required to allot all school property into school sections."

Mr. Greer said that in the institution of the system, some school sections were composed of the best property and the more settled areas, an original condition of inequality of assessment that has persisted to the present. Until the 1870's Ryerson opposed the school section plan because he foresaw that if young people desired further education than that provided in the primary schools they would have to go to the larger areas of population.

"We have gone on with the school section in spite of the lessons of experience," Mr. Greer said, "and in Ontario we are away behind the times. British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Alberta have adopted the larger unit school areas which enable them to plan a better system of education beyond the stage of the primary schools. In the early 1900's England and Scotland passed an act which put an end to their parish school sections, substituting for them larger areas with boards that were given control of teachers and grades of schools up to junior college work."

Both England and Scotland were more bound by tradition than Ontario, and had maintained the parish school system for a very long time. Today Scotland has only thirty-nine boards of education with complete charge of all the schools for which taxes are levied. Mr. Greer spoke of the special attention that is given to the directing of young pupils into their vocations from the first display of special talent in the elementary schools. This is only one of the features of the modern educational system in the Old Country.

"Shouldn't we in Ontario seek to offer to our girls and boys before they leave school the kind of education that will best fit them for life, with more assurance of happiness and also of giving to their country the best service of which they are capable?"

For The Underprivileged

Mr. Greer said that present school system is largely directed to the advantage of those boys and girls who will have the opportunity of becoming professional men and women, going on to the universities and the normal schools. "Should we not be concerned about the 40 to 60 per cent who will remain where they reside, on the farms, in the towns and villages, and those who are going to the cities to work in stores and so on? We are going to give them more attention from now on. The average boy and girl who quits school today at the age of sixteen, quits with a feeling of having failed. They had dreams of going on to higher things, but in the long run they found that they could not go on. They can't take the place in the world on which they had built hopes and for which they might be naturally qualified. We should have some early completing stage of education so that our boys and girls leaving school at sixteen can go into the world with their chests out, with a feeling of success and a greater confidence in meeting the challenge of life."

Every boy and girl from fourteen to sixteen should have a course in business practice such as it now taught in the new ninth grade. Every girl should have a good course in home economics. Special teachers could go out to central rural schools with a senior room or two depending on the number of pupils, teachers from Peterborough or Norwood if only for one or two half days a week, and possibly in the evenings for the older girls who have just left school.

Larger Rural Grants

"We want every boy to have a good training in shop or manual work, and the boys of the rural schools should be taught more of agriculture. The Department of Education is giving more attention to the boys or girls leaving school at sixteen so that they will have a rounded out course that is essentially practical. Special grants for such completing courses are going to pour into the rural areas to assist in providing a type of education that is needed by our young people who are likely to live there. In the last three years 68 school sections have been brought together under this larger area system and they are functioning successfully."

A Muskoka Example

Mr. Greer said thirteen schools in the united townships of Medora and Wood in Muskoka had adopted the new system at the beginning of this year. The area is administered by a board of five trustees which meets every two months in the township council room. They have one secretary, and at a recent meeting which Mr. Greer attended the trustees were discussing plans for next fall, affecting all the schools in the area. He stressed the fact that with enlarged areas the trustees get away from the little community influences and prejudices which were inseparable from the small school board. Although there were only five trustees, there was no evidence that any of them tried to obtain special advantages for any one section of it.

During the past few years 110 small schools in Ontario have been closed. They had enrollments of less than eight pupils. A teacher can't do as well with five pupils as with twenty, Mr. Greer declared. The best of teachers can't get up enthusiasm and the inspiration in a school of five pupils as compared with the stimulus that is developed in a school of twenty. The school that has fewer than twenty children is just an unfortunte school, he remarked.

Holstein Cow Sets Record

Alcartra Pontiac Inka, 318641, a pure-bred Holstein owned by Joseph T. Tully, Otonabee, has, according to the R.O.P. report just issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture, broken the former Canadian junior three-year-old record for production of butter-fat in the nearly division of the record of performance, on twice-a-day milking. She produced 762 pounds fat from 20,086 pounds milk, thus giving her a butterfat test of 3.79%.

The reign of Inka as champion was, however, brief, as hardly had her record been reported when a still larger junior three-year-old production was reported from the herd of Elliott Bros., Woodstock, Ont., where Popular Pontiac Abbekerk had made the sensational total of 786 pounds fat from 23,411 pounds milk, average test 3.36% butterfat, to make her Canadian champion for both milk and fat. This latter record exceeded for both milk and fat not only the former junior three-year-old champions, but the senior three-year-olds as well.

1,000 Excursionists On School Party

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 31—Nearly one thousand children and adults took advantage of the excursion to Toronto on Saturday conducted by the C.N.R. with the co-operation of local school boards which made possible a trip to the city for a large number of children who have never before had a similar opportunity. Though the original plans for the trip made provision for only half the number who actually attended the excusion, officials were amazed at the huge demand for tickets. There were 175 boarded the train at Campbellford and a similar number from Stirling, while representations from Brighton, Trenton and Colborne necessitated several extra coaches being attached to the train.

Special police were on duty at the Union station in Toronto to handle the huge number of children who for the most part travelled in groups under the watchful eye of their own teacher. Special street cars waited outside the station to carry the children to the museum on Bloor street through which they were conducted in groups and then out on to the lawn where they had lunch. Following this they walked west on Bloor and then south to the parliament buildings where H. N. Carr, Northumberland representative, greeted the children and guided them through the House. One little girl got a big kick out of sitting in the seat which is allotted to Premier Mitchell Hepburn, who had illustrated books on Ontario printed for distribution among the children.

Boy Cyclist Hit And Left on Road

TWEED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, May 31. — Believed to have been the victim of a hit-and-run driver, Theodore Schamerhorn, 15-year-old son of John Schamerhorn of Stoney Lonesome, was found lying along Highway No. 37 on Saturday night in an unconscious condition, by Thomas Lamb of Thurlow Township, who was passing in his automobile. The injured lad was rushed to the office of Dr. G. S. Cronk. The lad escaped major injuries, however, having suffered only from skin abrasions and minor facial lacerations, but had apparently been knocked out when struck.

Young Schamerhorn informed Provincial Constable W. E. Smith, upon his investigation, that he was proceeding northerly on his bicycle on the east side of Highway No. 37 when he observed two automobiles abreast coming from the opposite direction. He remembered nothing more until he regained consciousness in the surgeon's office.

TORONTO BALL CLUB TAKES 2-1 WIN ON BUFFALO GROUNDS

M. Meola Gives Leafs a Break With the Herd

BUFFALO, May 31.—With clever pitching and brilliant defense dominating the action in place of a powerhouse slugging for a change, a couple of Italian lads saw to it that the Bisons and Toronto Maple Leafs shared the holiday doubleheader before 9,146 fans Monday afternoon with the locals bagging the matinee, 3 to 1, and the Canadian invaders sneaking off with the abbreviated afterpiece, 2 to 1.

After Ollie Carnegie stepped out and bumped the Leafs on the head with a homer producing all the tallies Bisons required to win the opener, it was only fitting that Mike Meola should come back and rope the Herd in the nightcap by throwing a four-hitter and propelling his own winning run across the plate.

Fink in Fine Form.

One of the glossiest curving duels of the season ensued before Ollie Carnegie delivered the opening game into the Bison cash box by pumping a circuit swat over the left field wall, with two associates holding down the sacks in the final half of the eighth frame.

Herman Fink, coming through for his fifth victory of the season, and chunky Don Brennan, International League landmark, passed out nothing but horse collars before Maestro Carnegie swung the winning baton. Fink gained a clear-cut edge over Brennan by limiting the Leafs to six safeties against eight carved from the slants of his rival.

It was not until there were two Leafs erased in the ninth that the Leafs fashioned their lone tally for the first one gained by Bison rivals in twenty-four consecutive innings. Porter drew a pass opening the stanza, and lingered on first while Urbanski and Clifton popped soft flies, but Reiber smacked a long double over Abernathy's dome in right centre to chase his mate over the dish.

Roly Poly Mike Meola, veteran right-hander, accounted for about everything necessary to win the second with the exception of a first inning homer slugged by Jack Burns. Outside the third frame when he yielded three hits and the lonely Bison score for another deadlock, Meola was virtually invincible.

Edmonton Grads Win Trophy Play

EDMONTON, May 31 (CP).—Edmonton Grads have defended successfully for the second time this year the international women's basketball championship and the Underwood challenge trophy they have held since 1923.

Coach J. Percy Page's famous Canadians completed the second defence last night when they defeated Cleveland Fisher Foods 61-48 to take the best-of-five series three games to one. Early this month they whipped Chicago All-Stars in three straight games. Grads won the first two games 61-38 and 53-24, but Cleveland took the third 44-36.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

The two main points of interest in Monday night's schedule games were Ray Bacon's rink scoring a possible 8 end against Fred Brown, and David Bell scoring a 7 end against Dr. Allen...The best to watch were the Sorenson-Walker and Ross-Lawrence games. In both cases, the game was not decided until the last bowl was played. Regarding the other games, the issue was in doubt after the first few ends were played.

If any of the boys or girls are going away to play in outside tournaments we would appreciate it if they would let us know and we will see that they get a card which will enable them to give us all the details. It makes good bowling news, and it will show the directors that our committee is on the job...Tickets on the pair of bowls can be obtained at any time now.

Queen Mary Wins Over King Edward

Queen Mary took a 6-3 triumph over King Edward yesterday in a Public School League ball game. Some neat twirling by Ridyard, who was ably supported at bat and in the field by his teammates, turned back the southend squad in a smart encounter. The winners got a run in the first, three in a big second, one in the third and another in the sixth. Walks, hits and errors figured in most of the scoring. King Edward tallied in the third, sixth and seventh. There were 13 of them fanned by Ridyard, while Smith sent back 11 on strikes but had poor support. The teams:

King Edward—Leether, ss; Close, 2b; Shea, 1b; Smith, p; Lawson, lf; Killingbeck, c; Caccavelli, rf; Brown, rf; Dalliday, 3b; Curtis, cf.

Queen Mary .....131 001 x—6

Pirates Win 16-7 Over the Tigers

Pirates opened their schedule in the Junior City Baseball League last night at the Exhibition Grounds with a 16-7 victory over the Tigers. It was a free-hitting and loose contest with the winners running wild in the third frame to notch 10 runs. Aside from this frame it was a fair game. Only six innings were run off, due to darkness. The winners pounded the apple hard in the third, whereas the Tigers — after grabbing off an early lead of four markers in the first—could do little to O'Toole's twirling. The teams:

Pirates—Wildman, c; Gordon, 1b; Rochetti, 2b; Connelly, ss; O'Toole, p; Nichols, 3b; McBride, lf; Bennett, rf; McKinnon, cf.

A Touch of Hollywood on the Mexican Border

It might have been a Hollywood setting but it wasn't. Ellen Dale, the film star, arrayed in Mexican finery, smiled as she greeted the Texan, also dressed in borrowed clothes, as he bowed low before her. Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

GEE CLARK has been named by Manager Herb Ralph as starting slabsman for the Young Petes in their opener here tomorrow eve at 5.45 in Riverside. They tackle the tough Cobourg crew in a Junior Lakeshore League fixture and it should be worth seeing. Cobourg copped a 2-1 nod over 'em last week but the result might easily be reversed this time. Clark isn't very big but he pitches as well as some of the senior tossers in the C.O.B.L. right now. Good control, a dandy curve and a change of pace. The Young Petes have a smart squad lined up again this season, with lots of clever fielders and some lusty clouters aboard. They're in a tough loop where all four clubs are potential champs. Fans will see plenty of nifty ball games in this circuit through the summer, and commencing here tomorrow.

* * * * * *

FOR LACROSSE enthusiasts this week, the Petes are offering an exhibition tussle Friday p.m. 'gainst the Inglewood-Caledon Combines in the local arena. This is practically the same squad, known as Cheltenham-Inglewood, which won the Ontario title a year ago after rubbing our Auburns off the map in semi-finals. The ylost Rock and the Harris brothers but have added a couple of ex-Brampton seniors—and claim to be stronger. But so are the Petes stronger now. It will be quite a tilt, we expect.

* * * * * *

OF ALL THE ACTION in the Riverview A.C. mitt-mat show here last eve, we'd pick the boxing semi-final and the rasslin' final as highlights. They had more furious action jammed in these bouts than you'd find in five Fliers-Petes' puck playoffs! And that's plenty, eh? Dutch McIlmoyle met a tough hombre in the semi-final in Larry Hinds and he made him like it. Dutch pasted Hinds hard, harder and hardest—with Larry also blasting a bunch of wicked blows home—till the other finally fouled out in the third, giving McIlmoyle the victory. Which he deserved. It was a slugfest and a peach. And that last rasslin' affair sent a thousand fans home happy. Garner and Crothall out-pro'd the pros in a sweet dish of mat antics. In and out of the ring, with a few incidents being when the matmen and ref were all down once on the floor, when both mayhem artists were fighting it out on the dirt floor outside the ring, and when Bert tossed Red through the air and he stuck in the ropes! It had everything.

WE LIKED the whole show. Even the curtain-raisers, 80-pound boys, started right off slugging and kept it up. May not have been so much boxing in these bouts but the crowd wanted action and they got it. Too bad about the main bout, the colored boy evidently deciding after he left in a temper that he might be safer in a temper than back in the ring with Nick Orlando. He looked flashy for a round but Nick let him skate around and then began to systematically chop him down. He got every break from the referee, including a long count, but was still slow getting up and it goes as a soft kayo for Nick. We hear Young Jackie was scared silly and we believe it. Nick didn't have a chance to really show his stuff before it was over. Joiner's gameness was a nice thing to see but he was meeting a clever boxer in Hicks, who now wants to meet Orlando. The two all-local bouts were doggone good, too. Yeah, this is the third straight swell show put on by this club. We'd like to see more of 'em. With those main rasslers back again too, by golly!

ABOUT THE BEST sports news that's come to this man's town since the Petes won a senior O.H.A. title back in '26 is the story we had on our front page last night—that Peterborough had entered a team in the senior O.R.F.U. this year along with C.N.R. of Montreal, Toronto Balmy Beach, and the Sarnia Imps. Prexy Ott Cranfield of the local Orfuns states a strong squad will be built up, coached by H. L. Bamforth—if he can be obtained—with home games in the Exhibition Grounds. Local officers will attend the grid meeting in Toronto this Saturday to draw up a schedule and iron out details. Unofficially we understand the Montreal team wanted a spot somewhere between the Quebec metropolis and Sarnia, and Peterborough was chosen. The O.R.F.U. has urged the local club to take over and promised to aid wherever possible. Civic officials here, as well as sportsmen, manufacturers and business men are behind the move.

IT IS a mighty big thing, and we are glad of it. Means swelegant advertising for this town throughout Ontario and Quebec all autumn. And means local and district fans will see the best football available. The famous Sarnia Imps, perennial champions, the colorful Beach bunch and Montreal. There are a lot of angles to be considered. It'll cost heavy sugar, as you can't send a big squad to Montreal overnight for marbles. It will also take a lot of work and worry to get the southend gridiron in shape for senior rugby. And a whale of a lot of building will have to be done to ready up a team here for that class of football. Details should be available in the near future. It must be some 30 years now since Peterborough was represented in senior rugby, and we had some winning teams back in those good old days. We may not have a championship squad this year, but we'll have a championship group. The Orfuns last year won their intermediate "A" group, rubbed out Trenton Fliers and Toronto in playdowns, but lost to Dundas in Ontario finals. This step up this year will make Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts awfully mad—as they had hoped to lick our gang for the Provincial "A" title in '38!

* * * * * *

AN O.B.A. BULLETIN this a.m. speaks of some player transfers. A gee named Eric Cowie is transferred from Colborne to Oshawa—is he junior or senior? Two juniors were transferred from Owen Sound to Peterborough, Lloyd Stanley and Earl McNabb. And another kid, Ross Thornton, was refused (temporarily at least) a move from Toronto back here. The Petes had Bob Doll of Akron, Ohio, held up till the next ball meeting. A prospective pitcher here hadn't his application in. Nor apparently did Ed Poller, the new Kingston southpaw.

* * * * * *

AND SO WHAT? So we expect the Petes will be plenty peeved about Doll being refused his transfer for the time being. Guess they were too frank in their application letter. Oshawa players can move in and out of that town at will, Kingston guys can play without getting a transfer from the States, but we get a shake of the head for telling the truth. The loop has no kicks, but the O.B.A. still has a vestige of puritanism which bobs up at odd times. It had better be careful or C.O.B.L. clubs—reduced now to three but still the strongest in the Province and paying in most playdown dough to the O.B.A. each year—may decide to run on their own. They could do so quite easily and would only miss going into one playdown series (Ontario finals) in the fall. Where the loop shovels out real dough. And it might not have to miss the finals, either. It is a thought, anyway.

Assignment To Cover Hockey Game More Important Than Nomination

HALIFAX, May 31 (CP). — James W. (Jimmy) Power, dean of Eastern Canada sports writers, retires from the staff of the Halifax Herald today after 58 years as a working newspaperman.

Jim Power is almost unique in sports journalism. His twinkling blue eyes have seen most of the immortals. In his time he has seen all the major sports mushroom from a few obscure paragraphs in the daily press to lusty young giants of public interest.

He was the pioneer in his field in the Maritimes—first sports columnist, first man to keep a box-score of a baseball game, first sports editor. His first job was with the old Acadian Recorder in 1881. He remained with that paper until 1930, when it passed out of existence. His second newspaper job was with the Herald.

Many years ago, Jimmy was asked to oppose Robert Borden, later Premier of Canada, in a Federal election. The Liberals held an enthusiastic meeting. But the man named to run against Borden was not there.

The following day, cornered by friends at his sports desk, he apologized. As he saw it, he told them, he considered an assignment to cover a hockey game a more important duty.

Indians' Star

Earl Averill is in his 10th year winning ball. Earl is an all-star with Cleveland Indians and, like the rest of the team, is hitting on all four as the 1938 edition of the Forest City club flashes pennantwards.

Motorists Lose To Westclox

Westclox tacked up their second straight win in the men's City Softball League last night with a 10-8 decision over the Motorists. It was the second reverse in a row for Shorty Barrett's bunch but they made it a real battle this time right to the finish. A fair-sized crowd of fans was treated to a nifty contest by two good outfits with the decision in doubt till Walsh flied out to end the fixture in the ninth.

Parsons and Naish were the starting moundsmen, Parsons allowed eight hits while fanning two and walking five, giving way to Bateman in the 9th. Latter fanned 1, Naish was nicked for 16 hits in his sojourn, fanning three and walking two. He gave way to Fleming in the eighth, the latter fanning one. Many of the hits in this tilt were extra-base blows.

W. Calladine led the winners with four singles, as Gainey got a triple and single, Currie a two-bagger and single, Watson three hits and Parsons two, one a homer. Dorrington of Motorists got a double and single but Walsh led with two singles and a double. Montgomery hit a homer. Neat fielding was shown by Weir, Playford, Ellis, O'Leary and Watson. Teams:

Pasch Favored By Aga Khan

EPSOM, England, May 31 (CP Cable). — The Aga Khan, Indian Prince whose colors have been carried to victory in the Derby three times in the last eight races, said he expected H. E. Morriss's Pasch, the 5 to 2 favorite, to justify the strong public confidence in him.

Mr. Morriss himself is away on business in the Far East, but his wife, who will lead in Pasch if he wins, says she "cannot see what will beat him."

While conceding Pasch as the likely winner, the Aga Khan, speaking of his two entries, Mirza II. and Tahir, says "outsiders must run, otherwise they cannot win as they have done in the past."

Trainers and jockeys were in better humor as weekend rains gave promise of softer going. Many had feared the turf, hardened by the spring drought, would be too solid for most of the twenty-three colts expected to start in the big race. Trainers who had thought their charges would not be able to run because of the going took a more optimistic view.

All Saints Lose To George St.

George Street Juveniles whitewashed All Saints 22-0 last night in a Church League softball game. They ran in a 16-run attack in the fifth to break up a nice ball game, and the losers went higher than a kite then as their hurler lost all control. Bob Parnall pitched well for the winners in the first slab showing, just seven reaching base on him. It was the first church shutout of the year. Ackford got two of the five All Saints' hits and Bedford was the best sticker for the victors. The teams:

Late Rally Wins For Elgin Team

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, May 31.—Elgin took an exciting 7 to 6 decision from the Outlaws in the Hastings Softball League. Elgin tied the score at 6 all in the eighth and scored one in the ninth while holding the Outlaws scoreless to take the game. It also marked the first time this year that a player was banished from the game. It took place in the last of the eighth inning when Umpire Wellman threw Radford of the Outlaws out of the game for protesting a decision.

The outlaws scored 3 runs in the first innings on 3 singles and triples by Phillips and Stickles. Elgin failed to score until the fourth when they greeted McKee, the Outlaw pitcher, with an onslaught of hots climaxed by R. Scott's home run to score 5 runs. The Outlaws took the lead again when they scored 3 more in the seventh when all runs scored on one bad error.

Elgin scored 1 in the eighth to tie the game and 1 more in the ninth sewed it up. J. Preston with 2 hits in 3 times up led the hitters.

The Outlaws got to J. Richardson, the Elgin pitcher, for 11 hits, while Elgin collected 14 off McKee. McKee led in strikeouts 4 to 3. He also walked 3 ment to Richardson's 1.

The teams:

Junior Ball Game Here Wednesday

Junior baseball makes its 1938 debut here with the first game of the Lakeshore Junior League scheduled for Riverside Park at 5.45 p.m. this Wednesday evening. Cobourg will play Herb Ralph's Young Petes in a loop fixture, their second meeting so far this season. Last Saturday the Young Petes dropped a 2-1 decision in a pitchers' battle in the Lakeshore Town, but the locals hope to even it up here to-morrow. They are in a fine four-team circuit with every game being classy so far and a tight race expected all summer. The boys play fine ball, not far behind senior calibre, and they deserve a big crowd of fans at the opener.

Manager Ralph will probably pitch Gee Clark, while Bateman may be sent back for the Cobourgites. Girard is the home catcher, while the infield should see Castle at first, McNabb on second, Berwick at third, and Stanley on short. Outfield will consist of Kelly, Edmunds and McCormick most likely. Other Peterborough players are Todd, Condon, Hollingsworth, Collins and White. Herb has a nifty young squad, combining hard hitting — they outhit Cobourg on Saturday—with neat hurling and fielding. The game will go seven innings, and the admission is but 15 cents.

Little Harlem Gets 3rd Straight Win

Little Harlem made it three straight last night in the Southend Softball League when they copped a 12-1 victory over the Nationals at Brinton Field, to cop first place all alone. Craig pitched superb ball and had excellent support from his mates. The Nats used three twirlers, Loucks, Rennie and Wedlock before they could stop Herb Payne's gang. The winners went wild in a slugging sixth stanza to tally 10 runs, having notched one each in the third and fifth. Nationals, held to but one hit, got a run in the first inning. The winners got 15 safe blows and had one error to two for their rivals. Conroy, Craig and G. Maloney led the Little Harlemites in hitting but everyone slugged the apple. Tompkins shone defensively. For the Nats, Thompson got the lone hit and Coursey fielded well. The teams:

Little Harlem: Price, 1b; Conroy, lf; Grey, c; Tompkins, 3b; R. Maloney, ss; Craig, p; G. Maloney, cf; Dennie, rf.; Connelly, 2b.

Nats—Hunter, rf; Cameron, ss; Thompson, 2b; Masters, c; McDonald, cf; Coursey, 1b; Pilling, lf; Loucks, p; Adamson, 3b; Rennie, p, lf; Wedlock, p.

Umpires—Coursey and Smith.

If You Own a Business . . .

Watch Your Wife

And, if you have a chance, you might watch a few other women, too. Your wife may not be just like others in many ways but, as a representative of the sex that has a considerable influence on that business of yours—women do more than 80% of the buying—her reactions are worth watching. Notice, for instance, what she reads and what interest she takes in advertisements. You will probably find that, like a maority of home-makers, she gives close attention to the advertisements in her daily newspaper. Women want to know not only what to buy but where it can be bought and how much it costs. The daily newspaper advertisements give this information.

Remember, when you consider advertising for your business, that the majority of women buy from newspaper advertisements.

ORLANDO - McILMOYLE WIN OVER TORONTO PUGS IN MITT SHOW

Riverview A.C. Card Is Packed With Action Before Big Crowd At Local Lacrosse Stadium

Toronto Grapple Pair Have Place in Uproar In Turning On the Heat

Six exciting boxing bouts and a couple of wild-eyed wrestling matches had approximately a thousand fans rending the night air with their roars down on George Street South last evening. It was the mitt-mat show put on by the Riverview A.C. which kept the large crowd royally entertained for two and a half hours.

The final wrestling match was a honey of purest clover, one of the best seen here since the advent of the wide-open mat style. While there were no genuine knockouts on the boxing card, every bout was a humdinger and in the nature of a slugfest. The semi-final was halted abruptly in the third round when the Toronto pug fouled Dutch McIlmoyle. And the main event ended unsatisfactorily when the Toronto fighter was counted out, being too slow getting on his feet at the 10-count, and then refused to resume. It was in the second round.

Norm Bowler was promoter and Harry Low matchmaker of the show. Jimmy Simpson of Toronto refereed, with Archie Menzies and Wilf Jones the judges. Jack Withers was timekeeper and Fred Scates the announcer. The Hobbins-Volpie bout was not staged, the latter being sick, and two grappling matches were held instead. A fine ring, under bright lights, made an ideal setting for this lively card which was witnessed by about a thousand fans, ladies and men, in the lacrosse arena.

Curtain-Raisers.

Buddy Redmond and Joe Berardi, local 80-pounders, put on a neat curtain-raiser, slugging each other hard in the short no-decision bout. They drew a hand at the finish. The first of the prelims was between Bert Prince and Mal Packenham, local lightweights, and it was a toe-to-toe battle all the way, with Mal getting the nod on points in three rounds. He had a slight edge due to a longer reach and he used a left hand to advantage to smear Bert's face with blood. But the latter tore in repeatedly and they had the fans cheering at their frequent hard exchanges.

Hal Jones and Roy Prince, local welters, also kept the customers in noisy mood with a slugging three rounds, which Hal won on points. He had an edge in each round with a lovely left which he popped with monotonous regularity on his opponent's gory beak. The latter rallied at times to crowd his rival round the ring as he landed lefts and rights upstairs, but that sharp darting left, with the odd right cross, proved too much to overcome. They were applauded heartily at the finish.

Joiner Loses.

Walter Hicks of Toronto, 135 pounds, outpointed Bill Joiner, 133-pound Peterborough pugilist, in five rounds. It was a good bout, but Hicks took every round and only gameness kept Joiner in there battling till the end. He was tired, bloody and beaten, but still fighting at the final bell. Hicks was a fast boxer with a diversified up-and-down attack with both hands, but he lacked a kayo wallop. In the first and fourth rounds, Bill pushed his opponent around the ring in brief flurries, but other times he was busy covering up or clinching as the Toronto pug measured him coolly and then whirled into action with both mitts flying. He tried hard for a knockout in the fifth, but his gallant rival stuck it out.

The semi-final bout saw two hard hitters paired off, with Dutch McIlmoyle, 163-pound Peterborough scrapper, too good for Larry Hinds of Toronto, going 160. Hinds seemed to take the easy way out when he twice hit low—after being warned once—in the third heat of a dandy battle. The referee awarded the fight to McIlmoyle on a foul. They started off with a rush that had the fans on their feet and splitting the skies with their yells. The pair pasted each other with everything but the water buckets, swinging both mitts hard and fast from the waist up.

Dutch a Winner.

The first exciting round was about even. In the terrific uproar of the second, Dutch slipped twice to the floor, but was up without a count. Hinds was hammering in some hard body blows, but the local fighter returned with stinging cracks to the kisser, and it was anybody's fight at the bell. Dutch dove in for the third round, and was unleashing jolting wallops on his opponent's chin and forcing him to give ground when Hinds hit him a hard punch below the belt. It staggered McIlmoyle and he rested on the ropes as Referee Simpson warned Larry to keep them up. A few seconds after they resumed, Larry again blasted a right three inches below McIlmoyle's midriff and the referee unhesitatingly hoisted the local man's mitt. The crowd cheered the decision.

Nick Orlando, local lightweight, proved too much for Young Jackie of Toronto, in the main bout and made him quit in the second round. The Toronto colored boy flashed a lot of fancy stuff in the first round and won this heat. He tore out and landed a bunch of light blows as Orlando covered up and played a waiting game. In the second, Nick began to open up as Jackie slowed up, and finally got to him in a corner with hard rights and lefts to the head. Jackie staggered out and slipped. He stayed down for the count, but failed to get up before the referee called "ten"—though he was getting up slowly. The referee gave the fight to Orlando.

Bedlam broke loose then. Jackie and his second argued with the referee, and the Toronto fighter threatened to hit him. They finally left the ring and the fans roared disapproval, calling for the fight to continue. The club president, Frank Grey, and Judges A. Menzies and W. Jones, got busy and finally had the referee agree to let the fight continue, as both boys expressed willingness to go on. Orlando reappeared in the ring, but Jackie would not come out again. He was vague in his reason for not returning, but insisted that he would meet Orlando again here at any time. Orlando was again declared the winner on a knockout that was not a real knockout—though he looked as if he would soon finish the colored boy if given further chance. He drew a hand while the négro was roundly booed.

Grapplers Mix.

Larry Hinds and Spider Shackleton, middles, put on a lively bout of amateur wrestling with Hinds winning the one fall after 10 minutes, though twice being out of the ring before the end. He was warned frequently by the referee for foul tactics, electing to be the villain of the piece. It was a fair showing of the mat game.

The final bout on the program, a two-in-three fall wrestling match between Red Garner and Bert Crothall, Toronto middles, sent the fans home talking to themselves. This outstanding pair of amateur grapplers had everything the better pros dish up, with the addition of youth and speed. Crothall was the villain and he made a dandy with his rough-house tactics which won the first fall for him in about 20 minutes of mat mayhem in and out of the ring, slugging and tangling with the referee. Red came back strong in the short second session and won it in four minutes, though once being strug up on the ropes like a kitten in a ball of yarn. Whereas bady slams beat him in the first fall, he used flying tackles to gain the second. He took the third within a few minutes after twice knocking Bert out of the ring and once going out after him to rough him around the dirt floor as the fans nearly went crazy. He got him back in the ring softened up like a sponge and flopped on him to win.

New York, May 31 (AP)

WEATHER permitting, Barney Ross and Henry Armstrong will battle it out for the world welterweight title in the Madison Square Garden Bowl on Long Island tonight.

The two boys finished training yesterday. Ross, declared in A-1 condition by his handlers, will rest until ring time. Only limbering up exercises were scheduled for the negro.

Odds continued about the same with Ross a 5 to 7 shot. The fighters will apear before the New York State Athletic Commission for physical examinations and weighing-in ceremonies today.

Ruffing Hangs Up His 6th Win For Yank Cause

NEW YORK, May 31 (AP).—Baseball's biggest crowd of the year and one of the largest in history, numbering 82,900 fans, packed Yankee Stadium yesterday as the world champion New Yorkers turned back Boston Red Sox in both ends of the holiday American League doubleheader 10 to 0 and 5 to 4.

The crowd was less than 3,000 under the record attendance of 85,265, set in a Yankee-Athletics double bill at the Yankee Stadium September 9, 1928.

Charley (Red) Ruffing hurled three-hit ball to gain his sixth successive victory in the opener, and Pinkey Higgins's wild throw in the ninth inning, permitting Lefty Gomez to shade Jack Wilson in the nightcap.

Not a Boston batter got as far as third on Ruffing as the Yanks drove Lefty Grove to the showers in the fourth to end his string of eight straight triumphs. Seven of the ten runs were charged against the Sox ace southpaw as the world champions banged out sixteen hits.

Joe Cronin, Boston manager and shortstop, and Jake Powell, Yankee outfielder, became involved in a fist fight in the first game and were banished. Powell rushed to the box after being hit by a pitched ball thrown by Archie McKain. Before the Yankee could do anything to the Boston pitcher, Cronin threw a punch and Powell retaliated.

TIGERS SPLIT TWIN.

Detroit Tigers, with the home-run twins, Rudy York and Hank Greenberg, in top form, vanquished St. Louis Browns, 10 to 0, in the opener, but lost the second game of a Memorial Day doubleheader at Detroit to Les Tietje's six-hit pitching, 3 to 0.

York, with two homers, including a first-inning blow with the bases loaded, and Greenberg, with one four-baser, led a fourteen-hit Tiger assault on three Brownie pitchers for twenty-six total bases in the first game.

ATHLETICS TAKE ONE WIN.

The Athletics divided with Washington Senators at Philadelphia. Six runs in the first inning gave Washington the first game by a 9 to 4 score, while six runs in the fourth inning cinched the second game for the Macks, 9 to 1.

Sam Chapman accounted for three of the Athletics' runs in the opening fuss by hitting a home run with two aboard, climaxing a four-run rally in the first inning to the visitors' half dozen.

Murray St. Seniors Trim All Saints'

Murray Street Seniors of the Church Softball League last night took a 21-15 win over All Saints at King Edward. It left the Anglicans in the cellar as Murray won their second to end the half. It was a loose tilt. Right from the start when the first hitter singled and scored on a wild throw, the winners were clouting the ball and cashing in on errors. The losers also gave the Baptist hurler his roughest session of the season. G. Palmer, Barnes, and Spencely had a flock of hits, the first two getting a homer each. S. Seabrooke and Williams led the losers at bat, the former banging out a long triple. The teams:

Giants Suffer Double Setback Hands of Bees

BOSTON, May 31 (AP).—Boston's hustling Bees Monday handed the National League champion New York Giants a double shutout, taking the holiday doubleheader, 6-0 and 1-0, before a crowd of 41,036, the largest to see a ball game in Boston in two years.

After Milkman Jim Turner set the Giants down with nine hits in the opener, Deacon Danny MacFayden hurled a brilliant three-hitter against Hal Schumacher, who himself yielded only four.

The last one against Prince Hal, however, was a clean single to right in the seventh inning by Gene Moore, who went on to score the game's only run when Mel Ott took Tony Cuccinello's grounder and threw it far over First Baseman McCarthy's head into right field.

It was the first time the Giants suffered a double shutout since Chicago Cubs turned the track back in 1936, and it enabled the Bees to edge in toward the Chicago club in second place.

PIRATES PLAY 17 FRAMES.

A Memorial Day crowd of 20,352 fans spent more than seven hours yesterday at Forbes Field, to see Pittsburg Pirates take a seventeen-inning game, 5-to-4 decision from St. Louis, then drop a second contest to the Cardinals, 9 to 6.

The Redbirds scored in the ninth inning of the opener to force a deadlock, and the game remained scoreless until the seventeenth, when Lee Handley singled, moved up on a sacrifice, and scored when Stu Martin threw a grounder wild trying to catch the Pirate player at third.

Pittsburg had twelve runners left on base in the second game, due to Curt Davis's fine pitching in the pinches. Double plays with the bases filled were made by the Cardinals in the fifth and sixth frames.

CUBS SPLIT WITH REDS.

The right arm of Big Bill Lee came through with its second successive shutout and its third in the last four games before a crowd of 41,216 yesterday to give Chicago Cubs a 3-0 triumph and an even break in a holiday doubleheader with Cincinnati Reds. Cincinnati won the opener behind Paul Derringer, 7-3.

PHILLIES SWEEP SERIES.

One big inning in the first game and two in the second gave the Phillies a clean sweep of yesterday's doubleheader with Brooklyn Dodgers, 9-5 and 7-4, at Brooklyn.

A crowd of 21,364 saw the Phillies break up a pitching duel between Claude Passeau and Vito Tamulis with an eight-run rally in the eighth inning of the opener.

Chiefs Help Leafs, Walloping Orioles

SYRACUSE, N.Y., May 31 (AP).—The Chiefs swept an International Baseball League doubleheader with the Orioles before 9,500 fans here last night, winning the opener, 8 to 0, and the nightcap, 5 to 2.

Earl Cook got fine support as he blanked the Birds with seven hits, while the Chiefs assaulted Blubber Malone for two four-run splurges in the first two frames. Another four-run cluster sewed up the second game in the sixth as Gee fanned ten men.

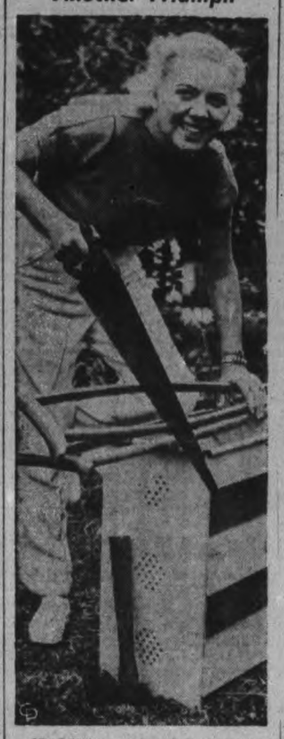
Another Triumph



No diving triumph over the world's best thrilled Georgia Coleman as much as her recent victory over infantile paralysis. Bedridden with the dread malady after walking off with national world and Olympic diving titles, Georgia waged a steady uphill battle and is shown as she passed another milestone in her fight... sawing up her crutches after her first steps without their aid at a benefit show staged in Los Angeles.

Word "Liberal" Struck Out Of the Conservative Title

Gordon Fraser Is Elected President of Combined Conservative Associations

Peterborough County Conservatives, staging the annual meeting of both the Federal and Provincial organizations in the Canadian Legion Hall on Monday, put in a busy afternoon, during the course of which they knocked the "Liberal" out of the name of their association, decided to amalgamate the two organizations into one county unit, elected officers for the ensuing year and appointed delegates to attend the National Conservative convention in Ottawa in July. The attendance was not large, but it was representative of all sections of the county.

Gordon K. Fraser of Burleigh Falls, president of the Provincial Association, was in the chair, and a letter was read from Morley Smithson of Otonabee, president of the Federal organization, expressing regret that illness prevented him from attending. E. A. Peck also wrote to voice his regret that he would be unable to be present.

Mr. Fraser informed the meeting that he had received a copy of amendments to the constitution that would be considered at the Provincial meeting, among the most important changes proposed being the suggestion that instead of retaining the name "Liberal-Conservative" that henceforth simply "Conservative" shall be used. The president stated that the officers of this district of the Provincial Association were T. H. Stinson of Lindsay, president, Dr. Kaiser of Oshawa and Senator Iva Campbell Fallis of Peterborough vice-presidents, and Cecil G. Frost of Lindsay secretary.

Secretary H. I. Bradburn stated that a letter had been received from W. H. Ireland, president of the Provincial Association, asking that delegates be chosen for the National Convention in Ottawa on July 5, 6, and 7, and that preference be given to women delegates and young Conservatives.

It was moved by J. C. Wood and seconded by Theodore Wilson of Mount Julian that the association henceforth should be known as the Conservative Association, dropping the word "Liberal," and the motion was carried unanimously.

Amalgamation Favored.

President Fraser introduced for discussion the proposal that the Provincial and Federal organizations should be merged into one association.

Col. R. E. Birdsall of Asphodel doubted the practicability of such an amalgamation and declared that many of those he had discussed the matter with were of the same opinion.

Rev. E. C. Moore of Young's Point, on the other hand, strongly supported the proposal. "I am in favor of anything that would tend to strengthen something that sadly needs strengthening in the Conservative Party, that is local organization," he declared. "We have got to realize that every other movement is strongly organized."

J. F. Strickland, K.C., contended that the amalgamation should at least be tried out for a year, expressing the opinion that the merging of the two associations would strengthen the Conservative cause. He moved, seconded by John Thompson of Mount Julian that the County of Peterborough should be organized as one unit for Provincial and Federal purposes, and the motion, strongly supported by L. M. Brooks, Mrs. Walker, and other speakers, was carried.

Officers Elected.

The election of officers followed, and it was decided on motion of W. H. Bradburn, that the Federal and Provincial leaders and the immediate past presidents should be honorary presidents of the association.

The list of officers, chosen without a contest in each case, was as follows:

Honorary presidents—Right Hon R. B. Bennett, Hon. Earl Rowe, Col. R. E. Birdsall, and Morley Smithson.

President—Gordon K. Fraser, Burleigh Falls.

First vice-president — Mrs. J. F. Strickland, Peterborough.

Second vice-president — E. J. Leeson, Havelock.

Third vice-president — Ald. H. I. Bradburn, Peterborough.

Secretary—W. R. Philp, Peterborough.

Treasurer—D. J. Lawrie, Peterborough.

Recording secretary—F. D. Hammond, Peterborough.

The chairman and vice-chairman of every township and of the five wards in Peterborough city will be members of the executive.

Discussing the appointing of delegates to the National Convention, the suggestion was made by L. M. Brooks that one delegate should be chosen from the city and the remaining three from the county, but Rev. G. A. G. Spence of Apsley expressed the view that two from the city and two from the county was the fairest system, and his opinion was endorsed.

The delegates chosen were Mrs. J. H. Cridland and Ald. H. I. Bradburn, Peterborough, and Mrs. Everett Birdsall of Asphodel and Rev. E. C. Moore of Young's Point representing the county. Proxies selected were Mrs. Joseph Mills and F. D. Hammond, Peterborough, and Mrs. Fred Kempt, Norwood, and F. L. Erskine, Lakefield.

Names of the present chairmen and vice-chairmen throughout the county were read to the meeting by T. P. Lancaster. It is proposed to have organization meetings in the different sub-divisions for the purpose of closing up gaps in the ranks and bringing the organization up to date.

The meeting decided than an annual meeting of the association which is henceforth to be known as the County of Peterborough Conservative Association, should be held every year, the date to be left to the executive.

The election of Gordon K. Fraser as president was enthusiastically acclaimed by the meeting, which applauded Mr. Lancaster's tribute to the work that has been done by the Burleigh Falls man in the Conservative cause.

so they successfully scuttled all that advanced social legislation."

When it became known that changes in the British North America Act would be necessary before such legislation could be enforced, "Mr. King went back to his time-honored custom of calling a meeting of the Provincial governments and three years later we are just as far away from a settlement as we ever were," he said. He lauded the plan of Mr. Bennett to call a meeting of all parties in the Dominion to bring about the needed changes, regardless of whether or not they represented the party in power. "Such a step would have been successful, for public opinion would have forced agreement."

Scores Employment Commission.

He scored Mr. King's election assertion that he would find the solution to the unemployment program. King's Employment Commission had "spent two years of precious time and a great deal of money, and when its report was finally brought in, Mr. King did not see fit to institute the recommendations of his own commission. He claimed its recommendations could not be implemented until he received the report of the Rowell commission, and we are not going to get that for some time to come," he said.

He cited a number of commissions ordered by the Liberal government and rapped what he termed substitution of government by commission for government by elected representatives.

The trade treaty with the United States found disfavor in his eyes, too. During the past ten months Canada's receipts from that treaty have been far less than those of the United States, he said.

He deplored the lack of co-operation that has sprung up between Provincial and Federal governments, despite the fact nearly all are Liberals. "You have a Liberal government in the West, yet there is talk of secession. You have a Liberal government in Ontario, yet things have reached such a point the Ontario Premier says he is not a Mackenzie King Liberal. In the Maritimes there are Liberal governments, yet they are constantly bickering and wrangling with Ottawa over Maritime rights.

Canada Needs Co-operation.

"Canada's crying need today is for co-operation. Can the Liberal government obtain it? They have proven by three years of rule that they cannot. The C.C.F. cannot do it. Their policy of all for one group and nothing for all the others screams no. Social Credit has failed in its own province." Only the Conservative party remains to bring leadership and co-operation to the nation, he said. He urged the youth of the country to fall in behind Conservative leaders in an attempt to bring the country back to prosperity.

Prime Minister King's inactivity is a threat to democratic institutions, declared Hon. Denton Massey. Trifling bills are brought down, not more than one a day, and the press gallery leaves early because there is no more news. "The most important legislation passed this session was the law that made marijuana a drug under the Narcotic Act," he said.

Deep Ditches Deeper.

"Now it is a big public works program: building post offices, digging deeper ditches that are already too deep." Nothing constructive is being planned, while hundreds of necessary works are waiting. A geological survey of the Northwest territories showed them rich in minerals, yet nothing has been done to open up that area, which would supply jobs to thousands, he said.

"It makes one ache to sit in the House of Commons day after day when the crying need of this country for action is so plainly to be heard, and to see nothing done," he asserted.

Fleeing Accident $500.

Some increased maximum penalties that would be provided for present offences:

For a motorist leaving the scene of an accident, the maximum fine would be increased to $500 from $50 and the maximum term in jail from 30 days to six months. Failure to stop would be made prima facie evidence of intent to evade liability.

Power of a court to suspend drivers' licenses would be extended to make the cancellation effective in all Canada instead of just in the province in which the offence is committed.

Terms for the carrying of firearms illegally to be required to run consecutively for any term imposed for commission of another offence which was simultaneous with the carrying of the firearm. Such terms may now run concurrently with other sentences.

In connection with arson generally, maximum terms are reduced. The explanatory note says the new maximums will be higher than those now generally imposed. Other changes are to provide for uniformity of sentences in connection with arson offences.

Wider Range for Juries

Another amendment makes it clear that juries may convict of lesser offences where the accused is indicted for manslaughter. An explanatory note says that in some provinces the courts have held that on manslaughter indictments the only possible verdicts are guilty or not guilty. Juries have been reluctant to convict of manslaughter whereas they would probably be inclined to convict of a lesser offence."

Provided no provincial statute overrides the suggested provision, spiritual healing will be given definite status.

Now one would be liable to conviction for failing to provide medical or surgical attendance who has provided "prayer or spiritual means as a remedial treatment."

Prisoners sentenced to whippings will be given them at the discretion of prison officials no matter if the sentencing court sets a specific time, another amendment provides. It is explained that some prisoners have escaped whippings because they were sick, or out of prison, when the day set by the court for whipping arrived. In some cases prisoners by good behaviour have earned enough time off to be out of prison when the day came.

It directed attention to the note at Wilson Cash's home, but the negro became frightened at the nocturnal visitor who gave it to him and failed to deliver it, so it did not turn up until later.

Penny Sale Is Big Success In Armouries

Mayor Hamilton, with a few words of appreciation for the splendid work carried on by this Auxiliary, officially opened the evening's activities, and announced the numbers of the first two free draws. Two thousand free tickets were given out between 6.45 and 7.30 p.m. From then on draws were made at the rate of three every ten minutes, and were announced from a platform in the centre of the building. Dick Lush, who had installed an amplifier, announced the winning numbers, assisted by Al Sharpe. The drawing was done by E. F. Mason, chairman of the Board of Trustees. The worthwhile prizes were displayed on this platform also, and much applause was heard as prizes were given out. One wee chap in particular won the approval of the crowd with his beaming smile as he received the sturdy wagon which his lucky number won for him.

The prizes, supplies for refreshment booths, lumber loaned for platform, etc., were all donated by citizens and local firms.

A notable visitor was Mr. Denton Massey, who had been speaking at the Conservative meeting, and who dropped in to watch proceedings. He spoke a few words to the crowd, and told them that his fan mail indicated that Peterborough, outside of the City of Toronto, was his most enthusiastic York Bible Class audience.

Plans Completed For Rotary Carnival

Arrangements are practically complete for the big event of next week, the Rotary Carnival which will be held on Thursday and Friday, June 9 and 10 at Riverside Park and the Rotarians are hopeful that a new record in point of attendance and receipts will be registered.

All the old favorite games and a few new ones will be lined up for the two nights of the carnival and there will be plenty of fun and color about the affair, in its new and beautiful setting in the park across the river. Arrangements have been made for adequate lighting and the whole event promises to be about the most successful in the history of Rotary.

This is gratifying in view of the fact that there have been heavy demands upon the club's funds for crippled children's work during the past year and that future activity along the line of supplying handicapped youngsters with a new outlook on the life will necessarily have to be curtailed if sufficient revenue is not forthcoming.

The annual carnival is Rotary's chief source of revenue and it is essential that unless the budget for the coming year is materially cut down that there should be a substantial amount raised at next week's carnival.

Tickets for the automobile which some lucky ticket holder will possess after next Friday night's draw are going fast and the public is reminded that in addition to the car there are a number of other splendid prizes which some ticket purchasers will win. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the Rotary Club or from the other citizens who are co-operating in the sale.

School Pupils Show Interest In Their Work

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 31. — "Pupils who in the past were hard to drive to school are now just as difficult to make go home," declared School Inspector A. H. Martin of Brighton in a talk before members of the Rotary Club on Monday. In introducing his talk on 'The New Course of Study,' the speaker first of all paid a tribute to the splendid work being done by Rotarians among the underprivileged children. This was a type of service with which he was absolutely in sympathy and which it would be impossible to estimate the amount of good done. The new course of study was first adopted after an extensive review of courses of study in Britain, the United States and various other parts of the world from which the most suitable portions of their various plans were taken. It is too early yet to speak either with affluent praise or with extreme condemnation of the plan.

One thing is certain, the speaker said, pupils are manifesting a much keener interest in school work, and this is especially true of the boys where courses in manual training have been adopted. Psychologists claim the idea is sound, but it rests however with the teacher to make it work effectively. The main objective of the new course is to make of the boys and girls good citizens and at the present time perhaps one of the most noticeable changes to the parents is the fact that children are reading more.

Mr. Martin cited an example of the out-of-date text of some so-called modern books. He asked a pupil who had recently moved to this part of the country from Saskatchewan, what that province was like. The pupil declared it was a desert. Her father had not had a crop in seven years. A brother of the student stated it was a province of sand storms, and yet the authorized text book states it is a veritable paradise for the wheat grower.

In the division of subjects, health is placed first. Children are taught they should live in physically and mentally healthy surroundings. Two hundred and fifty teachers took a course in this one subject alone last summer. The study of English is next in importance and includes spelling, reading, writing, verse speaking, verse making and literature. (In one school in this inspectorate the pupils with the collaboration of the teacher wrote the entire scrip for their Christmas concert). Letter writing to pupils in various other parts of the world is another outgrowth of the new system that is yielding much pleasing and interesting results.

In conclusion the speaker stated he felt the new course of study has been given a fair trial and that its values are appreciated by everybody despite the fact that some more ingenious teachers were finding it more interesting than others. Under this new system the teachers are giving the community a service far in excess of what it could ever afford to pay. Rev. Harold B. Neal moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for his very interesting address. Principal C. S. Haig of the Public School was a guest at the meeting.

May Give Appeal To Civil Courts

LONDON, May 31.—(CP)—An inquiry into the system of trial by court-martial observed by the British services will be conducted by a committee appointed by War Secretary Hore-Belisha. Chief question to be delved into by the committee is whether it is practicable and desirable for persons convicted in court-martial to have the right of appeal to a civil judicial tribunal.

Roland Oliver is chairman, other members being Tristram Beresford, Sir Felix Cassell, J. J. Lawson, Air Marshal Longcroft and General Sir Felix Ready.

Famous Millar Will "Stork Derby" Is Ended

Four Toronto mothers have each received cheques for $100,000 from the executors of the Charles Vance Millar estate, marking the end of the Millar Will Stork Derby. Payment to the mothers was believed the result of an agreement reached by the four winners and Mrs. Mathew Kenny and Mrs. Pauline Mae Clarke, who were appealing against judgment of the Ontario supreme court that they were ineligible to participate under the terms of the will. The four mothers who received $100,000 are shown, Top, LEFT to RIGHT, Mrs. Alfred Smith, Mrs. Arthur Timleck, Mrs. John Nagle, and bottom, LEFT, Mrs. John Maclean. The amount paid to Mrs. Clarke, bottom, CENTRE, and Mrs. Kenny, bottom, RIGHT, is reported to have been $12,500. The balance will be divided amongst the winning four after the final closing of the estate which is estimated to be considerably more than the original $500,000.

NO POLICE COURT

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., was entitled to the mythical pair of white gloves today for there was not a case of any kind to engage the attention of the court. The way was thus cleared for the entire police department to take part in the reception to the Governor-General.

HAD TO BE IN TORONTO.

Alderman G. N. Gordon was required to re-attend at a trial of an action in Toronto today and was unable to appear with the other aldermen and citizens in welcoming His Excellency the Governor-General. Mr. Gordon told the Examiner that the trial in Toronto which was to have been concluded on Monday was not completed.

PLENTY OF POLICE

His Excellency Lord Tweedsmuir has had the protection of adequate police during his visit to-day. In addition to the entire city police force, the provincial police and traffic officers, a detachment of provincial police in command of Staff Inspector Doyle of Toronto and Corp. Jack Woods of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were on duty.

BUY NEW HOSE.

Purchase of 500 feet of bilateral hose for the fire department was ordered by the fire, water and light committee of the council last night. The price is $1.40 a foot, from Kingan Hardware Company, local agents of the company.

TO LEAVE EARLIER

A slight change in the Wednesday program for Lord Tweedsmuir's trip up the canal and around to Chemong Lake and Bridgenorth was announced by A. L. Killaly this afternoon. The "Bessie Butler" will throw off its moorings at the Concession street wharf below the Lift Lock at 9 a.m. instead of 9.30.

TOLL MAY BE CHARGED

Merchants whose rear doors open on the market will be advised by the council that no parking charge can be levied on them by the market clerk on Saturdays providing their cars or trucks are parked along the roadway opposite their rear entrances. Otherwise, if they park out on the market they may be charged the usual toll. The council's decision follows a petition from some of the merchants respecting parking rights on the market street. The toll is only on market days.

MARY HONOR SKITCH.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, May 31. — The death of Miss Mary Honor Square Skitch, a resident of this community from her early girlhood years, which occurred on Thursday, May 25, following an extended period of ill health, removed another of the oldest residents of the village, and one highly respected by all who knew her; had she lived until July 1, of this year, she would have reached her eighty-seventh birthday.

Miss Skitch was born at Poffle, Cornwall, England, and came to Canada when she was only three years old. She was a daughter of the late Robert Skitch and Hannah Brock, and was one of a family of eleven children. Upon arrival in this country Mr. and Mrs. Skitch came immediately to Millbrook, and here the family homestead has ever since been established.

Miss Skitch chose dress making as her life work, and continued to follow this calling as long as health and strength would permit. She was a faithful member of the Methodist and United churches, and her immediate relatives remember her particularly because of her constant, helpful, and constructive interest in their welfare.

The surviving relatives include two sisters, Mrs. H. Neville (Tamar), of Port Hope; and Mrs. Barron (Francis Charlotte), of Rochester, N.Y.; three brothers, Thomas A., of Bailieboro; Samuel James, of Los Angeles, California; and Henry George, of Millbrook; a niece, Miss Marjorie Skitch, has lived with her aunt for several years past, and given to her a constant and loving attention and care.

The funeral took place from her late residence, King street east, on Saturday at 3 p.m., Rev. A. L. Sisco conducting the service; two favorite hymns of the deceased, "Rock of Ages," and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul,' 'were used during the service, and the minister based his remarks upon the Shepherd Psalm, choosing it because of the fact that it had always been a source of unfailing comfort to Miss Skitch, and particularly during her long illness.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, and the pallbearers were one nephew, William Skitch, of Millbrook; and five cousins, William Neville and Norman Yeo, of Port Hope; Arthur and Clarence Skitch, of Toronto; and Aaron Adams, of Bowmanville. Interment was in the family plot at Gardiner's cemetery.

Among those from outside points who were here for the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. N. Yeo, Mr. and Mrs. William Neville, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jones, of Port Hope; Mr. and Mrs. A. Adams, of Bowmanville; Mrs. H. Wilson, Bowmanville; Mrs. H. E. Peelle, of Forest Hill, Long Island; Mrs. Vivian Sutton, and son, Louis of Rochester, N.Y.; Mrs. Leston Jones, of Sanctuary, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Skitch, of Bailieboro; Mr. Robert Montgomery, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Skitch, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Skitch, Miss Ivy Farrol, of Toronto; Mrs. J. Solomon of Fraserville; Mr. Fred Skitch of Peterborough; Mr. F. E. Gordon, of Bensfort.

REMARKABLE MEMORY.

Reg. Palmer of Bethany had a pleasant surprise to-day when he went into a departmental store and found that a clerk there had the most amazing memory he had encountered. Her memory and her honesty are rare in this world, he commented.

A few weeks ago Mr. Palmer went into Zeller's and bought some candy. The clerk short-changed him by five cents. To-day he went back to the store, approached the counter once more. The same clerk smiled at him, reminded him of his previous visit, and handed him back his five cents.—P.

WARMED UP TO SUBJECT

It is not often that a heckler has at heart the interest of the speaker whom he is jibing. But one of them at the Conservative meeting here Monday night was either concerned about Denton Massey, or else he wanted to hear the best speech possible.

For after heckling the speaker regularly during the first fifteen minutes of his address, he found that Mr. Massey was warming up, and was directing heated questions to him in the audience.

"Who said 'No more treks to Washington'?" the speaker called down to him. "Can you tell me that?"

"I can tell you a little bit of criticism has done you a lot of good," the heckler called back. —P.

A MORTAL BLOW.

Agnes Macphail, M.P., struck him a mortal blow two years ago when she dubbed him the handsomest man in the House of Commons, Denton Massey indicated on Monday night when he addressed a Conservative meeting here.

"Some bright person got the idea of asking the lady member an embarrassing—to me—question and her answer has followed me unfailingly and irrevocably everywhere I have gone since," he said.

A little later he indicated the appellation was not so distasteful to him as his earlier reply would suggest. When a heckler, who apparently was under the impression Miss Macphail had been defeated in the last election, blamed the Conservative party for that defeat, Massey said in astonishment: "Not my old friend

INVENTED JINRIKSHA

The jinriksha was invented in 1871 by an American, the Rev. Jonathan Goble, a Baptist missionary residing in Yokohama, Japan.

A 110-foot motorship recently was shipped from Rotterdam to Sydney on board a regular steam freighter.

Cave-in Feared With Furnaces At Incinerator

Fred T. Tuggey's report to the Property Committee of the Council on Monday night on the condition of the city's incinerator might be paraphrased to the effect that the furnaces are likely to cave in any day, and further it is amazing that they have stood up under the heat so long.

City Clerk Armstrong was requested to have copies of the report typewritten and supplied to all the members of the Council. Mr. Tuggey's description of the incinerator which he recently repaired was substantially a repetition of the warnings he gave to the Council more than once when he was chairman of the Property Committee.

He was so convinced that something should be done to anticipate the ultimate dilapidation of the furnaces that he tucked away about $15,000 or more for the purchase of property in the country east of the city and also for the motorization of the garbage collection system with the longer hauls. And that former condition has now become worse. In fact, Mr. Tuggey said that while he was at work on the arches, with the fires out of course, several bricks fell out of the crown from the vibration caused by horses passing overhead.

A sub-committee recommended purchase of Point St. Charles from the McDonald Estate for $1,000 plus $500 for the Crescent Street right-of-way which the former lumber company originally bought from the city for that sum. The recommendation goes on to the Council.

Ice Contract Awarded.

The City Ice Supply was awarded the contract for providing ice for the public drinking fountains at the Police Station, Victoria Park, Confederation Square, and elsewhere, and also on condition that he include King Edward Park fountain for an extra $6.00 a month.

Tenders for coal were received from fifteen dealers, and after all the work of opening the letters was finished they were referred to a special committee for further scrutiny and a recommendation. The members of the committee are Aldermen McCannan, Wilson, and Juby.

Trust Company Is Defendant In Case

The Honorable Mr. Justice Makins is presiding at the non-jury sittings at the City Hall in the City of Toronto, in an action, brought by Mrs. Pearl Clarkson of Toronto, a daughter of the late D. J. Lundy of Peterborough, against the Toronto General Trust Corporation, one of the executors of the estate of D. J. Lundy.

The action is principally for the payment of certain monies alleged owing in an alleged trust fund amounting to $40,000, of which had been directed by the will of J. J. Lundy to be impressed by his executors and trustees. Apparently this trust was not at that time impressed and only at a later date was the trust alleged to have been set up by agreement among the interested parties.

Mrs. Susan Lundy, widow of D. J. Lundy, has also a claim against the estate and against the Toronto General Trust Corporation.

Gray Hamilton, K.C., and R. W. Brownell are counsel and solicitors appearing for the Toronto General Trust Corporation, the defendants; R. R. McMurty, K.C., and E. J. R. Wright, counsel and solicitor for Mrs. Pearl Clarkson, the plaintiff, and the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., is acting for Mrs. Susan Lundy.

The D. J. Lundy estate accounts were probated at $120,000.

In 1834 dogs were considered such a nuisance in New York City that the common council offered a bounty of 50 cents for each one killed.

CHAPTER 1

On this night Mr. William Daniel Baron was having his troubles, and they were greater than his passenger realized. At least she seemed to be unduly calm, much calmer than he felt.

"You know what we're up against?" he shouted.

"A storm isn't it?" she shrieked back. It wasn't a very bright answer; they had been in a storm since midnight, two hours before, the plane bucking and twisting. First there had been sand, terrific sand, but Bill had climbed over that. Back of this dust blow, however, was nature in black stampede from earth to sky. Lightning and rain and hail and even sleet, up there. He had been fighting the controls of his little cabin ship as if he were trying to conquer a wild bronco down on some ranch beneath them.

"Sure!' he yelled, grimacing, but unconsciously maintaining the drawl so characteristic of him. "But I mean, do you know how bad a storm? Do you know just how tight a spot we really are in?"

She turned violet eyes on him, wide eyes.

"Will we crash? I'm frightened! Awfully!"

"You'd better be! We'll crash—you'll crash if you don't get out. Here, I'm sitting on it—take this parachute and strap it on. Jump out and pull this ring, hard. Hurry!"

The girl didn't move. She looked straight at him.

"Wheres the other parachute?" she demanded, loudly.

"Not but one Take it. Do as I tell you, quick. Put it on. Throw that door latch, force it open and let go. Quit stalling!"

"But what will you do?"

"I'll land. Hurry, I tell you; we're out of fuel!"

"Then how can you land?" she shrieked it.

He growled to himself for that error. But he was struggling with the controls every second, too. The motor was sputtering. He was scared and admitted it to himself. He felt they were bound to be over mountains—mountains somewhere along the Mexican-American frontier. Maybe over New Mexico, maybe Arizona.

"It's got to ge done NOW!" he yelled in desperation. "This thing's gone loco! It's life and death, woman Tighten this strap under your arms and JUMP!"

"I can risk landing if you can!" she yelled back.

Bill Baron took time out, even with death riding the clouds around him, to mumbel a phrase in exasperation. But he knew the instant to act has indeed come.

He didn't expect much now. Life had been good; much luck had ridden with him. But this situation looked tough. Then a clap of thunder was so loud it might have been doom itself striking. Lightning of course added its fantastic play. The little plane leaped, but Bill knew it was sinking.

Quickly he himself picked up the leather strap of the parachute. He buckled it around his chest. The folded 'chute had been a cushion on which he sat, and adjusting it was but a moment.

He said no more to her. He let go the ship controls and, working with great speed, stepped across the girl and opened the door. The black gale and fog snorted in.

"What are you doing?" she screamed, terrified.

He didn't answer. He was wondering how any parachute could possibly go safely through that icy, boiling, billowly cauldron. But there was no alternative. He turned quickly, his back to the door and half his body, including the parachute pack, outside.

Then he picked her up bodily, squeezed her to his chest with one powerful arm. He took desperate grip of her shoulder clothing with his teeth. She was too benumbed with fear to struggle. Straining awkwardly, he pushed out, literally fell backard into the high night terror around them.

Neither the man nor the girl ever had any memory of the ensuing quarter hour or so. Nature's plan frequently grants blessed oblivion for us in what seems the actual moment of dying, so those who have experienced it tell. Bill Baron seemed gradually to come alive again. Whenhe did so he was very wet, and walking and carrying a dripping girl with him through the rain. Not all of the wet was water; some of it momentarily felt sticky and warm.

He walked as if in a trance, without air or direction. Roaring beset him and pains stabbed him everywhere. And the ground was far from level. Once when he skidded and almost dropped her, the jolt snapped her to a state of consciousness also, and he paused to put her feet down. Automatically she too began stumbling along with him.

In the electrical flashes he could catch glimpses of massive forms. They seemed to be rocks, or mountains, or both. Probably they were both, he reasoned when he regained some control of his mind. There were a few small trees, some more fantastic plant forms in fleeting silhouette.

They came to one huge boulder and had to turn around it. Immediately there seemed to be respite from the storm. The rock was breaking the gale and rain, sheltering them. He felt out for it, pulled the girl down to its base and huddled there with her. No rain hit them now. They crouched there with their faces hidden.

If not actually striking them where they huddled together, the rain nevertheless was driving. Then, miraculously as it can be only in the arid southwest, the driving stopped. One moment it was pouring, the next it wasn't. Bill Baron knew it was all over, maybe for months in that region. Sure enough, in less than 15 minutes the moonlight tore through. It shone intermittently for a while and finally routed the clouds altogether; away on the south horizon they could see a black mass that marked the progress of the storm. Bill felt the girl shivering.

"Let's walk some more," he commanded. "It's stopped."

"Yes, that will be warmer," she agreed. They wore only light clothing, for this was autumn. All clothing would be drenched anyway.

"Are you hurt" he asked.

"Just cold. And you?"

"Some thumps and scratches. Nothing. I needn't tell you how lucky we are?"

"I think I know. A parachute isn't meant for two."

"Right. Nor for a storm like that, Miss Dale."

"You know my name?"

"Who doesn't?"

"Yes, I suppose so. But that all seems so artificial now."

"That? What?" He looked down at her. He was walking with his arm holding her close for mutual warmth.

"All that—picture business. Ballyhoo. I have been scared crazy tonight. Or maybe scared sensible. I'm still scared."

"No danger now, much," he comforted. "But you had a right to be scared when we dished out. Why wouldn't you go alone? It would have been much safer."

"I may be a moving picture star, Mr.—— I don't know your name—but I am not altogether inhuman. I knew you'd have no chance at all."

He squeezed her shoulder, patted it. His hand plopped water. She knew he was thanking her.

"Do you have any idea where we are now?" she asked.

'What shall we do? Just walk?"

"Yes. If I'm not mistaken, I can see a faint light yonder. I thought it was a star at first, but it's too low."

They turned toward it. After a bit they knew it was a light. A mile of walking brought them within range of sound, too; the sound of music.

"Well, I'll be hanged!" drawled Bill. "They must have the band out to greet us."

They had. That is, an orchestra was playing, inside a large rambling house, a string orchestra. The music was soft but very rhythmical. As they approached, the man and the girl could hear unmistakable sounds of dancing, laughter, gaiety. There wasn't any other house in sight, no village or town.

"I hope they have a fire. Isn't it late for a country dance?"

"Not too late. When Mexicans have a fandango, they may run till breakfast. You ever been to a fiesta, kid?"

"No. But after tonight I'm not surprised at anything. And I'm too cold to care much."

"Well, I think you're going to one now. Some senorita will lend you a dry mantilla, maybe."

The had to go around a corral and past a long rail of drooping, saddled horses. A dozen or so automobiles were parked at one side. Through curtained windows they caught glimpses of motion and color, high color; and the music was ineffably beautiful, welcoming.

"Glory!" muttered Bill Baron, grinning. "What a night this has been! And it's not oer yet. Well, here goes." He stepped with her across the porch and banged his fist against a massive door. Then they waited, wet and shivering.

A Good Vocabulary Will Carry You Far

Be the Centre of Attraction

That vocabulary of yours! Is it a strong ally, bringing you success, or a tattle-tale that gives you away?

Does the right word come to the tip of your tongue as you greet a stranger, chat at a party, talk to the boss?

DOROTHY DIX

The World Owes Homage to the Old Maids Who Go Through Life Doing Good Deeds for Others but Get Little Credit, Even From Those Who Benefit From Their Beneficence

DEAR MISS DIX—We have a Mothers Day and a Fathers Day and a Be Kind to Animals Day, and in Texas they have a Mother-in-Laws Day. Why not an Old Maids Day?

Why don't we set apart one day during the year to pay tribute to tribute to the many old maids who lives have been sacrificed or others? MARIE S.

Answer:

I don't know. Maybe it is because most elderly unmarried women resent being called old maids and would take it as an insult instead of a compliment to have public attention focused upon their being unappropriated blessings. You can't very well cheer for dear old Miss Susan who isn't proud of being a Miss instead of a Missus.

But, anyhow and anyway, I am strong for the old maids whether they chose the single estate, or it was wished upon them. And I am ready to throw confetti, or march in a procession, or wear a flower in my buttonhole, or attend a banquet, or do any other old thing in their honor.

And I think it will be a fine thing for all of us to be forced to remember for one day in a year what we forget the remainder of the time: that is what we owe to the women who are the cornerstones of the churches, the philanthropies, the cultures and the civic movements in every community and who, having no families of their own, pinch-hit for all the mothers, sisters and aunts who can't or won't, make the grade. They offer up their lives as sacrifices on the altars of strangers without even expecting a reward of love and gratitude. Theirs the cross without the crown of glory.

There is the name of many an old maid written large on the scroll of fame—Florence Nightingale, the saint of modern nursing; Clara Barton, founder of the Red Cross; Jane Addams, social worker and founder of Hull House; Frances Willard, founder of the Women's Christian Temperance Union; Christabel Pankhurst, organizer of the women's suffrage movement in England; Susan B. Anthony, who did more than any one else to give American women the right to vote; Mary Lyon, pioneer of education in the United States, founder of Mount Holyoke College, and an endless list of other spinsters whose work in art, in literature, in science, in commerce have won the respect and admiration for the world.

But the old maids whom we should honor most are the unhonored and the unsung Aunt Carries, Aunt Sallies and Sister Sues of whom the world never hears. They are the saints and martyrs who have denied themselves love and marriage to stay at home and take care of querulous old people, or to support younger brothers and sisters and give them their chance. They are the penniless old women whose life earnings have gone to educate nices and nephews who do not even remember to be grateful and who need on Old Maids Day to remind them of what they owe to Aunt Hattie.

DEAR MISS DIX—We are two young men still in our teens and we are both in love with the same girl. She does not seem able to make a choice and leaves us swinging in the balance of uncertainty. Because of old-fashioned social laws, we feel an obligation to our parents not to marry just yet. Can you solve our problem?

JAMES AND OLIVER.

Answer:

Easily. Don't take puppy love too seriously, and that will enable both of you to love the same girl without any complications or hard feelings. Just try to realize that the mere fact that you have both chosen the same object for your affections proves that you are in the embryotic state in which you have no individuality of taste or judgment.

You have to conform to the general pattern. You have to wear the same kind of clothes that the other boys wear, play the same games, eat the same food, go to the same places and rush the same girls. That is why you and your friend have fallen for the same sweetie, and probably the reason she can't choose between you is that you are so much alike that she can't tell one from the other.

But I am glad to hear that you feel that you have an obligation to your parents that makes you hesitate to marry while still in your teens and while you have no way of supporting a wife. There is nothing more dastardly and contemptible that young people can do than to get married before they are able to even make a living for themselves and dump their husbands or wives and babies on their poor old parents. The "old-fashioned social law," as you call it, that demands that a man shall be able to meet his own responsibilities before he marries is one that I trust will not be scrapped.

• • • • • •

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — I have a couple of married friends who make everybody very uncomfortable and embarrassed by doing their petting in public. Even at a party they can't get through an hour without rushing into each other's arms and kissing which is, of course, nauseating to all beholders. They justify it by saying that they are married and they love each other. I am so fed up with it that I don't think I can stand it much longer. What do you think?

DISGUSTED.

Answer:

Methinks they do profess too much, and I would like to bet dollars to doughnuts that instead of billing and cooing at home they bite each other.

Husbands and wives who really love each other don't feel called upon to give public exhibitions of their affection and advertise their devotion. They prove it by unobtrusive little acts of consideration. Most of the husbands and wives who "darling" and "sweetums" and "precious one" each other in company fight like cats and dogs when in the bosom of the family, and hurl insulting epithets at each other.

Anyway, a public display of affection is always in bad taste and shows a lack of refinement and on utter disregard of the feelings of others. Petting parties should be strictly private affairs. DOROTHY DIX.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid, the shadow children with the turned-about names, ran up to the little table—it was a mushroom, you know—in Peg Cloverseed's tiny house. The table was heaped up with birthday presents.

Knarf looked. It certainly was a curious doll. The face was made of a kernel of corn with the nose and eyes and mouth painted on it; the curls were made of a few strands of corn tassel; the arms and legs were just bits of curved twigs.

"And just look at this set of doll dishes!" said Knarf the next minute, as he picked up a plate made of the round tip of a daisy petal. The cups were hollowed-out mustard seeds, and the pitcher was the end of a nasturtium blossom where all the honey is stored.

Queer Pin Cushion

At this moment Tom Thumb

It was heaped up with presents.

came up and laid his present to Peg Cloverseed on the table.

"Oh, let me see what it is!" little Peggy (she was even smaller than Tom Thumb) cried.

"But what funny little pins they are!" said Hanid. Do you know what the pins really were? They were the tiny horns which you find at the top of a thistle, and the pin cushion was a tiny bit of moss.

Peg had lots more presents: a hoop made of a blade of grass rolled together end to end and tied with a tiny strand of dandelion fluff; a top made of the bottom end of a very small acorn; a doll house made of a piece of honeycomb, and many more. But Peg said: "I like my daisy bicycle best of all!"

Musicians Arrive

She wanted to go outside and ride upon it. But all at once Tom Thumb said: "Here come the musicians! Now the party is going to begin."

And whom do you suppose the musicians were? A cricket, a katydid, a katydidn't and a frog. The cricket played a violin, the katydid and the katydidn't blew on two flutes, and the frog played a great big drum which went bo-oong, bo-oong, bo-oong.

And then everyone danced and sang and laughed, and though they were none of them any bigger than your thumb, they had as good a time as you or I, though we're bigger than Tom Thumb and all his friends put together.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, June 1.

This should be a lively and fairly progressive day, despite many perplexities, peculiar situations and probable delays and obstructions, according to the planetary positions. It may take subtlety, strategy, or diplomacy to sidestep some tenacious obstacles in which friends may be involved. Vexations, trials, and surprises loom. Travel may be necessary, and the clever manipulation of writings may serve to swerve dubious situations to the desired ends.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a fairly active and interesting year, although there may be frustrations, delays and surprising developments to cope with. An element of intrigue, mystery or subtlety may call for shrewdness or diplomacy. Journeys or removal may be involved. But with proper management, matters may thrive, with writings helping to solve perplexities.

A child born on this day may be clever, energetic, and hard working, but given to easy discouragement or depression. It may have certain subtle gifts of intrigue or inspiration which might prove a fine creative talent or lift it out of difficult or peculiar situations in life.

Barclay On Bridge

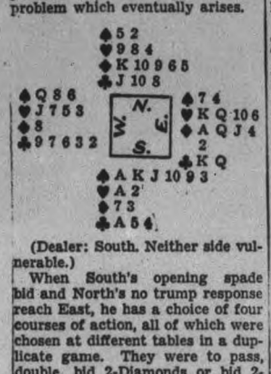
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

KEEP LOOKING AHEAD

YOU HAVE to keep looking ahead in this bridge game. If you judge your every act by what seems best at the moment, without preparing to cross the later bridges likely to be met, you may find yourself unable to cope with the problem which eventually arises.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

When South's opening spade bid and North's no trump response reach East, he has a choice of four courses of action, all of which were chosen at different tables in a duplicate game. They were to pass, double, bid 2-Diamonds or bid 2-Hearts.

Where East passed, South bid 2-Spades. This passed to East, who bid 3-Diamonds and was set three tricks. Where East doubled, the ensuing developments were exactly the same. Where he bid 2-Diamonds over the 1-No Trump, South called 2-Spades as before, and this passed to East. He didn't like to try 3-Hearts over it, as that would have forced his partner to the four range in order to show diamond preference. So he rebid diamonds at three, and was set three just like the others.

The one forward looking player called 2-Hearts over the 1-No Trump, so that he could safely show his other suit later. South bid 2-Spades. When East called 3-Diamonds over that, West shifted to 3-Hearts. This also was set, but only by one trick, as at least the side had got into the right suit.

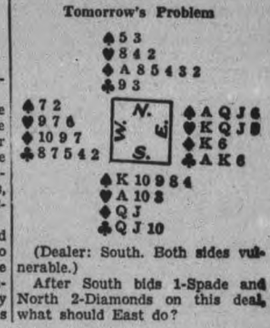
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

After South bids 1-Spade and North 2-Diamonds on this deal, what should East do?

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

WIFE MEETS HUSBAND

DURBAN, South Africa—(CP). — Married in Holland by proxy several months ago a bride on the way to Batavia, Java, met her husband here unexpectedly, when he, an officer on a liner stopped here with his ship.

Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!

Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "I just dose up and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over" at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble!

Chances are it's simple to find the cause if you eat only what most people do—meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Delightful Studio Recital

A delightful recital, presented by Hazel Elliott, June Shield, and Joy Walker, from the studio of Dorothy Allan Park, was held in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. Monday evening.

Hazel Elliott, Norwood, is gifted with a clear, soprano voice of excellent range and carrying power, and is possessed with that rare quality, a very clear diction. Particularly good was her rendition in a French song, "D'une Prison" and Handel's "Come and Trip It."

June Shield, of Ida, did her best work in Mozart's "Voi che sapete," and Lehmann's "Cuckoo." She has a delicate lyric soprano voice of charming quality, and is the possessor of fine breath control.

Joy Walker, a young singer of extremely promising character, invests each song with a definite atmosphere, and her intonation is true and clear. Her three British folk songs, "Phyllis on the new-made Hay," "The Little Red Lark," and "It was a Lover," proved very popular.

Selections were as follows: Old English Arne, arranged by Somervell, "Gathering Daffodils and When Daisies Pied" Joy Walker. "Bella Vittoria" (Bononcini) "Voi che Sapete" (Mozart) "The Silver Swan" (Orlando Gibbons) "The Trout" (Schubert), June Shield. "The Leaves and the Wind" (Leoni) "To Music" (Schubert) "as Butterfly That Blindly" (Scarlatti) "To A Miniature" (Brahe), Hazel Elliott.

The second half of the recital featured three British Folk Songs arranged by Healey Willan: "Phyllis on the new-made hay" "The Little Red Lark" "It was a Lover," Joy Walker. Brahms "The Little Sandman" "The Second Minuet" (Besley) "A Prayer" (Garrett) and Lehmann's "Cuckoo," June Shield. Joy Walker's next selections included Villiers Stanford "The Merry Month of May" and Harold Darke's "Spring." The concluding numbers, sung by Hazel Elliott, were "Come and Trip It" (Handel) "D'une Prison" (Hahn) and two Old English songs "In the Merry Month of May" and "Love Will Find Out the Way."

Adams, nominating Convenor of the Home and School Conference, read the nomination list, followed by the installation of officers, conducted by Mrs. Ward, who are as follows: Mrs E. Hubel, President; Mrs. A. Ellis, 1st Vice-President; Mrs. F. Blaby, 2nd Vice-President; Mrs. Gibson, Secretary; Mrs. E. Chambers, Treasurer. Executive Members: Mrs. G. Harris, Mrs. O. J. Fife, Mrs. Vannest, Mrs. G. Snowden, Mrs. W. F. Stanbury, and Mr. F. H. Dearborn.

"The Ethics of the Home and School Association" was subject for a brief address by Mrs. Wand, followed by a few words by Mrs. Parnell. Home and School Council President.

Arrangements were made for an annual School picnic to be held on the 23rd of June.

The Attendance Banner was won by Miss Leonard's room. During the meeting a piano solo was given by Irene Ellis. The National Anthem closed the meeting and dainty refreshments were then served.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Jacob wrestles through the lonely night with a strange strong power that maims him, but instead of yielding, he clings and wrestles on, and will go on wrestling until he has extorted a blessing. Here we have something very fine—. . . . The teaching is that wrestling is the condition of a blessing; that the long determined clinch brings coronation and makes a new man of us." —William C. Gannett.

Dear Friends:

Have you never wrestled with a problem until you found a solution? You tried this, and it didn't work. You tried that, with no better success. Many times you were tempted to give it up, throw it into the discard, and forget all about it.

But something inside of you kept it in your mind. This thing was beating you, and you did not feel good about being beaten. So you tried again, puzzled and tired as you were. This that you wanted seemed to come so close to you that you almost felt it in your grasp, then away it slipped once more.

But your mind hung on to it, you could not let it get really away. And then, as you wrestled mentally, the solution came to you, and you felt the blessing of achievement. Many times this strange strong power comes to wrestle with us in our lives.

We are willing to believe these things happened to Jacob and to Isaac, and to Moses, but we will not believe they can still happen to us. We infer that God has no interest in us, that He gives no Power to the angels nowadays so that they can bless us and our endeavours.

Well, this is how it affects me. If these things have happened to men all down the centuries, but have not come to me, what good are they to me? If all the blessings were handed out in bygone days, and none left over for these days, how will that help us?

If God could come close to these people and help them with their problems, we, as their descendants should not be left to do things alone. So, I have spoken to God as they used to do, with the fullest expectation of being heard and answered as they were, and believe it or not, He heard and answered.

Too long have we been made to feel that He is far away from us, that He is a jealous God, a righteous God, a God of wrath, and it has not been stressed so much that primarily He is a God of Love. Now, when you love a person, don't you want to do things for them? Don't you want to make them comfortable and happy? Sure you do.

So, if we as humans feel like that towards those we love, what must the love of God be in comparison? The trouble is so few try to find out about it, they want to wrestle around and find their own sort of happiness, but don't look in the right place.

Try looking for it in your Bible. You will find many things that will contradict the other if you are just looking for something to argue about. But you will find far more if you look with an open mind. Many of your problems will be found there, for human nature has been the same more or less, all down the ages. But you will also find the solution.

Every day we must wrestle with some problem, and some days we find ourselves also wrestling with this strange strong Power within us, and foolish indeed are we if we let go until we get a blessing from it. Do not tell me you have never felt it. It may be that you just did not recognize it.

Inventors feel this Power, and we reap the resulting blessings. Writers feel it, and help us solve many things by passing on their blessing to us, for these blessings must be shared. So, don't be downcast, but keep on wrestling until you also are blessed.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

GOT HIM BY HEAD

MELBOURNE—(CP).— It might be a good idea if Harry Wilson, 22, turned wrestler. A burglar poked his head into Wilson's window and he applied a headlock which held until police arrived.

A streamer of ribbon is attached to the back of a new Paris hat by Suzy, but is brought around to the wearer's front and pinned to the lapel of her jacket with a red rose, a replica of the one that trims the hat.

❖ ❖ ❖

❖ ❖ ❖

❖ ❖ ❖

Narrow bands of velvet ribbon—many rows of it—are used to weight the skirts of diaphanous summer evening frocks.

❖ ❖ ❖

❖ ❖ ❖

❖ ❖ ❖

There will be revival of upstanding fur collars on the new fall coats now that milady is brushing her hair up from the neck, thus doing away with the low roll which interfered with the collar.

Peterboro' Area Institute Rally Draws Over 250

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, May 31. — The annual convention of the Women's Institute of Peterborough District held Friday in the Havelock Town Hall was unanimously voted by the some 250 members present to be one of the most successful ever held. Ideal summer weather made possible a very large attendance and everything proceeded very efficiently under the auspices of the Belmont Branch Women's Institute acting hostess organization for the day.

The meeting commenced sharp at ten o'clock in the morning, opening with community singing lead by Mrs. Birdsall of Westwood. Mrs. W. Lean of Apsley, president of the district, was in the chair, and Mrs. Weller of Warsaw took her place as secretary.

Following the roll call, reports from the following branches were presented by the secretary-treasurers: Belmont, Mrs. J. Seabrook, Westwood, Mrs. Birdsall; Halls Bridge, Mrs. Shearer; Lakefield, Mrs. Redpath; Norwood, Mrs. Cuthbertson; Trent River, Miss Doris Scott; Warsaw, Mrs. Charlotte Cooper; Havelock, Mrs. .C Price; Apsley, Mrs. Roland Tucker; and junior branches of Lakefield, Miss Edith Blakely; Havelock, Miss Ruth Hagerman.

Mrs. Weller, district secretary-treasurer, presented the following report: membership, 324; papers and addresses, 88; total attendance, 2,485; total receipts, $1,925.53; total expenditures, $1,535.00; total balance $390.53.

Mrs. Birdsall, convenor of resolutions then spoke briefly, mentioning that one improvement the Institute might work towards was the abolition of unsightly dumping grounds along the roadsides, in an effort to attract a greater number of tourists.

The election of officers was then held, Mrs. W. Lean of Apsley being re-elected once again to the presidency. The other officers are: 1st vice-president, Mrs. H. Shearer, Hall's Bridge; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. E. Birdsall, Westwood; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Harry Mann, Trent River; federated member, Mrs. Weller, Warsaw; district delegate, Miss E. Wright, Havelock (alternate, Mrs. J. Hoffman, Havelock.)

Standing committees appointed were: health and education, Mrs. W. Lean, Apsley; legislation, Mrs. H. Shearer, Hall's Bridge; agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Fred Crowe, Lakefield; home economics, Miss E. Blakely, Lakefield; community activities and relief, Mrs. Thos. Brown, Trent River; historical research, Mrs. Fred Stewart, Norwood; Canadianization, Mrs. J. Seabrook, Belmont; junior activities, Mrs. Clare Price, Havelock; peace education and international education, Mrs. E. Birdsall, Westwood.

Over 170 At Dinner

The meeting was adjourned at noon, when the members were served a lovely dinner in the basement of St. John's Anglican church by the members of the Women's Auxiliary. About 170 persons sat down to dinner.

The meeting was resumed again at 1.45 p.m. opening once more with community singing. An address of welcome was given by Mrs. Wm. Smith, acting president, of the Belmont Branch, to which Mrs. Redpath of Lakefield, responded very nicely.

Mrs. McDowell, of Millverton, Provincial President, was then introduced and delivered a very interesting address, in which she gave a detailed explanation of the co-operative program.

The members were entertained at this point by a chorus of pupils from Apsley School, who sang "Thou Art O God the Light and Life."

Mrs. Shields of Ida, federated member, then spoke very nicely, asking in brief, that the branches plan their programs educationally and have clever standing convenors; that they have a scrap book and train their girls to be greater homemakers; stress peace at home and abroad; live their motto, "For Home and Country."

A very interesting skit was presented by members of the Westwood Branch entitled "An Invalid's Tray."

Miss Pollard, representative of the provincial junior women's institute was then introduced, and gave a short outline of this branch's activities. She announced that their achievement day is to be during the latter part of July.

The meeting concluded shortly after this with "God Save the King."

A woman inspector, Helen Markaryan, was sentenced to twenty-five years in prison and the manager of a silk farm to ten years. They were accused of destroying more than 600,000 mulberry trees.

MUGGS AND SKEETER —By Wally Bishop

Hospital May Shy At Chorley Park

TORONTO, May 31—(CP). — The Ontario government's offer of Chorley Park, residence of Ontario Lieutenant-Governors, to the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children may be rejected, it was understood today.

Since discontinuing appropriations for upkeep of the official residence, the government has failed to obtain an offer for its purchase and declines to rent the structures. Premier Hepburn then offered the palatial residence to the hospital.

Trustees of the hospital meet tomorrow to consider the offer but it is indicated that grave difficulties would be encountered in converting Chorley Park to hospital purposes. It is inaccessible for emergency purposes and is costly to heat and maintain.

Whether the government would permit the hospital to raze the buildings and sell the land to provide a fund for hospital purposes may have an important bearing on the hospital board's decision. Premier Hepburn repeated today that the offer "has absolutely no strings attached to it."

Tokyo, May 31 (Tuesday) (AP)

TWO AIRPLANES believed to be Chinese last night cruised along the entire length of the western coast of Kyushu and caused declaration of a state of alarm for western Japan was not ended until 1.45 this morning (11.45 a.m. Monday EST).

All available reported agreed the planes dropped no bombs, and apparently they ended their reconnaissance of the Kyushu coast without molestation and turned homeward. It was the second bloodless "air [illegible] Japan proper in 10 days.

Japanese authorities, fearing such flights might be preliminaries to mass air attacks on the crowded ports and industrial districts of Kyushu, admitted worry and mystification.

Hopper Conflict About to Start In Wheat Lands

SASKATOON, May 31—(CP).—An army of farmers across Saskatchewan plains are prepared for grim battle against grasshoppers and other crop pests with encouragement from technical agriculturists that conditions are right this year to rid large sections of these menaces.

Grasshoppers are just hatching, and the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture, municipalities and farmers are co-operating in the fight with research facilities of the Dominion Department of Agriculture Entomologist Branch at their disposal.

Kenneth M. King, in charge of the Entomological Branch here, said with favorable weather hoppers could be cleared entirely from large areas. He warned they would greatly increase should the opportunity now offered be neglected.

Result of years of research in Canada and United States has brought new ammunition to the attackers this year. Cheaper poison bait mixtures have been devised with flour or ground wheat replacing the bran previously used.

Grasshoppers ths year have invaded sections of Northern Saskatchewan previously untouched, but the total area of infestation is slightly less than last year, and the severity of the infestation is much less than before.

Saskatchewan's worst grasshopper invasion was in 1934 when large areas were affected.

Over 80 Varieties

There are 80-odd varieties in the west but 95 to 98 per cent. of the yearly damage is caused by only two. Technical men are more than ever hopeful of control this year as the stubble type of hopper was killed off in many sections by drought. Other types can be controlled by poisoning fairly easily as they concentrate on roadways.

Attention is also being given to wireworms which, Mr. King said, often caused losses of 15 to 20 per cent. annually in farm crops. "Fully three-quarters of the farmers over wide areas of Western Canada have a permanent wireworm problem of great economic importance but not one farmer in 10 realizes the danger," he said.

Experts have developed minor changes in farm practice which will effectively curtail the cutworm by individual effort and with added cost.

10 DAY TO WIN OR LOSE

SPRINGER, N.B., May 31—(AP)—Farmers in several midwestern and southwestern states battled steadily increasing grasshoper hordes today and gave themselves only 14 days to win or lose their war of eradication.

United States ranchers agreed the war must be won before the insects take flight. The young, wingless hoppers emerging from the ground and cracking in the hot sun, soon will take off to almost inaccessible arroyos and brush covered hills, where they can lay millions of eggs in comparative safety. It is estimated they can fly 100 miles a day.

Ranchers, civilian conservation corps and works progress administration workers, and state and county officials made Springer their northwestern New Mexico headquarters. They were armed with poison spreaders, made chiefly from out-moded automobiles.

In Texas Panhandle, officials said they fear $6,000,000 crop damage if the pests are not controlled. Preparations for similar warfare against the hoppers were being made in parts of Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma, where the hatch is not quite so early.

Urge Power Probe Hear Holt

Boasts Of Wrecking Two Regimes Reported By Lyon

TORONTO, June 1 (C.P.). — A special committee of the Ontario Legislature inquiring into affairs of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission was urged to-day to invite Sir Herbert Holt, Montreal banker and financier, to appear before it. The committee took no action on the suggestion.

Hon. M. M. McBride, Minister of Labor and a member of the committee, suggested Sir Herbert be invited after T. Stewart Lyon, former Hydro Commission chairman, told of receiving reports from brokers to the effect Sir Herbert had been "buying Beauharnois stock and bonds for his own account."

Mr. Lyon said: "The statement came to me that Sir Herbert said he had wrecked two Governments on account of the power situation, and that if necessary he would wreck another."

The former chairman told the committee a few minutes earlier that signing of contracts by the Commission with four Quebec power companies would result in higher power rates for Niagara system users within a period of 2½ years.

He estimated the Niagara system would show a deficit of $2,000,000 this year on existing power rates. The deficit would have to come out of a reserve fund of $4,500,000.

Ice Damage To Be Paid For

"I figure they can maintain the present rates for 2½ years before an increase is necessary," he added. Damage to the Ontario Power Company plant below Niagara Falls by January's ice-jam was estimated at $300,000 which would come out of the contingency account.

Television Fans See Derby

LONDON, June 1 (C.P. Cable). — For the first time in the history of the Derby Stakes, the world's most colorful and thrilling race, was viewed by a select group of fans in the comfort of their homes many miles from the course.

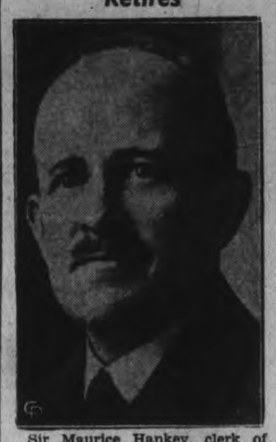
They saw the race from start to finish through the eyes of television. Cameras brought to viewers the full panorama of the throbbing Epsom scene, the shouts of bookies and barkers, and roved over the milling crowd and the fun fair.

The start of the race was not seen very clearly, but the focus gradually was improved and, free from the elbowing mob and the rain, home watchers got a close-up view of the dramatic spurt of Bois Roussel, rounding Tattenham Corner and the finish which old-timers described as one of the most thrilling ever seen.

As Hon. Peter Beatty, owner of the winner, came to the unsaddling enclosure, shouts of "Well dohe, Peter." came over the ether. Later Mr. Beatty was escorted to the Royal box where he was presented to Their Majesties, who warmly congratulated him.

Viewers acclaimed the experiment as a huge success and well they might, for they saw more than 90 per cent. of the race, more than did most of those on the scene, and were spared the inconveniences of the mad rush to find transportation home.

Retires



Sir Maurice Hankey, clerk of the privy council and secretary of the British cabinet and the Committee of Imperial Defence, has resigned his governmental duties to become director of the Suez Canal Company. No official explanation of Sir Maurice's unexpected retirement was given except that he was past the retirement age of the British civil service.

Police Arrest Spectators In Kidnap Hunt

PRINCETON, Fla., June 1.—(AP)—Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation emerged from the home of James Bailey Cash, Sr., today, seized a spectator standing in a crowd 100 yards away and rushed him off in an automobile.

Five minutes later Sheriff D. Coleman and several deputies, who arrived here to start an intensive search of the neighborhood for five-year-old James Cash, Jr., kidnapped Saturday, sped off in the opposite direction toward Homestead, a village a few miles south.

The throng from which the man was taken had been waiting in a school yard for Sheriff Coleman to instruct them in carrying out the hunt by posses.

Hope apparently had been abandoned that the boy, held for $10,000 ranson, would be returned alive.

The Miami Daily News identified the man seized here as M. F. Brazton. The man, about 55 years old, was bald and heavy-set.

Merchants closed their stores and everything was done to discourage the congregation of crowds.

Cash, moderately well-to-do merchant and filling station operator, secluded himself in his frame apartment house to await word from the kidnappers. His wife was near prostration.

Burns Prove Fatal To Cobourg Girl

COBOURG, Ont., June 1 (CP).—Betty Hoselton, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hoselton of Cobourg, died last night from burns received when her dress caught fire Monday night while playing around a bonfire in the back yard. She ran into the house with her clothing a mass of flames and tried to get some water at the kitchen sink. Her grandmother, Mrs. Young, smothered the flames by wrapping clothing around her. Her aunt had celebrated her 24th birthday that day and they were the candles from the cake which were used to ignite the fire.

Conscription To Miss Man Power

Chamberlain Refuses Details Of Bill Ready Since 1922

LONDON, June 1—(CP Cable)—Prime Minister Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons today that the government has a military conscription bill ready for submission to Parliament in the event of war. The bill, which has been in draft since 1922, does not provide for conscription of man power or application of the compulsory service principle to industry.

The announcement struck the crowded House with painful, if not unexpected, shock. It brought a whole series of supplementary questions. The opposition pressed for details. Geoffrey Mander, from the Liberal benches, wanted to know whether compulsory military service would be accompanied by conscription of wealth.

Mr. Chamberlain, replying to demands for details, did not think publication at present would be helpful because the draft would be changed from time to time as conditions changed.

Labor backbenchers pressed the point that the statement of Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Coordination of Defence, might bear the interpretation that some form of industrial conscription was contemplated.

The government has considered in outline how to make the most efficient use of the nation's man power in non-military channels in time of war but no scheme has actually been worked out for the application of compulsion to industrial or other non-military service, Mr. Chamberlain said.

He made it clear it would be for parliament, on the recommendation of the government of the day, to deal with any such proposals in the event of an outbreak of war. Whether wealth would be conscripted also would be left for the decision of parliament in time of war.

Words Misleading.

The Prime Minister replied that during the previous discussion Sir

Expect 172 Will Run In Saskatchewan

REGINA, June 1.—(CP)—The Saskatchewan election lineup will take on a definite form today when candidates file official nomination papers with the returning officers. It is expected 172 men and women will enter the lists for 52 seats in the legislature.

It probably will be a record number of candidates for Saskatchewan, exceeding the total of 169 who fought for 55 seats in 1934.

Although last-minute changes may alter it, the party lineup is expected to be as follows: Liberal, 53; Social Credit, 48; C.C.F., 31; Conservative, 26; Independent, seven; Labor-Progressive, two; Independent Labor, two; Labor, one; Independent Conservative, one; Independent Social Credit, one. Total, 172.

Only One Liberal Loss

Liberals controlled the last house, almost sweeping the province in 1934. In that election, Liberals won 50 seats and the Farmer-Labor party, now the C.C.F., five. Since the province was organized in 1905, Liberals have lost only one election, 1929.

The eelction wil mark the first concerted effort of Canada's newest political party, Social Crediters, to win a provincial legislature since they swept Alberta Aug. 22, 1935. Under leadership of William Aberhart, a Calgary school teacher, Social Credit won 56 out of 63 Alberta seats and formed the government.

In the federal election of 1935, Social Credit elected 17 members, 15 from Alberta and two from Saskatchewan.

Seventeen Social Credit candidates ran in the Manitoba election of July 27, 1936, and five were elected, holding the balance of power in a house of 55.

A year later, June 1, 1937, 18 Social Credit candidates ran in the British Columbia election but each one of them was far behind in the race for 48 seats.

The present election is the first since Alberta went Social Credit that the party has a sufficient number of candidates in the field to form a government.

Holding Drunks' Cars Effective June 7

TORONTO, June 1 (CP) — New Ontario regulations which require police to impound cars of motorists convicted of drunken driving will come into effect on June 7, the provincial authorities notified police forces today.

Cars may be impounded for a period of three months automatically upon conviction. During this period the convicted person will be required to pay costs of storage charges to the police. These charges, it was said would run about $18 a month.

U.S. Makes Another Offer To Get Seaway Going

Urges 27-Foot Channel To Lake Head By '49 Offers Concessions To Hepburn

OTTAWA, June 1 (CP).—Realization of the full possibilities for power and navigation development in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin is planned in a draft treaty presented to the Canadian government by the United States administration.

It is the latest in a long series of attempts by President Roosevelt and State Secretary Cordell Hull to bring the two countries together in development for their common power resources and the building of a seaway that would bring ocean-going vessels to the mid-west.

The treaty envisions provision for a 27-foot deep seaway from the Atlantic to the head of the lakes by Dec. 31, 1949. In attempts to sweep aside opposition from the Ontario government by concessions to Premier Hepburn, it would erase boundaries by setting up a 10-man joint commission to develop plans and advise the two governments on a building program.

Ottawa Silent.

The draft treaty was tabled in the House of Commons here last night with only a few remarks from Prime Minister Mackenzie King. He gave no indication of the attitude of the Canadian government toward it. In Toronto, Premier Hepburn, who has shared honors with the United States Senate in opposition to the St. Lawrence development, said he saw no sound reason for building the waterway. It would have to be justified economically before his government would agree to it.

Zimmerman Given 2 to 5 Years

BUFFALO, N.Y., June 1.—(AP)—Ex-Mayor George J. Zimmerman, convicted of accepting illegal fees while in office was sentenced to prison today for a period of not less than two nor more than five years.

Buffalo's mayor from 1934 to Jan. 1, 1938, Zimmerman was convicted recently on six counts of an indictment, these alleged that he accepted fees from an insurance broker while he was mayor.

Justice George A. Larkin imposed separate prison sentences for each of the six counts, but ruled that the mayor could serve the various sentences concurrently.

Pasch Finishes Third In the Derby

EPSOM, England, June 1 (CP Cable)—Hon. Peter Beatty's Frenchbred colt Bois Roussel today won the 159th running of the Derby.

The King and Queen and a crowd of some 400,000 saw the race.

Pasch trailed by another length after running prominently with the leaders from the start.

Bois Roussel was purchased only a few weeks ago from the French owner, Leon Volterra, and was one of the "tips" bandied about the stands. A field of 22 started.

Viscount Astor's Pound Foolish and Cave Man finished fourth and fifth and again disappointed the thousands hoping for a victory for the sporting peer. His colors never have been carried to a derby victory although his candidates have been prominent for two decades.

Bailey's Colt Fails

Another frustration for many was the failure of Golden Sovereign, Sir Abe Bailey's colt, who finished sixth. Sir Abe, whose second leg recently was amputated, risked his life by travelling 6,000 miles from South Africa against doctor's orders to see the race.

Pasch's failure not only cost the bettors heavily, but again deprived Gordon Richards, England's champion jockey for more than a decade, of his ambition to win the Derby.

Nagles Seeking Peace In 2 New Cars

TORONTO, June 1 (CP)—In two shiny new motorcars the entire Nagle family who this week received $100,000 under the Millar will, left their Toronto home today for an unnamed destination in the country, on holiday. Mrs. Katherine Nagle was one of the four mothers getting major awards under the will of the late Charles Vance Millar, whose estate was bequeathed to the Toronto mothers bearing the most children in the 10 years following his death in 1926.

A neighbor said she believed the Nagles were going to stay somewhere in Ontario until the excitement had died down. Mrs. Nagle arranged yesterday with school authorities to take her children from school for the rest of the term.

Unknown Canadian $150,000 Richer

TORONTO, June 1 (C.P.). — A Canadian who used the nom-de-plume "Bad Luck" to-day won $150,000 in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes as Bois Roussel won the 159th running of the Epsom Derby. "Bad Luck" had ticket CH69908.

Aurele Labelle, 33, of Buckingham, Que., and William Riddle of Mount Pleasant, Ont., won $50,000 each when the favorite, Pasch, placed third.

Total Canadian winnings in the Sweep exceeded $500,000 was 76 held tickets on non-starters and horses unplaced with $2,650 each; four won residual prizes worth $5,085, and 122 won $500 consolation prizes.

Labelle, an electric company employee, and Riddle both sold half-interests in their tickets on Pasch for $20,000. When the favorite came in third their net winnings amounted to $45,000.

Riddle heard the result of the race at his home without batting an eyelash. He had the wrong station on his radio set, and heard the news from an excited neighbor. Bill worked all night as usual at a Brantford service station, but stayed up when he got home.

Buy No Cars.

In Sudbury, Dave McVie and Harry Williamson of Falconbridge Smelter, joint holders of a ticket on Pound Foolish, were glad they had sold a half interest in the ticket for $5,155, for Pound Foolish was not in the money. The two split altogether $6,480.

"We had plenty of plans and would have been out of here fast if Pound Foolish won," said McVie. "But we didn't win, so it is back to work for us, and we won't be buying any cars, washing machines, farms, or anything else."

Portable Sawmill Destroyed by Fire

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, June 1—The portable saw mill owned by John Cronkright on the west side of the Crowe river was completely destroyed by fire early this morning. The fire was first noticed at 4.30 and the flames spread rapidly through the small mill. There was only one small pile of lumber in the yard as the season's cut had only commenced and it was saved. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Municipal Board's Decision Reversed On Appeal In De Laval Assessment Case

Appeal Made By Peterborough Company Is Allowed With Costs In Judgment Given By Ontario Court

A telegram was received by F. D. Kerr, K.C., today advising him that the Court of Appeal delivered judgment today allowing the appeal of the De Laval Company, and reversing the decision of the Ontario Municipal Board.

The De Laval Company's appeal was allowed with costs. The reasons for judgment will not be received until Thursday. It will be recalled that Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., made application to the Court of Revision to disallow the fixed assessment granted the company by by-law of the city of Peterborough, confirmed by two-thirds vote of the electors, on the ground that the by-law was a renewal of a previous fixed assessment and contrary to the provisions of the statute. The Court of Revision held that it had no power to ignore the bylaw, and fixed the assessment for the year 1937 according to the bylaw. From this decision Ald. Gordon appealed to His Honor Judge Smoke, County Judge, who confirmed the findings of the Court of Revision. He then appealed to the Ontario Municipal Board which held special sessions in Peterborough. The Board reversed the findings of the Court of Revision and of Judge Smoke, and directed assessment should be made the same as if the bylaw had not been enacted.

The De Laval Company then appealed to the Ontario Court of Appeal at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, the appeal being heard by five judges, Justices Middleton, Masten, Fisher, Henderson and Gillanders. F. D. Kerr, K.C., and G. W. Mason, K.C., of Toronto, appeared for the De Laval Company. J. R. Corkery and W. F. Huycke, K.C., for the city of Peterborough, assisted in supporting the appeal. C. R. McGone, K.C., Toronto, representing the Atorney-General of Ontario and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., in person, opposed the appeal from the decision of the Ontario Municipal Board.

TORONTO, June 1—(CP)— The Ontario Court of Appeal to-day granted the appeal of the De Laval Company of Peterborough, Ont., against a fixed assessment on its property of $60,000.

The appeal was against a ruling of the Ontario Municipal Board which validated a by-law of the City of Peterborough giving the company a fixed assessment of $60,000, and this ruling was upheld by a county judge and by the court of revision.

In today's decision the court of appeals said that none of these bodies had the power to render such a decision.

City Is Viewed By Governor In All Its Beauty

A fleeting glimpse from the loftiest part of Ashburnham Memorial Park of the city bathed in the warm sunshine of a perfect early summer afternoon was a fitting climax on Tuesday to Peterborough's official reception of Canada's Governor General, Lord Tweedsmuir.

It seemed an appropriate windup to what His Excellency had described in his gracious speech in response to the address of welcome as "a wonderful day."

Although the city's official connection with the Viceregal visit came to an end when Lord Tweedsmuir was taken to his private car on the bank of the Trent Canal at five o'clock the representative of His Majesty the King will not say farewell to this district until Thursday. This morning he embarked on the Government steamer Bessie Butler for a trip to Chemong and to-night will be spent in his car here. To-morrow he sets sail from Chemong on the Bessie Butler for Orillia.

Tuesday afternoon's program, packed into two colorful hours, gave His Excellency an opportunity to see a good deal of Peterborough and its people, and at the same time it provided an equally excellent opportunity for Peterborough people to see a good deal of His Excellency, and it was obvious that both enjoyed the experience. At least Lord Tweedsmuir evinced a lively interest in every feature of the reception and the graciousness with which he acknowledged the greetings he received and the anxiety he displayed to make every moment of his visit count won the hearts of Peterborough's citizens. To make his conquest complete by capturing the affection of the children as well the Governor-General proclaimed a holiday for the city's schools, a gesture that indicated that in addition to being a very fine historian and a skilful novelist, he is not without knowledge of the fine art of diplomacy.

A Crowded Two Hours.

In 120 minutes, Lord Tweedsmuir was shown a large section of Peterborough, was cheered and obviously delighted by hundreds of school children, inspected the war veterans, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Guides and the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, received an official address of welcome, made a suitably reply, held a reception at which many citizens were presented to him, visited the city's largest industrial plant, the Canadian General Electric Company, and wound up by viewing the panorama of Peterborough from the vantage point of Memorial Park hill.

The official party for the afternoon's end of the program was small. It comprised but two cars, the first containing the Governor-

VANCOUVER, June 1 (C.P.). — The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire operated with a net loss of $10,284 in the fiscal year ending April 15, 1938, Mrs. F. T. McCurdy of Toronto, national treasurer, reported to-day at the 38th annual meeting here.

Reason for the deficit was closing out of the War Memorial Fund, out of which bursaries and scholarships have been awarded to children of men who served overseas in the Great War. With increased awards during the last year of the fund's operation, disbursements from the

Canada Making Armaments For Emergency, Give Work

OTTAWA, June 1—(CP)— Development of the production of war materials in Canada is being attempted with two objects in view, Defence Minister Mackenzie said in a speech prepared for delivery today at a luncheon of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The objects were:

(1) To provide a source of supply in this country which can be rapidly developed in emergency and which, during peacetime, will provide additional labor for Canadian workmen.

(2) To provide facilities in this country through the resourcefulness of Canadian industry for such orders as may be placed in Canada and through their complimentary nature make Canadian production more expeditious and less costly.

Mr. Mackenzie outlined the arrangements that have been made by his department with various manufacturers for the materials and implements needed in Canada's defence program.

Arrangements have been made for the commercial production of cordite for gun cartridges. Previously this was obtained from England. The necessary nitro-cellulose is being imported from England but the Minister hoped technical difficulties now in the way of producing this

June Is Month Of Marriages So Little Advice Is Offered

As this is the first day of June, the month of that matrimonial medley of "O Promise Me," "Love It Is Morn," the confetti march from Lohengrin or, if you like, "Here Comes the Bride," orange blossoms, white satin, georgette and all that sort of stuff, to say nothing of that come-on ballad, "Two Can Live as Cheap as One,"—as well as being the month of Hymen and Aphrodite as it was dedicated in the long ago, probably it should be fitting to gather some kind of news about the great event of the month when the lilacs have faded and the roses are in bloom.

So, for those who are about to embark on the great adventure, and for others who are reckoning the possibilities, here are some rules for happy marriages as enunciated by Professor William Lyon Phelps of Yale University. Presumably university professors know something about this subject of universal and eternal interest, so here is what he says:

First. — Never leave the house, even if it is only to post a letter at the corner, without kissing your wife.

Second.—During the first twenty years of marriage occupy the same bedroom and never go to sleep with resentment in your hearts.

Third. — The all-important question is how to obtain character, and the surest way is through religion, —religion in the home. Professor Phelps termed character the most important requisite for success in marriage, because those who have character can turn an unsuccessful marriage into a successful one.

Indian Police Head Has Praise For The Mounties

Ottawa, June 1 (CP)

THE Royal Canadian Mounted Police was "a truly magnificent body of men," Sir John Ewart, Director of Intelligence of the Police of India, said yesterday.

"A visit to the R.C.M.P. at Regina and Ottawa confirms my belief that they are one of the most famous police forces in the world, a truly magnificent body of men," he said.

Former M.P.P. Arrested

WILLOWDALE, Ont., June 1 (CP). —Clifford Case, former Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for York North, was arrested yesterday on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated, and released on bail of $500. Police stopped him after getting a call from Thornhill to watch out for the car.

Measure to Curb Orientals Is Defeated

OTTAWA, June 1 (CP).—Opposition hammering at the government for failure to act decisively in the Vancouver transient labor situation and in dealing with the Quebec padlock law were before the Mackenzie King administration today. They were brought out in a day of varied discussion in the House.

Another feature yesterday was the bolting of six Liberal members who voted in support of a bill to restrict Oriental immigration which the government defeated by 87 to 39, assisted by two C.C.F. and one Independent member. The bill was sponsored by A. W. Neill (Ind., Comox-Alberni).

Some progress was made in spite of lengthy debates on these matters. Finance Minister Dunning obtained approval of the resolution on which he based a bill authorizing the government to lend $30,000,000 at two per cent. interest to municipalities on self-liquidating projects.

An Act respecting radio in Canada, modernizing the old Radio Telegraph Act, was passed through all stages, after some amendments to meet Conservative objections.

Repair Only Licensed Sets.

Transport Minister Howe read a legal report stating the government had constitutional power to require radio repair and maintenance workers to handle only those receiving sets on which the annual license fee had been laid.

The act to make sweepstakes legal sponsored by Ernest Bertrand (Lib., Laurier) was again talked out during private members' hour. Two members spoke in favor of it, J. S. Taylor (Ind., Nanaimo) and Vital Mallette (Lib., Jacques Cartier).

Debate on the padlock law and the Vancouver transients came up on the motion to go into supply which on Mondays and Tuesdays provides an opportunity of speaking on any subject. The motion passed just before 11 o'clock adjournment.

The government was told that it was failing to maintain the majesty of the law by permitting Vancouver unemployed to remain in possession of public buildings in that city. It was also urged to provide employment projects that would take the single unemployed out of the city.

Quebec Padlock Act against Communists, in effect since March, 1937, was described as a form of suppression similar to that which brought revolution in Russia. The government had acted within two weeks to disallow certain Alberta acts. Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) charged, and the altogether different treatment accorded the Quebec law would not make for unity in Canada.

Urge Power

He said a rate reduction on the Niagara system had been made on the supposition no power would be taken from the Beauharnois Light, Heat, and Power Company of Quebec. In Mr. Lyon's opinion Quebec power was not required.

According to his information, it was while negotiations were proceeding between the Government and Beauharnois in 193 for a new contract that Sir Herbert Holt was buying Beauharnois stocks and bonds. The contract, replacing a cancelled contract and ending the company's court action against the Government, was signed late in November, 1937.

"Let's bring Sir Herbert here," suggested Mr. MacBride. "I'l like to see him. I've never met him."

Conant Raps Editorial.

At the start of to-day's hearing, Attorney-General Gordon Conant criticized an editorial in the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Mr. Conant, chairman of the committee, drew attention to the editorial and charged it was prejudging the inquiry in stating that "Premier Hepburn made up his mind on the power question before the last election."

"It is quite improper and irregular for such comment to be made by any journal anywhere," the attorney-general said. "If this were a court of law the consequences might be serious if the presiding judge saw fit to invoke the law."

Leopold Macaulay, Conservative house leader, said the Globe and Mail expressed a similar belief last December, two months after the general election.

"Maybe the Globe and Mail knows more about the matter than any of us." Mr. Macaulay commented.

J. H. Clark, Liberal member for Windsor - Sandwich, interrupted, "Then why not subpoena them? The Prime Minister has made this a wide-open inquiry, but what is the sense of the investigation if there is no need to hear evidence and if an editorial writer can reach a decision before one witness has completed his testimony?"

The committee, which started sitting Monday, was appointed last session after Mr. Macaulay charged in the house that Premier Hepburn "fooled the voters" in the October election campaign by advocating a "Back-to-Niagara" power policy while secretly negotiating with Quebec power companies.

Lyon Continues.

T. Stewart Dyon, Hydro Commission chairman from 1934 until shortly after the 1937 election, resumed his evidence after the flurry over the newspaper editorial died down.

Mr. Lyon said he had refused to deal with the Ottawa Valley representatives until he was instructed to do so by the Government. Premier Hepburn was in Arizona at the time.

"Did you hear of other negotiations by a member of the Government who went down to see the Premier?" asked Mr. Clark.

"Yes, I understand an airplane was used," agreed Mr. Lyon.

Mr. Macaulay suggested David A. Croll, Liberal member for Windsor-Walkerville, who in 1936 was Minister of Welfare, could tell the committee about the plane trip. Mr. Croll was in the committee-room.

"We'll admit Mr. Croll took a letter to the Premier by airplane if that will speed things up," remarked Mr. Clark.

70 Cents Higher.

Mr. Lyon said when he met representatives of the Ottawa Valley Company he found they were prepared to accept $12.50 a horsepower, plus transformation cost, making the total $13.20 a horsepower.

"Then the price is $13.20 or 70 cents more than the contracts with other Quebec companies," said Mr. Macaulay.

Mr. Lyon said the only reason he signed the contract was because it included an option for purchase by the Commission of the Chats Falls power site on the Ottawa River. There had been some objection by the government but he had insisted on the option.

"The Prime Minister said he was opposed to Ontario owning property in Quebec, but he finally said 'You get the option,'" he related. "We got it and that was the only reason I signed that contract."

In February, 1937, he had virtually threatened to resign unless the government insisted on inclusion of the option clause.

"But didn't you know the government never had any intention of exercising the option?" said Mr. Macaulay.

"I cannot conceive of the government of Ontario, acting for the people, refusing the opportunity of saving $300,000 annually by the purchase of this plant instead of renting the power from the company," said Mr. Lyon.

Mayors Approve New Low Interest Loans

OTTAWA, June 1 (C.P.). — Executive of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities to-day presented to Finance Minister Dunning a series of resolutions approving the Government's legislation for loaning money to municipalities at a low interest rate and the proposal for self-liquidating projects and the low-rent, low-cost housing scheme.

The Mayors urged the Dominion bear a larger share of direct relief costs than under the present system of Government grants-in-aid At present municipalities pay about 30 per cent. of such costs. The Mayors favor a 40-40-20 split with Dominion and Provincial Governments paying the larger amounts.

If such additional assistance was not given, "municipalities in the Dominion will find it difficult to carry on their ordinary municipal services," said the relief resolution moved by Mayor John Queen of Winnipeg and seconded by Controller J. D. McNish of Toronto. During recent years, the Mayors contended ordinary maintenance works and services had been seriously curtailed in order to balance civic budgets and at the same time pay a large share of relief costs.

Want Liberal Handling.

The Mayors hoped the Government would give a "sufficiently liberal interpretation" to the word "self-liquidating" in the low interest legislation now before the House of Commons. Such an interpretation would enable cities and municipalities to undertake long-deferred and necessary public works, said the resolution moved by Mayor R. K. Serviss of Galt and seconded by Mayor Queen. The interest rate will be two per cent.

Pleasure was expressed at the announcement the Government would introduce at this session a national scheme for low-rent, low-cost housing. The Mayors urged the legislation he aimed specifically at providing modern housing accommodation for that group in cities whose small income now prevented them paying a reasonable rent. They asked the legislation be enacted without delay so full opportunity could be taken of the summer building season.

Search Narrows For Lost Plane

ZEBALLOS, B.C., June 1 (CP)—Search for a Ginger Coote Airways seaplane missing with four persons aboard since Friday was concentrated today along a 100-mile strip of shoreline between Barclay Sound and Nootka Sound on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

A dozen aviators were spurred in their hunt by fresh reports that a yellow machine like the one flown by 25-year-old pilot Len Waagen had been sighted in that area around noon Friday, when it was due here on a flight from Vancouver.

C. A. Elkington, district magistrate at Tofino, B.C., 759 miles south of here, said three loggers at nearby Cypress Bay "definitely" saw a plane Friday.

It was heading westward over Herbert Arm, apparently toward the open sea, and seemed to be flying normally.

At Nootka, midway between here and Herbert Arm. Albert Nani told provincial Constable John Cameron and Captain R. G. Larsen, navigator brought here to join the search, he had seen a yellow plane flying over Muchalat Arm at 1.30 p.m. Friday.

"There's still a 50-50 chance the missing persons will be found alive," said Pilot Ted Dobbin, free-lance engaged in the search, when he returned from an afternoon flight yesterday to Barclay Sound and inland to Great Central Lake.

He was accompanied by Mickey Nicholson, son of the Mrs. George Nicholson, who was a passenger on the missing plane. Besides Pilot Waagen her companions were H. R. Rumsey, Toronto mining engineer, and H. Boyd of Stevenston, B.C.

Conscription

Thomas did not have time to prepare his words. Therefore he did not express himself as otherwise he might have done.

"What my right honorable friend meant to say was that the fact a man had enlisted or had been trained in, say a fire brigade, as extra police, or as an anti-aircraft warden, must not be taken as affording protection against military service in the event of war should the government of the day find it necessary to introduce a compulsory military service bill in parliament."

At the same time Mr. Chamberlain hoped his announcement would not be taken as meaning there was no purpose in joining these voluntary services.

If war came suddenly, the prime minister added, the way in which such a person could best serve would probably be the way in which he had been trained.

Arthur Greenwood, Labor, questioned whether the prime minister did not think Sir Thomas Inskip had been a little dishonest in appealing for volunteers while knowing the draft of a conscription bill was in existence.

"I do not think there was any dishonesty," Mr. Chamberlain retorted. Sir Thomas Inskip might have been unintentionally misleading but none who knew him would say he was dishonest.

A Labor Question

The Independent Labor party now joined in:

"Do I understand the prime minister to say," questioned James Maxton, "that since 1922 there has been a bill in draft in detail for compulsory military service in this country, that it has been in view of successive governments, and that it will be immediately introduced in parliament in the event of war, with full details of ages, classes and so forth?"

"I didn't say details," Mr. Chamberlain replied. "I said the proposals have been in the form of a draft bill since 1922. I said they had been under the consideration of successive governments. I did not say what view successive governments took. I did say it had been changed by successive governments from time to time."

James Ede, Labor, questioned what Sir Thomas Inskip meant by saying a competent authority would be empowered to allocate to everybody a proper position in time of war.

Places To Be Given

Mr. Chamberlain: "I have already explained that my right honorable friend distinguished, or intended to distinguish, between military and other service and intended to convey that there would be a competent authority which would say whether a person—in the event of the military service bill being introduced—should be exempted from military service in view of the importance of other work."

George Buchanan, Independent Labor, demanded to know whether the government at the same time intended to conscript wealth.

"It will be for the government of the day to decide what proposals it shall submit to parliament if war breaks out," Mr. Chamberlain replied, adding that "neither this house nor the government are at present committed."

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, asked "if the government decided on the outbreak of war it was necessary to introduce military conscription, would the government also conscript wealth?"

The prime minister replied he couldn't say "what action would be taken by whatever government happened to be in power should there be an outbreak of war."

The house turned to other business with the dry suggestion from a Labor back-bencher that Mr. Chamberlain should compare his statement with that of Sir Thomas Inskip and arrange lessons in English for cabinet ministers.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, June 1—(CP). — Winnipeg July wheat soared the five-cent allowable limit to-day in its second session on the comeback trail after dropping 15 cents in less than a fortnight. Good Southern demand and shortage of sellers accounted for the two-day boost of 8¾ cents.

Final wheat quotations to-day were 5 to 1 cent higher, July 97⅜b, October 76⅝ cents.

Brisk buying flurries at the start and during the closing stages provided the bulk of the day's business. Scarcity of July offerings, light export buying and continued Italian purchases of Australian and American wheat were constructive influences.

July, the last of the old-crop futures, moved ahead 3⅝ cents yesterday, fell back ⅝ at the opening to-day, but soon afterwards advanced again.

Presbyterians Name Moderator Tonight

TORONTO, June 1 (CP)—Election of a new moderator will mark the opening of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada here tonight. Among five eligible Ontario ministers is Dr. S. Banks Nelson, Hamilton, who has neen twice previously nominated for the post.

Disputes between the Presbyterian and United churches will be discussed during the assembly, the chief of these having to do with the title of the Presbyterian church. The United Church by the act of parliament incorporating the latter group in 1925, and that no church outside the union has a right to that title.

A joint committee of the two churches is probing points on which they disagree, and will present a "progress report" on these during the session. There have been disputes over bequests to churches, some of them being the subject of civil court cases.

I am an advertising man

For over thirty years I have been writing advertisements for national advertisers—shoes, soap, cereals, automobiles, radios, tobacco, blankets, tooth-powder.

To me it is the most fascinating work in the world—learning about the merits of merchandise and then telling people about them—bringing greater comfort, and enjoyment, into people's lives — introducing people to new pleasures, helping them to get the most for their money.

Besides being fascinating, it is satisfying. My intimate experience with advertisers has shown me that, except for rare exceptions, the manufacturers and merchants of this nation lean over backwards to be sincere and honest.

The law of advertising is simple once one understands its working — the more people know about the merit of a product, the more people buy it. The greater the volume of sales, the less the cost of manufacture. Savings in making mean either lower prices to the consumer or greater value put back into the merchandise.

As an advertising man I can sincerely affirm that it pays to read the advertisements in the newspapers — for news of new things, for news of bargains and savings.

There are thousands of other men — and women — devoting their lives to advertising writing, who will tell you the same thing. They know!

Seaway Scheme Stirs Howl In U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(AP)—A new United States proposal for developing the St. Lawrence deep waterway encountered opposition today from many of the senators who blocked the $500,000,000 project four years ago.

Cordell Hull, the American secretary of state, submitted to Canada last night a revised treaty by which the two nations would construct a huge Hydro-Electric power project and a 27-foot channel to permit seagoing vessels to reach the Great Lakes basin.

The proposal differs in one major point from the treaty rejected by the United States Senate in 1934: the Washington government would proceed with her share of the work at once, but Canada could wait until Dec. 31, 1949, when her need for electric power might be greater.

The American offer to finance construction by Canada of a waterway around International Rapids drew immediate fire from Senator Wagner (Dem.-New York). He approved, however, Mr. Hull's suggestion that the United States build a Hydro-Electric project at the rapids to supply 1,100,000 horsepower in cheap current annually for American consumers.

Senator Copeland (Dem.-New York), the other senator from President Roosevelt's home state, announced he was against the seaway project "1,000 per cent." He called it "an all-British canal."

Mississippi Demand

Senator Clark (Dem.-Missouri), pointed out that the treaty would permit diversion of only 1,500 cubic feet of water a second into the Chicago Drainage Canal. He said the Mississippi River must received more water than that from the canal in order to fill a proposed nine-foot channel.

Even Senator Pittman (Dem.-Nevada), who worked for acceptance of the 1934 treaty, predicted the new offer would be bitterly debated. He said it might have a chance for passage if modified to meet some of the objections raised in the Senate, However, Senator Clark saw no such possibility.

"The Senators who are interested in the development of the Mississippi are never going to agree to let a commission fix the amount of water that can be diverted from the Great Lakes into the river," Clark declared.

Administration officials said the combination of cheap power and the possibility of receiving raw materials by water would lead to the founding of new cities on both sides of the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes.

Senator Wagner said that while he opposed development of the seaway, he preferred to read the new treaty before committing himself fully.

"I favor development of water power and preservation of the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls," he said.

Copeland, however, asserted there was no need for further extensive power development in the St. Lawrence.

"We already have more power than we can use," the New Yorker said. "If we require more power New York can develop it without getting involved in a proposition such as the proposed seaway treaty."

300 Passengers and Crew Escape

This aerial view made over New York harbor shows the superstructure and bare outlines of the excursion steamer, Mandalay, as it appeared the day after the steamer was sunk in collision with the S. S. Acadia, Bermuda-bound. Quick thinking on the part of the Acadia's skipper saved the lives of the approximately 300 passengers and crew aboard the Mandalay. Not a life was lost as passengers scrambled to safety as the two ships were locked together by the impact. Note the Mandalay's life-boats floating beside the stricken vessel.

Millbrook Pastor Is Guest Speaker

NORWOOD, June 1.—On Sunday, the 92nd anniversary services of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Norwood, were observed by the congregation with the guest speaker at both morning and evening services being the Rev. R. H. Williams, B.A., B.D., of Millbrook.

At the morning service the text was taken from Mark 8, verse 36, "For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul." In the evening the text chosen was from Hebrews 6, verse 19, "We have an anchor of the soul sure and steadfast."

Special appropriate music was well rendered by the choir assisted by members of the choirs of St. Andrew's Church, Hastings and Knox Church, Havelock. The anthem at the morning service was "Living for Jesus" by C. H. Lowden and a duet by Miss E. Godin and Mr. H. Godin "God Will Take Care of You," by H. S. Martin.

At the evening service the anthem sung was " Lead Kindly Light" by John Henry Newman; a duet by Mrs. Whitred and Mr. Han of Hastings, "Alone" by B. H. Price and solo by Mrs. Jamieson, "The Sinner and the Song."

The church was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, two lovely baskets of snapdragons and carnations were placed in memory of Mr. and Mrs. James Calder by Misses Jennie and Christina Calder and in memory of Mr. Robert Dobberman by Mrs. Dobberman and son Bobbie.

The basket of tulips were given by Mrs. Hendren in memory of her son, Mr. Karn Hendren. The basket of gladiolii were in memory of Mrs. J. H. Rork given by Mrs. Rork.

300 Women Are Attending Baptist Missionary Convention

Three-Day Convention Opens In City In Murray Street Church

Murray Street Baptist Church, Peterborough, is the Mecca toward which the members of the Women's Baptist Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of Ontario West come together in annual convention this week, May 31, June 1 and 2. With a delegation numbering three hundred women on mission work intent and with "love in action" as the theme running through all its sessions, this convention of 1938 must essentially be permeated with love which will in turn be carried home by the delegates to their churches and circles.

Opening on Tuesday at two o'clock the initial session consisted of conferences. The directors' conference, led by Mrs. W. H. Mason of Hanover, dealt with many problems of leadership, while the Mission Band leaders' conference, led by Miss Hilda Calvin, Toronto, proved fruitful with suggestions along this important phase of work, and was a fine prelude to the evening session, which was largely attended by visitors and friends. Mrs. W. A. Batty of Toronto, the president graciously presided over the meeting, assisted by other members of the executive.

The convention hymn, "In Christ there is no East or West," was followed by prayer offered by Mrs. H. R. Kemp, Beamsville, who prayed that the enthusiasm and inspiration gained by the delegates might be transmitted to their various home groups.

Welcomed to Peterborough.

In warm words the delegates were welcomed by Mrs. Gordon Mann to Murray Street Baptist Church, to our homes and to the city on behalf of the convention church, Park Street, Gilmour Memorial, and Lakefield Churches.

A feature on the evening's program was the sketch, "Mrs. One-of-Us Reads Her Link and Visitor," prepared by Mrs. George Johnston of Bracebridge as a birthday gift on its tenth anniversary.

The editors and treasurer of this splendid missionary bulletin, Miss Ernestine Whiteside, Mrs. P. L. Howell, and Mrs. H. W. Pettitt, were introduced and asked to stand. The sketch was designed to show the scope and character of "Link and Visitor," and how completely it covered every phase of our mission enterprise. In such a brief sketch only the merest suggestion can be given, but "a little sample" was brought from each department. Every word spoken was taken from the pages of last year's number of "Link and Visitor," not word for word, but the actual content was unchanged. The prologue was given in a most interesting manner by Mrs. Frank Wright of Toronto as Mrs. One-of-Us.

In unfolding the sketch she read one article from each department, which was acted in realistic style as though her mind-pictures had taken form.

The first scene represented "Our Work Abroad," in which Mrs. Howell, assisted by two delegates from Toronto, presented the work in topsy-turvey village of Vuyyuru, in vivid style.

Mrs. Charles Dengate represented Bolivia in a delightful word picture and scene three depicted the "Work at Home," in the capable hands of the group from Gilmour Memorial church, led by Mrs. Graham. Scene four was presented by Port Hope Circle in "Among Our Circles," featuring their 60th anniversary, with two of the real charter members, Miss Jackson, now of Peterborough, and Mrs. Bassett, taking part.

"The Foreign and Home Mission Treasury" was shown in the next scene, as presented by a member of the Foreign Board, Mrs. A. Hillyer, Waterford, who showed the financial needs of the work.

Miss Hilda Calvin, Toronto, with two other delegates, in a beautiful message in song, brought before the convention the work of the young women.

In conclusion, the eader declared that the Link and visitor gave a complete idea of missionary undertakings as a whole and as such commended it to all readers.

Following out the convention theme, was the beautiful prayer service concluding the evening session, led by Mrs. J. P. Ryley, of Lindsay, who spoke on Paul's familiar words on love from 1 Cor. 13, Moffatt's translation. Earnest prayer was offered by Mrs. P. C. Reed, Lindsay, and others.

This first successful day featuring "love in action" came to a happy ending with the hymn, "Fountain of God, To Own, Thy Love," and prayer by Mrs. John Hooper.

The billeting committee and hostesses were on hand to direct their guests to a comfortable night's rest, to re-assemble on Wednesday morning for further deliberations along missionary lines.

Terry, a six-weeks-old puppy, is shown examining what is thought to be one of the pelvic bones.

Used To Wake Up With a Headache

Now Fresh and Lively Every Morning.

Here is a man who woke up every morning with a dull headache. Then Kruschen transformed his days. Read his letter:—

"I used to wake up in the mornings with a dull headache. A year ago, I started taking Kruschen Salts regularly. To-day, I wake up fresh and lively and can do my day's work without any exertion. I can recommend Kruschen for anyone suffering from headaches and constipation, and for putting new life into you. I intend to continue with Kruschen for the rest of my life."—E.P.

Headaches can nearly always be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them from forming again — and you'll never have to worry any more. And that is just how Kruschen Salts brings quick and lasting relief from headaches. advt.

The First Telegraph

Canada's first telegraph line—connecting Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Hamilton and Toronto—was completed in 1847. Before this, even the most urgent messages were either carried by mounted messenger or entrusted to stage or boat.

In November of the same year, the Canada Life issued its first policy to a resident of Ontario—the first policy issued by a Canadian life insurance company.

Since that time the company is proud to have shared in the development of the province. The savings of its policyholders which have been invested in Ontario continue to assist in providing employment for thousands, and in supporting almost every branch of agriculture and industry.

A Welcome Visitor

Peterborough and Lakefield had opportunity to meet Lord Tweedsmuir. One might spend quite a bit of time and space writing of what transpired during his visit, but the one thing which needs saying can be put in words of simplicity. Just this—the people liked him.

Of course there were the usual formalities with which such visits are associated, but the representative of His Majesty in this country has of dignity not too much; just about the right amount we should judge. He is splendid company for a community to have for a day or longer because he is so intelligently interested in so many things. He leaves the impression that if he were to go into any city, town or rural district he would have an enjoyable time without much entertaining or preparation.

Lord Tweedsmuir has travelled so extensively since coming to this country that he probably knows more of Canada than Canadians themselves. Possessed of that fine combination of simplicity and sincerity although his stay is of limited duration, he can be assured that on his departure he left a number of people with the feeling that they actually knew him and would welcome a return visit.

A Mean Man Did This

A man described as smooth-talking visited the Employment Offices in Montreal a few days ago. He said he was in search of 175 men to go and work as lumber jacks at St. Eugene, a hamlet near Ottawa which boasts of three or four houses.

Those who would be accepted would have to hand over 80 cents each to pay half their train fare, and the balance would be paid by the company on arrival. The men would be paid $45 a month for their work and would be given board as well.

One hundred men, out of work, managed to secure 80 cents each which they handed over to the prospective employer. They got on the train and made the trip 90 miles from home and found on arrival at St. Eugene there was no work for them. The railway company being informed of what had taken place made arrangements to take the men back to Montreal.

It may be that in piecing together the population of any country or community it is necessary to include a certain number of mean men. It would seem that Montreal has been called upon to harbor an individual whose qualification for that classification is beyond question. We realize well enough that it is serving no good purpose in saying anything about him; this man will never read this nor will it aid in giving back the 80 cents to each of those men who have so little. Exploiting the jobless and the empty-pocket folk has been tried before but on many occasions the exploiter has been caught. The danger to the community is that a person who would get down to that low level would be quite capable of devilry of any kind and as long as he is at liberty he is a menace.

Not Moved To Thanks

Reporters in Toronto had an interesting assignment when they were sent to find what the stork derby families intended to do with the $75,000 which they received from the Vance Millar estate. They found most of the senior members of the families had so many callers they had gone out for the rest of the day. It seemed to be taken for granted all these families would immediately want to buy something and the offerings made to them were varied—farms, summer cottages, household equipment, furniture cars, and so on.

There was one family which fared less well than the others in the distribution of the money, the amount going to that home being $12,500. The head of the family in telling the reporter about it was impressed only by the paucity of the amount. Nothing less than $25,000 would have been any good at all. He said if they paid their bills there would be little left.

Perhaps this man was thinking of his $12,500 and comparing it with the $75,000 received by four other families, and that of course might make his share look small. But the plain truth is that $12,500 in cash is a goodly sum of money. It is away and beyond that which is possessed by the great majority of our people.

It may be had the late Vance Millar been able in his living and working days to have anticipated such a remark as the result of the beneficence of his strange and ill-advised will he would have hesitated in making it. There are plenty of places in the country today where the bestowal of $12,500 would bring forth many words of profound thanks.

Make Sure Of It Now

Premier Hepburn claims the province is not going to make any more grants for airports. He says the port being prepared at Malton, which is about midway between Brampton and Weston, is not in the right place. It is too far from Toronto. The Premier's idea is there should be one good port west of Toronto which would serve both that city and Hamilton.

People travel by air in order to save time, and for that reason airports have to be so placed that they will readily serve the larger centres of population. It is not possible to have too many of them because that would make the service slower.

Having one large and well-equipped port to serve two centres of population such as Hamilton and Toronto seems sensible. If error in selection has been made by putting an airport at Malton the time to correct it is now and not after all the money has been spent.

Seems Fair Enough

Miss Rene Caisse who has been conducting a clinic at Bracebridge for several years for the treatment of cancer patients made the claim that the recent action of the Ontario Government in passing the Cancer Remedy Act would mean she would have to close her place in Bracebridge.

Hon. Harold J. Kirby, Minister of Health, says that is not so. When a commission has been appointed under this Act it will require Miss Caisse to submit her remedy so that its merits may be passed upon. That means she will have to reveal the contents of the material she has been using, and that is one thing she does not want to do. But the Commission will not make known the formula she has devised, as it is specifically provided that such secrecy shall be maintained.

It is also a fact that if this Commission does investigate this specific which is being used by Miss Caisse and finds that it has in it nothing of value the Commission has not the power to close the clinic at Bracebridge.

The method of investigation seems to be eminently fair. The Commission which will operate under the provisions of the Cancer Remedy Act is not trying to seize anyone's property, but rather to ascertain the degree of worth and benefit there is in the various methods and treatments being applied today, and if the Commission members are sufficiently skilled to provide that information then the public is entitled to receive such service.

If the Commission finds value in any of the forms of treatment investigated then that particular form of treatment should receive the stamp of official approval. We take it that all those who have been doing work on cancer treatment desire to serve the public rather than enrich themselves.

The Tomato a Vegetable?

Well, that is settled. Or is it? The Tomato is a vegetable and not a fruit. Court at London, Ont., has said so. It all happened when a man in that city was charged with selling fruit on a restricted street. That is, he was selling tomatoes from a truck. Answering the charge he claimed he was not selling fruit as stated, but was selling vegetables. That took place a month ago and meantime it has been ascertained that tomatoes are vegetables.

With what degree of authority that finding is draped we do not know. It is not likely it will settle anything.

Looking at Harmsworth's Encyclopedia we find the tomato referred to as fruit; there is an illustration showing the "ripe edible fruits of a cultivated English variety."

Webster's Dictionary describes the tomato as a fruit, and in the course of describing it says: "The fruit is fleshy, usually read or yellow."

On what authority the London court based its decision is not stated, but it has actually settled nothing at all.

Killed on a Holiday

United States had a holiday longer than usual for Memorial Day. That day is set aside to honor the memory of the nation's soldiers, and there are usually services and decorations of graves.

This year the holiday was of 72 hours' duration, three full days of it—Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. But of course the people did not all stay at home, visit cemeteries and contemplate on the heroism of their soldier dead. They had other matters to which they attended. Chief among these other matters was the one which can be called "going places."

Reports are slow at coming in this year, but so far the records show 149 people were killed in traffic accidents and 58 were drowned. It is explained that traffic and drownings are rather closely related because people travel in cars to water resorts where they know nothing of the depths and holes. Fire killed 10 people and 23 were rubbed out in other accidents.

In all 250 lives gone because there was a holiday. So Memorial Day as a holiday becomes Memorial Day as a reality for many of those who seek to celebrate.

Will Mean No Change

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, has introduced an amendment to the Criminal Code by which he will seek to make our law conform to that of England regarding the extent to which newspapers are to be allowed to publish reports of divorce cases. The whole purpose of the change is included in one clause which seeks to curtail the publication of "indecent matter, or indecent medical, surgical or physiological details being matter or details the publication of which would be calculated to injure public morals."

Newspapers are interested of course in any law which regulates what they may or may not publish, but in this case there will be not protest from the press. The proposed change merely insists on something which is already being done—that is, the careful recording of divorce evidence so that no offence will be given to readers.

It is known of course that such a policy is playing directly into the hands of those who seek divorce. They would be the first to approve of the change which Mr. Lapointe desires. They have no desire to have details of their marital troubles paraded in print, and if they knew such would be done they would probably hesitate before approaching the divorce courts.

The custom in Canadian newspaper offices is almost uniform. All the paper publishes or desires to publish is the names of parties to the action, the place and time of trail and the outcome. It is considered that is sufficient. Before the change was made in the English law there were papers in that country which published almost verbatim reports of divorce cases and the rather unlovely result was that their circulation reached a high figure.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe can proceed with his regulations of what papers can or cannot print regarding divorce cases knowing there will be no objections to the course he is taking. The press has already placed its own censorship on divorce material, and what the Minister of Justice is doing is quite in line with existing newspaper policy.

NOTE AND COMMENT

With a circus and the Rotary carnival both in one week Peterborough will not lack excitement next week.

Victoria woman has won her third sweepstake prize. That is the danger of that kind of thing—it gets to be a habit.

It is reported that Kurt von Schuschnigg has been moved somewhere north by the Nazis. Now if it was in Russia we would know where that was.

Park rangers report that there is a scarcity of wolves in Ontario. They are not referring to the kind that haunt the door, we assume.

Half the art graduates at Western University have no jobs to go to when they leave the university. There is not even pro football for them to line up with.

Four of the "stork" mothers in Toronto to receive $75,000 each, and those who have raised large families agree they may need it.

Now that the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has decided to bring in programs from Italy critics of the corporation will be sure to point out that that is going too far.

Toronto paper asks folk what they would do if they won the Irish sweepstakes and the obvious answer is they would try to dodge all the people who would try to sell them something.

The registrar of motor vehicles for Ontario has been made a justice of the peace so that he may issue summonses in any cases in which he thinks the local authorities have slipped up. It is getting tougher to be a careless driver.

Germany and Italy reached what is described as a new economic, financial and shipping agreement, and Berlin says "Full details were not disclosed." Apparently the closed door for diplomacy is not a thing of the past.

Toronto will plant a number of trees of the variety Yerba de la Pulga, the leaves of which are said to be repugnant to flies. With a few of these trees around his house the man who has trouble in hanging the fly door so it will swing should manage to lead a happier life.

OLD HAT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The old straw hat I used to wear, I hardly felt it sitting there, it nestled on my dome; I never gave it any care, and it was soft from years of wear, nor by the wind got blown.

¶ I'd worn the thing so many years, it sort of settled on my ears, it did not hurt or scrape; it fitted every bump I had, and really did not looks so bad, it didn't have much shape.

¶ That hat that rested on my ears, had seen so many former years, yes it was far from new; that I could almost talk to it, when we would stop a while and sit, of things we used to do.

¶ I got it out just yesterday, from where I'd put the thing away, it almost smiled at me; but all the folk laugh loud and jeer, the way it sits down on my ear, not like it ought to be.

¶ The man who gives advice to me, brought forth the hat that I should see, it's stylish so he said; but it sits far above my ear, and feels so strange up there and queer, it perches on my head.

¶ I'll wear the thing just now and then, when I parade with fellow men, for style I'll have no fears; but when I'm walking out alone, I'll place the hat upon my dome—that nestles on my ears.

Woman Member Fears Trouble

(From Parliamentary Reports)

Mrs. MARTHA LOUISE BLACK (Yukon): Mr. Speaker, it seems to me that I need offer no apology for my courteously sympathetic words to the hon. Minister of Labour (Mr. Rogers) the other evening. In fact, I can quite imagine myself at times feeling sorry for the hon. member for Vancouver East (Mr. MacInnis) for perhaps a different reason. But we have on the coast, in Vancouver, a sore that is fast degenerating into a running sore. It is worse than a double nettle, and we have got to make up our minds to get rid of it. Undoubtedly many of these men who left the camps after a winter there had a little money, but I know from experience that men coming in from logging camps, where many of them have been working for high wages, spend practically every cent they have with them in a week or ten days or less than a month, and then they come to the agency begging for an advance on the work they are going to do next season. Youth is hot and adventurous and spends money freely on what we perhaps of the older generation call nonsense and foolishness.

I feel that I can speak fairly plainly now because the boy of mine who went over a year ago used frequently to visit the camps of the unemployed under the previous government, and speaking in confidence to his mother he said, "Mother, the men in these camps are far better off than the privates in the army. They get money. They have the camps. They can come and go as they please. They are under no discipline. The privates in the army are in camps but they are under a very severe discipline." And he said, "My idea"—and it is my own idea now— "is that these men should either be put in camps to work constantly or join the army." We are begging men to join our army because we may need them some day. Why should we do that when we are taking care of men who are doing nothing? Far be it from me to advocate a Hitler or a Mussolini in this country. But when I hear young children today telling their mothers to "shut up"— "I hate you"— "I won't do it"—I wonder, Mr. Speaker, what we are breeding and what we are going to have in this and the coming generation? As I said the other day, boys in Vancouver, in British Columbia, from twelve to twenty years of age, are disobeying the law and being sent to the goal and the penitentiary. Why? Because in the first place they have not been brought up properly at home. I am not ashamed to say now that when I was seventeen years old I spoke most disrespectfully to my mother, and my father knocked me down. When I gathered myself up he said, "Go to your room. Never let me hear you speak to your mother again in that manner." It was pretty hard discipline for a young girl, but I look back now and I thank God that I had such a father to discipline me, and he disciplined us all. If the children of to-day were disciplined as the children of that day were, we would have a better race. They are in some families.

On the coast of British Columbia, in Vancouver, we have a climate far better than any other climate in Canada, and naturally people tend to migrate there. I don't believe at all in saying, because you come from Saskatchewan, I in Alberta am not going to give you a mouthful; or, because you come from Nova Scotia, I here in Ontario will see you starve. Because, after all, we are all people of Canada. It is a federal matter. People should not be allowed to starve as long as they are willing to work. I do not care who the minister is, I do not care who the man or the woman is, whether it be prince or pauper; I can offer my sympathy to them when they are in personal sorrow or when they are labouring under great mental stress. A mother's heart perhaps is a little softer than the heart of an ordinary member unmarried or one who has no children. She may be foolishly sentimental according to others, but at the same time we can see far into the future. This is a marvelous land. From east to west there is everything to make the country desirable. We have unlimited resources, we have members from both sides of the house talking about the development of these resources, but they can be developed only by our hands. It is up to our younger people to have the opportunity to develop these resources, and surely the minister and the government will evolve a way of developing them.

I thought when relief was given in the first place, many years ago, that it was a mistake. I have never had anything for nothing; I have always had to work for it. I think all ablebodied men and women and children should have to work for all they get. It is a different matter with men who are not well and with women who are unable because of family duties to go outside and work, and we should have a paternal attitude towards them. But just as sure as there is a heaven overhead, if we are not going to go a little deeper into this matter of unemployment, some day we are going to have a revolution. I am not so much afraid of a revolution in this country as in a country where people have more of the Gallic or high-strung temperament. We shall be slow, but eventually we must look out for our unemployed or there will be trouble.

FEATS OF ENDURANCE.

(Calgary Albertan)

THE OTTAWA JOURNAL is proud of itself and we must admit it has some cause. Having read the whole of Mr. Justice Turgeon's report on grain marketing—three hundred pages of it, "taking fractions, decimals and percentages in our stride" —The Journal prints a leading editorial very little devoted to the report and a great deal to the feat of having read it all. . . .

Fraternal congratulations to The Journal. Yet if we hadn't thought it was bad taste to boast about such things we, too, would have written a month ago that we had the distinction of having read all through every bill passed and not passed at last session of the Alberta Legislative Assembly and, in addition all the amendments.

Jim Owns Front Part Of A Hound

(F. W. Curran in Sault Ste. Marie Star)

DUNC FREMLIN is as good a hunter as ever but he expressed the view that he is not in favor of starting the fireworks before 2 a.m., after this when you may expect daylight in a couple of hours' time.

Joe Louis' wolf left about 3 a.m. for Dunn's Valley or an intermediate point. This may have been the result of Jim Hicks carrying a flashlight and a revolver. A pattering in the bushes and the flashlight would show up a moving object. Then bang, bang.

The other wolf, with the hound foursome behind him, ran some four miles away and circled back, for the wolf always comes back. This was repeated till 8 a.m., when the hunters had a chance to close in. This being observed by the wolf was not taken in a friendly spirit and he left for the east.

Ever and anon throughout the hunt there would be phone calls from the settlers' homes to the effect that one of the wolves had just crossed the farm. The dogs never let up for a second.

"I'll bet there never were a pair of wolves in Algoma that sweated like that pair," said the Cap.

"And as to the dogs," said Mr. McDonald afterwards, "they all went to bed and slept till next Tuesday."

Game Warden St. John of Thessalon, happened around but nobody could figure out why. So far as this column knows, no member of the Algoma Wolf Club has been in jail for any length of time.

Of course the night was punctured with argument: How many Algoma hounds could you safely pack in a coupe, what's the biggest wolf weigh, what is a 'brush' wolf anyway, what is the right size of shot for a wolf, and naturally and inevitably which is the best hound. What makes life interesting is that these weighty questions are never settled. Some of these will be gingerly tackled later by this column.

Subscribers will realize that no wolf hunt could be adequately dealt with in a page of The Star, and that the above is written only to say something nice about the dogs. This column only owns the front half of Black Hawk which like "good wine, needs no bush." We make this remark here and not in the presence of the other hound owners. Because in that case the others would each want to say something about their dogs that would take up more time than this column can spare, even if it wanted to listen.

How Long Should A Party Last?

(From the New York Herald Tribune)

MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, whose remarks on life and affairs are consistently acute, though not always revolutionary, tackles a graver problem than usual when she says, "I have a theory that parties should end when everybody is still apparently having a good time". Therefore, at 1.30 o'clock in the morning, when jests and jollity were rampant among the guests at the White House, although the President had long since retired, she instructed the orchestra to strike up "Good Night, Ladies", and everybody went away — presumably, but not necessarily, to their homes.

The common experience of mankind, we submit, would indicate the unsoundness of Mrs. Roosevelt's dictum. End the party at the moment when things are at the crest? Apart from the doubtful wisdom of such a course in ordinary life it can't be done.

One group may be in the middle of a backgammon game. Over in one corner will be an accomplished raconteur with his little bunch of listeners who are enjoying—or pretending to enjoy—his telling of the stories about the talking horse, the moose-head and the man who ate the glasses at the bar. Another man has become infatuated with a woman whom he has just met that evening, and is turning on all the charm that an earbender can muster on such an occasion. Somebody is playing the piano and somebody else is trying to sing. All goes well. To turn these charming people out into the night is inhuman.

Fortunately parties rarely end at that time. Instead, they go on and on and really become interesting. The backgammon game ends in a barrage of taunts, recriminations and I. O. U.'s. The raconteur undergoes a severe heckling from his listeners, who have stood as much as they could and finally turned on him. The lovesick gentleman has had too much to drink and has knocked over a lamp, while the woman is trying to get some one else to take her home. The couple at the piano have quarreled and are revealing that they never had much use for each other.

The liquor supply is running low. The place is stale with smoke, but nobody knows it. A milk wagon goes by. The hostess has spilled something on her new dress. Everyone at last realizes that his worst expectations have been realized and that the entire evening was a colossal bore and a waste of time. Then, and only then, should a party come to its logical and inevitable end.

More Revenue Not the C.N.R. Cure

(Brantford Expositor)

IN HIS ADVOCACY of unification of the two major railway systems of Canada, Sir Edward Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway has been consistent and clear, so clear, surely, as to leave no doubt in the mind of anyone as to the necessity of doing something about the problem.

Among other things he has exploded, let it be hoped once and for all, the specious, unscientific argument of the laissez-faire advocates, that all the railways need to re-establish them financially is general economic recovery.

This is a fallacy and an extremely dangerous one; dangerous because of its plausibility. What are the facts? In 1917 the deficits on the railways which now constitute the Canadian National lines was only $12,500,000, (the "only" being a relative adjective!) It was then estimated that a $50,000,000 in gross traffic would take care of the deficit. But by 1922 with the gross income more than doubled, the annual deficit, instead of being taken care of had increased four-fold, plus, to $58,000,000. And this has been the sad story ever since.

It ought to be apparent, therefore, that there is little use pinning faith simply in increased income. Clearly it constitutes no magic wand to wave this millstone into non-existence. It is about time, therefore, that people who undertake to comment on the subject ceased fooling themselves and lulling their listeners with a dangerous opiate. Revenue is not an answer, because it cannot be made sufficient, but unification has all the appearance of being an effective one.

HE NEVER WORRIES.

(Glasgow Bulletin)

KENNETH M'INTOSH, Stirling, who celebrated his 102nd birthday, the other day, has never worried, and has always believed in good, plain faring.

He spent part of Saturday planting potatoes. He pointed out proudly to the beds of vegetables he had sown earlier in the season. "Gardening keeps you from thinking too much," he remarked.

He was born on a fishing smack off the Dogger Bank, and spent his boyhood in Thurso. He ran away to sea before he was 10, and served as a steward on sailing boats and steamers trading between Aberdeen and Grangemouth and the Continent until he was 37.

Sixty-five years ago he went to Alloa, and for 58 years he worked in the Royal Oak Hotel there, chiefly as a waiter. He is a bachelor and a pipe-smoker. He reads without glasses in daylight and is a virile and interesting personality. He seldom wears an overcoat. His memory is remarkable. He can recall events that occurred when he was four years old.

HARDY NORSEMEN

(Chicago Daily News)

Whatever blood-red tides of hate and war may roll across the nations, whatever gulfs of stagnation and despair may swallow city trade and water-borne commerce, the Norsemen—hardy Scandinavians all—will dare and outwit the deepest rage of ocean until the last sundown glimmers on the last verge of time.

NEVER AGAIN.

(New York World-Telegram)

ONE HUNDRED and two years ago, there being a surplus in the United States Treasury, President Andrew Jackson asked Congress to distribute $28,101,000 among the States. This was done, and New York State received $4,000,000.

Since that time New York's share of the national surplus of 1836 has been resting undisturbed in a special fund, and the State Constitutional Convention, now meeting, has before it a proposal to give the Legislature power to spend the money.

Well, maybe it's all right. But our idea would be that New York State should hang onto that fund— preserve it, perhaps, in a shrine of some sort as a rare historical relic. It is likely to be a long, long time before any State will get another cut from a United States Treasury surplus.

HEAVY TRAFFIC NEEDED.

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

IT IS ESTIMATED that it will be necessary for 100,000 cars to cross the Thousand Islands bridge each year for half a century to make it a profitable venture. Remembering what usually happens to international traffic during the Winter months, it is apparent that most of these 100,000 cars will have to be attracted to the bridge during the summer period. But there can be little doubt that the very existence of the new route will bring to it considerable traffic that would otherwise travel in a different direction.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

BUT IT CAME to pass, that when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and the Arabians, and the Ammonites, and the Ashdodites, heard that the walls of Jerusalem were made up, and that the breaches began to be stopped, then they were very wroth, and conspired all of them together to come and to fight against Jerusalem, and to hinder it.

Nevertheless we made our prayer unto our God, and set a watch against them day and night, because of them. . . .

And I looked, and rose up, and said unto the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the rest of the people, Be not ye afraid of them: remember the Lord, which is great and terrible, and fight for your brethren, your sons, and your daughters, you wives, and your houses.

And it came to pass, when our enemies heard that it was known unto us, and God had brought their counsel to nought, that we returned all of us to the wall, every one unto his work. . . .

They which builded on the wall, and they that bare burdens, with those that laded, every one with one of his hands wrought in the work, and with the other hand held a weapon. For the builders, every one had his sword girded by his side, and so builded. And he that sounded the trumpet was by me.—Neh. iv, 7-9, 14, 15, 17, 18.

Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.—Eph. vi, 11, 12.

THEY MISSED.

A MAN IN Longview, Texas, 109 years old, and his wife, who is 105, celebrated their eighty-first wedding anniversary the other day and piquancy is added to the situation by the statement of the groom that he tried to enlist for service in the civil war and was turned down. Medical examiners said his health was bad and he couldn't live long.

We know a man in Niagara Falls around the eighty mark who, sixty years ago, was turned down for insurance because the doctor said he could not live more than a few years at the most. In both cases, of course, the medical examiners are dead, else they would have red faces.

A Bit of Nonsense

SUPER-MAN

George was teaching his wife to drive. Halfway down a hill she gave a scream of horror.

"George," she cried, "the car's running away."

"Can't you stop it?" he asked. "Use your brakes."

"I can't—they must have failed!" she panted.

"All right," he said, sitting back. "Try to hit something cheap!"

Sink 3 Ships Loyalists Raid Palma,

BARCELONA, June 1 (CP-Havas)—The defence ministry today claimed its airmen had dealt severe blows to the Insurgents in attacks on the mainland and against the Baleric Island of Mallorca.

Retaliating for the devasting air raids against government - held coastal towns and villages, government airmen sank three Insurgent vessels in the harbor of Palma de Mallorca, important Insurgent base in the Mediterranean. They also attacked Port D'Inca, Mallorca, and returned unharmed to their mainland bases.

(At Salamanca the Insurgents declared the attack on Palma was "criminal." Bombs were dumped on locations other than military objectives, General Franco's government protested.)

The government's defence ministry announced its air raiders carried out an "extremely efficacious" attack against 17 Insurgent planes grounded on Lacenia air field, in Catalonia.

In a sky battle over the Teruel front, government aviators were said to have shot down 15 Insurgent planes—14 Fiats and one Messerschmidt. The government lost three planes, it was said.

Toll Nears 1,000

The total of killed and wounded rose toward 1,000 as rescue workers continued their search of wrecked buildings. More than 400 dead were piled in morgues or cemeteries. It was feared the death toll would rise within the next 24 hours since many of the injured, largely woman and children, were in a hopeless condition.

Harrowing scenes greeted the Havas correspondent when he arrived in Granollers shortly after the attack, which inflicted a particularly high number of casualties in the crowded market place.

Ambulances and requisitioned automobiles filled with the dead arrived at the main mortuary in a steady stream. Nurses and stretcher-bearers, their cloths stained red, passed in and out of the main hospital continually. For two hours the hospital's two surgeons did nothing but amputate shattered limbs and operate on an apparently endless succession of mutilated persons.

The market place was a shambles. At this point a single bomb killed and mangled 100 women and children. In city hall square 18 private homes were completely destroyed.

Other bodies were piled up near the cemetery wall with a caretaker to watch over them.

"Women and children!" exclaimed the carpenter. "For every man there are five women and children."

Movie Stars Stage Real Battle Thriller

Actor Clark Gable was forced to live up to his celluloid reputation as a hero, when Actress Myrna Loy became trapped in a burning airplane during the filming of a new picture. The script called for Miss Loy to sit in the airplane, with the cowling over her head, while it was set on fire by a studio trick of "controlled fire." The fire, however, got out of control and Gable sprinted toward the airplane and ripped back the burning cowling, dragging Miss Loy from the cockpit, nearly overcome with smoke.

MORE ABOUT—

U.S. Makes

Briefly, the treaty highlights are:

A 27-foot seaway to be built from the ocean to the head of the lakes, work to start as soon as possible, Canada undertaking to provide by Dec. 31, 1949, for its share.

An international commission to allocate to each country the part it would be asked to construct.

Works in the United States and Canada to be built by the government of those countries, the American Government bearing the bulk of the cost in the international section from just east of Cornwall, Ont., to near Prescott.

Lift Export Opposition.

The United States would remove its objection to export of power from Ontario and diversion of water from Long Lac and Ogoki River into Lake Superior. Ontario would get the benefit of that diverted water in power development at Sault Ste. Marie, Niagara, and in the international section.

Ontario would be empowered to postpone development in the international section until there was a demand for the power in Ontario. The United States could start development on its side of the river at once.

Beautification of Niagara Falls would be carried out by a provision for an unbroken crest at both the American and Canadian Falls.

Cost to the United States would be approximately $243,661,000 and to Canada about $38,071,000, Canada having already paid approximately $128,000,000 for the Welland Canal. It would be paid $67,000,000 by Ontario, it is estimated, for the power that province would gain.

The new treaty combines in altered form the provisions of the St. Lawrence Treaty of 1932 and the Niagara Beautification Convention of 1929, both rejected by the United States Senate. The 1932 treaty was never considered by the Canadian Parliament, the government awaiting action on it by the United States Congress.

The Niagara treaty was signed by Canada but never came into force because of defeat in the American Senate.

An important change from the 1932 treaty is the provision for construction of works in the international section. Under the old treaty costs in this section would be apportioned by an international commission which would carry out the works.

The New Proposals.

Under the new treaty the joint commission, an equal number of which would represent each country, would prepare plans for the development and allocate each country its share. But the development would be carried out by Canadian and United States governments as it was mapped out by the commission.

A major point of dispute between Canada and the United States before the 1932 treaty was drafted was whether two stages or one should be used in the international section. The United States favored one, while Canada wanted two. The United States engineers decided the one-stage development would be less expensive. The Canadians wanted one stage for safety. The Canadian view finally was accepted. Under the proposed treaty the international commission would decide on that point.

Ontario's strong opposition to the St. Lawrence development is recognized in clauses of the treaty which would provide that Canada need not develop waterpower on the Canadian side of the international section until there was a market for it. In addition the Ontario government would be given rights to export power to the United States and to divert water from Hudson's Bay into Lake Superior.

American disinclination to permit Ontario export of power unless agreement to do so was embodied in a waterways treaty was announced last March 17 and formed part of a dispute between the Ontario and Ottawa governments over the latter's refusal of permits for Ontario exportation of power bought from Quebec in recently-revised power contracts with Quebec power companies.

More Power at Falls.

Niagara, the honeymooners' paradise, would be preserved and "enhanced" under a clause of the treaty providing for works on both sides of the river. After projects designed to put an unbroken crest of water over the Falls were completed both countries would be given further power at the Falls.

They would be permitted to divert to their power houses from the Niagara River an additional 5,000 cubic feet a second. Experts would decide over a term of years whether this diversion would be cut or increased.

For years there has been discussion between the two countries between diversion of water from Lake Michigan into the Chicago drainage canal. Under the treaty the diversion would be unchanged. If disputes arose over increase in the diversion in an emergency the International Commission would decide on them.

One provision of the new treaty would obligate Canada to deepen the Welland Ship Canal to 27 feet. But this presents little difficulty as the canal now is 30 feet through most of its length. Dredging of mud would be required in only one short section.

Canada also would be required to deepen the St. Lawrence in the Canadian section from Cornwall to the 27-foot depth. A canal already has been provided by the Beauharnois Power Company. The Dominion Government would provide the locks.

Under the treaty the United States and Canada would have to do some additional work in the Thousand Islands area. Just what this work would be was not disclosed.

The treaty also would provide that the United States would have to provide a 27-foot seaway from the Lake Erie to Lake Superior, that is through the Detroit, St. Clair, and St. Mary's Rivers.

Society Planning Warsaw Services

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, June 1.—There was a splendid attendance of ladies at the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society meeting held at Mrs. David Rose's home last week. Mrs. Milton Drain presided. Mrs. McQuaig read the scripture lesson; Miss Helen Tedford gave the Glad Tidings message and Mrs. T. H. Crowe took the study book lesson. Mrs. George Moore presided at the Aid which followed. Plans were completed for the eighty-second anniversary on June 5.

A goodly number attended the United Church W.A. on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Arthur Payne was in the chair. Mrs. Gordon Sharpe gave a short reading.

After the roll call there was a long discussion re holding W.A. meeting on the same afternoon as the W.M.S. Mrs. George Taylor introduced the subject. Nothing definite can be done as yet. Mrs. O. B. McIlvena sang "The Hymns My Dear Old Mother Used to Sing."

An interesting contest followed when Mrs. Harold Payne gave a description of something, the name of which was found in the few bars of music played by Mrs. George Taylor. Mrs. McIlvena had the most correct, eleven out of thirteen.

Lunch was served by Mrs. David Taylor, Mrs. Gordon Sharpe and Mrs. O. B. McIlvena, and a very happy social half-hour was spent.

Army Moves By Air

LONDON, June 1 (AP)—Looking ahead to what it may have to do in the next war, the army today made its first experiment in large-scale aerial transport of men. Thirty Royal Air Force planes, each carrying 20 to 24 men, took the first battalion of the Coldstream Guards the 233 miles from Odiham near Basingstroke to Chatterick Camp, Yorkshire. Peace-time strength of a battalion is 711 officers and men.

Requests Guns

Charging that the sea was "covered with Japanese boats and nets," Capt. J. E. Shields, of the American fishing fleet in Alaskan waters has radioed the Alaska Fishermen's Union in Seattle, requesting arms and ammunition for two American fishing vessels. Union officials announced the arms would be sent. At the same time U.S. coastguard boats were dispatched to the Bering Sea to avert what is threatening to become open warfare between the U.S. and Japanese fishermen. Canadian fishermen have long complained of the encroachment of the Japanese on Canadian fishing grounds.

Find Tot Drowned

LONDON, Ont., June 1 (C.P.). — While more than 100 police constables and volunteers searched for two-year-old Ronnie Bossence, his body was found last night in the city's east-end sewage disposal beds. The child is believed to have wandered away from the adjoining St. Julien playground and to have fallen into the unguarded pool.

Wrists Linked, 2 Women Try Trek Montreal To Vancouver

Toronto, June 1 (CP) HANDCUFFED together, declaring themselves twins, parentless and unemployed, two 30-year-old Montreal women today completed the first stage of their walking trip to Vancouver.

The pair, known as "Julia and Juliette," paid their compliments to Mayor Ralph Day before continuing towards their goal which they hope to reach in eight months at an average speed of 15 miles per day.

They are undertaking the venture because they hope to find work in Vancouver. Dark glasses hide their identity but Julia declared "our father was well known in Montreal and we don't want people to know who we are."

The handcuffs were locked by Mayor Raynault of Montreal who sent the key by mail to the mayor of Vancouver to await completion of the trip.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 24c.

EXPERIENCE COUNTS IN BRINTON'S 6-0 WIN OVER DELORO

Smelters Fail To Keep Up Pace In Last Half

Deloro visited Peterborough Tuesday night, in search of points from the Brinton Athletic soccer team but were defeated six to nil, after a good first half, but showed the lack of training as time progressed; while winners had experienced steady practice early in the season. The score did not indicate the run of the play which should have been a one goal margin.

The visitors notified the C.G.E. that their ground at Deloro is not ready yet, which necessitates the postponement of Saturday's game.

Opening Slow.

From the kick-off, Deloro set a fast pace to dwindle away against a superb defence trotted out by the Brinton team that repulsed the visitors' attack whenever inside the shooting zone, but they had to concede two corner kicks to Deloro taken by Gray, who landed the shots in front of goal. Jones, Brinton, relieved the pressure to send his right winger away to the other end. He centred the ball to witness his team mate head a peculiar shot against the upright on the inside to open the scoring. Two minutes later, Newt Downer connected with an unsaveable drive to make score two up amidst protests by Deloro team, but the areferee adjudged the decision final. Deloro came back to keep the fullbacks on the jump to prevent a tally while the goalie had to clear repeatedly from the foot of Brown. At this point it was evident that practice had been neglected by the visitors or rather had failed to keep up the combination started in the early stages. Half time found the Brinton leading by two clear goals.

Local Add To Score.

On resuming, Deoiro re-arranged their attack without any success, although their wing men were sending efforts across the goal mouth that found the fullbacks nullifying their openings. Bradley stopped a dangerous ruch near goal and carried the ball up the field to leave Brown in possession who rattled one of his old timers against the upright when a goal looked promising. Cremell gathered up the ball while the fullbacks hampered the visiting forwards' progress. W. Hart, on the left wing, broke away frequently to get the better of the argument to make openings that resulted in the custodian responding with clever clearances. All of a sudden a break came to the Brinton when E. Jones sent home the third counter. Art Downer followed with the easiest goal, while Stan Clark scored the best goal of the encounter when he broke fast on the wing to send a lightning drive into the rigging. At the other end, Cremell saved a terrific shot from Brown at six yard range. Play fell away considerably as time wore on to permit the local boys to make the count read :Brinton Athletic 6, Deloro 0.

Deloro—Clare O'Neill, goal; W. Townson and J. Hart, fullbacks; P. Gray, E. Bradley and J. Sproul, halves; R. Elliott, W. Richardson, W. Brown, G. Brooks and W. Hart, forwards. Subs—S. Gray and R. Scott.

Briton Athletic. — C. Cremall, goal; A Todd and A. Downer, fullbacks; A. A. Downer, E. Jones and J. McLeod halves; S. Clark, D. Lether, N. Downer and E. Adkinson, forwards. Subs—J. Evans, J. Richardson and J. Adams.

Referee—T. Foster. Linesmen—J. Adams and H. Keith.

Aerial Combat Near Goal Mouth

Huge crowds have been attending football games in Germany recently to see their countrymen play visiting teams from England, and this goal mouth action took place as Aston Villa turned back the home team in Berlin's Olympic Stadium 3 to 2. Raftl, goalkeeper for the German squad, saves while surrounded by his own men and opponents, all leaping for the ball.

Peterborough Football Teams Ranked High Back in 1907

Organization Broken Up When Local Club Defied A.A.U. In Montreal Game

TORONTO, June 1—Peterborough's decision to enter a team in the Ontario Football Union senior series revives memories of a distant past when some powerful aggregations paraded in Liftlock City colors. The one most vividly remembered, however, is the last Peterborough had, that of 1907, which defied the amateur authorities and drew suspension by playing against the Montreal Winged Wheelers in the Canadian final.

Montreal had incurred the wrath of football heads by using the services of Ernie Russell, a profesional hockeyist with the famous Montreal Wanderers. Argonauts, Ottawa and Hamilton collaborated with Montreal in taking a defiant attitude, and were also eventually suspended. This caused much bitterness, and since that eventful decision was made the Interprovincial Union had never been affiliated with the A.A.U. of C.

If the Petes had suspected what was going to happen to them if they played in Montreal, they would probably have been the first to support the amateur officials. The Wheelers were a mighty machine, the Petes were something else again, and the final score was 77 to 6. One can well imagine the feelings of the Peterborough gridmen as they wended their way homeward after taking a drubbing like that and paying such a price for the opportunity.

Ottawa University, superbly coached by the late Rev. Father Stanton, won the Intercollegiate Union title that year and would have welcomed the chance to play against the Montrealers. The Garnet and Grey were one of the lightest, fastest and most colorful teams of all time, and the duel against the Wheelers would have been an ace-high attraction, but the players couldn't afford to get into the bad graces of the amateur authorities.

For many years before the fiasco of '07 Peterborough teams had been very prominent in Ontario Union senior circles. They had engaged in many thrilling battles and were always feared and respected by the opposition. The wholesale suspension of the club and players, however, wrecked the organization and also ruined the sport in the Liftlock City until recent years, particularly last season, when the smart Peterborough intermediate team revived interest.

Unfortunately accommodation for the paying public is limited in Peterborough and unless capacity crowds of about 5,000 attend, the venture will be a dangerous financial investment. Into the bargain the Peterborough club will have to produce a team capable of making a good showing against Sarnia Imperials and Balmy Beach, clubs strongly fortified with high-class material. Championship contenders are not built overnight but undoubtedly the ambitious newcomers are fully aware of this fact.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

There are just two points in connection with our twilight tournament to-night (Wednesday) that we wish to draw to the attention of our members. First, it commences at 6.30 p.m. and secondly the first 32 pairs on the grounds with their entrance fee paid will be accepted. We see that the ladies' section got away yesterday afternoon and from all reports the bowling was of a very high standard. As the season progresses it will be interesting to see just how the new organization will plain out.

Indian Clouter

Banging the ball with great and potent frequency in the American League is Hal Trosky, first baseman for Cleveland Indians and one of the reasons for the Indians' place at the top of the standings. Hal has maintained a bating pace over the .380 mark so far this season.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

COBOURG and the Young Petes clash at 5.45 tonight in Riverside Park, weather being right, in a Lakeshore Junior Baseball League contest. In a previous meeting in Cobourg this summer, the homesters took a 2-1 win, which is as close as it could be without a tie. Looks like Gee Clark for Herb Ralph's gang and Bateman for the visitors tonight on the rival mounds, and a sweet struggle it should be. The kids play mighty nice ball and, in fact, if a guy isn't a good ball player when he is around 19 or 20, he is not likely to ever amount to much—that is, baseballically speaking. These are nifty diamond squads and should draw a big gang of rooters. It's a tight loop this year with four good clubs in it, and every tilt is important.

HERE IS THE LINEUP of the Inglewood-Caledon team for Friday night when that classy lacrosse outfit plays the locals at 8.30 p.m. in the George St. arena (numbers listed, too): Goal, Chambers (1); defence, Wilson (2) and Puckering (3); centre, O. Nelson (10); wings, Walsh (4) and Jones (5); rover, Rayburn (6); alternates, W. Paterson (7), McCamell (8), N. Nelson (9), Erskine (11), Smith (13), Petch (14), S. Paterson (15) and McEachin (16). Maybe a couple of others, too. It'll be a powerful outfit, pretty much the same one that won the title last year. The locals will have a full team out, also.

UP IN LINDSAY last gloaming, the Supremes broke into the win list—not the wine list, Mister Printer—with a 14-8 triumph over C.G.E. in a Girls Softball League fray. After these teams previously had gone to a draw. Some mean swinging of the wagon tongue by one D. Sexsmith, who coralled a homer, triple, double and single, with D. Botting also getting a triple and a brace of bingles, figured in quite a raft of the runs. Both teams used two twirlers, M. McCabe and J. Corley seeing duty for the Scugog squad, and A. Clarke and A. Doughty taking a whirl at it for the losers. E. Craig hit a homer and single for C.G.E. with P. Bigelow knocking out a three-baser and single. A pretty tidy tussle, we're told by our ace operative in person. Westclox and C.G.E. tangle tonight at the Bowl.

OFF TODAY for Kingston, the Petes have high hopes of following the C.O.B.L. suit this year by spoiling the homesters' opening day. Manager Eddie Murphy is quite confident—almost cocky, in fact—and says his team will trim Bob Elliott's crew of students regularly this summer. Looks like Gunner Whitehill and Yammy Jamieson to do the flinging. Bob Doll will play for the Petes, the local officers figuring the O.B.A. hasn't rescinded its temporary permission for Doll to play, though wanting to know more details of the third-sacker. Wants to know why he arrived late and how come a guy of 23 who played pro two years ago didn't play last summer. That's easy—he quit when his eyes failed and he had to wear specs. He figured he wouldn't go anywhere in pro company with glasses, and now wants to play amateur ball.

SAYS the Quinte scribe, who saw Saturday's game, of the new Kingston hurler: "Pollar is a big powerful lad, who really can bear down in the pinches. When he cocks his right leg up and brings it down with the pitch, his smoke ball sizzles. The pitching of Pollar and Biddle reminded us of the old days when Williams, Goyer, Heckman and Dainty used to hook up in those memorable battles. Unless the O.B.A. steps in and cools their coffee, the winners of the C.O.B.L. this year should experience little difficulty in winning the provincial senior ball honors." He means the way the local and Kingston clubs have bolstered, with the 1937 champs at least as strong as last semester. We fear Kingston more than Oshawa this year. That club is still paying off a debt contracted when the Ponies won the Ontario title several years back, but they are yet able to trot out powerful squads.

TED REEVES, outstanding grid coach and writer in Canada, of the Telegram wrote yesterday: "The inclusion of Peterborough in the senior O.R.F.U. is not apt to shake football to its foundation but at least it is a change for the better. The Hamilton Tiger Seconds did not help to advertise the old loop, regardless of great Beaches-Sarnia games. The Petes were a not-so-dusty intermediate team last year. Not as strong as Dundas intermediates who could move in against the Tigers in practices and hold their own, yet a team that could be tuned up into a fair sort of reconditioned machine, as they say up Bay St. in Gasoline Alley. For that matter any good football engineer could round out an average senior outfit if he was allowed to bring in five players. Providing they were the right parts. If you have a good kicker, two big middle wings and two powerful second defence men, you have a chance to round out a football machine. That is if kicker or one of the secondaries can forward pass and the other can plunge. Five powerful players or seven or eight good average players will enable a team to make a pretty; good showing, though such a club must be careful of heavy practices."

* * * * * *

HE CONTINUES: "We do not know how they feel about imports up in Peterborough or how busy that pretty city may be at the moment. That end of it by the way does not seen to matter out west where Edmonton, Calgary and Regina build up powerful packs by the Booster Club system. All the business men band together and the membership is usually 10 slugoos. Then they go down into Dakota, Minnesota, Washington and such like wide open spaces and pick up a mighty fine assortment of smashers and crashers, 200 pounds per piece on the hoof, F.O.B. to Alberta at $100 a month. Let's see, 10 players at a hundred a month for three months is —ought from ought is oughty ought, two from two, you can't—one and one it is—yes, $3,000. Or the equivalent of one good gate. This is not a suggestion for the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce. It is merely mentioning the manner in which they have boosted the game on the Prairies, where everyone seems satisfied with the system." And so on.

* * * * * *

QUINTE COLUMNIST breaks the news of the breaking of the Trenton Fliners' puck squad which battled the Petes so bitterly the past two winters. With four former Camp Borden players at the Airport now, the Fliers no doubt will be back again—but changed around a lot. Squad Leader Lawrence, the puck pilot, moves to Ottawa and so does Ernie McNeeley. While Stan Partridge heads for Vancouver. George Elliott is supposed to have left, also. Johnny Lalonde gets a trial with Montreal Canadiens in the fall and if he is successful will obtain a leave of absence to play pro. Maybe another shift or two as well. Yep, the Petes will not know who to tangle with next winter in inter-club contests, all ye feuding foemen having disappeared. Better not figure on a ball team at the Airport either— too many sudden shifts.

Ball Twirler For 51 Years

SALEM, N.Y., June 1 (CP).—Fred Ladd, New York's perennial gift to baseball, is toeing the mound for his 51st consecutive year.

"Laddie," a grayish, but ruddy-faced house painter who would rather play baseball than enjoy the sedate pleasures of most 63-year-old men, smiles when younger, better-paid and better-known stars of the diamond are forced into retirement by creaking joints and swelling paunches.

"I'm good for 20 years more," he explains, flexing muscles hardened by frequent excursions up and down ladders and by many baseball and boxing exhibitions. He plays football, too. Two years ago he scored the only touchdown earned by a Fort Edward, N.Y., semi-pro team in a game with a Glens Falls eleven.

Baseball, however, is his real love. He pitched his first game 51 years ago, at the age of 12, for Washington Academy, in Salem. He's pitched an average of once a week during each season ever since.

Since 1902 he has also managed the Salem Athletic Club, a semi-pro outfit playing good town teams of the vicinity. On his 61st birthday his club played an extra-inning double-header. He was on the mound for 31 innings.

Last winter he boxed every week in amateur shows at North Granville, N.Y., his opponents being between 18 and 27 years old.

Lots Of Tomatoes

NEW DUNDEE, Ont., June 1.—(CP).—"A clear conscience and plenty of tomatoes to eat" is George Trussler's recipe for longevity. He celebrates his 100th birthday at his Waterloo county home near here next Sunday. Trussler, an enthusiastic gardener all his life, eats tomatoes twice a day. His wife died several years ago at the age of 92, after they had been married 74 years.

Very Good

Cutting pitching capers for Washington Senators in the American League has been Emil (Dutch) Leonard, ABOVE, a rookie who has been around, and in 1934 and '35 was with Brooklyn. Slow balls and knucklers are his specialties. Pitched one of the year's neatest efforts in beating Cleveland, 1-0, in 13 innings.

Park St. Juveniles kept in the playoff running with a 15-13 Church Softball League win over St. James at King Edward Tuesday night. It was a free-hiting but close contest throughout. St. James.—Evans, lf; Welbourne, 3b; Gregson, p; Roberts, c; Gillespie, 1b; Freeman, rf; Stanley, ss; McMahon, 2b.

Irish Golf Star Might Turn Luck Of British Team

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 2. —(AP)—British hopes for the Walker Cup, amateur golf trophy, to be played for here June 3-4, are increased by the record of Jim Bruen, young rookie from Ireland who has a place on the team this year. United States won the cup last year.

Jimmy Bruen (Ireland). — Most promising youngster produced in British golf since the war. He weighs 196 pounds, stand six feet, and just turned 18. . . Has high, looping swing, but keeps it under control. . . Judgment and poise are remarkable for youngster. . . He has tendency to slice in wind, but his confidence is boundless and he will be tough. . . Holds Irish amateur title, won British boys' championship in 1936. . . Son of former British army officer he lives on an estate overlooking Cobh Harbor. . . Jack Higgins, pro at the Cork Golf Club, taught him the game. . . In eight rounds over the Old Course, he was 15 under fours. . . If he can keep that up in the matches, he will give somebody a headache.

Lester (One-Under-Fours) Crawley (England).—Probably the finest striker of the ball in England. . . Aged 34, he has receding red hair, freckles and a fierce, disobedient red moustache. . .Pupil of Henry Cotton, who recently changed his grip and made his swing more upright. . . Better medal than match player. . . . He is one of the finest cricket and squash players in Britain, and won the English amateur championship in 1931. . . . A good, sound player, he has played 19 competitive rounds of golf in an average of 7 since the first of the year.

Charlie Stowe (England).—Slashing, hapoy-go-lucky miner, who has worked in the pits since he was 14. . . . In 1928 he was barred from amateur competition for caddying after the age of 16. . . . Later he was reinstated by the Royal and Ancient Club. . . . He is a perennial winner of the Midland championship and is capable of phenomenal scores. . . He is just the type of player who may go wild in the matches.

Gordon Peters (Scotland)—Handsome Glasgow insurance salesman and, with Crawley, one of the finest swingers on the British team. . . He was well-liked by experts in the last Walker Cup match at Pine Valley. . . . He is a great fighter and very much at home in the wind of the Scottish seaside links. . . . He is capable of giving anybody a good fight.

Frank Pennink (England).—Winner of the English championship for the last two years. . . He's typically Oxford in manner and appearance—casual, almost too casual, handsome, well-dressed. . . Usually a great putter, he has been having sudden lapses on the greens. . . He was not good in the cup trials here, and he is far from a stylish player, but his indifference will help him in play before the ecstatic Scottish gallaries. . . . Fred Robson taught him the game.

Alex Kyle (Scotland).—Master of the pitch and run, this young cloth designer has equalled Bobby Jones' amateur record of 68 for the Old Course. . . All his iron shots are wind-cheaters and like Peters, he is naturally good on the seaside courses. . . . Though a Scot, he now works in England and has twice held the Yorkshire championship.

Hector Thomson (Scotland)—Shy, likeable son of a Scottish professional, he won the British amateur championship in 1936, but wore himself out in 1937 and was so nervous couldn't even defend title. . . He has recovered now, and is swinging better than ever. . . . If his nerves hold up, he is canable of beating anybody in the world. . . . Bobby Jones predicted great things for him. . . That should be enough.

Harry Bentley (England). — The shrewdest and most unorthodox player on the team. . . He has held the English championship and now holds the German title. . . Married beautiful German actress last year. . . . Like Crawley, he is a disciple and good friend of Henry Cotton. . . Uncanny around the greens, he has studied and understands the St. Andrews course. . . On the vast Old Course greens, he was the only British player to tie a single match at Pine Valley in 1936. . . Will be good enough for almost anybody.

John Beck,. England—Non-playing captain. . . He has played in these matches himself, is popular with the men and is a natural, competent leader.

Over 11,000 ambulance badges were won by British Boy Scouts last year.

Knox Seniors Cop 7-4 Softball Win

Knox Seniors of the Church Softball League copped a 7-4 nod over George St. Tuesday night at the Oval, leading the Buzzers all the way. It was late in the fray before George St scored in a snappy setto. A. Wedlock, the Knox flinger, fanned nine with nice twirling, and Burnham of the losers also hurled well. Good fielding was the order with four Knox men caught off bases on fly balls for double plays. Metcalfe and Gatfield were defensive stars. Watson got two hits and Wedlock hit a homer for the victors. Rennie and Burnham had two singles apiece for George St. The teams:

Thinks New Yorkers Unneighborly In Their Eating

New York, June 1 (AP)

THE TROUBLE with New Yorkers, in the opinion of a Whitewater, Kas., high school senior, is that they "eat with their faces down, looking into their plates."

"Where I come from," explained Jimmie Duncan, 18, "folks eat with their faces up, can look around, and be neighborly."

Duncan, one of the forty-one members of the Whitewater graduating class making a bus tour of the country, said people seemed "much happier" where he came from.

ARMSTRONG OUTPOINTS ROSS FOR WELTERWEIGHT TITLE

Beaten Champion Barney Plans Retirement From Fistic Ring Following Decisive Defeat

Armstrong Seeks Fight With Ambers In Effort To Secure Third Title

Henry Armstrong, who fights as though he were a machine instead of a human, literally tore the championship from the shoulders of Barney Ross here last night, drove him into retirement and wrote a new chapter in fistic history.

The unlooked for victory made the colored fighter from California a double champion and was the more amazing for the fact that the ruler of the 126-pound featherweight class skipped over the lightweight division to topple the king of the 147-pounders.

Wants Ambers Fight.

No sooner had he gained the unanimous decision over Ross in a bloody 15-round affair that was a rout the last half of the distance, than the blackman invited lightweight champion Lou Ambers into his homicidal parlor.

"I'm looking for that Ambers address," he said as they led him from a gladiator's pit splashed with the blood of the white man. "I'd like to lick him in July and win my third title."

And while the 26-year-old victor, flushed with his easy triumph and the shouts of thousands ringing in his ears, plotted new murder, the bruised and beaten Jewish boy from Chicago, looking old and weary at less than 29, was announcing his retirement.

Ross, the once mighty who wore the lightweight purple and put it aside to conquer the welters, said through lips that were raw and puffed to three times their normal size that he never would fight again.

30,000 See Fight.

In achieving the upset before the unbelieving eyes of almost 30,000 half-frozen fans in the Madison Square Garden Bowl, Armstrong gave the colored folk their fourth championship. In addition to hustling Henry, they gave Joe Louis lording it over the heavyweights and John Henry Lewis bossing the light-heavies.

Before the fans donned overcoats and furs against the unseasonable breezes whipped around the shallow sports saucer and contributed toward a gross gate of $160,860, they installed the grafty Ross favorite at 7 to 5 and up.

He was 142 pounds to the negro's 133½, had an inch and a half in height and the same advantage in reach. He faced such vaunted punchers as Jimmy McLarnin, Tony Canzoneri, Billy Petrole, and Ceferino Garcia, and excepting his second meeting with jarring Jimmy from Vancouver, had always come away with the spoils.

Puts Up Game Fight.

In the first round, again in the fourth and in the fifth, the puzzled Ross seemed at times to have found the answer to Armstrong's dervish attack. Holding the muscular little Californian off with a straight left or bringing him out of his semi-crouch with sharp uppercuts, Barney scored with a crisp attack to the head.

But always Armtstrong ambled through the barrage that came only in flurries and once inside the long-range guns, belted his own short punches from stomach to head and then kidneys. Outhit 20 to 1 or more, Ross wilted steadily after the fifth round. He was given the seventh when the featherweight fired a low blow in a bull-like rush. From then on he just absorbed the leather that landed with the rat-a-tat monotony of machine gun fire.

Buffalo Pounds Leafs' Hurlers For 14 to 5 Win

TORONTO, June 1 (CP)—Syracuse Chiefs didn't seem to be going anywhere in the International League race a couple of weeks ago. But they've changed their course and today are moving steadily upward. The reason—pitching.

Right now the Chiefs have one of the top staffs of the league. In their last six games they have had to use more than the starting hurler only once. And that was the only game they've lost in the six, a record that has sent them into fourth place.

Ted Kleinhans, won his second game in a week last night beating Baltimore's collection of sluggers, 9-2. His six-hit performance was the day's best hurling for elsewhere on the league front Buffalo pounded Toronto 14-5 and Rochester shaded Montreal 7-6.

Woody Abernathy was the chief beneficiary in the other night game at Buffalo. He collected three doubles and a home run for a perfect night at bat and paced the Herd's 14-hit attack.

The Wings had to fight all the way to nip the Royals in the day's only afternoon game, a thrilling 13-inning duel. Cardin Gillenwater's single to left with two out in the 13th won the game, marked by loose play.

NEW YORK, June 1 (AP)—The surprise of it was that Ross stayed as long as he did. To many it looked as though Armstrong wasn't hitting as hard as he did to mow down Petey Sarron and some of his more recent opponents....Jim Braddock sat at the ringside and pulled hard for Barney, although he admitted Ross was on his way out before the fight was half through....The fact that Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee home run knocker, was with Braddock and Joe Gould gave rise to fresh rumors that Gould is handling "Der Mag's" business affairs....Fresh denials followed.

Mayor Hague of Jersey City sat at the ringside—surrounded by New York detectives .... Mike Jacobs, busy as he was, stopped to do a little business on the side....He accepted a cheque for $250 from former champion Gene Tunney for tickets to the Louis-Schmeling brawl later in the month....The first two heats produced some of the fastest, fiercest fighting New York audiences have been treated to in years ....Even before the crowd filed out of the arena, bets were being made that Ambers would stop Armstrong if they get together for Lou's title.

A guard tried to stop Mike Jacobs at one of the side gates..."I'm just the guy who runs the 'jernt'," Mike said...."I don't care if you're the king of England; you don't get through without a pass," said the guard...."Fire this bird," roared Mike to an inspector, "He wouldn't let me in"....A moment later he returned and said: "Don't fire the guy; if he won't let me in, he won't admit the phoneys."

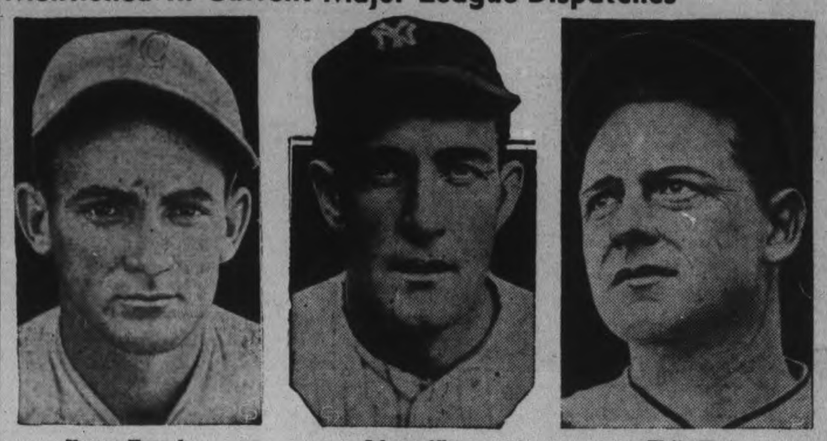
Mentioned In Current Major League Dispatches



Vernon Kennedy — Johnny Allen — Waite Hoyt

Three prominent names from the major league baseball front in recent days have been the pitchers ABOVE. Vernon Kennedy is one of the players Detroit Tigers obtained when they traded Gee Walker and others to the White Sox. The deal did not meet with much approval from Detroit fans, but if Mr. Kennedy maintains his early season pitching pace there should be no complaints. He has won five thus far.

Johnny Allen, Cleveland ace, who won 15 straight last year has gathered in another three this season and appears set for a big year. On the other side of the ledger is Waite Hoyt, for 20 years a major leaguer, who was given his outright release by Brooklyn Dodgers in Larry McPhail's shake-up. They say Waite is through, but he's bobbed up so many times, you can never tell.

Lindsay Beats Electrics 14-8

Lindsay Supremes defeated C.G.E. girls in a Girls' Softball League fixture, 14 to 8, last evening on the Scugog diamond. It was the first win in two starts for Lindsay and the second straight loss for C.G.E.—a tie between these teams making no contest last week. A good-sized crowd of fans saw a lively struggle with the homesters earning the nod.

Each side used two twirlers, A. Clarke starting for C.G.E. and giving 10 hits and two walks as she fanned four. A Doughty took over in the fifth and allowed four hits and no runs while walking a pair and striking out two. M. McCabe for Lindsay lasted till the seventh ended, allowing nine hits, as she fanned four and walked two. Jean Corley struck out five the rest of the route and gave no walks, but was nicked for two hits. Lindsay's fielding was better than that of the losers.

D. Sexsmith of Lindsay hit a homer, double and triple and single, with D. Botting collecting a triple and two singles. E. Craig for C.G.E. banged out a homer and single and P. Bigelow got a three-bagger and single. The fielding of D. Sexsmith, J. Corley, E. Craig and E. Graham was outstanding. The teams:

Cricket Results

LONDON, June 1.—(CP Cable)—The touring Australian cricket team drew with Middlesex Tuesday for its fourth deadlock in nine games to date this year on English soil. The other five matches ended in innings victories for the Aussies.

The Australians compiled innings of 132 and 114 runs for two wickets, declared against the county's innings of 188 runs and 21 runs for no wickets.

Don Bradman, captain of the visitors, made a sporting gesture when he declared the Australians' second innings with 20 minutes left to play to allow William Edrich, Middlesex batsman, a chance to bring his total runs to 1,000 for the month. Edrich scored 20 runs to hit the four-figure mark.

Bradman holds the record of twice exceeding 1,000 runs in May, opening month of the English season while W. G. Grace, Tom Hayward, C. Hallows, Walter Hammond and Edrich have each hit the figure once.

Rain was general over England today, cancelling play between Derbyshire and Sussex, Glamorgan and Essex, Gloucestershire and Warwickshire, Lancashire and Leicestershire and Nottinghamshire and Hampshire. The Derbyshire-Sussex contest was rained out all three days.

Somerset improved its county championship position with a three-wickets decision over Northamptonshire and Surrey gained a first-innings victory over Worcestershire. Other county matches ended in draws and will not be included in the championship table.

The scores:

Australians 132 and 114 runs for two wickets declared (Fingleton 32, Bradman 30 not out); Middlesex 188 and 21 runs for no wickets (Edrich 20 not out); at Lord's.

Glamorgan 100; vs Essex; at Swansea.

Northamptonshire 166 and 165 (Wellard seven for 76); Somerset 271 and 65 runs for seven wickets (Buswell five for 32); at Frome.

Surrey 192 and 101; Worcestershire 132 and 63 for seven (Gover seven for 35); at Kidderminster.

Cambridge University 169 and 79 for one; Army 387 for eight, declared (Packe 176); at Cambridge.

Cobourg Juniors Play Young Petes

Cobourg Juniors are here this evening, weather permitting, for a baseball game with the Young Petes. It is the opening game in Peterborough of the Lakeshore Junior Baseball League and will start at 5.45 p.m. in Riverside Park. Cobourg copped a 2-1 win over Herb Ralph's locals last week in the Lakeshore town, and the homesters tonight will be out for revenge. It promises to be another dandy battle between two first-rate junior clubs in the smartest four-team circuit in the Province. A big crowd of fans should be on hand for this scheduled contest. Many of the boys on these teams are future senior stars within a few seasons.

Grant (Gee) Clark will pitch for the Young Petes, while Bateman (who defeated the Y.P. crew Saturday) may be sent right back as he is the main flinger for Cobourg. Girard is the local catcher, with Castle on first, McNabb at second, Stanley on short and Berwick playing third. The outfield may be Kelly, Edmunds and McCormick. Todd and Condon are other Peterborough twirlers, and Hollingsworth, Collins and White extra players. Admission for this classy seven-inning twilight tilt is but 15 cents.

Yanks and Cubs Show New Power In Title Drive

NEW YORK, June 1 (CP).—A new picture of the major league situation is on display today as the leaders of the two circuits start into foreign territory and old Lou Gehrig starts another thousand or so consecutive games.

"Iron Hoss" Lou, playing his 2,000th game without a miss, and those big Memorial Day crowds pushed a few other important items into the background during the past two days. No, it's coming to light that the Cleveland Indians and New York Giants aren't out there all alone as they were a short time ago.

The Yankees, as attested by their doings of the last two days, are coming right along in old-time form and Chicago Cubs are doing just as well. The Indians and Giants haven't shown many signs of slipping, but they don't have far to fall.

Yanks Tighten Hold.

Although the durable Gehrig, who broke into the Yankee line-up 13 years ago today, didn't have much to do with it. The Yankees really began to show their mettle in the just-concluded series with the Boston Red Sox. On Monday 83,529 fans came out to see the Yanks move into second place with a double victory over the Sox. Yesterday they consolidated their position by whipping Boston again, 12-5, in the only game on the big league program. Lou hit a homer Monday, but only a single yesterday.

That's a sample of the things the Indians, minus the valuable services of Catcher Rollie Hemsley, will have to face in the east. The Tribe opens at Philadelphia today against the Athletics, who are up in sixth place now after winning four of their last five games. Then comes Boston, Washington, where the Senators have been beaten only five times in 21 games, and finally the Yanks.

No National Games.

In the National League the leading Giants go west with the memory of a double shut-out administered by the Boston Bees Monday and the knowledge that the Cubs have racked up 10 victories in the last 13 games. Before tackling the Cubs, however, the Giants meet the uncertain Pittsburg Pirates and the fourth-place Cincinnati Reds.

COLORFUL SCENES MARK GOVERNOR'S VISIT TO LAKEFIELD AND PETERBOROUGH

Colorful scenes marked the visit of Lord Tweedsmuir to Peterborough and Lakefield on Tuesday. At Lakefield the Governor-General listened with enthusiasm to a chorus of children who sang for him, thanked them heartily at the conclusion. (1) shows His Excellency shaking hands with Rev. W. J. Creighton of the Church of St. John the Baptist, while Rev. J. J. Garvey of the Roman Catholic church is next in line. Reeve Charles Tanner is introducing the men. In (2) are the Aide de Camp, Lieut. R. Scott, R.N., His Excellency, and Reeve Charles Tanner. (3) shows Lord Tweedsmuir extending his thanks to the school children.

The Governor-General inspected Grove School next. (4) shows him addressing students who were drawn up in a "U" formation on the campus. A few minutes later he went to the shores of Lake Katchawanooka, where the boys had got out their fleet of dinghies, shown in (6).

City Is Viewed

General, his aide-de-camp Lieut. Scott, R.N., and Mayor James Hamilton, and the second Colonel Redfern, Lord Tweedsmuir's secretary, and J. J. Duffus, M.P. A motorcycle escort, consisting of Provincial Traffic Officers Lloyd McClure and Gordon Broughton and City Traffic Officers Archie Menzies and W. A. Clark and two police cars, one containing Corp. Jack Woods of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the other Chief Constable Newhall and Detectives W. Meagher and W. Piercey of the Peterborough Police Department rounded out the party.

The Children's Greeting.

Leaving the Governor-General's private car at the C.P.R. Station promptly at 3 o'clock, the Viceregal cars sped down George Street to Lansdowne and thence along that Street to Monaghan Road. The first incident was the waving of greetings by a group of school children at the Park Street intersection; then on Monaghan Road His Excellency acknowledged the welcome extended him by the employees of the Johnson Motors.

When the Prince of Wales School was reached there was an enthusiastic and colorful reception from hundreds of children from the Prince of Wales, Queen Mary, King Edward, Confederation, and May's Schools. As the Governor-General's car stopped the youngsters lined up along the sidewalk and ranged on the sloping bank leading up to the school waved Union Jacks and cheered lustily.

His Excellency shook hands with George S. Mattice, principal of the Prince of Wales School, and other teachers, and then promptly acceded to the request of Mrs. Eveline Foster who asked for his autograph. In a moment he was surrounded by children begging for the same favor and a number of youngsters were rewarded with the Viceregal signature.

"I am very much impressed with this reception," he said. "I have never seen a finer show. I had no idea there were so many children in Canada, especially so many fine looking ones." Then the Governor General added that he was going to ask that the children should be given another holiday—"not to-day, but a holiday on another day."

With three hearty cheers from the throats of hundreds of enthusiastic young Canadians the official party was sped on its way.

The route followed was Monaghan Road to Weller, to Park to Hunter to Water, and at Victoria Park there was another impressive feature of the reception, for here had assembled the children from Central, Queen Alexandra, and King George Public Schools and from St. Peters, Sacred Heart, and Immaculate Conception Separate Schools and St. Mary's Convent. The youngsters lined many rows deep along the entire front of the park, welcomed His Excellency with cheers and alighting from his car he greeted Principal R. J. Bolton of Central School, and again expressed his desire that the school children of Peterborough should have another holiday.

An Impressive Spectacle.

Then the party proceeded by way of McDonnel Street to Confederation Square where an impressive spectacle awaited them. Nearest McDonnel Street were lined up the Scout troops and cub packs of Peterborough under the command of District Commissioner John T. Hornsby, and south of them were massed members of the Canadian Legion headed by President Fire Chief George Gimblett. The Legion was flanked by the Women's Auxiliary, while the Girl Guides, presenting a pretty picture in their blue uniforms, were drawn up at the rear.

The Governor-General, greeted by applause, went directly to the marquee erected in front of the Armouries behind and alongside of which were grouped hundreds of citizens. Here Mayor Hamilton read the following address on behalf of the City and County Councils:

His Excellency The Right Honourable Lord Tweedsmuir, P.C., C.C. M.G., C.H., Governor General of Canada.

May It Please Your Excellency:

On behalf of the city and county councils and the citizens of the City and County of Peterborough we give you a most hearty welcome to this city.

It was with great gratification that we learned of your appointment to the exalted office of the representative of His Majesty the King in Canada, because we knew that a gentleman of your scholastic attainments, outstanding qualifications and deep interest in the welfare of His Majesty's subjects in all parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations would redound to the benefit of the people of this Dominion.

We appreciate the time and trouble you have taken in becoming acquainted with the different sections of the Dominion, for we know that such an intimate personal knowledge will be of advantage, not only while you are in Canada, but also when you return to your own land, for we feel sure that your interest in the prosperity of this country will continue after your term of office has expired.

We are greatly pleased that you have come on this visit to Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes. It is a short time, only a hundred years since the first settlers came to this district. The foundation of this city and county was laid by patriotic pioneers who were loyal to the throne, and this sentiment of loyalty and devotion to the Sovereign has been and is continued in their successors.

In building up this community as an important manufacturing centre other requirements for the culture and well being of the people have not been neglected, and you will see evidences of this fact in the number of beautiful churches, schools, hospitals and other institutions in the city.

We will be pleased if you will kindly convey to His Gracious Majesty King George VI an expression of the devotion of the citizens of this city and county to his person and throne and our best wishes for a long, prosperous and happy reign.

We hope that your term of office as His Majesty's representative in Canada will be a happy one, and that the places you will recall with pleasant recollections will be the City and County of Peterborough.

We have the honour to be Your Excellency's obedient servants,
JAMES HAMILTON, Mayor.
E. N. McDONALD, Warden.

Presentation Is Made.

Following the reading of the address Mayor Hamilton presented His Excellency with a souvenir of his visit to Peterborough in the form of a silver ash tray, decorated with a Peterborough canoe. In making the presentation Mayor Hamilton remarked that the canoe had helped to make Peterborough famous for while the industry was not in point of wealth the city's greatest industry canoes had always been associated with Peterborough and Peterborough with canoes.

"I am greatly touched and greatly delighted by the welcome you have given me," said Lord Tweedsmuir in reply, "and I am deeply honored by this gift which will always remind me of Peterborough. For many years I have head of Peterborough canoes but I never knew what the expression meant until today."

His Excellency said that he would be delighted to convey the city and county's expressions of devotion and duty to His Majesty the King.

"My only regret on this wonderful day is that my wife is not with me. She is in England but I am sure that when I tell her what Peterborough is like she will not be long in claiming your hospitality," he continued.

"A Wonderful City"

"You have a wonderful city, only one hundred years old and the right kind of a city. You have plenty of baskets to put your industrial eggs in, you are the metropolis of a rich farming district and you are living in one of the most beautiful parts of Canada. I have seldom seen a more lovely district and I envy you your privilege of living in Peterborough."

Then the various units assembled were inspected. The Governor General shook hands with every veteran on parade and stopped frequently as he passed down the line to ask some ex-serviceman as to his war experience. "What was your lot?" was the question he asked most frequently. Thomas Miller, John Playford, Ed. Waterman and Albert Miller were some of the veterans with whom His Excellency conversed at some length. Then in turn the Boy Scouts, the Girl Guides and the Women's Auxiliary were inspected and the Governor General returned to the marquee where for the next few minutes he received some hundreds of citizens presented to him by Mayor Hamilton.

C.G.E. Is Visited

Followed then the final stage of the official program when after His Excellency had been enthusiastically cheered by the war veterans the vice-regal party left Confederation Square to visit the Canadian General Electric Co. plant. Here there was an inspiring scene with office staff grouped on the steps of the office building, some two hundred veterans in the companys employ stretching in a long line inside the gates and a piper playing lively airs as the party entered.

At the gates the Governor General was greeted by Carl A. Salmonsen works, manager of the plant, Ian F. McRae, J. Fred Reed, L. W. D. Magie, Wm. C. English and other executives and a brief tour of the principal buildings in the huge plant followed. His Excellency first however greeted every veteran with a handshake and as in the inspection at Confederation Square took time to converse with a number of the ex-servicemen. He took particular interest in a veteran who said that he had served in the famous Black Watch.

In the tour of the buildings Lord Tweedsmuir showed keen interest in the plant and in the workers he saw en route.

As the inspection of the building ended Mr. Salmonsen presented the Governor General with a model of the first incandescent lamp as a souvenir of his visit to the Canadian General Electric Company's plant.

The viceregal party, with the same escort then proceeded to the siding along the west bank of the Canal where the Governor Generals car had been placed. First however there was a visit to the top of the Memorial Park hill to give Lord Tweedsmuir a bird's-eye view of Peterborough and then he was escorted to his car and the civic end of his Peterborough visit ended as he and his party took farewell of Mayor Hamilton and expressed their thanks for a most enjoyable reception.

Within the last year, there has been produced in Canada for the first time steel billets and forgings for high explosive shells, the Minister said. These will be produced at a plant to be operated as an auxiliary to a Dominion arsenal. He did not say where the work was done.

50 Gas Masks A Day

Delivery of made-in-Canada gas masks had been slow, said Mr. MacKenzie, partly because the department could not furnish manufacturers with the parts moulds until last March and partly because the technique of production had not been mastered. Starting this month additional deliveries at the rate of 50 a day were expected.

Loyalty and co-operation by manufacturers had greatly facilitated the work of the navy, army and air supply committee, created at defence headquarters, 18 months ago. Information of a confidential nature has been given the committee.

The defence department has inspected 625 firms across Canada disclosing "the very heartening information that our national industry possesses a very high potential for the production of war stores. With the data thus recorded, much of the delay and confusion inherent in a change-over of industry from peace to emergency production and subsequent expansion can be eliminated."

The minister said it was impossible to over-emphasize the personnel problem of industry in emergency production. There might be a shortage of skilled mechanics.

"The solution of this problem appears to be one which the manufacturer himself must overcome. The government can be prepared to play its part by curtailing the loss of skilled mechanics to the trade through enlistment in defence forces."

Ice In Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., June 1 (AP).—Summer-like temperatures have failed to melt remnants of the record-breaking ice jam which crushed the honeymoon bridge last January.

Tracy Levee, chief of the Niagara Reservation Police, was not impressed, however. "In 1930 we still had an ice mountain on June 21," he said.

the padlock law discussion but Hon. W. D. Euler, acting Postmaster-General, said he was of the opinion, personally, that unless the men who have been in possession of the Vancouver post office did not leave it peacefully some action would have to be taken.

Joseph Bradette (Lib., Cochrane) said that "during a bushmen's strike in my own district I barely escaped with my life from some of those Communist leaders in the pay of Soviet Russia." He thought the law should apply also to Fascism and other "un-Canadian" political movements.

To the suggestion of Opposition Leader Bennett that the transient unemployed who have occupied the Vancouver Post Office be asked to vacate and that force be used if necessary to maintain the law, Mr. Euler said some such action would have to be taken if the men did not soon leave peacefully.

It had been the hope of the government that the men would leave of their own accord, Mr. Euler said, and that the authorities might avoid precipitating what possibly would be a serious situation. They were doing no damage and were not interfering with public business.

Howard Green (Con., Vancouver S.), said the government could not evade its responsibility for these men who were not natives of British Columbia. He urged the Labor Minister to go to Vancouver so that he might appreciate the situation.

Lightning Blaimed For Three Deaths

VAL D'OR, Que., June 1 (CP)—Lightning which detonated a charge of dynamite was responsible for the deaths of three men as they drilled in the Sladen-Malartic mine Monday night.

A coroner's jury decided yesterday that Peter Prokop, 33, K. C. Pell, 32, and George MacKay, 28, all single residents of Val D'Or, died when an "electrical disturbance" detonated the dynamite with which they were to blast in the shaft down which they were drilling. Their deaths were declared accidental.

A fierce electrical storm raged over this village and over the mine seven miles away. Witnesses said they believed a bolt of lightning somehow was conducted underground to set off the charge at the men's backs. Wilfred Lecoy, some distance from the actual explosion, suffered minor injuries.

Val D'Or is 253 miles northeast of North Bay.

WRITES Miss Rose Madia

Read this TRUE STORY of a young girl's tragic problem

Miss Rose Madia tells her true-life experiences, "At parties I knew all too well what 'lonely in a crowd' really means. Although girls called me a 'good scout,' boys always seemed to shun me. How I envied the good times other girls enjoyed! Hurt, puzzled and disturbed, I finally asked my best girl friend for the truth. She told me that boys noticed a girl as attractive as I am but that they also noticed dull, dingy-looking teeth . . . my only drawback.

A few days later I read an advertisement which told me of the amazing new way to make teeth sparkle. Frankly, I was very sceptical, but figuring I had nothing to lose, decided to mail the coupon for a Free 7-day Supply. I liked that sample of Pepsodent so well I bought and used Pepsodent regularly for months. Then one day a boy told me I ought to smile more, that when a girl has teeth like pearls she ought to be forced to show them. I don't like to sound conceited, but nowadays I certainly seem to have plenty of boy friends (thanks to Pepsodent)."

FREE! 7-DAY SUPPLY OF PEPSODENT

MAILING A COUPON JUST LIKE THIS ONE CHANGED THE WHOLE COURSE OF MY LIFE!

Traffic Charges Result in Fines For 11 Motorists

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., had a large number of cases involving offences against the local traffic by-laws and the Ontario Highway Traffic Act in traffic court this morning, and pleas of guilty were registered in nearly all cases, although one outsider who wrote to plead guilty to speeding on Highway No. 7, stated in his letter that in spite of his plea he had three witnesses to show that he was not travelling faster than 50 miles an hour. Traffic Officer Broughton placed the speed at 65 miles and had a certificate showing his motorcycle speedometer had been tested and found accurate just two days before.

Driving without a license cost Gerald McDonald, W. J. Barrie, L. Weaver and Claude Gray of Lakefield $10 and costs each.

John J. Brady charged with having defective brakes and with reckless driving secured a week's adjournment because his counsel, T. J. Carley, was out of the city.

W. Bromley pleaded guilty to driving a car equipped with inadequate brakes and was nicked $10 and $2.50 costs.

Oscar J. Asiz, Toronto, and F. Boorman and A. R. Dawson were fined $2 and 75 cents costs for angle parking.

Governor Honors Lakefield Scouts

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, June 1.—"I want to congratulate you on the smart appearance of the Lakefield Scout troop," His Excellency, the Governor General, Lord Tweedsmuir, told Scout Master J. W. MacKerchar after the Governor General had reviewed the troop on his visit to Lakefield on Tuesday morning. After enquiring from Scout Master MacKerchar how long the troop had been organzied and learning that it had originated less than two years ago the Governor General extended additional congratulations on the splendid progress made.

His Excellency the Governor General is Head Scout in the Dominion of Canada and despite the pressure of official duties he does not forget that he is a scout.

An so His Excellency has left behind him in Lakefield a very proud troop of Boy scouts. For not only have they been reviewed and congratulated by the Governor General but the Governor General has shown that he is a scout like themselves.

"Splendid"

Editor Examiner.

Sir: Please accept for yourself and the Examiner newspaper generally my heartiest congratulations on your splendid work in connection with the publication of the special vacation edition of the Examiner. The photographs were most interesting, the articles exceedingly well written and the entire production would be a credit to the largest city newspaper.

I can think of nothing that could be more useful in creating a proper interest in the tourist traffic in this district than the mailing by every citizen of a number of copies of same to distant points, particularly friends residing in the United States.

The only single word to describe the publication in my opinion is the word "splendid."

Your very truly,

F. D. KERR.

Large Moose Grazes With Herd Of Cattle

JANETVILLE, June 1.—Messrs. Merritt and Louis McGill, who live on the 14th Concession, about a mile from the village, were amazed on Sunday morning to see a big 1,200-pound moose peacefully grazing with the cattle in a field not far from the house on the former's farm.

The men proceeded to make a closer acquaintance with it, but when they drew near Mr. Moose jumped the fence and disappeared into the woods.

Mother Discovers Her Drowned Son

COCHRANE, Ont., June 1 (C.P.).—By a cruel twist of fate Mrs. Constant of Clue Township was first to discover the body of her 15-year-old son Romeo, washed up by the Frederickhouse River late last night after the boy had been missing from home for 18 days.

The youth set out on the swollen river in an old boat on the night of May 13 for a dance in Clute, and was seen at the dance, saying he would return by the same route. The water was high and the current swift. The empty boat was found six miles downstream later. Dragging operations were difficult, and the body was not found until it came to the surface last night a half-mile below the Constant home.

Three Months In Reformatory For Bicycle Theft

Gordon Taylor, who pleaded guilty on Saturday to stealing a bicycle from John Bowen, was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to three months' determinate and one month indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory.

Taylor is the man who told the court when previously arraigned that he had been driven to crime because the Ontario Government owed him $250 and who declared that he was going to stick to a criminal career until that debt had been discharged.

Today, however, he struck a different note.

"I am very sorry for what I have done," he said to the Magistrate.

"I realize that I made a great mistake and I would ask Your Worship to let me go on suspended sentence."

"But you have a record," said Magistrate Langley, "and suspended sentence is supposed to be for first offenders only."

"I have paid for my record," declared the prisoner.

"That is true," the Magistrate said, "but it does not help us any as regards a suspended sentence."

Taylor, as the Magistrate scanned his record of previous convictions, said that he had been trying to go straight. He told the court that he had returned from Alberta last fall.

Without further comment, Magistrate Langley imposed a three-month definite reformatory sentence, with another month indeterminate.

WELL ARRANGED

It is generally agreed that Tuesday's reception to the Governor General was excellently arranged from the viewpoint of police work. The motorcycle patrol made a good job of it and traffic and crowds were splendidly handled by other police so that there was no confusion and no accidents to mar the pleasure of the day.

Col. T. J. A reporter in those days interviewed members of the council about the farming outlook, and the Colonel declined to make a statement. Joyce Bridcott Wins W.C.T.U. Elocution Medal

An event of unusual interest was the County Medal Contest in elocution held in Knox United Church Tuesday night, under the auspices of the W.C.T.U.

With Mrs. A. J. Throop, the retiring county president in the chair, the meeting opened with a brief worship service, when Miss Isabel Connolly read the scripture lesson and earnest prayer was offered by Mrs. George Rowe.

The efficient judges for the occasion were then introduced to the audience and included Mrs. J. A. McKone, Mrs. (Rev.) E. W. Rowland and Thos. Allen, M.A.

The five contestants, who were called upon by number, each did splendid work giving their selections with fine expression and almost perfect memorization. Among the youthful elocutionists were June Wellwood and Eva Blanche Parr of George St. United Church, Joyce Bridcott of All Saints Anglican Church, Mary Dunford of Springville United Church and Paul Meeks of St. James' United.

While the judges withdrew to consider their decision, a brief musical program was greatly enjoyed. "Help somebody today" was the sweetly-sung solo by Ernest Lee accompanied by his mother, Mrs. E. Lee while Mr. Edwin Rowe delighted the audience with his excellent rendition of "I Love Life" and "When the World Forgets," with Mrs. E. Rowe as accompanist.

On behalf of the judges, Mr. Allen presented the result of their deliberations and complimented the young people upon their efforts. Joyce Bridcott was the unanimous choice as winner of the County Gold Medal, which was presented by Miss C. Wagar, County Superintendent. Certificates were also presented to each of those taking part.

Mrs. H. Connolly, local Medal Contest Superintendent, who has done outstanding work this year brought a word of greeting to the assembly and expressed her belief in the efficacy of such work among children and young people.

The closing hymn and the benediction brought to a conclusion this very successful evening.

Seven Are Charged With Being Drunk

Faced in police court this morning with seven persons charged with being drunk, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., was struck by the thought that this squad of morning-after defendants might have been celebrating the visit of the Governor General Tuesday.

No. 1 on the list who pleaded guilty and was fined $10 with the alternative of ten days in jail, was unable to throw any light on the question.

"Were you celebrating the fact that the Governor General was here yesterday?" asked Magistrate Langley, but the accused merely stared at the bench and the court did not pursue the inquiry any further.

Another offender also pleaded guilty to the same offence and received the same punishment.

Three boys, charged with being drunk on Reid Street, declared that they were not guilty and they were remanded until tomorrow.

One of them asked for an adjournment.

"I said remanded until tomorrow," retorted the Magistrate.

Two others were more lucky. They pleaded not guilty and got a week's enlargement, the Crown raising no objections.

FICTION AND FEATURES

FIESTA.

BY OREN ARNOLD

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Having saved the life of Ellen Dale, screen star, with a lucky parachute jump after his plane had run out of fuel in a terrific storm, Bill Baron and his lone pasenger finally arrive at ranch house across the Mexican border, unharmed but fatigued.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 2

From sheer nervous strain after their miraculous escape, or rather the sudden warm relief from it, Ellen Dale fainted when she stepped inside the ranch house. She plopped headlong there on the dance floor, a sorry looking, wet little person. Three or four Mexican girls shrieked in alarm.

Things happened fast, then. A middle-aged senora, obviously the hostess, issued many orders. Servants went running. When Ellen came again to her senses, she was in a soft bed with a warm rock at her feet and dark maids massaging her. She was quite pale, so they gave her warm drink and she calmly went to sleep.

William Baron, though, relaxed in front of the great living room fire, steaming and smiling and answering questions the while. Having lived 28 of his 30 years on the border, he spoke better Spanish than many Mexicans.

"We had to do it," he explained in conclusion. "It was jump or die in a crash. We took a long chance and won."

Don Julio Montoya, the host, then turned impressively to his assembled dozens of guests. Before Bill realized it all of them were bowed in reverent prayer, and Don Julio was giving thanks to God for the Americans' deliverance. Bill was amazed. Nobody had prayed over him since his mother died. He couldn't even say a grateful "Amen," so huge was the lump in his throat.

They gave him coffee and food, and showered more polite questions.

"I never saw her before today, yesterday I mean," he related, in Spanish. Of course I knew her. Ellen Dale. I have admired her blond curls on the screen many times. Her life story is known from coast to coast. She was a clerk in a New York 10-cent store four years ago, an orphaned kid. She won a beauty contest one Sunday afternoon at Coney Island. With the $25 first prize, she took a few singing and dancing lessons.

"Then she got a hearing on a radio amateur hour. She had something, besides looks. In her voice. A Hollywood movie producer wired for her. She took a test. He gave her more lessons and started advertising her. She stole the first show they put her in, and she's been on high salary ever since. Not the most famous, maybe, but certainly popular. And she's still young.

'I own a two-seater cabin plane —that is, I did own one—in San Antonio. She was in a hurry yesterday to go west but missed the regular afternoon ship. She hired me to take her. We went bang into the storm, and here we are.

"I must repeat, Senor Montoya, that I am deeply indebted for you taking us in, and I know Miss Dale will be grateful, too."

The dignified old rancher scoffed at the thanks, kindly ordered his wet guest to bed. In deference to the new arrivals, the dancers called it a night and dispersed.

It was late afternoon before Ellen came from her room. She had enjoyed a lunch in bed, then rested some more. When she appeared, the vivacious American had metamorphosed into something lan uid and Latin and lovely just the same. The Mexican finery she wore was indescribably becoming.

"Glory!" exclaimed Bill Baron when he saw her. "You look grand! How did you do it, without your maids and your makeup staff?"

"But I had maids, Mr.—say whatever IS your name? It's time I knew, don't you think? When I chartered your plane, I just didn't inquire."

Bill himself was attired a la Espanol now, also in borrowed clothes. He looked magnificent himself, if truth be known. He even wore the colorful serape, which all Mexicans love, with careless ease. So, he bowed low and introduced himself with a flourish.

She dimpled at him then. "I had maids, senor. Miss Panola Montoya —you met her, didn't you?—has practically turned the ranch over to me. I never enjoyed such attention in all my life!"

Ella turned to smile at Senorita Panola. This young lady of the rancho spoke some English. She confessed to schooling in El Paso, Tex. She was a striking figure herself, a little imperious of mien, a trifle large of mouth, a trifle too dark of skin, but striking. "Por nada, amiga," she muttered, in acknowledgement of Ellen's tribute.

They rested until dinner, which turned out to be an elaborate function. Evidently Don Julio Montoya was wealthy. The visible extent of his ranch home and his vast rolling acres suggested as much. The food was Mexican, highly spiced and tangy, but delicions even so.

The abrupt clatter of arriving horsemen, just outside the dining room window, suddenly interrupted the meal. There was loud commotion, with angry voices. A door banged and a dirty but official looking young man burst in.

"Fay-leez!" cried Mrs. Montoya.

Don Julio arose. The greeted the young man cordially, but at the same time escorted him hastily back out, with a quick apology to the guests. Ellen was rather alarmed.

Don Julio was back at the table in a moment.

"Fay-leex, he has been a-way," he explained. "He is officer in the armee, which hae to go to—ah how you say?—corral thee Indios. Seex men, they have breeng back two Indios who esteal thee cows. Los Yaquis, Senor Baron." He concluded with an implied appeal to Bill for assistance.

"Senor Montoya means that his son, Felxi, has just returned with two captured Yaqui Indians," Bill said. "They are quite a problem sometimes, Miss Dale."

"Indians?" echoed she. "You mean—real Indians?"

"Yes indeed! Real."

"But I thought they—all Indians —were killed or something, years ago."

Bill smiled, and translated it for the Montoyas. "That is true in the United States," he told Ellen then. "But not in Mexico. The Yaquis have never been conquered. They are a wild remnant. A few villages live peacefully, but other groups still come down out of their mountain canyons on raiding sprees. The Mexican officials constantly have worries about them, especially in the ranching districts. The more savage Yaquis love to steal horses and cows. And women."

Panola Montoya shuddered. She had been gazing admiringly at Bill. "I would say that you could drive any Indians away, Senor Baron," she almost purred it. "You look strong, like my brother. Men would follow you."

Panola stared at him as if enraptured throughout the meal, and when they arose to leave the table she promptly appropriated him. Her maneuvers seemed to be just on the edge of boldness—not quite forward, but certainly not very restrained. It was obvious that the handsome Americano had impresed her deeply.

Ellen Dale had not thought of her escort as handsome. Indeed she had thought of him personally at all, until this hour. Men, all manner of men, had been around her eternally since she began work for the screen; they were little more than properties on a studio stage. She had been an extremely busy girl and (she suddenly realized, sadly) a rather self-centred one. Now, though, she was acutely conscious of Panola's interest in this man. She watched them standing in front of the living room fire. The fireplace was a stone arch taller than Bill, and the glow silhouetted them in picturesque manner. Panola was looking up at him.

The evening was a quiet one. They sat in the great beamed living room because the autumn air, while not too cold, was chilling. Don Julio asked two servants to bring their guitars in. The songs were muted, soothing.

Later when she went to her room across the patio and got into bed, she was not sleepy. Once she heard Bill's distanst laughter, a happy basso. She lay thinking a long while.

Looking Back

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

JUNE 1

This date may be considered the cradle of our great Presbyterian university, Queen's, at Kingston, because on June 1, 1930, the Presbytery of the Canadas, meeting at Kingston, drafted a petition to "the Christian people of Great Britain and Ireland" asking aid for the establishment in Upper Canada of a seat of learning for the Presbyterians. At that time, of course, King's College at York (Toronto) was open only to students of the Church of England.

Fred Williams

A few years later it was proposed that a theological chair for the Presbyterians of King's might meet the situation; but this was blocked by the Anglicans, Archdeacon Strachan protecting the interests of his adopted church more than he did those of the church in which he had been reared in Scotland. This conflict turned out to be a blessing, for it forced the Presbyterians to found their own college, and this was done December 18, 1839. Two years later (1841) it was incorporated and became Queen's University with Rev. Thomas Liddell as its first principal.

Queen's prides itself as entitled to enrolment among the "First Things in Canada." It was the first university in Ontario, the first to open a women's medical college, and the first to confer a degree upon a girl in Ontario.

The evening of June 1, 1872, was an historic one in the House of Commons. A bill to authorize the government to subsidise a company to construct a railway to British Columbia, which had been introduced by Sir George E. Cartier, April 26, and strongly opposed by the Liberals, was given its third reading. When it was passed, Cartier rose to his feet and shouted, "All aboard for the West," whereupon the members broke into cheers and the first step in our national unity was taken.

Cartier died 13 months later. He was a sick man, and knew it, and considered the C.P. bill the finale of his life's work. When he returned to his office after the bill had become law he took from a drawer in his desk a set of the laws which he had succeeded in having passed, added the Canadian Pacific measure, and sent the whole to be bound in one volume. He was right. Parliament was prorogued 13 days later, was dissolved July 8, and August 20 Cartier met his political Waterloo, being defeated by young L. A. Jette in Montreal East. He was found a seat in Provencher, Man., but passed no more legislation, and died in May, 1873, beclouded by his share in the corrupt deals with Sir Hugh Allen, which brought about the downfall of the Macdonald ministry.

Husbands and Wives Who Have the Same Interests and Work Unceasingly Toward a Common Goal Are the Who Enjoy the Golden Wedding Most

AT THE recent celebration of his golden wedding, Henry Ford made a little speech in which he said that he and his Wife had never had a quarrel and that they had always Worked together, with the same interests and ambitions.

No better recipe for making marriage a success has ever been given than Mr. Ford compressed in this one brief phrase. It hits on every cylinder and it will stand the wear and tear and hard usage of everyday living.

To begin with, it offers the one sure cure for neurotic wives. It is work. It is giving them plenty to do. It is keeping them so busy that they don't have time to psychoanalyze their emotions and find out that some slick-haired gigolo is their real soulmate instead of the hard-working business man to whom they are united, or to shop around and see how many things they want that they haven't got. It is the women with nothing to do who are dissatisfied, peevish, fretful and complaining.

It is the women with leisure in which to contemplate their husbands' faults and shortcomings and how far they fall below their ideals who fill the divorce courts. It is the women with nothing to occupy their minds, except search their systems for symptoms, who enrich doctors and fill the sanatoriums. It is the wives whose only occupation is killing time who get into messy scandals. For Satan still finds work for idle hands to do. Especially when they are women's hands.

Men have the idea that the way to be kind to a woman is to keep her pampered and idle. Every ever-loving husband dreams of a time when he can provide his with so many servants that she will have nothing to do but to sit on a silk cushion and sew up a seam and feed upon strawberries, sugar and cream, like the princess in the fairy tale.

Never was there a greater mistake. The real way to make a wife happy is to give her so much to do and keep her so on the jump that she won't have time to go out and borrow trouble. The contented wives are the poor women with half a dozen children to slave for, not the rich women who are bored to death trying to amuse themselves.

The next, and perhaps the vital point of Mr. Ford's philosophy of marriage, calls attention to the value of teamwork. He and wife worked together. They had the same interests and the same ambitions. And that makes an unbeatable combination for both happiness and success.

A great many fancy rules are given for husbands and wives retaining each other's affection. They are told that they must preserve their romance, that they must keep themselves glamorous. Phooey! It can't be done. The only real, reliable, never-fail way in which a married couple can keep their love alive is for them to be absorbed in the same interests. Then they never weary of each other. They never talk out. They never have to wander away from home to find some one who understands them and speaks their language.

The great tragedy of American marriage is that so few husbands and wives realize this, or make any attempt to cultivate any interest in the other's interest. The wife yawns when her husband tries to tell her about his business hopes and plans. The husband scoffs at the wife's clubs and friends and social aspirations. They live in different worlds and they grow so far apart that there is no common ground on which they can meet. Hence the pathetic old couples that we see all about us who can't even carry on a conversation together.

As for the value of the husband and wife being yokemates who put all of their strength and energy into pulling the load together, there can be no argument. They are bound to get there. It is teamwork that does it. No man can succeed who has a wife who is lazy and a balker and a shirker and who refuses to co-operate with him. And there are mighty few who fail who have wives who put their hearts and their backs in their husband's careers and make of their shoulders a ladder on which they can climb to success.

All of which sums up into emphasizing once more that marriage is a partnership in which the husband and wife must work together in harmony and with a single purpose if they want it to succeed.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

The other morning Knarf and Hanid, the two shadow children with the turned-about names were sitting in a corner of the children's rooms (shadows always like to sit in corners, you know), when all at once Knarf said: "I've just thought of something, Hanid."

"What have you thought of this time?" his sister asked.

"I've just thought of that little caterpillar who built its bed on the branch of the elm tree out in the garden last autumn. It's spring now, and I think it ought to be waking up."

"Why, that's right!" Hanid exclaimed.

"It's been fast asleep for months and months. It can't sleep all the time. There are leaves on all the trees now. There's plenty for it to eat."

"Let's wake it up."

"That's just what I mean."

So the two shadows slipped out of the playroom, slid under the door and made their way out into the garden. When they came to the elm tree they climbed up to the first branch. And there was the little white bed which the caterpillar had made for itself in the autumn. They couldn't see the caterpillar, though. It had drawn the blankets all over itself. It was quite covered.

They climbed up to the first branch.

Then Hanid began calling in a gentle voice: "Caterpillar! Are you awake? Spring is here. It's time you were up."

They waited for a minute or two. But nothing happened.

"It's a very lazy caterpillar," said Knarf. "It wants to keep right on sleeping. But I know how to wake it up!" We'll get an alarm clock."

"But where?"

And Knarf climbed down the tree again and Hanid, wondering what he was going to do, followed him. What kind of an alarm clock do you suppose the shadow boy was going to find?

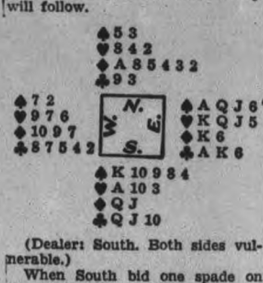
"The Authority on Authorities"

LEARN THEIR WAYS

IT PAYS TO KNOW the ways of your opponents. In many a case you can count on them to manifest a definite reaction to certain stimuli—to borrow a term from the medical profession. Bearing those tendencies in mind, we can adopt measures to steer their courses as we desire, or let them proceed in directions they have indicated they will follow.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

When South bid one spade on this deal, followed by his partner's two diamonds, East knew there would be more bidding whether he took part or not. The opponents were using the convention which prescribes that the naming of a new suit forces at least one more bid out of the partner. So East decided to pass and hope for a later chance to make a good business double.

South's rebid was two spades, over which North bid three diamonds. Here is where some more of East's information regarding Mr. South came in handy. He knew South considered himself a better player than his partner and would not let North play a hand if he could help it. East was not particularly anxious to play against diamonds, but reckoned that a double of that bid would scare South into either another spade rebid or a call of the two unbid suits, possibly even no trump.

South followed the form chart and took out East's double of three diamonds into three spades. This East of course doubled, and scored a nice juicy set on a deal where no game was remotely in sight for his side.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, June 2.

This may be a day in which some matters may be productive and progressive, judging by the solar and lunar aspects, but certain configurations may bring rather difficult, surprising, and perplexing conditions to be met with decisiveness and shrewdness. Errors in handling these may cause regrettable annoyance. Jealousy or enmity may be at the root of this, but friends may be counted on for help, and generally things should be pleasant and prosperous.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a lively, progressive and prosperous year, although there may be a certain rather perplexing or intriguing situation to confront. Envy or jealousy may be at the root of this, but generally friends will prove dependable and a pleasant atmosphere should prevail.

A child born on this day may be a very pleasant and congenial character, although given to small jealousies and enmities. It may be artistically inclined and should find favors with superiors and employers.

Unusual Talent Displayed at Recital

The Y.W.C.A. Green Room, fragrant with lilacs, tulips and other blooms, was filled with an enthusiastic audience last night, who were charmed with the talent displayed by Lenore Skitch and Joan Pitchford, youthful pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, in a delightful piano and vocal recital.

Joan Pitchford, fourteen, in her vocal numbers, particularly Edward German's "Who'll Buy My Lavender" impressed her listeners with her quality of expression and splendid breath control. Sanderson's "Bird Lullaby" brought out a lilting cadence in her voice that reminded one of the beloved bird notes themselves. The sweet clearness of her voice was well demonstrated in her other selections, which included: "Two Old English Songs," "There is a Lady Sweet and Kind" by Van Kees, Scott's "The False Prophet", Fairlough's "An April Girl" and "The Broken Pitcher" by Pontett.

Lenore Skitch, sixteen, displayed some excellent technique as her nimble fingers brought to her audience such selection as: "Happiness" (Lange), "Morceau" (Wollenhaupt), Leschatizky's "Les Deux Alouettes" (Op. 2 No. 1) Sinding's "Rustle of Spring." This last number deserves particular mention, as the young artist carried her listeners to a springland of whispering waterfalls; growing grass; plaintive bird songs, and brought to them again the stirring hope of spring. The "Grand March Toi" a composition of Leon Ringuett, was a grand finale to the program.

Beautiful baskets of flowers and old fashioned Nosegays were presented to the young ladies during the evening.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Yes! to this thought I hold with firm persistence;
The last result of wisdom stamps it true;
He only earns his freedom and existence
Who daily conquers them anew."
—Goethe (Bayard Taylor, trans.)

Dear Friends:

In a letter to me this week, "Gerry" complains bitterly about her lack of freedom. She says in part: "Roberta, I feel hemmed in on every side. This one makes demands on me, the other requires something else from me, I owe a duty to my parents, in fact, there seems no time left over to live my own life."

And this is so true of most of us. But, and this is a big BUT, you have to learn not to be swamped by other people's claims on you and your time. Your life is your own, you have to stop and consider if this that you are doing is what you want to do, or if it is only a weak giving in, because you are too spineless to fight for your own rights.

I believe in doing my part to my relatives and friends, but I also owe a duty to myself. I believe in helping them carry their burdens, but I do not emphatically believe in them shifting the whole load onto me. They have a life to live, so have I, and the only way either of us can live it is, to shoulder our own load.

I can give them a lift with it, they can do the same to me, but and if they think only of themselves, that what concerns them is all-important, and what concerns me is trivial, I shove their load right back on them.

Long ago I told you that most of the nervous breakdowns are caused by one person carrying too much of other people's burdens, while that one goes free. We all want a certain amount of freedom, and we should not allow anyone to take it from us.

There is no argument you could bring up to excuse that sort of thing. I have heard them all, such as "you could do this so much better than I can, will you do it for me?" Or, "you are much cleverer than I at this sort of thing, so I will leave it to you." Another one is "I can never do this, will you do it for me?" Or, "I haven't time to do this, will you find time to do it?"

As if time were lying on the doorstep ready to be taken in like the milk. I will grant you that it is sort of flattering to be considered so clever in doing things. But stop for a minute. Aren't these just the things this other does not like doing? Do they ever ask you to do something you would get any pleasure from? I doubt it.

Reverse the conditions. Ask them to do something which will help you so that you will have some time to yourself and your affairs. Oh dear, how unreasonable you are. See how busy they are, how little time they have, and you come along and ask them to do this. My, My.

Or, they hedge around and tell you that "you will manage." I have heard that one so often that it simply enrages me. They apparently can't stand alone without your help, but you must stand alone, and be a leaning post for them too.

So, "Gerry" you will find that you have to fight for your freedom every day as most of us do. There will always be those who will want to take some of it from you in doing things they ought to do themselves. No one can help you but yourself, no one can stiffen your spine but you.

Anyone who knows me, knows also that I continually help others, not always with money for I haven't enough. But when they try to impose on me, my answer is. "I'm sorry, but I haven't the time." Don't be afraid, or think you are unkind, for it is often the greatest kindness to make another stand on their own two feet.

And generally while you are laboring in their behalf, they are enjoying things on your time. More later. Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

BABY'S HOT LITTLE HEAD IS A DANGER SIGNAL

WHEN your baby's head feels hot to your hand you must do something. And do it quickly. Read what Mrs. Bernard Breen, of Enterprise, does and what results she gets: "My baby's cheeks and hands were so hot I was frightened. I gave him a Baby's Own Tablet at noon and by after supper he was all better."

And Mrs. Francis Carroll, of Midland, has this to say: "My little girl was so feverish I was really alarmed. Then I thought of Baby's Own Tablets, so I gave her three every two hours and by night she was up and around."

They are sweet-tasting, easy to take, absolutely safe and harmless. Work quickly and can be given to the most delicate baby. Analyst's certificate in every box.

For upset stomach, constipation troubles and other minor ills of baby.

Your druggist is authorized to return your money if you are not satisfied with Baby's Own Tablets. Get a box today. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents.

MONCRIEF.—In loving memory of Mrs. Walter Moncrief, who passed away five years ago.

Department Men Are Busy Making Soil Survey In Peterboro County

Two surveyors are busily engaged these days, and will be until next fall, making a soil survey of all Peterborough county, the first that has ever been taken. Over every acre of land they travel, take notes, examine the soil. At the end they will prepare a map in which the knowing will be able to tell the characteristics of the soil on every farm in the county, and what crops should be grown there.

Drumlins In Countless Numbers Are Found By Soil Surveyors

Add a new word to your vocabulary, drumlin. To give the scenery about Peterborough county a new significance you really need to know that word. A drumlin is not a new kind of animal, but an old kind of hill that has been here for countless centuries.

Armour Hill is a drumlin—indeed a very good drumlin. There are hundreds of them about the country. They rise gently like a whaleback, and almost always run in the general direction of north and south. Every resident of this county has seen them, a good percentage of farmers have them in their land. Some are big, some are small, but all are easily recognizable.

Ireland gave the drumlins their name, but the significance of the term has long been lost. The Irish called them drumlins and drumlins they remain. When the same type of hills were found here, they too became drumlins. They were formed during the glacial era, by comparatively shallow ice, which, moving slowly, was too thin to scrape the soil beneath to a flat surface such as is found about London. The ice was only about three miles deep around Peterborough, geologists estimate.

Of particular interest to two surveyors from the Department of Agriculture are the drumlins. These two men, G. A. Hills and L. R. Webber, are making a soil survey of all Peterborough county. It will take them until fal lat least, so meticulous is their examination. They have already started on their work, and spend much of their time walking over farms, learning what kind of soil is to be found in each section. At the end they will prepare a map which, when read by the knowing, will give much needed information, Agricultural representatives, by a glance at it, will be able to tell farmers exactly what type of soil is to be found on their farms, in what minerals if any the soil in their particular area is deficient and what should be done about it. what crops are best suited to the land, what problems face the farmer.

New Type of Loam

They have already found and named a new type of loam, the "Otonabee". Because it was first mapped in Otonabee township, it will be called by that name wherever found in the province in future. Another type found is the "Algonquin loam," which lies in the bed of what was once Algonquin Lake.

A hundred factors have to be looked into in making the survey. Of particular interest is the brown layer that lies within a foot of the surface of the ground in the southern part of the county. It indicates a well drained soil with unchanged mineral soil material close to the surface.

In explanation of the significance of a soil survey, here is what one of the surveyors, G. A. Hills of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph has to say.

"The work of the soil surveyor is to study soils under natural conditions. He notes their formation and the processes of factors responsible for such formation. He observes the type of plant and tree growth under the various soil conditions. He classified them according to their native or inherent characteristics. He charts, on a map, the location of each soil type. Since there are many inter-related factors involved, much data has to be secured before each soil type can be fully described.

Study of "Breeds" of Soil

"Although the comparison cannot be carried too far, one might say it is a study of the "breeds" of soil. In the same way that a knowledge of the breeding of a farm animal is essential to its proper care, management, and use, the "genetic" study of the soil furnishes the basis for a sound program of soil fertility, soil management, soil utilization and conservation.

"One of the inherent characteristics of the Jersey cow is to produce milk with high butterfat content and to respond to a ration with a minimum amount of roughage. The inherent characteristic of sandy soil is to respond to a "ration" high in potash. But whether a sandy soil, or any soil, is adapted for a certain crop does not depend entirely on the surface soil. Much depends on what lies underneath the plow soil. A soil surveyor studies each successive layer of soil, beginning with the surface layer and going down to the soil material which has not been changed by weather, crops or man. Commonly this study takes him down three or four feet from the surface but occasionally much further. Much is learned from this "profile" study. For instance, whether a sandy soil should be utilized for tobacco, orchard or other agricultural crops, or should be limited to the production of forests, depends chiefly on the profile, although other inherent characteristics are considered.

"As the entire agricultural enterprise is intimately related to the nature of the soil, the inventory of soil resources provided by the soil survey forms a scientific basis, not only for a sound soil fertility program, but for all rural development."

Nerves Were So Bad Could Not Stand The Children Playing

The happiness of every home depends largely on the health of the wife and mother. If she is nervous, peevish and irritable, worried by the cares of the household, and tormented by the pains and irregularities that accompany a run down system, there can be no happiness in the home for the husband and children.

Women who are weak and run down, nervous and irritable should take a course of Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills to help restore them to the blessing of good health.

Mrs. Thomas Kirk, Neston, Alta., writes:—"I was in such a weak, run down condition before I started using Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills I could not do my housework, and would be so nervous I could hardly stand the noise of the children at their play. Now, after taking three boxes of H. & N. Pills I feel like a different person.

I shall always tell anyone not feeling well to use your medicine."

Lakefield Society Closes Good Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, June 1.—The closing meeting of the 'Teen-Age Girls' Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John the Baptist Church, Lakefield, took the form of a lawn tea and was held at the home of the president, Miss Hazel Crawford.

As this meeting marks the close of the season's activities, the girls turned in their fancy work. The articles of sewing and knit-wear were sorted over and a number of completed articles all made by the girls during the year, were made ready to send to headquarters for shipment with the next bale.

The financial report was presented and proved very satisfactory. After settlement of all accounts a balance was left in the bank sufficient to cover the group's pledge of $19.38.

Tea was then served and a pleasant social enjoyed by all.

Ottawa To Study Monday Holiday

TORONTO, June 1—(CP). — The Canadian Government will give careful consideration to Toronto's suggestion that before a date is set for observance of the King's birthday next year, the holiday be fixed for the Monday of the week in which June 9 falls, the city was assured today.

A letter from the Under-Secretary of State at Ottawa, to whom the suggestion of the Toronto Board of Control had been sent, said His Majesty had decided that his birthday in future should be officially celebrated in the United Kingdom on a Thursday early in June.

"In Canada, it was thought appropriate that the day appointed might be the day decided upon by the King as the date for the celebration in the United Kingdom," the Ottawa communication added.

Lakefield Pastor Receives Gift

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, June 1.—Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Creighton were guests of honor on Wednesday, at a re-union of Bobcaygeon Old Boys and Girls, who gathered at the home of Mrs. J. Twist, Lakefield, to express to Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Creighton, regret at their departure and to extend good wishes for their future.

Those present were Mrs. A. Northey, Mrs. J. Morrison, Mrs. T. C. Yonge, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Simpson of Lakefield, and Mr. and Mrs. McMullin and Mrs. W. G. Smith of Apsley

It was a very happy reunion of old friends and "do you remember" was heard on all sides. After refreshments were served, Mr. Simpson spoke a few words saying that just as his Bobcaygeon friends had regretted Rev. Creighton's departure from Bobcaygeon for Lakefield, thirty-one years ago, so now did they regret his departure from Lakefield. In token of their friendship and high esteem, Mrs. Northey presented Mr. Creighton with a silver relish dish. Mr. Creighton thanked all present.

Mourns Valentino

4 Jap Planes Downed Near Canton

Nippon Divisions Trapped Upon Central Front

SHANGHAI, June 1 (AP). — The Japanese air force today struck heavily at two centres vital to Chinese resistance, Hankow, provisional capital, and Canton, southern metropolis and gateway for war supplies from abroad.

Thirty planes attacked Hankow and Japanese accounts said they shot down 18 Chinese planes in dogfights over and near the city. The Hankow airfield was heavily bombed. Japanese admitted one of their own planes was missing.

It was the first big raid on Hankow since that of Emperor Hirohito's birthday, April 29, in which more than 50 Chinese and Japanese planes fought a half-hour's indecisive battle. (Each side declared the other lost heavily in the April 29 fight).

Canton, through which most of China's munitions from abroad pass, was raided for the fourth successive day, but Chinese said four of 22 attacking planes were shot down.

Hong Kong dispatches said the Japanese air forces spread its attacks over a wide area around Canton, raiding many towns in Central and Northern Kwangtung Province.

Refugees, including some foreign women and children, poured into Hong Kong for safety. Hong Kong officials estimated the colony had received 24,000 refugees since Saturday.

Many Japs Trapped.

Chinese said large numbers of Japanese were trapped in a 21-mile square segment of the 250-mile Central China front, from which the Japanese hope at a strategic moment to attempt a central offensive on Hankow, China's provisional capital.

The division commanded by Lieutenant-General Kenji Doihara, Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria," was among those encircled, the Chinese said. There seemed little chance for escape.

Far to the south, there was another 22-plane raid on Canton. A Chinese squadron, said to number 40 planes, intercepted the raiders, however, in an air battle east of the city.

Hong Kong dispatches said four Japanese ships were shot down, including one large bomber. Five of the Japanese ships broke through to reach Canton, but dropped only a

Bomb Massacre Wipes Out 400

GRANOLLERS, Spain June 1 (C. P.-Havas). — One hundred women and children who had been peacefully gathered in the fish market were among more than 400 civilians blown to bits or horribly mangled by 20 bombs which insurgent war planes dumped on this town to-day in the Spanish War's deadliest bombardment.

This afternoon more than 400 dead had been extricated from the ruins. Digging for additional victims was still in progress, although Granollers' morgue and hospitals were already overfilled with killed and injured.

No military objectives were aimed at in this insurgent bombardment. All the bombs fell in the centre of the city, in or near the City Hall and market place. The caretaker of the Granollers Cemetery, where the overflow dead from the morgue were piled, estimated five women and children had been killed for every man.

Mostly Refugees.

Granollers, 16 miles north-east of Barcelona, has 20,000 inhabitants, most of them refugees from Asturias and Andalusia. The bombardment, the first it has known, occurred at 9 a.m. Five airplanes swooped over the town, dropped their murderous loads, and disappeared so quickly that none had time to flee to air-raid shelters.

Town Hall Square and the market place where most of the bombs fell were thronged at that hour. Practically all the women and children in the fish market were killed outright or maimed by one bomb which fell directly in their midst, and then buried under the wreckage of the building, which collapsed.

New Code Teeth Said Intrusion

TORONTO, June 1—(CP).—Proposed amendments to the criminal code now going through Parliament at Ottawa, so far as they concern fines for hit-and-run drivers and revoking of licenses for drivers, called an intrusion by the Federal government into the Provincial field by W. D. Robertson of the Ontario Motor League to-day.

The League official said that if the amendments are passed, "they will supersede the Provincial regulations and these will have to be cut out of the Provincial statutes.

"We think the right to license drivers belongs entirely to the Provincial field. The Ontario Act was revised very carefully and, we think, adequately covers the field. We don't believe in having two sets of regulations."

Japs Will Pay For Bombing U.S. Property

Will Also Allow Citizens Back To Their Posts

WASHINGTON, June 2 (A.P.).—Japan agreed to-day to meet almost all demands for restitution of American property in China and for the right of unhindered return of United States citizens to their posts there.

The State Department, on the basis of telegrams from the American Consul-General at Shanghai, announced that:

The Japanese military authorities have agreed to the return of American missionaries to Nanking and have issued 10 passes for this purpose.

Britain Presses For Peace With 4 Nations

LONDON, June 2 — (AP). — Neville Chamberlain, this week starting his second year as Prime Minister, was reported to-day to have initiated fresh diplomatic activity in Spain, Czechoslovakia, Germany and France to restore and keep European peace.

The Cabinet was understood to have approved a two-fold plan:

1. To bring the Spanish government and Spanish insurgents together in a round table peace conference, a course which unconfirmed reports said Premier Mussolini of Italy already has approved.

2. Negotiation of a solution of the difficulties between the Czechoslovak government and its minority of Sudeten Germans who have the pledged "protection" of Germany.

The Government's hope of mediating the Spanish civil war, which will have been drawn out for two years July 18, was based on two factors:

1. The belief in influential quarters that many Spaniards on both sides of the conflict are sick of war and would welcome a peace parley.

2. Definite signs of progress toward obtaining withdrawal of foreign volunteers fighting in the war.

Feelers Put Out.

Soundings on a peace conference were understood already to have been made both at Burgos, seat of General Franco's insurgent government, and at Barcelona, Spanish government capital.

Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, was reported to have reviewed the question with the Spanish Ambassador, Pablo de Azcarate Y Florez, last night.

The French Foreign Minister, Georges Bonnet, was said to have discussed the same question with the Spanish Ambassador in Paris.

Some quarters said Great Britain favored as a possible basis for a peace parley the 13-point program for the Spain of the future advanced May 1 by Premier Joan Negrin of the Spanish Government.

This program included a guarantee of civil, social and religious liberty, assurance of the absolute independence of Spain from foreign powers, riddance of military forces, agrarian reforms to eliminate feudal aristocratic landowners, a guarantee of workers' rights through social legislation, and full amnesty for all Spaniards who would co-operate in reconstruction.

REGINA, June 2.—(CP)—Two women were among the 157 candidates who returned to the hustings today after pausing yesterday to file nomination papers for the Saskatchewan election.

With polling June 8, they will fight it out in 47 ridings for 50 seats in the provincial legislature. This is the way they line up: Liberals, 50; Social Credit, 41; C.C.F., 31; Conservatives, 23; Independents, four; Independent Labor, three; Labor-Progressive, two; Independent Social Credit, one; Independent Conservative, one; Union-Progressive, one. Total 157.

Each candidate posted a deposit of $100 which the provincial treasury will keep unless he gets half the votes polled by the winning man in his riding.

With four major parties in the field, it was inevitable straight fights would be few.

There will be 21 three-cornered contests, 13 with four candidates running and only 10 with two men in the field. Fighting for two member seats are nine candidates in Regina, seven in Saskatoon and six in Moose Jaw.

There are 49 ridings altogether in Saskatchewan, electing 52 members, but the far-norther constituencies of Athabaska and Cumberland do not go to the polls until July 28 with

Snake About His Leg Gets Driver Off For Wild Driving

Franco Is Sorry He Sank British Ships

LONDON, June 2 (C.P. Cable). — General Franco to-day apologized to Great Britain for the sinking of British ships in Spanish waters. He explained British shipping was not deliberately chosen for attack, and added that he had ordered an investigation into the circumstances.

And while actively protesting against attacks on British shipping, the British Government moved for peace with two objectives in view:

1—A truce in Spain, with settlement of the Spanish War. For until the Spanish question is settled the Anglo-Italian Treaty does not become effective.

2—Re-opening of direct negotiations with Germany.

Yet while these are the recognized aims of British policy, British circles frankly recognize they cannot be achieved until considerable difficulties are overcome.

Must Spare Civilians.

In regard to Spain it is felt the first step must be cessation of the air bombing of open towns with the slaughter of civilians. In Tuesday's air raid on the Catalan market town of Granolers 500 were killed and wounded, of whom it is estimated 85 per cent. were women and children. The British and French Governments made parallel protests.

One obstacle was removed to-day when Russia, receding from her previous position, agreed to the British plan for withdrawal of foreign troops from Spain on condition that "effective sea control" be enforced.

Samuel Kagan, Russian member of the non-intervention sub-committee, announced this concession, but added that "the Soviet Government must reiterate its proposal that international observers be permanently stationed in Spanish ports." (Italian and German aid reaches the Spanish insurgents by sea).

The sub-committee adjourned to meet again June 10.

Direct negotiations with Germany are unlikely to prove effective till the dispute with Czechoslovakia is settled. Difficulties also have arisen over the service of Austrian loans, Anglo-German negotiations in Berline failed to get anywhere and remain suspended til lafter the Whitsuntide holidays.

Germany maintains that Austria now is only a German province and that the German Government therefore has no responsibility for Austria's foreign indebtedness. Britain declines to accept this interpretation and demands full service of Austrian loans.

May Miss On Two Loans.

Rumors circulate that Germany, if pressed unduly, may also default on the Young and Dawes loans. Four years ago, when the possibility of a German default arose, Prime Minister Chamberlain, then Chancellor of the Exchequer, piloted a bill through the House of Commons to create a debts clearing office and provide for imports restrictions reprisals.

The main provision of the bill was

Governor Sees Beauties Of Kawarthas

Lord Tweedsmuir Is Greatly Impressed With The Scenery

The Kawartha Lakes unfolded all their startling beauty on Wednesday for Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General of Canada, on his tour in the "Bessie Butler."

Not by divine order could the weather have been improved. The sun shone brilliantly during the entire trip from Peterboro lift locks to Chemong by way of Lakes Katchewanooka, Stoney, Lovesick, and Buckhorn. There was just enough breeze to cool the air and keep away black flies and mosquitoes, at their height at this season.

Any resident of this district would have raised his chin in pride had he travelled the route with Lord Tweedsmuir and heard the pleasure and enthusiasm he expressed over the beauty of the Kawarthas. The wooded shores were in their freshest green, looking for all the world as though the trees, too, had decorated themselves for the Governor-General's visit.

At every lock along the route were crowds of spectators, waiting for a glimpse of the King's representative.

At Young's Point and at Burleigh Falls school children were waiting, waving flags on the boat's arrival, singing the National Anthem. At both places His Excellency proclaimed a school holiday. "You're going to have a holiday in honour of my visit," he told them. "Do you like that?" The children cheered him to the echo.

The largest crowd to greet him was at Chemong. When the boat docked at 6 o'clock after a 9-hour run. The dock was jammed and the Governor General was accorded an ovation.

Earlier in the day pupils at the Grove School provided the most colorful reception. Half a dozen dinghies, sails bellying, raced out to meet the Bessie Butler. At Burleigh Falls, G. K. Fraser's launch put on a dazzling burst of sped around and around the boat.. At Curve Lake hardy young Indian boys and girls were swimming at 5.30 p.m.

The trip began just south of the

Lottery Operators Sent To Jail

BOSTON, June 2 (A.P.). — Trial of two New York men for using the mails in promoting a fake Canadian lottery ended abruptly to-day when they retracted pleas of not guilty and pleaded guilty in Federal Court.

After the change in pleas, Maurice Barach of Albany was sentenced to a year and a day in a Federal Penitentiary by Judge Hugh D. McLellan, and Roy Hamlin of Glenns Falls was sentenced to six months in jail.

Judge McLellan sentenced Joseph C. Gagne of Rochester, N.Y., originally a co-defendant, who pleaded guilty yesterday, to a suspended six months' sentence and placed him on probation for a year.

The three were indicted in 1937 for using the mails to defraud and for conspiracy to use the mails in a scheme to defraud. Five Canadians named in the same indictments could not be extradited.

The British Air Ministry has taken over the municipal airport at Southampton, England.

Sixty Hit and Run Accidents For Toronto In 5 Months

Never Had So Many Before Says Police, "Seems To Be Becoming Habit"

TORONTO, June 2 (CP).—Sixty hit-and-run accidents in Toronto for the first five months of the year were reported by traffic inspector Edward Dunn today. April had most, 27, but May was not far behind with 20.

"It seems to be becoming a habit to strike down someone and run away," said the inspector, who has never had so many cases before. During 1937 four victims of hit-and-run accidents died, and prior to that year the number of such cases was negligible.

Fliers Cut Path For Jap Troops

SHANGHAI, June 2 (AP)—Warplanes of the army of Nippon spread a trail of destruction today through towns and villages about the Lunghai Railway, and Japanese said this enabled their columns to make important gains.

The Japanese announced they had occupied a corner of Kishien, 20 miles south of Lanfeng, after an hour's fight. Chinese field gun positions north of Kishien were damaged heavily.

For two weeks, the Japanese have been fighting for staunchly defended villages about Lanfeng, railway station on the Lunghai on the westward route to Chengchow, whence they hope to turn southward in a mass offensive against Hankow, China's provisional capital.

One Japanese detachment claimed occupation of Luyi, 15 miles west of Pohsien, thereby helping to straighten the 75-mile crescent-shaped front running south from Lanfeng.

Supporting the land forces on this central China front, Japanese planes concentrated on towns back from the railway right-of-way about Lanfeng, where Chinese said they still were holding firm.

Capture by Chinese of three villages north and east of Lanfeng kept Japanese from lifting the siege of the division commanded by Lieutenant General Kenji Doihara, the defenders said.

6 Cents a Mile Airline Fare in Canada

OTTAWA, June 2 (CP). — The basic passenger fare on the Trans-Canada Air Lines will be between 5½ and 6 cents a mile, Philip G. Johnson, vice-president in charge of operations, Trans-Canada Air Lines, said today to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in a question period after an address in which he outlined development of the service.

Trans-continental air service in the United States had been developed piece-meal, said Mr. Johnson. In Canada it was being sought to do it all at once and steady progress was being made. Particular care was being taken with the weather reporting service and it would be on a par with any in the world. A fleet of 15 planes will be needed to maintain schedules.

Means must be found to overcome fading of radio caused by the northern lights, he said. There were also radio communication difficulties caused by instruments used in hospitals and by doctors.

There were plans to operate feeder lines between Toronto and Buffalo and between Toronto and Windsor, Ont., said Mr. Johnson. There were some difficulties in the way in connection with the rights of Canadian commercial planes within United States borders.

In the services into the north, Canada had perhaps the largest subsidized air service in the world, said J. A. Wilson, controller of civil aviation, Department of Transport. Through these services more had been learned in the past 10 years about Canada's northland than in the preceding 300 years.

VANCOUVER, June 2.—(CP). — A resolution urging nations in the British Empire which use separate flags to adopt the Union Jack as their flag was defeated here yesterday at the annual convention of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire. Delegates felt it was a question for nations concerned to decide for themselves.

A resolution asking removal of the League of Nations committee from the list of standing committees also was defeated.

The resolution was submitted by Mrs. W. G. Lumbers of Toronto, who explained it "was not intended to disturb the National Chapter's affiliation with the League." It was defeated by a three to one vote.

Mrs. W. G. Lumbers of Toronto, was re-elected for her fourth term as president of the Order. Mrs. J. W. Detwiler of London, was chosen educational secretary.

$25,000 Warehouse Burns in Brantford

BRANTFORD, Ont., June 2—(CP)—A large truck warehouse, owned and occupied by A. Finch and Sons Transport, Brantford, was destroyed today by fire of unknown origin. Two barns were razed and four homes, the backs of which were close to the warehouse, were ignited.

The loss was estimated at about $25,000. Destroyed with the warehouse were three trucks, two cars, a motorboat and the merchandise in the warehouse and on the trucks.

When the fire department arrived they saw nothing could be done to save the warehouse and turned their efforts to extinguishing the fires in the four adjacent homes.

Hepburn Alone Is Blocking Seaway Power Plan Lyon Charges At Probe

Doubts Plan Will Be Delayed Many Years; Claims Ontario Government Not Hydro Behind Deal In 1937

TORONTO, June 2 (CP).—Premier Hepburn alone stands in the way of the St. Lawrence Waterway development as a power project, T. Stewart Lyon, former chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, said today before a legislative committee inquiring into Commisson affairs.

Mr. Lyon, who resigned the chairmanship late last year at Mr. Hepburn's request, said he doubted, however, that the St. Lawrence development by Canada and the United States would be delayed many years.

"There is only one man standing in the way of the St. Lawrence development and that man is the Prime Minister of Ontario," he said.

Mr. Lyon told the committee a 1937 power contract between the Commission and the Ottawa Valley Company was the responsibility of the Ontario government.

Recalled to the witness stand Mr. Lyon said the government, and not the commission, was responsible for the agreement which replaced a contract cancelled in 1935.

Mr. Lyon insisted he knew nothing of the terms which Dr. T. H. Hogg, then the Commission's chief engineer and now chairman, had suggested. The terms, he said, were sent by airplane to Premier Hepburn who was in Arizona on a health trip.

"You ought to be ashamed to make such a statement," declared J. H. Clark, (Lib. Windsor-Sandwich) and a member of the committee. "You and your fellow commissioners drafted the contract and recommended it to the government."

Lyon Denies It.

Mr. Lyon denied this and also a suggestion that the other commissioners, Arthur W. Roebuck and Hon. T. B. McQuesten, had outvoted him on the contract issue.

"Why tell us this was arranged behind the back of the commissioners?" demanded Mr. Clark.

"It was arranged through that letter which Dr. Hogg sent to the Prime Minister," replied the former chairman.

Mr. Lyon said Ontario paid the Ottawa Valley Company $12.30 a horsepower, including 70 cents transportation cost.

"Ottawa Valley got a preference of 70 cents, or $2,000,000 over the length of the contract, on such a small sum," he observed.

Mr. Clark thought the company was entitled to some return or preferential treatment because it had built half the power plant on the Ottawa river, the Commission building the other half.

Roebuck Has A Complaint.

Mr. Roebuck, who appeared before the committee yesterday, was recalled at his own request and criticized an accountof his testimony in Today's Toronto Globe and Mail which, he said, indicated he was taking credit for originating the St. Lawrence seaway scheme.

"I do not take credit for the conception of the joint seaways scheme," he said. "I did say that I made a suggestion about one feature of the proposal, but I certainly did not take credit for the whole plan. The suggestion offends my sense of modesty."

Discussing cancellation of power contracts with four Quebec companies in 1935, Mr. Roebuck said he had received an opinion from Louis St. Laurent, Quebec barrister, that the province of Quebec would not have authority to cut off power exports to Ontario. Such an action, the opinion declared, would

90-Mile Gale Lashes British Isles

LONDON, June 2—(CP-Havas).—The British Isles were swept today by a storm that lashed the coast and caused heavy damage in many parts of the country.

At Brighton, Eastbourne, Dover and Folkestone the wind reached a velocity of 90 miles an hour.

Many fishing vessels in the vicinity of Hastings were feared lost. Several S.O.S. signals were heard during the night.

At the race course at Epsom Downs where only yesterday 400,000 people viewed the Derby, bookmakers' stands were blown down.

Across Southern England roads were blocked by fallen trees. The railway between Chingford and Liverpool was blocked for two hours by a tree that fell squarely across the tracks.

At Southend and Plymouth last night coast guards made repeated rescues of small ships and pleasure vessels caught in the storm.

The liner Queen Mary could not enter the harbor at Cherbourg where 270 passengers waited to board her. They were lodged on tenders for the night.

Steamer Finds Wreck.

The German steamship Marie Leonhardt of Hamburg, plunging through heavy seas in the English Channel, found the drifting wreckage of the yacht Ymbrin owned by Colonel Harafin of Guernsey. One man was picked up and another was believed lost overboard.

Another yachtsman, Frank Lewis 64, of the Sussex Yacht Club, died of exposure after being rescued from his 12-ton yacht Merlin in Portsmouth harbor.

The gale was playing havoc with the telephone service. The general post office announced that in the London area alone 2,941 subscribers were without service. In North Wales 820 subscribers were cut off. Sixty-four trunk and junction lines were down and three rural exchanges were entirely isolated. Fourteen lines between Ireland and England were down.

The storm practically ruined the cricket ground at Southend where a match between Essex and Worcester is in progress. Screens, tents, marquees, were all blown away.

Along the Brighton sea front from Saldean to Hove it appeared as if the area had been raked by naval guns. Windows were blown in and small boats smashed.

No N.Z. Conscription

WELLINGTON, June 2.—CP-Reuters)—Prime Minister Michael Savage today told a deputation from the Defence League that in the event of war compulsion in New Zealand would not start with man power.

He said that in the last war men were conscripted and that while they were dying others became wealthy. That would not happen again under the Labor government, he promised.

Plan Set To Move 3,500,000 From London in 72 Hours

LONDON, June 2—(CP)— A picture of the enormous scope of the government's plans to guard civilians from danger of air raids in case of war was before the British public today.

High spot in the plans, as outlined to the House of Commons last night by spokesmen for the home office, was one where-by railways could move 3,500,000—people—almost half greater London's estimated 8,000,000—at least 50 miles from the city in 72 hours.

Other projected plans included trench and dug-out shelters in London's open spaces for 1,500,000 people. The 7,000 dock basements in Stepney area could handle many thousands more.

Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, and Geoffrey Lloyd, under-secretary discussed the plans during the debate on air raid precautions, the question being raised by a labor motion to reduce home office credits. The motion was defeated 170 to 95.

Sir Samuel said the government was considering taking care of half the cost of means designed to ensure the public utilities could carry on despite any attacks. A question under urgent consideration was the continuity of government, both local and national, in an emergency.

Storehouses for the quick distribution of gas masks were being built. Some 300,000 masks already had been distributed for training purposes but the government did not feel, Sir Samuel said, that the general public should receive them yet.

Mr. Lloyd, in outlining measures to remove millions to the country, said a plan for reception of such refugees and their disposal in rural areas had been drawn up.

Scorn For England By Italian Stirs Bennett

Ottawa, June 2 (CP)

PERSONS who came to Canada from other countries and accept Canadian citizenship should be made to realize they must conduct themselves as citizens of Canada and not of the country of their origin, Conservative Leader Bennett declared in the House of Commons last night. If this was done there would be less unrest in certain parts of the country.

He referred to an interview reported in a North Bay, Ont., paper in which Vincent Scappatura, described as an Italian who had just returned from Italy, derided Canadian political institutions and praised Italian. He had also said England had to back down in the Ethiopian dispute or Mussolini would have sunk the British fleet.

Governor Is Given Send Off By Township of Smith As He Continues Trent Trip

School Children Sing Reeve Mann Wishes Him Pleasant Sail

Sailing from the government dock at Chemong Park this morning at 9.30 o'clock, Lord Tweedsmuir bade farewell to Peterborough County as the "Bessie Butler" headed easterly down the lake on a leisurely trip that will bring him to Kirkfield this evening and Orillia Frdiay afternoon.

The municipal council of Smith township had prepared a hailing greeting in the park, having erected a big arch of evergreens, decorated with flags at the head of the short road leading to the dock. Reeve Allan B. Mann, Deputy-reeve Harry Fowler and the other members of the council were introduced to the Governor General, as was also Thomas Milburn. Reeve Mann expressed the pleasure of the people of Smith in having His Excellency in their midst, and wished him a pleasant sail through the Kawarthas.

The children of five of the township's schools, supplemented by the girls and boys of the Ennismore High School, sang a choral number as the Governor-General arrived at the end of his motor trip, and as an appreciation of their welcome he in turn declared that they should have a holiday. His Excellency thanked the children for their presence.

Among those present were Reeve James Gifford and Rev. Father Gillogly of Ennismore township. The choir was directed by William Potter of Peterborough, and George Ball was in charge of his Bridgenorth school.

The Governor General's trip today extended from Chemong, through the floating bridge gap, past the Indian reserve at Curve Lake, into Buckhorn Lake, Pigeon Lake with a lockage halt at Bobcaygeon, then on through Sturgeon Lake and the Fenelon River to Fenelon Falls, Cameron and Balsam Lakes and eventually Kirkfield.

Lord Tweedsmuir was wearing a gray tweed suit for his day's outing, and he had acquired a bright glow of sunburn from his Wednesday trip up the canal, and around to Chemong Lake.

Mileage Sought For Rural Mail Carriers

OTTAWA, June 2 (CP).—Canada's rural free delivery of mails may be reorganized under the Civil Service but it would mean heavy deficits in the Post Office Department, according to Acting Postmaster-General W. D. Euler.

A long series of recommendations from members of all parties in the House of Commons yesterday urged that mileage rates assuring adequate compensation be set up, and patronage removed from selection of carriers. From several came the suggestion rural carriers be placed on the same basis as city postmen.

Trade Minister Euler, acting in the place of Postmaster-General Elliott who has been ill for several weeks, succeeded in getting all the Post Office estimates through without the long wrangle which customarily arises over these votes.

Mr. Euler told the House the government would carefully consider the recommendations on behalf of the rural carriers but that branch of the service had always been a losing proposition and the schemes proposed would involve large deficits.

Mostly Own Fault

It was the general feeling of those who spoke in the debate that rural carriers were underpaid, but the fault was to a great extent their own. Many bidders, in their desperate anxiety to get the contracts, set the price so low that they could not expect to more than pay expenses.

Main debate came on the item of $8,052,000 for land and air mail carriage, an increase of $950,000 over the previous year.

Some deficits were expected in the early operation of the Trans-Canada Air Lines which would have mail contracts but the Minister said the government did not expect any loss on this venture once it was well launched.

Mail is to be carried on the trans-Canada route at a rate of 60 cents a mile, regardless of the quantity carried. During the fiscal year 1937-38 air mail flown in Canada amounted to 1,260,909 pounds.

No Ocean Service This Year.

There was no probability of Atlantic air mail services being inaugurated this summer, the Minister said, and he knew of no negotiations for a trans-Pacific service so far as

Thousands Comb Swamps For Kidnapped Boy

Legionnaires Join Armed Florida Posses, Federals Mum On Several Arrests

PRINCETON, Fla, June 2 (AP).—Federal agents called upon reinforced posses today to help solve the kidnapping of James Bailey Cash, Jr., although there was no development upon which to base even a hope the five-year-old boy was alive.

The federal men centred efforts on tracking down the abductors, who accepted a $10,000 ransom payment without returning the victim.

In their custody were several persons—no outsider knew exactly how many—and a number of finds regarded as clues. But if the United States government's "kidnap squad" already knew who took young Cash from his bedroom last Saturday night it was a closely-guarded secret.

Sam Bennett of Fort Pierce, district American Legion commander, announced 1,000 legionnaires would join the hunt, augmenting the hundreds of armed men who yesterday beat over palmetto groves and truck lands.

An indication of what the federal bureau of investigation men think of the searchers might find was contained in final instructions of E. J. Connelly, head of the justice department forces, to the posses.

Fear Lad Dead.

"We must face the strong possibility this little boy will be found dead," Connelly told the posse leaders. "If you see signs of freshly-disturbed dirt—dig. Take your time and dig deeply. Look well in every canal you pass, and in every clump of bushes. Overlook nothing."

One of those question in F. B I. headquarters at Miami yesterday was M. F. Braxton, unemployed carpenter and a Princeton neighbor of the Cash family. He was taken into custody yesterday after the agents conferred with the sorrowing father and mother.

There was no confirmation or denial of reports that others taken to Miami were a relative of Braxton, a truck driver, a soft drink stand operator, a fisherman, and a man wanted at Homestead for automobile robbery. The Miami Herald said the operator of a Miami night spot was questioned also.

Dr. MacOdrum Chosen As Moderator

TORONTO, June 2—(CP).—Commissioners to the 64th annual assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada opened business sessions in Calvin Church here to-day under the chairmanship of their newly-elected Moderator, Dr. Donald MacOdrum. The Brockville minister was elected on the second ballot in a contest with Dr. Stuart C. Parker of Toronto last night.

Traditional wit and oratory marked proceedings in the crowded church as five names were put before the assembly for the church's highest office. Dr. MacOdrum's election followed a stirring tribute to the Cape Brenton born veteran churchman by Rev. Samuel Farley of Regina. Mr. Farley had been one of those nominated, but he withdrew in favor of the man under whom he first served in Canada.

Rev. William MacKay, Superintended of Home Missions in Northern Ontario and Manitoba, also withdrew before balloting began, and Rev. Peter Reith, Tara, Ont., was eliminated on the first ballot.

Election of Dr. MacOdrum as successor to Dr. Hugh Munroe of New Glasgow, N.S., was virtually the only business item of the opening sederunt following the retiring Moderator's sermon.

Revival Needed.

Organization and respectability will not of themselves save the church from loss of worshippers, Dr. Munroe warned in his sermon. He urged recognition of the church's need for revival.

Touching briefly on his experiences across Canada, the retiring moderator expressed particularly warm thanks for the kindness and hospitality he had received from natives of the Maritimes in all parts of the Dominion.

Some discussion arose at the start of voting as to whether it should be by signed ballots, Dr. S. Banks Nelson of Hamilton insisted that voters should be verified by a check of the Assembly roll, but the Assembly voted to elect by unsigned ballots.

Nominating Mr. Mackay for moderator, Rev. E. J. Kerr, New Liskeard, paid warm tribute to the missionary work of the superintendent, particularly in the new areas Northern Ontario. He cited the fact that Mr. Mackay had recently opened up the Kirkland Lake field and referred briefly to the rapid growth of the church in the mining districts. Mr. Mackay has been superintendent of Home Missions for the last 12 years.

All Saints' Juniors Defeat St. John's

All Saints' Juniors beat St. John's 16-8, on Wednesday night at Central in the first of the 1938 Junior Church Softball League five-game playoffs. Next one will be on Monday at King Edward. St. John's were shy several of their best players and played erratic ball in the field the first half of the fixture. All Saints collected seven runs in the first period and led all the way. Bus McDougall twirled in good style for the winners, outside of the third when the Saints combed him for six markers. He had much better backing than his rival, Royal Clark. Hill led All Saints' in hitting and Marshall of the losers cleaned the sacks with a timely triple in the third. Forsythe pulled off three neat grabs in the garden. The teams:

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, June 2—(CP)—Winnipeg July could not hold all of its early five-cent advance to-day which had pushed a three-day rally to 13¾ cents. It made a strong comeback at the close despite bearish United States record-breaking crop estimates, to finish 4⅝ cents up at 1.01¾. October ⅞ to 1¼ higher at 77¼ to ⅝. December closed 75¼b.

July forged above the dollar-mark to-day and virtually wiped out losses in recent sessions that carried it down to 88⅝ cents.

Dealings were spasmodic to-day but one large Southern interest continued to buy Winnipeg July and orders from this source were largely responsible for the five-cent limitable advance at opening of trading.

Hepburn Alone

constitute an interference with property and civil rights which was beyond the province's jurisdiction.

"Wasn't the possibility of a ban on power exports one of the bugaboos in the original Quebec contracts?" asked Leopold Macaulay, Conservative House leader.

"Yes, and it still is," replied Mr. Roebuck. "A person may have no right to do a thing and yet do it anyway."

Ample Provision for Power.

Mr. Roebuck described steps leading to cancellation of the Quebec contracts in 1935. He said there was "ample" provision for power in the event the Quebec supply was cut off.

"The Hydro Commission as such did not recommend the cancellation as was suggested by Mr. Lyon," he said. "I have been credited with introducing the cancellation bill, but I did not. I merely laid the facts before the legislature, but that is all I did."

In reply to a question by Attorney-general Gordon Conant, Mr. Roebuck said the cabinet was aware of the line he would take in his famous nine-hour speech on the Hydro commission at the 1935 session of the legislature, but he did not present the facts in advance to the cabinet.

Decision to draw up the cancellation bill was reached following the speech and was introduced by Mr. Hepburn.

"It has been said that you committed the government to cancellation in the absence of Mr. Hepburn," Mr. Macaulay said.

"That is all poppycock," asserted the former attorney-general.

Merely Stated Facts.

"The facts may have compelled the decision of the government, but I did not make the facts," he added. "All I did was state them. I don't shirk my responsibility for that."

The legislation was not proclaimed at once because "we thought we might come to some reasonable arrangement" with the Quebec companies. Later, at a conference with representatives of the companies, it was found they could not revise the contracts without permission of the bondholders.

When the contracts were revised for 10-year periods, Mr. Roebuck said he was confident that within 10 years the commission could work out a plan for developing power resources.

Referring to the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company's court action against the Hydro Commission which was successful in Canadian courts, Mr. Roebuck said he expected to win before the Privy Council.

Reasons in Judges' Opinions.

"If you want my reasons," he said, "you have only to read the opinions of the dissenting Judges of the Court of Appeal and the utterly ridiculous construction placed on the clause forbidding companies to appeal without consent of the Attorney-General."

The Government had "courage enough" to go to the Privy Council, he said, adding:

"But within our ranks there are always the nervous and the fearful. Those of us who wish to go ahead may be distracted by the weaklings and by those who for ulterior motives may appear to be with us, while really they are not."

When the Canadian Niagara Company sought Commission approval to build a weir, Mr. Roebuck said he favored expropriation, but that his view was opposed by the Premier.

He himself had been "brought into line" to agree to construction of the weir. He said the Premier had promised to obtain from Premier Duplessis of Quebec a development on the Upper Ottawa River at De Joachim that would have created additional horse-power at $6.00.

Anniversary Is Observed By Men's Class

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, June 2.—Inspirational sermons, provoking thought, and deeply spiritual in character; large congregations drawn from the entire countryside and from neighboring towns as well; special music that emphasized the Gospel message, and an atmosphere of peculiar interest and harmony were outstanding characteristics of the thirtieth anniversary of the Men's Bible Class of St. Andrew's Church, observed on Sunday, May 29, with two services, at 2.30 and 7.30 p.m.

The guest speaker for the day was Rev. Gordon A. Sisco, M.A., D.D., formerly of Port Hope, and now general secretary of the United Church of Canada, who was introduced by the pastor of the church, Rev. A. L. Sisco, his cousin. J. H. Might, president of the Men's Bible Class, expressed a welcome, on behalf of that organization, to the large number gathered for the services, stating also that the enrollment is now forty, and the average attendance twenty-five; in its thirty years of history, the class has had but three teachers, the late Miss Agnes Hampton, and her sister, Mrs. L. H. Rea, the latter resigning last fall owing to ill health, when F. L. Edworthy, formerly of Toronto, took over the position.

Garden Hill Quartette.

The altar was banked with early summer blossoms, and the special music provided by the Garden Hill quartette, Wesley Hanna, Mark Gardiner, Stuart Gray and Lawrence Dunbar. Outstanding in their selections were "Hark, Hark My Soul," and "The Wayside Cross"; Miss Helen Gray was the accompanist. At the evening service the young people's choir sang one number, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say."

There are ten charter members of the class, eight of whom are still enrolled, and these acted as ushers afternoon and evening: Irwin Hatherly, Fred McMahon, H. C. Argue, J. L. Byam, L. W. Smith, G. E. Burnham, W. G. Rowland, and W. A. O'Brien; two are non-residents, F. W. Burnham and George McKim, of Peterborough.

Go The Second Mile.

The Divine call to go "the second mile" was the underlying thought of the message brought by Dr. Sisco at the afternoon service, his text being from Luke 24: 28-29, with special emphasis upon the words, "Jesus made as though He would have gone further." That the disquieting problems of the world in this day of unrest will never be settled, and all the tangled situations straightened out, until nations and individuals are willing to follow the example of the Master, and go further than the spirit of bargaining on a basis of equal demand, and embody the law of love in their treaties and conferences, was the message the speaker brought with convincing illustration and detail.

In the evening the Sons of England lodges of the district, including St. Ives' of Millbrook, headed by the Millbrook Community Band under Lieutenant Peryer, paraded to St. Andrew's Church from the lodge hall, between ninety and one hundred being in attendance. They occupied the centre front pews and were cordially welcomed by the pastor and the class president, Mr. Might.

Conference President

GALT, Ont., June 2—(CP).—Rev. W. S. Daniels, of Jerseyville, for 22 years a minister in Hamilton Presbytery, was elected as 14th president of the Hamilton Conference of the United Church at the first general business session of the Conference held today. Mr. Daniels was elected on the second ballot. He received most votes on the first ballot, but not a majority of all votes cast. Rev. D. H. Gallagher of Oakville was runner-up, and Rev. Henry Cotton of Fort Erie, was in third place. Rev. J. W. Currie of Ayr and Rev. Finlay Matheson of Burlington were also nominated but withdrew.

New Czech Shooting Rouses Germans

BERLIN, June 2—(AP). — The German press renewed its angry outbursts against Czechoslovakia today as a result of a shooting affray last night at Eger in which a Czechoslovak arm sergeant clashed with Sudeten Germans, two of whom were wounded.

The Praha version of the affair was that the sergeant, Wenzel Toman, became involved in a row in a cafe with about 35 followers of Konrad Henline, Nazi leader of Czechoslovakia's Germanic minority. In self-defence Toman fired two pistol shots at the floor anl two persons near him were wounded in the legs. Toman was arrested.

The affair brought Berin newspaper references to an "intolerable situation" and accusations that the Czechs were systematically baiting the Sudeten Germans.

The German version of the clash at Eger, just across the German-Czech border in Czechoslovakia, is that when the cafe band played a local favorite, the Egerlander March, Toman struck the instrument from a violinist's hands.

(Eger already was a centre of friction between Czechoslovaks and Sudeten Germans. It was near there that two Sudeten Germans were killed by Czechoslovak state police May 21 when they failed to halt at a police post. Their funeral at Eger, May 25, was made the occasion of a great Nazi demonstration, with Henlein delivering an oration).

No Person Missed Him

The body of an unidentified man was found in a bush near Guelph and police are certain he was murdered. Doctors agree that the man was probably killed there several months ago. As is usual in such cases the Coroner desires to hold an inquest, but admittedly that is difficult because there is so little on which to work.

We have noticed several references to somewhat similar cases, although in the others there has not often been much to indicate foul play. But there has been this similarity—no person seems to know who the dead man was.

There have been no reports of a person being missed from home; nothing to indicate that relatives and others were carrying on a search, and the reason is that we have a number of people wandering about the country today who have no homes. So when they disappear there is none to raise the alarm; there is no one to report them as missing and ask that a search be started. When they become so sick they can go no farther they just lie down and die.

A short time ago they were probably numbered with those whom we call transients, and a transient in life becomes an unknown in death.

How Long Will It Last

It seems hard for some people to keep out of the news columns of the papers, and those who received $100,000 from the Millar estate in Toronto are no exception.

Latest report coming in today is that one of the families left Toronto quite early in the morning riding in a new and shiny car, and some of the neighbors said they would probably stay out of the city until the excitement had died down.

If people become possessed of $100,000 who previously had been on relief we doubt if it is the business of any other individual whether they buy a car or whether they refuse to buy a car.

But there is a streak of question-asking in the average person which might prompt him to wonder how long the $100,000 is going to last. We believe the law of averages will rule that those who have been poor and who come into possession of large amounts of money seldom know what to do with it. The reason is they have had no previous training. One might argue that being hard up is in itself good training, but that does not prove to be the case. It is usually found that being hard up is a form of discipline which is inflicted upon the individual and his habits, and when he passes from the stage of being hard up the enforced discipline goes with it.

Impressive Totals

Rev. Dr. George Little spoke to a W. C. T. U. convention in Kingston and stated among other things that during 47 months of beverage rooms in Ontario 2,000 women have been arrested for drunkenness, and approximately 200,000 women have become habitual public drinkers.

The number of women arrested would of course be a matter of record and such information would be correct. The figure about the number of habitual drinkers among women would be more difficult to establish, but one can allow considerable shrinkage and still have a large total.

If we look upon the equality of sexes in this country as being recognized and established then one might argue that women have as much right as men to go to beverage rooms. But beyond that is the stubborn fact that a great many of our people do not want to think of their wives, mothers, daughters or sisters going to these places.

We dare say there is many an adult man today who is thankful enough that his mother was satisfied with a cup of tea during the afternoon or evening. Such a memory is one he likes to cherish.

Many Want To Move

London Conference of the United Church is in session at Chatham, and reports released before the opening of the sessions indicated the work of the Settlement Committee was going to be heavier than usual. The number of exchanges of pulpits to be arranged generally numbers fifteen to twenty-five, but this year it is believed that as high as seventy-five will have to be arranged before the committee is through.

The report from Chatham says a number of churches have already agreed to changes, and this method is not considsidered satisfactory to some of the younger men or those in the smaller churches. The claim is that it shuts them out from advancement.

Many of the ministers are reported as being dissatisfied and for that reason are anxious to be moved from their present field. They believe if they were placed elsewhere they would find things more favorable. Judging by the reports from Chatham no person appears to have adequate explanation for the general movement from place to place for which the ministers themselves are expressing a desire. There is little said about the old feeling which used to find expression in the claim "My work here is not yet finished." Nor can all these ministers be desiring to have better churches than those which they are now serving. If that were their desire they would know at the outstart there would not be enough of what one might call better or larger churches to accommodate all those who desire to change their field of work.

Right there the London Conference might well find something worth studying. Is this multiplied desire for a change of location a reflection of the unrest of this generation? Has it anything to do with the people who sit in the pews? Does it indicate that the ministers themselves feel defeated in their present locations? It does look like one of those situations where plain speaking and kindly counsel might have opportunity to deal helpfully with a situation which on the face of it does not indicate the presence of an atmosphere where the best work can be done.

Jim Curran's Wolf Hound

J. W. Curran writes in his Sault Ste. Marie Star about a wolf hunt in Algoma. We gather the word "hunt" is rightly used. They use a number of dogs called wolf hounds; there is considerable artillery brought into action; the hunters ride to the place of battle in cars and they also carry flash lights lest they strike their feet upon obstacles in the hours of dark. At various places residents of the district keep open house and provide what Jim Curran insists are "punkin" pies. At the end of the report there is no box score given so we must conclude that the hunt was in vain although a good time was had by all.

Not often does Jim Curran say much about himself in his writings. But this time he could not contain himself; he simply had to say a word or two or three for his hound dog. It is named "Black Hawk," which is rather an awkward sort of handle if one wished to call out suddenly and give an order to the hound. Jim admits he owns only "the front half of the dog," and that sort of ownership may account for the dog having two names. Jim may call the front part "Black" and the owner of the other section of the hound may call it "Hawk." A dog elsewhere might grow confused by such attention but a wolf hound in Algoma would probably never notice the difference.

Jim Curran does not go into particulars regarding the ownership. Merely that he owns the front half of the dog. Ownership of that section would include the head on which we take it the ears of such an animal are located, so when Jim spoke the animal would move his way no matter what the owner of the other half might wish it to do. Looks as though the Algoma editor would have to feed the dog, and in doing so the nourishment—if the dog ever receives any—would go all through the system of the animal including the section which Jim admits he does not own.

Considering all things it would seem that ownership of the front half of the dog would be like owning the preferred stock in a company, for where the front half of the dog goes surely the rest of the animal cannot be far behind. This doubly-owned hound went out and hunted all night for a wolf and when one came near he ran in the other direction. If the wolf caught up with the retreating dog and gave it a good nip that would not concern Jim Curran a great deal because it would be the other fellow's part of the dog which would be injured. Our own idea is that Jim ought to own a dog of his own; there may be complications if the joint owner wants to leave town and take his share of the dog along with him.

Washing on the Side Porch

In a farm magazine we noticed a letter telling of some changes which one lady had made in her kitchen arrangements. She put it this way:

"When we decided to have running water in the house I arranged to have a pipe with a tap on the end go through the wall to the side porch where the men always did their washing in the summer time when they came in from work. It is so fixed we can shut it off for cold weather, but it serves a good purpose as they can wash there and get the most of the dirt off in the cold water and it saves a lot of confusion in the kitchen just at meal times."

Never was there anything like that on the Tenth Concession. There was the tin wash dish on the side porch and there was the roller towel out there too and there was a big rain barrel at the corner of the back shed. When there was a dry spell it was necessary to go around to the pump and bring the water, which was not so good. Also there was on the side porch one of those heel and sole scrapers for boots. There was almost everything out there except a tooth brush and a comb.

The lady who wrote about her improved method said something about the men being able to get most of the dirt off by using the cold water at the side porch. There were days when that used to hold good on Lot Four Concession Ten, and that was particularly on the day of threshing. We do not know whether threshing produces more or less dust today than it used to; we doubt whether it could possibly produce any more. And that refers particularly to the years when the sow thistle may have been bad or when the wind was not blowing at all on threshing day.

When the whistle blew for noon on that day there was a prompt knocking off from work. The last ones down would be off the stack because stacks were always outside then and there were no blowers — just the old straw carrier. There was dust and dirt behind the ears and in front of the ears and inside of the ears. There was more of it down the neck; it was outside the nose and also inside. Such a day was hard on the rain-barrel. The tin dish was not in itself sufficient to cope with the crowd at the rush hour, so from the bedroom above came one of those generous old basins the filling of which several times was apt to bring about a water famine. Also there were always two or possibly three roller towels on duty that day and they stood up under the treatment as best they could. Their effort as we recall it was rather noble.

But at best it was something like the lady wrote about in the farm paper; they could only get most of the dirt off. None could possibly pass muster as being well cleansed although an inspection of the roller towels offered mute but convincing evidence that great efforts had been made and considerable progress accomplished. Having the water run out of a tap instead of dipping it from the rain barrel is a form of advancement to which one must pay tribute, but apart from that washing on the side porch must be much the same today as it was on the Tenth Concession.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Whatever else the Millar will did, it has at least served to keep the lawyers and the courts busy.

If you have tears, prepare to shed them now. Western Ontario has planted 2,654 acres of onions this spring.

The old school tie idea is being discarded by some English schools. In this country many of us did not wear ties in our early years at school.

Hecklers at political meetings may be jailed under a proposed new law. The trouble seems to be that the modern politician cannot take it.

More harm is done to the heart by running for a street car than in any other way, according to an American doctor. That is a hazard Peterborough folk do not need to worry over.

The Hepburn government is having trouble giving Chorley Park away. It is so seldom a government gives anything away that the move may easily be misunderstood.

In less than four years Ontario is said to have spent a quarter of a billion dollars on alcoholic beverages. That is rather lively buying for a period that cannot be described as a boon era.

Teacher of lip-reading says there is music in the word Toronto. The trouble is that the way it is pronounced even by Queen City residents manages to kill most of the beauty.

Changes are to be made in the King cabinet before the next election. There is always the chance, too, that the voters may do a little changing on their own account.

Expert in New York says the women of the future will have only four toes. The little toe is going to be pressed out of existence by tight-fitting shoes.. And like a good many other things it is the little fellow that has to take the most punishment.

Mr. Bennett's complaint about a naturalized Canadian who has been deriding Canadian institutions will be applauded everywhere. If this country is good enough to be worth applying for citizenship in, it is good enough to be spared that kind of talk.

SMART

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Wee Angus gets annoyed some days, it's written on him sixteen ways, and it is plain to see; he sort of scowls across the head, right to the time he goes to bed, he hardly speaks to me.

¶ I asked Wee Angus how it came, he didn't always feel the same, how he had lost his grin; was he in trouble at the school, or had he busted any rule, so they were after him?

¶ He said that one boy in the class, who never failed to get a pass, he is the teacher's pet; and everything he did was right, she always praised him out of sight, he was her choicest bet.

¶ And when he gets a sum done wrong, on adding Angus ain't too strong, that's when the thing will start; she gives this other boy the sum, and always when he gets it done, she says he's awful smart.

¶ And then when anyone's kept in, the teacher starts again on him, and says how he will pass; he hears it seven times a day, so much the sound has come to stay, the boy who heads the class.

¶ I tried to cheer Wee Angus then, told how he's wrong and where and when, but still he nursed his woes; he said the boys around the school, would like to bust each known rule—and punch him in the nose.

Do We Follow Britain In War?

(From Parliamentary Reports)

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I have never tried to put any bar upon discussion of any question in this house. I have repeatedly said I hoped that the tone of discussion would be such that it would not embarrass very critical situations in other parts of the world. That is the extent to which I have tried to direct discussion. I have no objection, if my hon. friend thinks it best to criticize British policy, present or past, for him to do so; but so far as I am personally concerned, and speaking for the government, I feel that in the light of the knowledge we all have of the situation as it is in Europe to-day, we cannot be too careful of the manner in which we express our criticisms.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I quite agree with the Prime Minister in that statement.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: That is all I suggest.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Well, if that is all, then we agree; but I certainly thought the Prime Minister meant something more than that. In this connection I think he meant more than that. I am quite sure that what is in the back of his mind is more than that.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I am not reflecting on the Prime Minister, and hon. members need not take me up in that way. My point is that the Prime Minister is constantly taking the position that we, a comparatively small nation, must take a back seat with regard to the affairs of the empire and in the league at Geneva.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: No; my hon. friend is quite wrong; I will tell him what is in the back of my mind. What is in the back of my mind is what I read in the despatches I receive from day to day, sometimes many in a day, all of which emphasize over and over again the extraordinary and exceptionally critical nature of the European situation. That is what is in the back of my mind when I suggest to hon. members to be very guarded in what they say, lest the word spoken here may carry a very different or unfortunate interpretation in other parts of the world.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I quite appreciate the position taken by the Prime Minister in that regard, but I should like to emphasize what is in the back of my mind.

An hon. MEMBER: There is nothing.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Well, there may be nothing, though in that case it would be hard to express it. I do urge that if the leader of the opposition is correct—and I think he is—that if Great Britain is at war Canada is automatically at war, whether or not we participate actively, then we ought, as a more or less autonomous nation and having in our population an intelligent people—

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): Not more or less, but autonomous.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Autonomous, if you like, and with a population of intelligent people. Under these circumstances we ought to be able to discuss these affairs that concern the welfare of the empire and have some part in them, at least so long as we remain a part of the empire. I do not think we can be both in and out of it; that is what I want to emphasize to-night. But as matters stand we do not quite know where we are.

Consider the statement made by the Minister of National Defence (Mr. Mackenzie). The Globe and Mail's summary of his speech was, "Canada must stand with Britain." I ask him, Is that a fair summary of his speech? He was speaking not for himself but for the government. It is a catchy slogan. But one might ask, Which Britain must Canada stand with—the Britain of Chamberlain, the Britain of Eden or the Britain of the Labour party? They represent three very different types of thought in Great Britain to-day. "Canada stands with Great Britain." Has Canada no opinion of her own? We ought to know that. Otherwise it is a case, as in the last war, of "Ready aye, ready." Is that the position at which we have arrived? Has the Liberal government taken that stand? If it has not, I would like the Liberal government to say so.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): My hon. friend is wrong in his history. "Ready, aye, ready" arose in 1923, in connection with the Chanak accident.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I believe that is correct.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): And the government of the day was not "Ready, aye, ready."

DEPENDS ON THE DOG.

(London Times)

THE HEADMASTER of Harrow School, Mr. P. C. Vellacott, and two assistant masters, the Rev. E. M. Venables and Mr. L. W. Henry, were among 50 dog owners summoned at Wealdstone for keeping dogs without licenses.

Mr. Venables wrote to the Court saying "I possess no dog at all. The dog in this case I gave to my wife. I hardly notice its existence in my busy life, as it is too docile to bark and too large to trip me up. If in the future no reminders about dog licenses are to be sent out, then cannot the authorities arrange to have dogs taught to bark continuously on January 1 as a reminder of their unlicensed existence?"

Mr. William Blackwood, J.P., of Lyon road, Harrow, who was also summoned, said that he had possessed besides his present dog, its father, grandfather, and great-grandfather over a period of 26 years. "I am having my dog trained to get his own license in the future", he said.

Fines of 7s 6d were imposed in each case.

GAG OF CUT-UPS

(Neal O'Hara in New York Post)

A favorite gag of the Broadway cut-ups is to bribe a waiter to insert a phony pearl from a 25-cent tie-pin in a fellow diner's raw oysters and then getting a load of the result when he bites into it. They all fall for it and think they've discovered a $1,000 [illegible]

WAKE UP ERNEST!

• Mr. Hepburn Makes Two Speeches

(Ottawa Journal)

THE WINNIPEG Tribune notes with interest the statement the other day by Premier Hepburn, in discussing the economic outlook in this province, that "a good western wheat crop, with its consequent increase in purchasing power and its spurring of industrial activity in Ontario, might alleviate the situation." The Tribune contrasts this with his recent representations to the Rowell Commission "in which", to quote that paper, "he regarded Western Canada very much as a stepfather might regard a bawling brat".

Mr. Hepburn's second thought is sounder than his first. No one needs to argue that East and West are dependent upon one another. The older provinces, highly industrialized, must have a market for the goods they produce—and one-sixth of the Canadian market is concentrated in the Prairie Provinces. It is quite clear, therefore, that a prosperous West means a greater demand upon Eastern manufacturers for motor cars, tractors, agricultural implements, clothing, canned goods, radio receivers and a thousand other things made in Ontario and Quebec; means a greater call on the railways and the lake carriers; means an increase in employment in Eastern Canada, higher dividends for the shareholders in Eastern factories. The repercussions of a prosperous West are endless, reach into every corner of the country; and similarly the repercussions of a West with its purchasing power drastically cut by regional and prolonged crop failures.

It is quite impossible, of course, exactly to measure what the West has done for the East, what Eastern Canada has done for the West. Nor is it necessary or desirable that such a balance should be made. What matters is that the members of this national family should work together in harmony, should recognize the strength that is in unity.

• Do We Understand the Question?

(Timmins Daily Press)

AFTER THE WAR, Canadians were in no mind to be drawn into another war through the medium of Imperial adventures.

There was the incident at Chanak that defined this sentiment very strongly, even though some of the more zealous patriots did wire Britain assurances of aid should she have any trouble with Johnny Turk.

Larger Canada threw its full weight to the League of Nations and dwelt in the pleasant illusion that crumbling structure seemed to shed.

Shreds of that illusion still remained a year ago when Chamberlain took office as Premier of Great Britain and Canadians blew hot and cold as the foreign policy of Gt. Britain seemed to wobble on rather aimlessly through the accumulating wreckage of collective security, the integrity of treaties and of the hopes that the totalitarian states were just playing a bluffing game all in a spirit of good clean fun.

But in that short year the last shreds of any illusion have been torn away and when Britain's re-armament policy was still further enlarged and Chamberlain's firmness was more to the front, even though he left the door of compromise open, Canada began to realize some of the complications Britain was facing and the implications that the aims of the dictator countries brought to the Dominion's very doorstep.

There were those perhaps who thought that Premier King in his pronouncement on Canada's foreign policy might still continue to doze on the shady side of the ruined structure of the League of Nations and perhaps run around the mulberry bush feebly waving the Statute of Westminster but while his speech was not even faintly bellicose, still it left no doubt but that the Premier had to regretfully admit that if the Empire was at war, Canada was at war.

He maintained, as he has maintained all along that parliament must decide and with that principle there can certainly be no quarrel.

• He Wanted To Be Put In Jail

(Chatham News)

IT IS GRATIFYING to learn that everything is being done by the Chatham Post of the Canadian Legion to secure financial assistance for Hanlon Wright, 56 year old war veteran who, destitute and hungry, committed a petty theft in order to be sent to the county jail. The man is under sentence of three months because he removed a pair of shoes from a verandah of a farm home, and then told the police about it.

It cannot be denied that many men who served during the great war 20 years ago, because of the rigors of trench life and other experiences, have found themselves prematurely aged. Discharged after the war, presumably, as physically fit, some of these men are now showing signs of having "burned out," and are finding themselves at a great disadvantage because of their inability to give a good day's work in return for pay, even when they secure jobs.

Hanlon Wright, the man now in the county jail, is apparently one of this type. He had difficulty in holding a job. He is unfortunate in having no fixed address, so that none of the municipalities, evidently, considered him its special charge so that he could be admitted to the House of Refuge. It was a spirit of sympathy for the man in his predicament which prompted Magistrate Arnold to sentence him to three months in jail, rather than as a punishment for the theft, although the court made it clear he did not condone the offence.

The Canadian Legion here lost no time in getting to work when Wright's circumstances were publicized. They immediately sought to have this old soldier brought under the scope of the amendments to the War Veterans' Allowance Act recently passed by the government on the urgings of the Legion. They now have assurance from the Legion bureaux at Windsor and Ottawa that his case will receive special attention.

The Chatham Legion is to be commended on its prompt action in this case, and when they have secured an adequate financial allowance for this man in jail, it is to be hoped that their efforts to have his sentence commuted will receive sympathetic consideration from the proper authorities.

COFFIN WAS SEALED.

(New York Post)

LAST WEEK Jakob Ehrlich, vice-president of the Jewish community in Vienna, died in the Nazi concentration camp at Dachau. A cable from Vienna on May 23 reported that his body had been returned for burial in the Jewish cemetery in the former Austrian capital. One sentence in the cable held attention: "The coffin sealed on leaving Dachau, was not opened before the burial."

Readers will recall that it has been the practice of concentration camp authorities in the Third Reich to seal coffins whenever a view of the body would have revealed unusual brutality to their victim.

FLOATING HOLIDAYS.

(Financial Post)

PARLIAMENT should tackle this question of "floating" holidays at its present session.

There are several such occasions which need overhauling and three that can be changed without doing violence to religion, sentiment or important tradition. They are Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Remembrance Day.

Except when they fall on Monday they are of minor value to the public and a major annoyance to most lines of business. If made to fall on Monday each year they would provide a healthy, worthwhile holiday and stimulate rather than upset trade.

A TRADITION AND A HABIT

(London Free Press)

Birth and wealth in Great Britain are harnessed to public service as in no other country. For centuries the Cecils, the Cavendishes, the Stanleys and innumerable other old families have contributed to the public life of the country. Duty has became a tradition and a habit.

ODD ACCIDENT.

(Brandon Sun)

SOMETIMES humane people suffer for their attempts at kindly deeds. In Australia, when he heard a frog croaking in distress on the roof of his house at Indooroopilly, on the outskirts of Brisbane, William Grosskopf, 58, climbed up to investigate and saw a green snake about 3 feet long in the gutter. The snake was preparing to make a meal of the frog. Obtaining a ladder and a stick, Grosskopf climbed back up to the roof to kill the snake. The snake attacked him and, stepping back to avoid it, he fell from the ladder across a fence and fractured several ribs. Neighbors killed the snake. The frog had "hopped it".

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

IN THE beginning God created the heaven and the earth.—Gen. i, 1.

◇ ◇ ◇

Bless the Lord, O soul. O Lord my God, thou art very great; thou art clothed with honour and majesty.

Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment: who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain:

Who layest the beams of his chambers in the waters: who maketh the clouds his chariot: who walketh upon the wings of the wind. . . .

Who laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed for ever. . . .

O Lord, how manifold are thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches. . . .

Thou sendest forth they spirit, they are created: and thou renewest the face of the earth.

The glory of the Lord shall endure for ever: the Lord shall rejoice in his works. . . .

I will sing unto the Lord as long as I live: I will sing praise to my God while I have my being.—Ps. civ, 1-3, 5, 24, 30, 31, 33.

To The Editor

FRANCE AND SPAIN

Editor Examiner:

Sir: For hundreds of years Spain has been the cause of European wars. Spain began that era as the home of the Inquisition and the property of the Emperor of Austria. France tried to beat Austria to it but the great Duke of Marlborough defeated France in four terrific battles and thus kept France from appropriating Spain. Religion now however has nothing to do with the question. It has been wiped out of Spain and the Spanish question. But the old desire of France to get Spain is again to the fore, for other reasons—and that is the real secret of the Anglo-Italian agreement lately made.

Clydesdale Breeders Hold Successful Field Day

A parade of twenty-five Clydesdale horses at the Exhibition Park Wednesday afternoon accentuated the success of the annual field day arranged by breeders from Ontario, Durham and Peterborough counties. The event was greatly promoted by splendid weather, bringing out a crowd of nearly three hundred men and nearl ya score of women, most of them remaining to the end of the program that was designed to present probably both the number and quality of the Clyde breed in this district and their practical usefulness in the purposes of agriculture.

The long file of yearlings, geldings, fillies and stallions strung out around the track in the eastern section of the Park was an attractive sight even to those who have no direct interest in horses, and must have had an impressive effect on the many farmers who were present from many parts of the district. The attendance was much larger than usual, rewarding the officers of the local Clydesdale Breeders' Association for all the effort and planning they put into the details of the field day.

Welcomed By Mayor

Mayor Hamilton welcomed the breeders and the farmers who had assembled for the occasion. Tom Brown, president of the Exhibition Board, said he was glad the farmers were making use of the Park for such affairs, remarking that the Park really belonged to them, and Roland Denne suggested the advantage a large arena would afford for livestock shows and other projects intended to advance the agricultural improvement of Peterborough and the adjoining counties.

Three classes of horses were lined up for two judging competitions, one for men over twenty-one years, which was won by Robert J. McKnight of Millbrook, and the other for junior farmers, won by Gordon Stalker of Smith township. The prizes were gold medals presented by J. W. Wheaton, secretary of the Canadian Clydesdale Breeders' Association.

Professor M. H. Staples of the animal husbandry department of the Ontario Agricultural College, discussed the merits of the horses comprising these classes and later spoke of the ideal type of Clyde horse and the physical features which should be sought in breeding. "This is the best line of horses you have ever had at a field day," Mr. Staples said, "you have a good breed in the Clyde, so get behind it and boost it."

The horses were paraded individually before the crowd, and Sam S. Staples introduced the breeders and also identified each horse, with a summary of its record.

Breeders Represented

Some of the breeders who were represented in the display were Harry McIntyre of Keene, president of the local association; Sam S. Staples of Cavan; Nelson Wragg of Claremont; James Whittington and Sons of South Monaghan; Leonard Smith of Millbrook; Howard Fair and George McKnight of Millbrook; Hector Crowley of Keene; Oscar Cox, Markham; Hugh Renwick of Keene; Walter Sharpe of Cavan; Clarence Lang of North Monaghan; Fred Lowery, Millbrook; Joseph Sullivan, Peterborough.

The executive of the Clydesdale Breeders' Association were assisted by Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative for Peterborough county, Ed. A. Summers, representative in Durham county, and F. J. Webster, representative in Prince Edward county.

Cavan men won nearly all of the seven prizes, free stallion service, for which tickets were sold and drawn. They were—James Might, Millbrook; R. J. McKnight; S. Donaldson; D. Matchett, Otonabee; William Armstrong, Cavan; Harold Ball, Cavan; and M. Whibbs of Douro. The draw was made by Tom Brown.

Disclose Gerhard Naturalized in '37

OTTAWA, June 2 (CP).—Answering a question asked Wednesday by Conservative Leader Bennett, State Secretary Rinfret told the Commons yesterday that Karl Rudolf Gerhard of Montreal had his Canadian naturalization papers issued November 16, 1937, but "there is no record of the nationalization in Canada of any person bearing the name of Emil Karl Gerhardt."

Mr. Bennett had asked if Karl R. Gerhard or anyone with a similar name had been naturalized in Canada in 1938.

Mr. Rinfret said that records disclosed Gerhard landed at Halifax March 15, 1930, destined for the Lutheran Immigration Board, Montreal. He was described then as a farm laborer, aged 22. Subsequent places of residence were Eden, Ont., Huron College, London, Ont., Waterloo, Ont., and Montreal.

"At the time of his application (for naturalization), he described himself as a journalist," Mr. Rinfret said. "He further stated that he had made a three months' visit to Germany in the summer of 1936. There is no record in the Department of State as to whether this Mr. Gerhard made a trip to Europe during the course of this year or whether he was in Rome at the time of Chancellor Hitler's visit."

KINGSTON TAKES UNDISPUTED LEAD IN CENTRAL ONTARIO LOOP

Loose Fielding Contributes To the Petes' 5-0 Reverse On the Kingston Diamond

Homesters Outhit 9 To 7 By Petes; 3 Errors Costly

KINGSTON, Ont., June 2—Kingston Ponies took undisputed lead in the three-team Central Ontario League senior circuit last night with a 5 to 0 win over Peterborough. The victory was the second successive shutout for the Kingston collection and the second straight blanking for the Petes, as Oshawa also administered a whitewash to the Petes when they met, and the Ponies got the lone run of the only other game of the schedule against Oshawa.

Loose fielding contributed to the Peterborough reverse as the Ponies were outhit 9 to 7 but took advantage of three errors and loose play that should have accounted for putouts.

The diminutive veteran "Yammy" Jamieson twirled for Kingston and was seldom in trouble, but when he was hit, his mates came to his rescue.

Following brief opening ceremonies, the local season got started with a slim crowd present, Peterborough threatened in the opening frame, picking off a pair of hits, one a double by Bob Doll, a newcomer whose transfer was held up by the Ontario Baseball Association, but Jamieson bore down, striking out Cadd, one of Pete's special additions, and forcing Burton to an infield out.

Kingston went down one-two-three in their half of the first, but put on the pressure in the second. "Vin" McQuaide reached first on an error by Cadd, McIntyre struck out but Joe Corkey cracked out a two-base blow that sent McQuaide home with the first run of the local season.

Continue Run-Getting

Kingston continued its run-getting in the third, collecting three tallies for three hits and a walk. Jamieson opened the inning with a hit but was forced by Stan Scrutton at second. Handford walked and McQuaide drove Scrutton home with a driving double. McIntyre also clicked for a double, sending McQuaide and Handford home.

Petes picked up a hit in its half of the second but was banished in order in the third and furth. Kingston was held in check in the fourth but added another run in the fifth when Handford doubled and came home when Cadd missed a play on McIntyre at first. Double plays in the seventh and eighth prevented Kingston scores, Bill Calladine, who played his first game of the season, being the pivot man in both.

Peterborough threatened in the last two frames but alert work in the Kingston outfield cut off runmaking, despite the efforts of two pinch-hitters.

Gets Two Blows

Herb Handford, formerly of Napanee, was the only Kingston hitter to get two blows and one was a double. McQuaide, McIntyre and Corkey also hit for doubles. Cadd, Kearns and Calladine touched Jamieson for two hits each but all were wasted when their mates failed to follow through.

The Ponies looked extra good on the defensive with the infield working well while the outfield was responsible for eleven of the putouts, grabbing off several that seemed hits when they soared away from Peterborough bats.

Armstrong Signs For Ambers' Bout

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs Wednesday fixed July 26 as the date for Henry Armstrong's next world title bid, in a 15-round match with Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers, after signing the sensational Negro to a three-year exclusive contract.

Already holder of the world feather and welterweight crowns, the second of which he took from Barney Ross last night, Armstrong will make his try for the "triple crown" in either the Yankee Stadium or Polo Grounds under the auspices of Jacabs' 20th Century Sporting Club.

Lacrosse Champs Here This Friday

The final exhibition lacrosse game of the season, before the O.L.A. schedule starts for the summer, will be staged this Friday (tomororw) night at 8.30 o'clock in the George St. arena between the Inglewood-Caledon team and the Petes. The locals have been practising hard for over a month now and awaiting word of a group. In the meantime they have been putting on exhibition games, having copped two in a row here, and now are about set to start the hard grind of a season's campaign where every game counts. This tussle tomorrow will show their class as they are meeting one of the best intermediate "A" teams in the Province.

The Inglewood-Caledon squad, which comes here Friday, is almost the same team that knocked off the locals in Ontario semi-finals last fall and then went on to win the title. They lost three players but have added a couple of former seniors, and claim to be stronger than ever this year. If the Petes can beat this gang here, they will have to be rated as potential 1938 champions, but they face a terrific obstacle and are likely to lose their first of the season. Both outfits will be at full strength and it ought to be a peach of a scrap. A big crowd of fans is expected.

AND last e'en we took in the junior Lakeshore Loop ball game at Riverside instead of trekking to Kingston with the Petes. Which might have been just as well, at that. Anyway, the kids drew a fair crowd and turned in a nice battle, though a bit one-sided. The Young Petes copped a 7-0 decision over Cobourg, which was sweet revenge for Herb Ralph's lads over their Lakeshore rivals after that 2-1 licking last week. Gee Clark hurled lovely ball, getting better as he progressed, to limit his rivals to three hits in seven heats as he fanned 10 of 'em. The other crew used two twirlers, were fair in the field but couldn't hit the apple worth a bent nickel. While our gang fielded and hit well. McNabb banged out a pair of triples and a single in four and Edmunds got three for four. The umping was quite good in this encounter. Dunno when the Y.P. outfit plays again.

* * * * * * *

DOWN IN PONYTOWN last eve, the Petes dropped their second in a row as Kingston took the C.O.B.L. lead with two nods. Count was 5-0 for Bob Elliott's boys before a slim gathering of cash customers. The Petes are accused of doing some indifferent fielding and not clouting too well in the pinches. Pitching of Gunner Whitehill wasn't bad as he held the biffing Ponies to seven hits as he fanned four. Three runs were earned off him and the Petes surely should have garnered three markers or so off Jamieson. The Petes need bolstering and there's no use kidding ourselves about that. They will have to be plenty tough this year to beat Kingston and Oshawa to the wire. It's a short schedule and already they've dropped two. And the Ponies are back here Saturday with their ace U.S. southpaw.

* * * * * * *

KEARNS, Cadd and Calladine had two hits apiece for the Petes and the latter, playing his first game, turned in a neat effort at second. Figured in on two double-plays. So did Al Clark, who handled 10 out of 11 chances. The locals left 11 stranded on the cushions. Bob Doll played and had a double as well as handling three chances okay. Manager Eddie Murphy is faced with the task of copping a win here Saturday, with either Kitchen or Jakafby hurling, or they'll be hitting out on the road for a time with three losses in as many starts. The Petes have a good club but they are in a particularly strong loop this season, and they'll have to hustle and get into the victory column soon —or else. We do not wish to be an alarmist so soon, but two shutouts in as many starts in a three-team circuit is cause for worry, eh?

* * * * * * *

NO HIT, NO RUN GAMES seem to be a habit with Coach Bill Jackson's P.C.I. squad in the Junior City Baseball League this season. They've played two games so far and have won 'em both by big scores on no-hit hurling performances. Nels Foster tossed the first one in an abbreviated struggle, while last night Harold Cutting held Greyhounds hitless in seven heats as he fanned 14—and not a guy got a look at first base for the greyish ones. The score was 11-0 for the Collegians and they'll have to be handcuffed right smartly or they'll chuckle their way through the schedule. Of course, without taking anything away from these good pitchers, the batters are handicapped by the lack of practice in hitting the smaller Spaldings in recent years —when we had no city league—and they'll take a little time to get their batting eyes.

* * * * * * *

OVER AT THE BOWL last twilight, before a goodly gathering of ladies and gents, the Westclox gal softballers tacked up their third straight win, 11-4, and C.G.E. lost their third in a row (not counting a tie). The 1937 champs seem as hot as ever. They trotted out one Helene Bradley for pitching purposes last eve and she held the opposition to five hits whilst fanning six. Marilyn McCarthy struck out 11 but walked an equal number and was nicked for 10 hits. A good game, though.

* * * * * * *

WHEN the announcement was made at the fight show last Monday that the Inglewood-Caledon team (almost the same that rubbed the locals out last year) would play the Petes an exhibition lacrosse match here this Friday, a big cheer went up from the large gathering. Yep, fans still remember that smart Inglewood gang and they'll be out in force tomorrow eve at 8.30 to see if the bolstered Petes can hold their own against the 1937 Provincial champs. Frank Randle's crew are undoubtedly stronger with the addition of Westonfelt and Worthy, and some of the locals vastly improved—but they'll have to be strong to continue their winning streak at the expense of ye Inglewood-Caledon crew. We wouldn't like to miss this melee; it'll be a tight tussle with action tossed around in huge gobs. The O.L.A. will be drawing up a grouping for the locals and fixing a schedule this week.

THREE CHURCH LOOP softball struggles were staged here and there about this grown-up Scott's Plains last p.m., one a playoff fray. George St. Majors took a 13-12 senior win over Mark St. at the Oval; Murray St. Seniors slapped a 23-18 defeat on All Saints at King Edward School; and All Saints opened the juniors finals with a 16-6 smirk over St. John's at Central, the first of a three-in-five serial. Next one is Monday at King Edward. Games tonight: Park St. Juveniles vs. Mark St. at the Oval, George St. Juveniles vs. All Saints at Queen Mary with umps from St. James; Knox Bantams vs. St. John's at Central, and George St. Bantams vs. St. James at King Edward. This loop finishes up this month.

SO NOW we're even again for awhile, we suppose. Ken Colling, writer-umpire of Belleville, says in his column: "Always having our welfare in mind, the Peterborough sports scribe moved one up on us yesterday, or perhaps after the senior O.R.F.U. scoop we might call it even-stephen. At any rate, yesterday's mail brought an envelope from Peterborough, inside of which was a tag from the Institute for Blind, the result of a tag day in the Liftlock City, we presume. No doubt our Peterborough contemporary has taken the better part of the current baseball season to think that one up, but we must admit it was worth all the effort. Of course this umpiring business sometimes has its disadvantages and it seems this is one of them. Twig Woodley also appreciated it last night. Thanx, pal." You're too welcome, bon ami.

UP AND DOWN Sports' Rialto: Westclox and Nationals have a men's softball scrap tonight in the Ashburnham Bowl an exhibition fray between teams of the City Loop and the Southend Circuit ....It'll give fans a chance to gauge the calibre of play in these softball leagues....Motorists copped a 14-9 victor yin Omemee yester e'en ....Keene and Lindsay lasses have a tussle at the Bowl tomorrow (Friday) in the twilight....The Petes will beat the Ponies here this Sat'day or bust their necks trying—and it ought to be a memorable melee for ball fans....Very little chance of having artificial ice here this coming winter but it's pretty certain for the 1939-40 season....Riverview A.C. officers are burned up like a grass fire the way so many mitt fans see local cards without paying; a third of Monday's crowd got in free!....Not an extra rabid crowd at the gals' game last p.m.—kinda unusual for the frays between these city rivals....Errors of omission as well as miscues of commission counted against the senior Petes last e'en....Gotta give the lacrossers credit for practicing the kids regularly, eh?....And so the absent-minded umpire dusted his face off with the broom and put his mask over the plate!

George St. Wins Over Mark St.

Mark St. Seniors of the Church Softball League lost their first game in six starts last night at the Oval when George St. Majors hung up a 13-12 defeat on them in a dandy scrap. The Majors moved into a second place tie with Knox with four wins and two losses. Mark St., shy three regulars, had a bad start when Mel Hunter was banged for eight runs in the first heat. R. Hunter relieved him in the third and went better. Ron Akers on the other slab went good but found it tough near the finish to hold his rivals. But in their last half, George St. slipped over the winning run, Gatfield, Dunkerley and Akers, leading hitters, put over this marker. Gatfield, Akers, Brady and Sager hit homers. Besides the latter pair, Eason hit well. Some neat catches were made by Darwin for the losers. The teams:

Motorists Win Over Omemee

Motorists took a 14-9 victory over Omemee on the latter's diamond last night in a men's City Softball League fixture. It was the first win in three starts for Shorty Barrett's bunch, and the opening game for the Omemee outfit this year. They made it a good battle most of the way but the Motorists had a bit too much punch for them. Some fair twirling, hard hitting and average fielding was shown by the rival outfits in this tussle. Both hurlers, Fleming and Stephenson, pitched a fair game. The teams:

YOUNG PETES WIN 7-0 OVER COBOURG IN LAKESHORE TUSSLE

Charley Keller Ups His Average In Bears' Cause

TORONTO, June 2 (AP)—Charley Keller, clouting outfielder of Newark Bears of the International League, is one piece of baseball "ivory" who is getting more valuable with age.

Last year when he led the International's batters after coming straight from the University of Maryland, Keller was the answer to 15 big league managers' prayers, but just a pleasant problem to Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees.

McCarthy would have liked to use the 21-year-old slugger, but with a few guys named DiMaggio, Henrich, Selkirk and Hoag around, there wasn't room in the outfield for the prize rookie of the circuit, so Keller was forced to remain with the Bears.

The youthful flychaser hasn't wasted any time on regrets. He's been powdering the ball at such a murderous clip that Bob Quinn, general manager of the stingless Boston Bees, vainly offered $75,000 for him.

Boosts His Average.

Over the .400 mark all season, Keller boosted his average several notches yesterday when he walloped out four hits in as many tries, including a homer and double, and drove in five runs. His big bat paced the Bears to a 7-3 victory — their fifth straight—over Syracuse Chiefs, and moved the league-leaders four games in front of the idle Buffalo Bisons and Rochester Red Wings, who are in a virtual tie for second.

The Chiefs defeat dropped them out of the first division and Toronto Maple Leafs moved in with a 9-3 triumph over Montreal Royals as Frank Reiber batted in six runs with a homer and double. Jersey City Giants stopped Baltimore Orioles 7-1 behind the one-hit pitching of Tom Baker in the other game of the day.

Baker, who held the Orioles to three hits in his last start against them, fanned four and walked eight, with Bucky Crouse's looping Texas leaguer into centrefield the only safe blow off his delivery.

P.C.I. Again Wins In No-Hit Contest

The second no-hit, no-run game of the Junior City Baseball League was chalked up last night at the Exhibition Grounds when P.C.I. blanked Greyhounds by an 11-0 count. Harold Cutting pitched the no-hitter, and it was the second straight perfect game for the Collegiate crew. Nels Foster performing a simliar feat earlier in the season. Coach Wm. Jackson's gang had the best of heaving last night and plenty of hard hits, while the losers looked weak defensively, especially in the outfield—the pitcher turning in a fair mound chore. Cutting did not issue a walk, and not a man reached first, as he fanned 14 and refused to alow the opposition a hit. The teams

Clark's Hurling and Bat Work Of Teammates Helps Ralph's Gang to Decisive Victory

Visitors Are Held To Three Hits; Clark Fans Ten

Young Petes opened their home season with a 7-0 whitewash victory over Cobourg last night in Riverside Park before a fair-sized crowd of fans. It was the locals second Lakeshore Junior Baseball League contest of the season, Cobourg having beaten them in Cobourg last week. The squad piloted by Herb Ralph more than revenged itself with last night's soft win.

Good twirling and hard timely hitting accounted for the Young Petes' triumph last evening. They played snappy ball all the way, clouting the apple hard, fielding almost perfectly and getting nifty hurling by Gee Clark. The losers were unable to hit the ball and also kicked in with some errors to allow two unearned runs. Their pitching was only fair. It was a neat game to watch and finished in seven innings in little more than an hour.

Nice Twirling

Gee Clark on the home mound held his opponents to three hits and one walk as he struck out 10 in a fine flinging performance. He was never in trouble and mixed a fast ball up with the odd hook. He had neat backing. For Cobourg, Smith went five frames but was pulled in the sixth. He had seven runs and 11 hits against him as he fanned four and issued no walks. Bateman finished it up, being nicked for two infield hits as he struck out one.

Earl McNabb led the attack for the Ralph crew with two triples and a single in four times up. Edmunds came through with three singles in four, and Stanley and Berwick got a pair of bingles apiece. Todd and Clark — both pitchers—were the only locals to go hitless in this tilt. Lucas, P. Johns and Smith got the only hits for the losers. Aside from a local double-play there were no fielding features, but the defensive work was snappy most of the route.

The Young Petes tallied twice in the first frame on a triple by McNabb and singles by Edmunds, Kelly and Berwick. They added three in a big fourth chukker. McNabb tripled and scored on Stanley's single. The latter went to second when L. Johns pegged bad and kept on to third when Campbell heaved the ball wide. He scored later on Edmund's hit. The latter moved up on a miscue and counted when Berwick singled. Two more were added in the sixth on hits by Girard, Castle, Edmunds and Stanley, including two stolen bases.

Heavy Clouting In Fruit Loop

TORONTO, June 2—(CP)—There was heavy clouting in the Niagara District Ball League, where Niagara Falls Brights rallied late to defeat Welland 6-4. Port Colborne Sailors stepped into a second-place tie with Merritton behind the Brights by defeating Merritton 6-1, while St. Catharines downed Fort Erie 4-3 to tie that club for fifth place in a game that produced 23 hits.

Niagara Falls' sixth victory in seven starts came on a three-run burst in the eighth, produced by solid hits by Whitehead, Lister and Ford and Irvine's error. Schoolboy Mussels' shutout relief pitching in the last three innings brought him credit for the decision, while Ziggy Kolachynski was pulled from four bad spots by Welland double plays.

Upper's home run with two on featured Port Colborne's home triumph over Merritton. Merle Hoyes allowed the visitors only three hits, striking out seven and walking two.

Fort Erie took a starry lineup into St. Catharines, including Dewy Hill who formerly played for Toronto Maple Leafs and Philadeljhia Phillies and Les Cunningham of hockey's New York Americans. But St. Kitts attacked Pearl for four runs in the first and that was enough to carry the Catties past Fort Erie's spasmodic attacks.

Face Broke Out In Large, Red Pimples

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face; many a cheek and brow in the mould of beauty, have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost by the presence of skin eruptions.

Pimples are caused by the blood being in an impure condition, and are a source of embarrassment, and many of those so afflicted are ashamed to go out in company.

Miss Phyllis Twiddy, Ivanhoe, Ont., writes:—"Last spring my face and back began breaking out in large, red pimples.

It was very embarrassing for me to go out in company, and people began to avoid me.

I tried several kinds of blood purifiers, but none of them seemed to help me. I heard of Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles, and my friends wondered where all the pimples had disappeared to."

Doubles Ace

A member of the United States Davis Cup team is Gene Mako (above). So far he is scheduled to team up with Don Budge for doubles in various European championships and cup matches, but he has a yen to go it alone, despite his prowess on the doubles court.

Giantmen Hit Willow Slump, Phillies Win

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP)—They laughed when old Cornelius McGillicuddy hinted he might do something with his Athletics this season. They laughed when he tossed a couple of former college boys into his lineup, and they wanted to know if he thought a Ph.D. or two could change a situation that looked like the cellar from Philadelphia to Moscow and back.

But they're laughing out of the other side of their faces now. For the venerable Mr. McGillicuddy — he's the same old Connie Mack, of course—looks like he really might have something there in Philly.

Not Pennant Winner.

Now don't get the wrong impression. It's definitely not a pennant winner that the lean leader has put together; and it's extremely doubtful if even so excellent a tactician as cagy Connie can pull his boys out of second-division darkness.

But several of the young gentlemen have been doing such tricks recently that Mr. Mack finds them in American League's sixth place today, with seven wins in their last 10 starts, the latest a 9-5 thumping they handed Cleveland's league-leading Indians yesterday.

Their record shows 75 runs on 103 hits in the last 11 games and even Bill Terry is looking enviously at that power. For Bill's Giants are deep in a hitting slump—so deep, in fact, that they've managed to score just one run in the 27 innings of their last three starts, all of them losing efforts.

Even against their customary cousins, Pittsburg Pirates, the National League leaders, looked pretty sour yesterday as they dropped a 4-1 decision, with young Russ Bauers turning in a five-hitter. The Yanks found Vernon Kennedy's flinging too much, and were belted around 8-4 by Detroit Tigers. Kennedy chalked up his eight straight and Hank Greenberg hit his 13th homer in this one.

Lead Cut To Two Games.

The Giants' lead, meantime, was shaved to two games over the Cubs, whose clash with Boston's third place Bees was rained out. The Cardinals featured homers by Ducky Medwick and Enos Slaughter in walloping the Phillies 9-4, and Johnny Vandermeer pitched a five-hitter to give the Cincinnati Reds a 4-1 victory over Brooklyn Dodgers.

Joe Cronin's homer with two aboard was enough for Boston Red Six to trounce St. Louis Browns 6-3. Buddy Lewis' ninth-inning single drove in the run that enabled Washington Senators to nose out the White Sox 5-4.

England and Australia will be only 10 days apart when the new air service is inaugurated in the fall.

Eight Candidates Are Confirmed Hastings Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, June 2—St. George's Church, Hastings was filled on Sunday evening for a most impressive service when His Grace Archbishop Owen, primate of all Canada, administered the rite of confirmation to eleven candidates.

Archbishop Owen brought greetings to the parish and congratulated the incumbent, Rev. Wm. Stocks on the large class which he had prepared for confirmation.

Prior to the administration of the rite by the Archbishop the congregation sang the hymn "Come Holy Ghost our Souls Inspire." The benediction pronounced by the Archbishop brought an impressive and memorable service to a close.

The congregation then gathered in the basement to welcome Archbishop and Mrs. Owen. The candidates will receive their first communion on Sunday, June 5th.

Mexican Revolt Being Killed With Kindness

With the Cedillo revolt degenerating into an affair of sporadic bandit attacks the Mexican government has adopted a new policy in handling captured rebel troops. Instead of standing them against a wall and shooting them, they are paternally reprimanded, then freed and told to go and convince their rebel friends of the hopelessness of their cause. Three shame-faced rebels are shown shuffling in the dust, TOP, as General Pedro Figueroa reads them the riot act prior to freeing them. Following the wrecking of a train by Cedillo bandits, federal troops are kept on the alert guarding the railroad lines in the troubled San Luis Potosi area. A mounted troop is shown, BOTTOM, patrolling the line near the spot where the rebels wrecked the Mexico-Laredo train.

Percy Girls Win At Brighton Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, June 2.—Again, the girls of Percy Women's Institute won the honors at the "Girls' County Achievement Day" at Brighton, May 28th.

Mrs. Eric Merrill was leader of the girls for the judging competition, and out of a class of fifty, Miss Clara Helson won first place with Miss Grace Sloggett and Miss Eleanor Oliver being awarded second and third places. On account of Miss Clara Helson being on the winning team at the Canadian National Exhibition last year, she will not be able to compete as one of the team but can enter the individual competition at the C.N.E. or Peterborough Exhibition.

Mrs. G. A. Helson was leader of the "Jolly Workers Club." Miss Helen Black and Miss Lillian McCleary comprised the demonstration team which won first place and they will represent Northumberland county at the C.N.E. this year.

The adventurous party are shown as they headed out of the Toronto harbor on the start of their voyage, which they hope to complete in about 15 days.

Suspect Trailed, Caught With Loot

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, June 2. — Trailed twelve miles through swamp and heavy undergrowth, William McPhee, no address, was arrested by the Provincial Police, near the Village of Tweed late on Tuesday afternoon, on a charge of stealing a quantity of gold and a diamond pin worth $300.00 from a Madoc village doctor. Part of the stolen property was recovered in McPhee's possession.

A partial description of the wanted man was obtained and near the office a small quantity of the gold was discovered close by a tree stump where the officers surmised the thief had stopped to examine the loot.

Although nearly four hours behind, Officers Dymond and Danford managed to follow the trail of the wanted man through fields, swamps and brush from Highway No. 7 to Moira Lake. As the trail headed towards Tweed, Officer Dymond telephoned ahead to Provincial Clare Hayes at Tweed, and the latter arrested McPhee as he left the bush near the old Lodgeroom Church, outside Tweed. Officers Dymond and Danford arrived 20 minutes later.

McPhee was taken to Belleville on Tuesday night, where he was remanded until June 6 for trial.

Convicted under the Excise Act, Henry Chamberlain of Maynooth, Ont., was fined $100, and costs, by Magistrate Lloyd in County Police Court, on Tuesday. Chamberlain was arrested by the R.C.M.P. near his home when a large quantity of mash, said to have been suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor, was found. The accused man entered a plea of guilty and paid the assessed fine.

An 18-year-old Sulphide Village girl was removed from a Belleville beverage room on Tuesday evening, and detained at the Police Station, before being sent to remain the night with friends. Police stated the girl is at present on suspended sentence and was previously warned to refrain from frequenting such places before being placed on suspended sentence. The girl was on Wednesday instructed to return to her home.

1,000 Animals Will Be Seen With the Circus

Jean Darrow, a beautiful woman, and "Jet", a beautiful horse, typify more than words could ever do the Spirit of the Circus.

They are members of the great Cole Brothers Circus, which comes to Peterborough on Tuesday, June 7, for afternoon and night performances at The Exhibition Grounds, with avalanches of wonders and breath-taking spectacles.

Good health, good spirits, happiness, cleanliness, friendship—all are major parts of the Spirit of the Circus and are typified by Jean and "Jet", as well as by the Cole Brothers Circus.

One of the largest and most valuable company of thoroughbred horses in the world, more than 400 head in all, are included among the upwards of 1,000 animals under the Cole Brothers canvas. They travel in three special trains with more than 1,100 persons and mountains of canvas and the vast amount of paraphernalia needed to present one of the world's largest circuses.

Greatest Trainer

Thrills galore abound in the Cole Brothers circus as a myriad of the most famouns persons in all circusdom exhibit rare feats of skill, daring and unprecedented courage. Clyde Beatty, the greatest wild animal trainer the world has ever known, who amazes with his breath-taking display of forty-three jungle-bred lions and tigers in the huge circular all-steel arena at the same time; the Great Gretonas, death-defying dare-devils of sensational gymnastics and cycling on the high wire; Ken Maynard and his vast assemblage of Rough Riders of the World; and huge companies of other thrillers are under the Cole Brothers banners.

In addition, the circus' great double-menagerie, one of the largest and most costly traveling collections of wild animals in the world, will be on display for one hour before both the 2 and 8 p.m. performances.

Peterborough Lift Locks at 9 o'clock in the morning. The Governor General's private car was drawn up on a railroad siding along the canal bank and the Bessie Butler came to a stop at an improvised landing. His Excellency, A. S. Redfern, secretary, and Lieut. R. Scott, R.N., climbed aboard. The boat proceeded through the hydraulic lift-locks with Lord Tweedsmuir standing on the deck, keenly interested in the proceedings, and watched by a large crowd.

Along the route to Lakefield, he showed keen interest in the operation of the numerous locks, leaped briskly ashore at one point to observe the rapids.

At Lakefield Kenneth Mackenzie, Principal of Grove School, joined the party and was His Excellency's close companion during the remainder of the trip.

"Here's a man who has fished in the Teviot River," Reeve Charles Tanner called and when the Bessie Butler reached the Lakefield lock. "A man from Teviot," His Excellency exclaimed, and jumped ashore to greet warmly Charles Thompson. A tailor in Lakefield for the past 35 years, he had once lived in Roxboroughshire, Scotland, and had, as a boy, fished the river that is among Lord Tweedsmuir's favorites, and near where he was born.

From that point on the trip was one of quiet beauty, with few events occurring unti lthe end at Chemong. To-day the Governor General will cruise toward Orillia. Department of Transport, who placed the boat at the Governor General's disposal, plan to reach Kirkfield Thursday night, Orillia some time Friday.

nominations due June 30. Already in the field are two Liberals in Athabaska and a Liberal and Conservative in Cumberland.

4 Social Crediters Back Out

There were comparatively few surprises yesterday. The executive of the Western Canada Social Credit Association, four Alberta cabinet ministers and an Alberta member of parliament, selected 44 candidates. Four of them withdrew and an extra man entered the field to make a total of 41.

The four Social Crediters who failed to qualify were J. C. Davey in Arm River, M. J. Haver in Bengough, Chris Haun in Lumsden and John Doran in Regina.

The big surprise of the day was in Regina. Two Social Credit candidates, T. A. McInnis and John Doran, were the nominees of the western association. McInnis, however, filed his papers in the nearby riding of Lumsden. taking Haun's place, and Doran declined to run.

For a time it looked as if Regina would go to the polls without a Social Credit candidate. Shortly before the deadline, however, papers were filed by J. H. Crawford, secretary of the Saskatchewan Social Credit League.

Failure of Miss C. E. Sheldon-Williams, Social Credit in Regina to qualify left only two women in the field, Mrs. Gladys Strum, C.C.F., who is Premier W. J. Patterson's only opponent in Cannington, and Mrs. Gertrude Telford, also C.C.F., who has a straight fight in Pelly with Hon. R. J. M. Parker, Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Mileage Sought

Canada was concerned.

Protest was voiced with respect to the division of railway mail contracts as between the Canadian National and Pacific Railways. The Canadian Pacific has received a larger share of this business and J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, could not understand why this should be.

Since the Canadian National was supported by the taxpayers, Mr. Woodsworth thought it should get all the business the Post Office Department could give it. Dr. J. P. Howden (Liberal, St. Boniface) expressed the view also that the Canadian Pacific was getting favored treatment.

Mr. Euler explained the Canadian Pacific probably got the greater share of business because of its ocean steamship service connections on both coasts and the fact that in Western Canada it served the most populous districts.

Conditions under which rural mail carriers operated, often having to fight their way through snow-filled highways and exposing themselves to all weather, was brought up by T. A. Thompson (Conservative, Lanark), who declared himself for the mileage rate system and Civil Service appointment of carriers.

Many in Support.

A long list of members of all parties supported in varying degree the proposal to reform the rural mail carriage system and a few members expressed doubt that it could be put under the Civil Service although admitting some injustices existed under the present system.

Hon. H. A. Stewart (Conservative, Leeds) said there was much "mean, petty patronage" in handling the rural deliveries. W. Earl Rowe (Conservative, Dufferin-Simcoe) urged a set of minimum rates and no patronage. Arthur Slaght (Liberal, Parry Sound) said rural carriers were "woefully underpaid."

AGED INDIAN FOUND.

When found Jackson was well supplied with food and clothing. He was returned to the House of Refuge.

Oil Companies Fined

WASAGA BEACH.—Residents of this summer resort 20 miles west of Barrie were in a state of great excitement today over reports of a lake monster, several eye-witnesses claiming the unknown churned the water like an ocean liner and travelled at uncanny speed.

The Peterborough Examiner

VOL. LXXX, No. 125 — PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, JUNE 2, 1938 — PRICE THREE CENTS

Sea Monster

MADISON, Wis.—Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone today assessed fines of $360,000 and $25,000 costs against 13 major oil companies and 11 of their officials on charges of illegally fixing the margin of profit for independent, wholesale gasoline jobbers.

Court Endorses Action Of Ratepayers

Every aspect of the action of the ratepayers of Peterborough in granting in 1933 a fixed assessment to the De Laval Company is endorsed and declared valid by the Ontario Court of Appeal in the decision of its five members allowing the appeal of the De Laval Company from the finding of the Ontario Municipal Board in the case begun by Alderman Gordon.

The course of the city council in passing the bylaw and submitting it to the ratepayers, the advice of John R. Corkery, city solicitor at that time and his work in drafting the bylaw, the Court of Revision and Judge Smoke, are all upheld in the unanimous decision of the Court of Appeal a complete copy of which was received today by F. D. Kerr, K.C., solicitor for the De Laval Company.

The Court disagreed with Mr. Gordon's contention that the bylaw passed in 1933 was a renewal of the previous bylaw and agreement with the company which had expired a short time before the new bylaw was passed by the council and submitted to the qualified ratepayers for their ratification. Costs of the action are assessed to Mr. Gordon.

In his view of the case, Mr. Justice Middleton referred to the bylaw passed by the council on February 6, 1933, giving the De Laval Company a fixed assessment of $60,000 on its land, building and business, exclusive of school, local improvement, and relief rates. The term was to be for ten years from January 1, 1933. An agreement by the company undertook to maintain certain levels of employment and also for the institution of additional business. The bylaw was ratified by the qualified ratepayers.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, as a ratepayer, gave notice of appeal on September 13, 1937, from the assessment made last year as the basis of the 1938 taxation on the grounds that the fixed assessment was too low, "and that the bylaw purporting to give a fixed assessment is in fact a renewal of a fixed assessment therefor granted to the company."

Appeal Is Traced

The summary traced the appeal through the Court of Revision, the court of the County Judge, His Honor Judge Smoke, and the Municipal Board.

The Municipal Board allowed Mr. Gordon's appeal and increased the assessment from $60,000 to $222,400 and allowed Mr. Gordon his costs against the city of Peterborough.

"From this decision the De Laval Company applied for leave to appeal to this Court. This appeal takes a very wide scope. Not only is it an appeal upon the merits of the original controversy, but the power of the Ontario Municipal Board to deal with the matters in question involving the validity of the bylaw of the city of Peterborough is attacked, and the constitutionality of the statute giving the Board the jurisdiction to determine the validity of the bylaw, if such jurisdiction has in truth been given, is also attacked. The actual decision of the Board is also questioned, and it is contended that whatever right to attack the bylaw existed when the bargain was first made and the bylaw first passed that right has been lost by leches, acquiescence and delay, for the De Laval Company has expended large sums of money in endeavouring to comply with the terms upon which the fixed assessment was granted."

Privilege of Renewal

Mr. Justice Middleton examines in detail the grounds on which the by-law was alleged to be invalid, and proceeds as follows: "It is said that the fixed assessment of $60,000 granted in 1933 was a renewal for the privilege granted by the earlier agreement with city. It is contended that what the Municipal Act intended to prevent was the granting of any second bonus to the one industry; that the bonus of benefit granted by the fixed assessment should be for 10 years, and there should be no second fixed assessment to the same industry. It is conceded that there is no decision upon the true meaning of the statute.

After very careful study of this section I am quite unable to give to it any such meaning. If this had been the intention of the Legislature it could have been very simply and easily expressed. In my view the language is very carefully chosen so as to avoid this effect. The policy of the Municipal Act, speaking generally, is that the municipal council shall not have the power to tie the hands of succeeding councils. The body is elected annually, and the whole scheme of the Municipal Act is to have the council responsible annually to the electors. Manifestly there have to be some exceptions to this general rule. The granting of this fixed assessment is not an attractive aid to an industry if it is for one year only. A longer term is necessary, and so we find a limitation to the power of a municipal council and to the ratepayers of the year; they cannot grant a fixed assessment for a longer period than 10 years, and this "shall not be renewable."

By "renewable" I understand it shall not by virtue of the original grant create a right of renewal.

When a landlord leases property for a term of years it is a common thing to stipulate that the term is renewable, sometimes at a stipulated rent, sometimes at a rent to be fixed by arbitration. There is there inherent in the original transaction a right to renew.

It is this kind of thing that is here prohibited. There is nothing, in my view, to prevent a new bargain being made, new terms being stipulated for and granted, and that is what took place here.

In 1933, the agreement theretofore existing being about to expire, negotiations took place by which the municipality undertook to grant and did grant a fixed assessment for the 10 years ensuing, and the corporation undertook to spend money in expanding the manufacturing business then being carried on in the municipality. A bargain was made by the council and the ratepayers of 1933, not by virtue of any right existing because of the former bylaw and agreement, but as a new bargain and in no sense a renewal. This being so, there was no justification for the action of the Municipal Board, and the appeal should be allowed and the judgment of the learned County Court Judge should be restored.

There is another aspect of the case which I think should be dealt with.

This proceeding originated in an assessment made by the assessor. He found himself confronted with a bylaw of the municipality granting a fixed assessment. I think it would be a brave man who would suggest that the assessor had jurisdiction to determine that a bylaw solemnly passed by the municipal council, after being voted upon by the ratepayers, could be ignored by the assessor and that he could determine its invalidity.

The Municipal Act provides machinery for determining the validity or invalidity of municipal bylaws. This machinery had not been invoked within the time limited by the statute. This did not deprive the Supreme Court of its jurisdiction to set aside the bylaw or to pronounce a declaratory decree concerning its validity, but the assessor had no right to assume this jurisdiction; no more had the Court of Revision, a body of laymen consisting of part of the members of the municipal council.

Powers Limited

The County Judge on appeal being had to him could exercise the jurisdiction of the Court of Revision only, and the Railway and Municipal Board also was equally limited in its power. True, we find power conferred by section 86 to exercise what apparently is a wider jurisdiction. But, I do not think the power there conferred is anything like as wide as what would be necessary to, in effect, declare illegal the bylaw passed. It is only a power to determine "all questions to whether any person or things are or were assessable, or, are or worse legally assessed or exempt from assessment." This falls short of a power to determine whether the bylaw purporting to fix the assessment was itself invalid for any reason, a jurisdiction which must be exercised by the superior courts.

This renders it unnecessary for us to enter into a discussion of the constitutional problems here presented for solution. In respect of these I reserve my right of freedom of action.

There remains the question of costs. I can see no reason for departing from the general rule. The costs must follow the event. The decision of the County Judge is affirmed to there is no need and, possibly, no power to deal with the costs before that order. The costs before the Municipal Board and before this Court are in our discretion and must, I fear, be paid by Mr. Gordon both to the company and to the municipal corporation."

Mr. Justice Masten—I agree expressly,—reserving any opinion respecting the constitutional question.

Mr. Justice Fisher—I agree.

Mr. Justice Henderson and Mr. Justice Gillanders in longer statements declared the bylaw to be valid, binding and not in conflict with the statute, and subscribed fully to the judgment given by Mr. Justice Middleton.

Youth Is Given Month In Jail For Theft Of Car

Out on bail after having been committed for trial on a charge of stealing an automobile from Hugh Davis of the Capitol Taxi, Fergus Mongraw pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to stealing the theft of the use of a car from Walter Belleghem on May 22 and was sentenced to a month in jail.

"This is a problem before the court," said T. J. Carley, K.C., who appeared for Mongraw. "This young man had an attack of sleeping sickness in his boyhood and ever since he has developed a mania for joy-riding in motor cars. I am informed that he always drives them carefully and returns them to the same neighborhood from which he takes them. There does not seem to be any way of stopping him doing this kind of thing."

"Why don't his people buy him an automobile and let him go to it?" asked Magistrate Langley.

"Your Worship realizes," said defense counsel "that it is not the initial cost of a car that is so expensive."

Must Protect Public

"The public has to be protected," the court said.

"This boy has been severely punished before for the same offense," said Mr. Carley. "It seems to me not so much a problem of punishment but of finding a cure." If this were not a British court I would be inclined to use the expression "uncontrollable impulse to explain the accused's conduct."

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. agreed that the problem was the most effective way of curing Mongraw of his habit of driving other people's automobiles off.

"If I were to give you a light sentence, would you stop this practice?" asked the magistrate.

"If I could get a job driving some one's car I think I would be all right," the prisoner suggested.

Finally Magistrate Langley passed sentence of one month's imprisonment.

Driver Suffers Fractured Arm

APSLEY, June 2 (Special) — George Salone, middle-aged Hungarian, resident of Coe Hill received a compound fracture of the left arm, and undetermined head injuries late Wednesday night when the car he is said to have been driving met a loaded lumber truck head on about two miles south of Apsley on Highway 28.

According to Wallace Hendren of Lakefield who investigated for Provincial Police, the Coe Hill car with Salone and two women passengers was proceeding north, and the lumber truck, loaded heavily and owned by H. Comrie of Lakefield and driven by Charles Young, Young's Point was travelling in a southerly direction. Salone's car was hurled into the ditch, a total wreck, and the alleged driver was taken to Nicholls Hospital by the nurse from the Red Cross outpost at Apsley. The two women caught a ride to Coe Hill on a gasoline truck, and were not treated for injuries.

Exhibition Board To Offer Four Cars

Directors of the Peterborough Exhibition decided Wednesday night again to sell four automobiles for one dollar each as a publicity feature of the exhibition which will be held in August.

Tow Brown presided with an exceptionally large attendance of members. The necessity of building new barns for the sheep and swine was discussed, and it was generally acknowledged that some action should be taken in preparation for this year's show. However, it was felt that financial assistance will be required, and a deputation will wait on the county council to appeal for a grant for this purpose. Messrs. Brown, Deene, Ball and Robson were added to the sheep and swine committee for the occasion of their visit to the council.

The Wolf Cubs were granted free use of the Park for a jamboree on June 18, and the Lions Club engaged it for Civic Holiday.

The Board is conducting a field crop competition this season. A number of fall wheat entries have been received already, but it is hoped that many other farmers will take part. Repainting of the buildings during the summer was another decision of the meeting.

Settlement Made In Clarkson Case

TORONTO, June 2.—(Special).—A settlement was made in the action of Mrs. Pearl Clarkson against the executors of the D. J Lundy Estate by all the beneficiaries and the Toronto General Trusts Corporation. What the nature of the settlement was, was not disclosed, but the settlement was completed among all the parties except as to the rights of the executors against each other or between themselves.

This closed out a matter involving a great deal of litigation and occupied three days of taking evidence and negotiations before a settlement was reached.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Makins stated that he heartily concurred in the settlement that was made and approved of it.

Hon. G. N. Gordon appeared for Mrs. Susan Lundy, and R. Roy McMurty appeared for Mrs. Pearl C. Clarkson and Grey Hamilton, K.C. and his partner appeared for the Toronto General Trusts Corporation.

GETS THREE MONTHS

Charged as a third offender, John King, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to having been drunk in a public place and was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to three months' imprisonment in the county jail. King acknowledged that he had been convicted on two previous occasions.

FUR DEALER FINED

On a written plea of guilty, Max Gold, Ottawa fur buyer, was fined $10 and $2.50 costs in police court today for not keeping a proper record of furs purchased, as required under the fish and game laws. The charge was laid by Game and Fisheries Overseer I. J. Lyons.

BOYS REMANDED

Howard Woodcock, 21, Joseph Woodcock, 18 and Thomas Madill, 19, all pleaded guilty before Magistrate Langley in police court today of having created a disturbance on Reid street on the night of May 31 and were remanded until Monday for sentence to allow the crown to place their previous records before the magistrate. Charges of having been intoxicated on the same date were dismissed when Chife Newhall offered no evidence.

RECOVERS STOLEN CAR

Provincial Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure yesterday recovered a car that had been stolen from Oshawa on Tuesday night. The machine which was the property of Graham Johnston of Oshawa had been slightly damaged and had been abandoned on a side road off Highway 28. The stolen machine was taken back to Oshawa last night.

RED CLOVER IN MAY

"Did you ever see red clover blooming in May?" Alex Houston of Otonabee asked an Examiner reporter at the Exhibition Park yesterday afternoon. And as a working knowledge of the blooming habit of red clover is not prominently associated with reportrial experience, although memory suggested that it was really a June occurrence, the reply to Mr. Houston was a blank negative. He explained that the red clover in flower on his farm Tuesday was the first time in his life he had seen it so early.

RECEIVE SOUVENIRS

Provincial Constable David Silvester and Provincial Traffic Officers Lloyd McClure and Gordon Broughton are proudly displaying souvenirs of the visit of Canada's Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir. This morning before His Excellency set sail from Chemong Park, the three provincial officers were presented to him and thanked for the services they had rendered during the vice-regal visit. Then Officer Silvester was presented with a neat leather billfold and the two motorcycle officers with sterling silver pocket-knives.

7 Fine Prizes To Be Drawn

While the Chevrolet coach is the major prize in conection with the Rotary carnival next week, it should not be overlooked that on the first night of the carnival seven other fine prizes will be drawn for and these are big enough awards to cause a ready sale of tickets in themselves.

The first prize in Thursday night's draw is the choice of a boys', girls' or adults' bicycle. A splendid radio is the second prize and the holder of the third ticket will be awarded with a movie camera. The fourth prize is a percolator set, the fifth a mix master, the sixth a table lamp and the seventh an electric razor.

On Friday night the automobile will be sold for one dollar to the holder of the winning ticket. All the tickets drawn on Thursday will be put back into the container so that purchasers of tickets will have a chance of winning one of the minor prizes as well as the major one.

With such attractive awards it is not surprising to find that the public is absorbing tickets at a very rapid rate and that the indications are that there will be a new record set. The draw is a magnet enough in itself but when it is accompanied by a general knowledge of the fact that the purchase of a ticket is a contribution toward making life happier for some crippled child the thing becomes irresistible.

Rotary's work on behalf of crippled children is known to the public and it is only necessary at this stage to point out that there have been heavy demands on the treasury and that expenses during the coming months are likely to be correspondingly heavy to ensure wholehearted support. The best way to aid Rotary and help crippled children is ot buy carnival tickets. They are on sale on the street or may be had from any member of the Rotary Club.

Sweethearts 60 Years Bride 79, Groom 84 Elope To The Falls

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 2. SWEETHEARTS for sixty years, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood of Hornell, N.Y., were married there yesterday, and came to Niagara Falls for their honeymoon. The groom is 84 and the bride 79.

They look upon their marriage as a thrilling adventure, although it is the third time John Wood has set out on a matrimonial voyage, and his wife was married once.

They wanted to make a real romantic affair, so they eloped, and upon arrival here registered at the "Honeymoon" camp.

The couple will return to the United States today.

Czechs Stop, Search Nazi Daughter Of British Peer

Prague, June 2 (AP) DRIVING HER automobile through a military protection zone enroute to Karlsvy Vary, Miss Unity Freeman-Mitford of England, pro-Nazi daughter of Lord Redesdale, was subjected to a thorough five-hour examination by Czechoslovak authorities yesterday.

Authorities admitted temporary confinement of Miss Freeman-Mitford, confiscation of letters, three cameras and fourteen films, and a notebook. With two foreign newspapermen accompanying her, she then was permitted to continue to Karly Vary, where her belonging, which had been sent to Praha, were returned.

Police Crash Wine Party; Five Arrested

Sergt. W. E. Wigg and Constable John Naples were unexpected guests at a very successful al fresco wine party staged on the Quaker Oats raceway late Wednesday afternoon and as a result of the gate-crashing of the officers into the affair, five transients lined up before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning and in rapid succession pleaded guilty to a charge of illegally consuming liquor.

The quintette, Peter Johnston, Peter Walsh, Joseph Brown, Samuel Stevenson and Donald Gillis suggested in slightly varying language but all to the same purport that the Magistrate should be lenient with them. The plaintive plea however fell on deaf ears for each was fined $10 and $4.50 costs with the alternative of ten days in jail and that means that for the next ten days friends may be able to write them in care of Lieut.-Col. T. D. Johnson, County Bastille.

Begged The Money

Chief Newhall told the court that the visiting troops had begged enough money off Peterborough's kind-hearted citizens to buy two large demi-johns of wine and so equipped had repaired to the shade of the trees along the raceway where for the next hour or two Bacchus reigned supreme.

When Sergeant Wigg and Constable Naples unexpectedly bobbed up in the midst of the festivities, the party had very effectively "killed" one of the jars and was giving attention to the second.

The quintette had so many overcoats, packages and other baggage with them the police had to make two trips to move the party into the police station.

Water Lily Time

ST. THOMAS, Ont., June 2—(CP)—If all goes well Lake Laurier will be colorful with the bloom of water lilies pretty soon. Lake Laurier is a tiny lagoon created on the farm of Premier Mitchell Hepburn near here by damming a stream running through the farm. Mrs. Hepburn was greatly impressed by the decorative water lilies in the St. Thomas pumping station gardens, and now the plants are being placed on the farm lake.

Case Aftermath Of Foreman Firing Two Men

"This is a tempest in a teapot, one of those cases that had much better not been laid before the court," declared Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning, in giving judgment in a case in which Orville Ellis, 23, of Havelock, was charged with assaulting Russell Mace of Burleigh Falls.

The magistrate found Ellis guilty on the evidence but expressed his opinion of the case by imposing a nominal fine of $1. Unfortunately for the accused, however, the costs were heavy, running up to a total of $9.75. Magistrate Langley said that most of the crown witnesses had added nothing to the case but they had to be paid. He gave Ellis two weeks in which to obtain money for the fine and costs, the alternative to payment being seven days in jail.

The case was the aftermath of Ellis being discharged from a road job on the Burleigh Falls-Buckhorn highway project.

Mace, who is a foreman on the roadwork, said that Ellis and another Havelock man, Rowland Hills (no relation), had been let go on Friday ,May 20, and next day had come to the camp in Harvey township.

He said that Orville Ellis had jumped on the running board of the truck witness was driving and had struck him with his fist twice in the face. Afterward the two Ellis boys had stopped his car by holding a pole across the road.

Albert Chapman, cook at the camp, said that he saw Orville Ellis on the running board, shaking his first but he could not swear he struck Mace. Sherman Godfrey also saw Ellis on the running board and heard a "smack," but he too, had not seen Mace struck. Albert Mills, the last witness for the complaintant, threw little light on the case.

Ellis, taking the box in his own behalf, admitted striking Mace and said that the latter had cried after he had been hit. "I struck him two slaps with my open hand," said Ellis, "and he wanted to give me $5 for not hitting him again."

Had Provocation.

Ellis said that he thought he had been dismissed in an unsatisfactory manner and that he had provocation in the way in which Mace had spoken to him.

Magistrate Langley then pronounced the accused guilty, although he said the case was on the borderline of the type that could be thrown out as unworthy of the attention of the court.

A similar charge against Roland Ellis had previously been dismissed when it was clear from Mace's evidence that he had not been guilty of assault.

"UNDER THE WEATHER"

Do you feel indisposed, sick and "all in" half of the time?

If so, you want to get well.

You know the value of health when you have lost it.

But do you know that spinal manipulation offers an effective and logical means of regaining health?

Chiropractic

is based on the principle that interference with the normal supply of nerve energy is the primary cause of many ailments.

This interruption of nerve currents can occur at the spine where nerve fibres emit between the vertebrae.

Derangements of vertebrae or undue contraction of spinal muscles can produce constriction of nerves and hinder the normal transmission of mental impulses to the tissues.

Chiropractic spinal manipulation has proven effectual in restoring health and comfort to many sufferers, so if you are not feeling "just right" investigate and see what Chiropractic can do for you.

Bennett Entry Is Lead Horse In 220 Class

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 2. — A crowd estimated roughly at over two thousand people gathered in Campbellford on Wednesday afternoon and evening to attend the sports day and racing events sponsored by the Seymour Agricultural Society. Favored with clear skies and one of the finest days of the year, visitors from many neighboring towns were on hand as the events began at 2.30 in the afternoon. It was the culmination of several weeks of work on the part of society officials who prepared a prize-list which was bound to attract many.

Perhaps the largest number of people lined the race course to watch the trials of speed which P. M. Morgan, who acted as official starter, had arranged for the afternoon. There were three main events, a free-for-all, Class 220, and a Class 229. The entry list included a large number of trotters, and among them such names as Senator Patch owned by H. Vanalestine, Port Hope; Ginger Direct, by E. Jones of Hastings; Fashion Royal by C. Fowler of Hastings, and Axworthy Gratton, who did the mile in the best time of the afternoon. She belongs to the stable of G. Bennett of Port Hope.

Despite the large number in the field, the races were all run off with a minimum of delay and very few false starts due to the able management of Mr. Morgan. The last heat of the 229 was the most exciting, as G. Palmer's Orphan Annie finished by a nose to outrun Fashion Royal and Margaret Direct, who was half a length behind. Two minor mishaps occurred during the afternoon, when wheels were taken off during the turn as they lined up for the start.

Every heat was a race, and the final results were as follows:

Free-for-all: Tramp Abbie, owned by G. L. Bennett, Port Hope, 1 1 1; Miss. Senator Patch, by H. Vanalstine, Port Hope, 2 2 2; Captain Peters, by L. Hess, Campbellford, 3 4 4; Gentry Lad, by H. Myles of Campbellford, 4 5 x; Gerry Manners, 5 3 3. Time: 2.18, 2.17, 2.20.

Class 220: Axworthy Gratton, F. Bennett, Port Hope, 5 1 1; Richard Hall, H. Myler, Campbellford, 2 5 5; Rose Ganet, H. Vanalstine, Port Hope, 4 3 4; Ginger Direct, E. Jones, Hastings, 1 2 2; Weston Gratton, J. Sutherland, Peterborough, 3 4 3. Time: 2.16, 2.15, 2.18.

Class 229: Fashion Royal, C. Fowler, Kingston, 1 1 2; Duncan McKellip, S. V. Grigg, Oshawa, 7 6 x; Rosalie Gratton, L. Hess, Campbellford, 6 5 x; Infringer Gratton, H. Myler, Campbellford, 3 2 4; Peter Rasze, H. Caldwell, Port Hope, 2 x 5; Orphan Annie, G. Palmer, Port Hope, 4 3 1; Margaret Direct, Ed. Stanbury, Campbellford, 5 4 3. Time: 2.20, 2.20, 2.19.

Judges were Messrs. Alex. Willis, Peterborough, and George Tice, Belleville. Timers: Thomas McCook, J. R. Battisby of Campbellford. Clerk, J. J. Lewis Hay.

Though there were not as many entries to the dancing contests as were expected, the keen competition which existed could only be estimated by the loud applause which was received by each of the winners. William Rylott of Havelock, who won the old time fiddlers' contest, was prevailed upon by the judges to provide the music for the dancing, and he really earned his prize money before the contest was over. In the event for girls under 14, Frances Mahoney came first with Helen Beatty and Verna Black second and third. The winner did a Scotch dance, and the runners-up provided a more lively if less attractive tap dance. The contest for girls over 14 was won by Florence Bertrand, with Georgina DeCarroll and Bernice McMullen in second and third position. The free-for-all for boys brought out some real talent, provided by Bogart Linn of Rawdon Township and Ernest Ingram of Attracting almost as many as the horse races was the softball exhibition between the girls from Hastings and Campbellford. As softball games go, it was a wash-out, with the visitors stepping into a ten-run lead in the first inning, which they were able to stretch out by eight more in the second, and an equal number in the third, with the game ending 33 to 12 according to the best calculations of F. R. Dennis, who was looking after the score sheet. The lineups were:

Hastings: M. Bond, p; C. Dainard, c; G. Sargeant, 1b; L. Dodd, 2b; H. Turner, 3b; I. Fowls, ss; P. Scriver, rf; J. Scriver, cf; M. McKee, lf.

Campbellford: R. Field, p; G. Field, c; H. Reddick, 1b; H. Montgomery, 2b; J. Fraser, 3b; Helen Montgomery, ss; Betty Mowatt, rf; E. Bowerman, cf; Laura Peake, lf.

In the evening, entertainment was provided by Walter Lowe and his bugle band, an organization which is fast gaining in popularity, and following this a huge throng fathered on Bridge Street, which was fenced off for a street dance, for which Jack Grant and his Aces provided the music. There was both round and square dancing, and Ward Archer did the calling for the squares. G. G. Stevens, secretary of the Agricultural Society, reported at the end of the day that the proceeds had been highly satisfactory.

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP).—They fattened up Henry Armstrong for the Barney Ross scrap with sherry, stout and beer...Henry got a glass of sherry with an egg in it every morning for breakfast...In the evening he was given a glass of stout and a bottle of beer with his dinner.... Springfield Greys, one of New York's crack semi-pro outfits, blossomed out in safety helmets against the House of David team last night.

Rudy York, who has been doing the old flopperoo in left field for the Tigers, was given a day off yesterday to sit in the stands and try to learn the art of covering left at the Yankee Stadium...York has hit three homers with the bases filled this season and his last four round trippers accounted for 13 runs.

Bill Terry is trying desperately for a second sacker...He tried to get Tony Cuccinello from the Bees and now is after Alex. Kampouris of the Reds...Burgess Whitehead not only is out for the season, but his baseball career is threatened...Armstrong shadow boxed for 20 minutes in his dressing-room before facing Ross...Colonel Ruppert, owner of the Yanks, is on the sick list.... Referee Arthur Donovan says he never saw a man throw punches over a 15-round period like Armstrong did Tuesday night....Ross began to show the effects of them as early as the third round...Not one of the three ring officials gave the negro fewer than 10 rounds.

Westclox Lasses Win Third Tussle

Westclox of the Girls' Softball League hung up their third win in as many starts this season last night at the Bowl when they knocked off the C.G.E. crew by an 11-4 score. It was the third loss for C.G.E. damsels. A good crowd saw a neat fracas with the Armour Hill maidens earning the nod through bunched hits in the fourth and ninth frames. It was anyone's contest till toward the finish.

Marilyn McCarthy of the Electrics fanned 11 as she gave up 10 hits, but was wild with her fast ball and issued no less than 11 free bases on balls. Helene Bradley made her hurling debut for the Clock-girls and held her opponents to five hits as she fanned six and walked one in a fine slab performance. Neither heaver had the best of support in the field, the Westclox lasses booting more than the losers.

Leading Hitters.

I. Pavy hit a triple for the winners, as M. Ferguson, M. Allison and A. Sturgeon got two singles apiece. For C.G.E., I. McCrank hit a homer and E. Craig continued her good hitting with a double and a single. D. Merrett, A. Sturgeon, A. Doughty and I. McCrank all looked good defensively. The teams:

Westclox—I. Iavy, c; M. Ferguson, ss; M. Allison, 2b; M. Hawthorne, 3b; G. Mortimer, 1b; D. Merrett, lf; A. Sturgeon, cf; L. Chartren, rf; H. Bradley, p; McCaul, rf.

FICTION AND FEATURES

FIESTA

By OREN ARNOLD

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Having saved the life of Ellen Dale, screen star, with a lucky parachute jump after his plane had run out of fuel in a terrific storm, Bill Baron and his lone passenger finally arrive at a ranch house across the Mexican border, unharmed but fatigued. Here they are warmly received by Don Julio Montoya, wealthy Mexican, and extended every courtesy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 3

Ellen Dale was a trifle bleary-eyed at breakfast next morning. She had done considerable crying, mainly because she was a somewhat lonely little girl in spite of her amazing screen career. You can't exist on $15 a week until you are age 19, be suddenly snatched to fortune and fame, without having something drastic done to your emotions. And you can't have an extremely adventurous escape from death without changing still more. A human soul is as impressionable as a human body, or more so.

Ellen's had responded to shock in a manner that would have surprised and alarmed her Hollywood producers and press agents. The song-and-dance lady? The pep-and-personality girl? Cinema's darling? America would never have recognized her this morning, down here in old Mexcio. Except for her costume, she looked more like a tired little college co-ed, who had been out too late at a junior prom and eaten too many olives.

But while crying Ellen had done a deal of thinking, too. The terror of that moment in the clouds, when Bill Barorn had jerked her out of the plane, repeatedly came back to her. And the subsequent black, blinding walk in the cold rain. Her very spirit seemed to have frozen there, and even though it thawed under the warm hospitality of the Montoyas, she knew she would never be quite the same. You can't meet Death face to face and come away feeling blase and saucy. Ellen knew, somehow, that her career as a dancing girl had come to an end.

"Well, shall we make plans this morning?" Bill Barron rumbled at her after breakfast. His voice always seemed to boom from some great depth. "Do you feel sufficiently rested now?"

She did not match his bright mood. She did not even smile. "I suppose so," she answered..

He stared down at her.

"You will want me to arrange transportation on to California, I presume. Probably we can hire an automobile. We are in Sonora, you know, about 50 miles south of the Arizona line. I will go as far as Tuscon with you, then head back for San Antonio."

The girl did not answer. She was gazing abstractly out a window. He waited a full minute in silence.

"Anything wrong?" he asked, gently.

She turned to smile at him then, slowly. No. It's all right, Mr. Baron. Thank you very much. You are very kind, kinder than any man has ever been to me before I'll never forget it. But—I was just thinking. I—"

She paused again, and he waited.

"—I am not sure that I want to leave, I mean." She looked up at him. Bill thought she looked awfully little then; little and wistful. He caught the full innocence of the violet eyes that had thrilled American movie fans for nearly three years. His face was sober now.

"I don't blame you," he drawled. "I think I understand. Did you know Senor Montoya prayed for us that night? He and the people gave thanks, about—about us being saved. I couldn't—it—"

The lump came back in Bill's throat. He felt like a teen-age boy, floundering; and he looked somewhat like one. Ellen studied his face then looked away.

"But you are Ellen Dale,'" he reminded. "There's Hollywood and—"

"'No! No, I am not," she said, surprisingly. "My real name, Mr. Baron, happens to be Daggs, not Dale. The publicity department changed it to Dale and I like it then. I feel more like Ellen Daggs, down here."

He considered that, with genuine surprise. Dale was an improvement, he decided.

"I suppose I'll have to pay the Montoyas and leave," she went on, "and of course I'm glad to pay them. And pay you for your plane, and—"

"Whoa up, Miss—Daggs!" Bill halted her. "I warn you, if you offer to pay the Montoyas, they will be insulted. Don't dare try it. And as for the plane—no. I contracted to pilot you somewhere, and didn't; I still owe you."

"Was your plane insured?"

He grinned. "They don't insure 'em."

"Have you—a business? I don't know anything about you, really, you know. Except that you are a gentleman."

He blushed and looked pleased. Or maybe the blush was one of embarrassment.

"I'll get along," he hedged. "No, I don't have a business. I, uh, I'm a—cowboy, I reckon. I live on a ranch out of San Antonio. My folks, I mean."

She let it go at that. She was thinking of something else anyway. She remained quiet for a while, and he did not break her reverie.

"I was about to build a house in Hollywood," she said at last.

"Yes?"

"Yes. The usual thing—a sort of —mansion. Swimming pool, and—and—a big lawn, and servants and all. It was what I used to dream of at the 10-cent store. You know what I mean. Well, at last I could afford it. Do you think I am silly, Mr. Baron?"

'No! Why shouldn't you build a fine home? All stars do."

He waited. After all, this was another woman, he told himself, laconically.

"I mean, I want to stay here, Mr. Baron! Don't you see? I do! This is real. Haven't you seen how the Montoyas live? How beautiful the hilsl and the ranch house? And the music last evening around the living room fire—a home!"

Bill stared at her. No, she was not acting. He nodded. Well, Ellen Dale—Daggs—was not the first American to come under the spell of old Mexico. These Latins haxe something—a charm all their own. There is much trouble in this southern republic, but there is much of beauty too. He hummed a little tune for a few seconds, then—

"Why don't you stay, then?" he asked. "Give up Hollywood."

"Oh, could I?" she turned and grabbed his arm.

He was taken back by her sudden enthusiasm.

"Why—why sure Why not?"

"Could I have a ranch? Like this? Oh Mr. Baron! I have some money. I think it's about half a million. Is that enough? Is it?"

The big Texan was very serious now. He had suddenly glimpsed again the verve and energy of Ellen Dale the personality girl, but off the screen, a sweet little kid who wanted desperately to cling to something beautiful, something without any horror of poverty or any leering sham. And suddenly Bill knew that he wanted her to have it, too.

He stood there thinking. A rancho! Certainly she could buy it. He would help her. After all, he owed her something; he had almost taken her life in that storm. But Mexico—

"It's enough money," he said. "More than enough. But buy your ranch on American soil. Hell pops down here in Mexico, ever so often. Political, even military hell. The same charm exists over the border in Arizona without the danger; the same or better scenery, the same customs, even the same language on many ranches. Arizona once belonged to Mexico, you know."

Ellen didn't- answer. She was staring at distant mountains, looming in the morning sun like the backdrop of some gigantic stage. Bill also was thinking now. A rancho. He didn't know of one for sale, but he could ask Montoya and—

Their thoughts were interrupted. Panola Montoya came into the dining room and saw the two Americans standing by the big east window.

"O-o-o-oh!" she almost tinkled it. 'Here you are, senor I have look and look for you. Los cabalos —I mean, thee horses, they are essaddled. You weel come and ride with me, no?"

To cover the unwarranted affront to Ellen, Bill quickly allowed himself to be led outside. Ellen watched them, a picturesque couple, as they rode out of sight over the semi-dessert terrain.

For Friday, June 3.

Although there is a most definite force operating for stabilizing the work and the fortunes generally, yet there may be peculiar situations to encounter in which strangers or new adventures may figure. Be wise in these and use extra precautions with papers, writings, travel and romantic associations.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year in which there may be many sudden and surprising events, although the general trend is toward a stability of the affairs and a soundness of property conditions or investments. Faithful work should bring reward, but radical change seems imminent.

A child born on this day may have conflicting characteristics. Although having a quick, active brain, with an adventurous spirit and much ingenuity, yet it may possess stability and depth. It may be caustic of speech and fiery tempered.

Daughters-in-Law Often Learn Too Late That It Would Be Better to Cultivate Peace and Good Will Among Their Husband's Relatives and They Pay a Severe Penalty

DEAR MISS DIX—I married, while very young, a young man working on a small salary. When the baby came financial reasons caused us to move into his mother's home. I went resentfully feeling myself a martyr because I had to live with my mother-in-law.

The other day she died and I have had time to think over my sins against her, so I am writing this letter in the hope that it will make some other silly young woman give her husband's mother an even break.

My mother-in-law gave up two rooms in her lovely home to us, which I took no interest in and abused. I wouldn't learn to sew or do any work. I wouldn't even put on a button. I wouldn't do any housework. I was lazy, spoiled, disrespectful, constantly finding fault with my husband and his mother, and revenged myself for my disappointment in not being able to have my own home, clothes and good times by making them as unhappy as possible.

My husband did not get advancement quickly, so I proceeded to belittle him in front of his mother and her friends and to make them think that I was a poor, persecuted creature who wasn't being treated right by his mother and him. I can see how she tried to curb my many mistakes before people because I was a newcomer to the city and she wanted them to love me. Instead, I made them dislike me. I didn't realize that they had seen her come through a heart-breaking tragedy a few months before and that she was greatly respected for her courage and fineness.

She made financial sacrifices for us which I was not grateful, but resentful because she didn't do more for me. I forced her to look on at what is probably the most heartbreaking spectacle a mother can behold, and that is a foolish, selfish woman wrecking her son's life. I destroyed a happy home. Helped a fine woman to an early grave, and so frustreated my husband by my complaints and nagging and dissatisfaction that he became so nervous that he was unfit to hold his job. At last he went to his sister's to be nursed back to health. Now I am neiher wife nor widow and am no welcome in any of my relatives' homes. I see my folly and repent my sin, but all too late. Perhaps my story may be a warning to some other young wife who is mistreating her mother-in-law. BETTY.

Answer:

I print this little chapter from real life because it pictures more vividly and poignantly than I can the tragedy that a foolish girl can create if she goes into a family with the fixed idea that her mother-in-law is her enemy and that she is bound to defend herself against her.

I have said in this column time and time again that for a mother-in-law and daughter-in-law to try to live together in the same house almost invariable spells misery for all concerned. Sometimes, however, this is unavoidable, and when it does happen it is a shame and a pity that the daughter-in-law has not sense enough to see that it is just as hard on the mother-in-law as it is on her, and try to meet the older woman halfway and make it as easy on her as she can.

Very often a young couple could not marry except that they "take up their residence" with the bridegroom's mother as the newspaper account of the wedding says. Times innumerable it is the man's mother who takes her son, his wife and their children in and shelters and feeds and clothes them when the man loses his job and they would be put out on the street but for her. You would think that under such circumstances that the daughter-in-law could not be grateful enough to her mother-in-law, nor do enough to please her. But oftener than not she takes out her chagrin at her misfortunes on the older woman and makes her burden that much heavier.

DEAR MISS DIX—My father died when I was a small child, leaving my mother with two children. Not being able to support both of us, she sent me to my aunt and uncle, with whom I have lived happily for the last fifteen years. My mother never showed me any affection or did anything for me during all the time I was growing up, but now she wants he to come and live with her. I refused. I hardly know her and can't talk frankly to her. I am nervous and unhappy with her. Her friends are strangers to me and mine are to her. Besides, two years ago my aunt died ,and since then I have been keeping house for my uncle, who has been a fathr to me and done everything for me. Should I leave him and go to my mother? DOROTHY.

Answer:

I think not. I think your duty is to the kind uncle who has not only supported you all these years but has also given you the affection and care that your mother denied you. He needs you now, and you will be utterly lacking in gratitude if you do not stay with him and do all that you can to make him comfortable and happy. I haven't much sympathy with this Enoch Arden sort of parents who leave their children to the mercy of stranaers and then pop up when their offspring are old enough to work and support them.

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a poor old man having passed the eighty-fifth milestone, and now living on borrowed time. My dear wife and I lived together for forty-eight happy years and raised a family of eight children, who are all married and making homes for themselves. I live with my oldest son. Since the death of my wife life hasn't been the same and I pass dreary hours. While sitting alone I have been studying the life of man, and have come to the conclusion that youth is a blunder, manhood is a struggle and old age is regret. What is your idea about it? Can you give me any recipe that will bring joy and peace into my. life?

T. E. B.

Answer:

I can only suggest to you to change your point of view and urge you to look on the gold side of the shield instead of the leaden one. Count your blessings instead of mulling over your miseries. Think how blest you were to have had forty-eight years of happiness with a wife who was your heart's desire, instead of having to live with a shrew or one who disgraced you and brought down shame upon you. Think how fortunate you are to have eight fine children, instead of none at all, or wild sons and daughters who are a heartbreak. DOROTHY DIX.

By MAX TRELL

KNARF, THE shadow boy, hurried straight down the garden path until he came to the back of the garden where the morning glories were growing. Then he picked one of the blue morning glories and ran as fast as he could with it to the elm tree where Hanid, the shadow girl, was waiting. She was sitting, you remember, on the first branch of the tree just below the spot where the caterpillar had made its bed.

"Now I've got something to wake up that caterpillar with," Knarf said to her.

"Is it an alarm clock? You said you were going to find an alarm clock. Why," she added the next moment, "it's just a little blue morning glory flower! And it isn't even open yet."

"It's a morning glory alarm clock," Knarf explained. "It's going to wake up that lazy caterpillar as soon as it opens."

"But how?"

"You'll see. Look—it's starting to open now."

Bud Is Opening.

Sure enough, the morning glory bud was beginning to open. Knarf held it close to the caterpillar's white bed. You see, the caterpillar had gone to sleep at the beginning of autumn; here it was already spring and it hadn't yet started to stir.

Hanid waited for a moment or two while the morning glory bud opened more and more. All at once the morning glory started ringing. It wasn't a very loud ringing. You couldn't have heard it. But Knarf and Hanid heard it very well. And this is what they heard:

R-rr-ring...r-rr-ring,
It's really Spring!
SP-RR-RING!
If you are wise
You'll soon arise.

NOW OPEN YOUR EYES!

"That ought to wake it up!" Knarf said when the morning glory stopped ringing.

"Wake up! caterpillar. . . wake up!" Hanid cried.

And then, suddenly, the white covering of the bed was parted, and a little head looked out with blinking eyes.

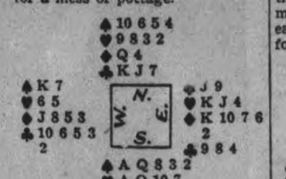
"The Authority on Authorities"

FORGET THE HONORS

NO MORE serious mistake can be made in bidding than to favor one declaration over another just because it contains honors which may be scored above the line. Of course, if one declaration offers exactly as good a chance for game as the other, nobody can be blamed for considering them. But favoring one form of bidding because of the honor count when another extends a better chance to make game or slam is the same thing in principle as selling your birthright for a mess of pottage.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

A player who likes to score honors was tempted by the aces in the South hand of this deal, so decided to open the bidding with a call of no trump. His holding was too strong for a mere bid of one, however, according to his reckoning, so he made it 2-No Trumps. North naturally had nothing to do but bid 3-No Trumps.

West made an inspired lead. Considering his club suit hopeless through lack of sufficient entries, he decided that diamonds might afford a better defense, so led the diamond 3. Down went the poor declarer.

How much better if South had opened with a bid of spades. When holding a five-card major, it may be laid down as an almost unbreakable rule that no trump should not be the opening bid. As the cards lay, six-odd could be made at spades, by getting an early diamond discard on clubs before trying the trump finesse.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the correct bidding of this deal and the correct play of the first three tricks?

Spaghetti Neapolitan Is Delightful Supper Dish

(By Mary Moore)

IF YOUR will power is 100 per cent, and you have decided to retain the svelte figure with which you are blessed don't read this. For I too have plenty of will power but that 66-100ths of 1 per cent. or my Achilles heel are victims of Spaghetti Neapolitan every time.

Besides which my pride of possession of an heirloom soup tureen which will hold enough for 16 to 18 guests—always goes before my fall.

Spaghetti Neapolitan lends itself admirably to serving (and satisfying) large numbers. At our place it makes a grand lawn supper—all you need is plenty of it,—hot, and large amounts of salad things. If you are a magicin and can run up three or four fresh strawberry pies out of your head you have a meal that Oscar of the Waldorf could not better.

Spaghetti Neapolitan

The boiling of the spaghetti is important. Use your preserving kettle, and for each pound of spaghetti bring to boiling point 2 gallons water with 2 tablespoons salt. Do not add the spaghetti until water boils and add it slowly enough that the boiling does not stop when adding. Do not break the spaghetti—dip the ends in the boiling water and as it softens it will bend easily and can be coiled under the boiling water. Boil without stirring until tender—the large amount of water keeps it moving and prevents it sticking together.

In the meantime make the Sauce: Put ¼ lb. ground fat salt pork put through the grinder with 1 lb. fresh pork and 1 lb. shoulder beef, and saute these in the frying pan with 3 onions chopped finely, and if you choose, ½ lb. thinly sliced mushrooms, ½ cup finely chopped celery. When transparent and a little golden, add 3 cups tomatoes or juice, and let simmer gently until reduced one-third. Prepare grated cheese and spread it out on plate to dry. Before serving taste the sauce—it may need some salt and pepper, and if you like it cayenne and powdered garlic may be added.

Without breaking it or chilling transfer drained spaghetti to hot soup tureen, and pour sauce into large entree dish. Put cheese in hot platter or chop plate, fill centre with creamed leftover chicken, shrimps, or tuna or curried eggs. This makes an excellent company dish when funds are low.

As fine a vegetable plate as ever sneaked in a piece of side bacon is comprised of Macaroni au Gratin, baked stuffed tomatoes; string beans buttered, and long strips of golden carrots with Hollandaise. The Bacon is perched atop the Macaroni au Gratin and it is all a picture.

Now I have a trick to tell you about noodles that some of you travelled folk may know. Even if you do it is still good.

Green Noodle Supper Dish

The spinach you are going to have for dinner must be cooked well ahead of dinner time in 3 quarts of water. As soon as it wilts drain it from the water, saving the water for it is not a by-product this time, it is what we are after. (You can reheat the spinach by chopping it in top of double boiler with some butter and salt and pepper.)

When ready to make your noodles bring your three quarts of Spinach water to boiling point, add 1 tablespoon salt and slowly add the noodles while water keeps boiling. Do not cover but let boil rapidly until noodles are tender—about 20 or 25 minutes. In the meantime prepare 3 tablespoons of olive oil or melted butter, 2 tablespoons cream, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of paprika, 1 tablespoon chopped chives (or 1 tablespoon grated onion), 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan, or old Swiss cheese. (If you do not have any Foreign cheese on hand old Cheddar will do.) When noodles are done lift them into a buttered casserole, then pour the sauce over, mixing it gently through the noodles without breaking them. Place in hot oven to heat through—some paprika sprinkled on top makes this delicate green dish quite beautiful—and you are saved the anguish of pouring the valuable spinach water away.

This is not sensational—but it might be just the thing for your household, as it was for mine on Thursday—little odds and ends of vegetables were leftover, and I wanted that ice box to be empty of them before our groceries for the week end came.

Macaroni and Vegetable Casserole

Two cups boiled macaroni or spaghetti or noodles (I used the shell shaped macaroni for variety) ½ green pepper, 1 cup each cooked green string beans, asparagus, corn, tomatoes—(other cooked vegetables such as peas, carrots, celery could be substituted for any I mention), ¼ lb. grated cheese, 1 tablespoon butter, buttered crumbs, pepper and salt to taste. One onion may be grated and sauteed in the butter but if onion is not desired it may be left out. Butter baking dish and line sides and bottom with macaroni, and add layer of each of the vegetables and another layer of macaroni and vegetables. Cover top with crumbs mixed with cheese (or if desired cheese may be sprinkled over each layer) and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until heated through and top is golden.

If you live in a centre where macaroni is manufactured you would be interested in the great variety of shapes. Stars, bows, alphabets, squares, fine rectangles, wide fat strips, besides the shells, elbows, and long fine strips with which we are familiar. By buying the varieties you bring yourself the kudos that a thoughtful and imaginative cook desires and deserves. Do justic to yourself.

Combination

THE COMBINATION of plain and printed fabric in one garment was never more charmingly used than in this season's dresses.

This dinner dress worn by Joan Bennett, film star, proves the point. It is an original by Bernard Newman of Hollywood, and is of chiffon, cut low in front, with a bodice of navy and white print cut high in back with a slash down the centre to the waistline.

Wife Preservers

Alan Green designed this garden tool rack. He nailed a flat board across the vertical scantling of interior of the garage. It is much more satisfactory than hanging tools from nails.

Mary Moore Inquiry Column

QUESTION: Just a note to say how much I enjoy the cookery page. We get it every week and I do keep the recipes.

I have some nice tablecloths that got mildew on them. Do you know how I could get it out? Also through buying a bed I got bed bugs in the children's room. I am clear of them for a while, then all at once I see one. Could you help me to get rid of them forever, as I am afraid of them getting into all the rooms.

We have a store and I am starting a lunch counter. Can you tell me some nice things for it. I do pray that you will always be able to help us—I think there is nothing nicer than good baking. I love to bake and the neighbors say I am the best cook around—but I don't say that—I am no good at gingersnaps.—I. R. P.

ANSWER: There's no sense in letting a little thing like gingersnaps keep you from being 100 per cent. I'll print a foolproof recipe herewith.

To Remove Mildew Stains From Linen Tablecloth.

Wash tablecloth very well to remove every trace of soap—rinsing it at least three times. Then put in galvanized iron tub or porcelain bath tub and cover with plenty of cold water—to ten gallons of water add 1 tablespoon of powdered chloride of lime dissolved in 1 pint of lukewarm water. Mix this well and let tablecloth stand in this solution for 24 hours. Then rinse in at least 4 clean clear waters and hang out in sun. If this does not completely remove the mildew stains repeat process, but do not increase amount of lime.

Exterminating Bed Bugs.

Of course there is always the expedient of calling in an exterminating company to rid your room of bed bugs. But a much cheaper method is to burn sulphur candles that are manufactured for the purpose.

The preparation of the room is the most important step in this method. Stuff all window cracks and door cracks and breaks between the moulding and baseboard and walls and floors with newspaper — very tightly. Remove all fabrics that you do not want to fade — but when these are removed either boil them or put them in gasoline or any bed bugs clinging to them will get into some other part of the house. Sulphur candles will fade colored wallpaper.

When room is prepared, exposing as much of the bedstead, springs and mattress as possible, light sulphur candle — there is very little flame, it is mostly smoky fumes—and leave the room, closing the door, and stuffing the cracks outside the door with newspaper and leave for 24 hours. Candle will burn down to pan of which it was standing, and fire will go out, but fames confined in room will stay until released. When 24 hours have elapsed, open room and air out for 24 hours. This treatment will also kill all moths in room.

Double and triple decker sandwiches tomator and ham, beef and pickles, egg and bacon, cheese and nut, pork and beans and toast, chicken a la king (creamed chicken on toast), hot roast beef sandwiches (sliced roast beef between slices of fresh bread, covered with very hot brown gravy and served with a mound of mashed potatoes—this is a profitable lunch room item as it can be sold for 20 cents). These seem to be the best sellers — of course bacon or ham and eggs is universally popular.

It is wise to have one favorite soup—such as cream of tomato, vegetable, beef, or clam chowder, for your specialty every day. Soup is cheap to make and can be sold at 10 cents per bowl. Pies, tarts, cakes and fresh fruit cups are items that can be kept on hand and are general favorites.

Gingersnaps.

One cup molasses, ½ cup good shortening, 3¼ cups flour, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon ginger, 1½ teaspoons salt. Heat molasses to boiling point and pour over shortening. Add dry ingredients mixed and sifted. Chill thoroughly. Toss one-quarter of mixture on floured board and roll out as thinly as possible. Cut out with floured cutter. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 10 to 12 minutes. Gather up trimmings and cut out with next quarter of mixture. Keep bowl containing mixture cold while rolling out quarter portions or gingersnaps will be hard rather than crisp—add as little flour in rolling as possible.

We hope our suggestions help you and that you will write again.

QUESTION: Your page is certainly popular in most homes, and I would like to wish it all success in helping Canadian homes in the important department, the kitchen.

Can you give me the recipe for ice cream pie requested by Hubby; and also economical recipes for frozen desserts in the Frigidaire?—"Regular Reader."

ANSWER: Thank you for your kind opinion of us.

Ice Cream Pie.

Make standard layer or gold or white cake batter and bake in three-layer cake tins, or bake in two-layer cake tins and split each layer in two. Between layer, when cold put slices of very hard ice cream, cut from brick and on top cover with whipped cream. Garnish with fruit such as sliced strawberries, peaches, or pour over chocolate or butterscotch sauce.

There are so many variations of ice cream pie that you will have to ask your husband what colors of cake, what flavor of ice cream and sauces are used in that he refers to.

Lemon Sherbet.

Six tablespoons lemon, 2 tablespoons orange juice, 1 cup granulated sugar, pinch of salt, 2 egg whites, ½ cup single cream, ¾ cup water. Heat sugar and water to boiling point and boil 10 minutes. Remove from heat and cool. Strain fruit juices and add lemon juice to orange juice. Place in ice box to keep cool. When syrup is cool, add to fruit juices and pour into tray. Allow to freeze to a mush. Then fold in beaten whites and cream, and return to tray to freeze firm.

Chocolate Frozen Cream.

While this calls for 1 cup heavy cream and 1 cup table cream it is a large recipe and will serve ten people.

Two squares bitter chocolate, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup milk, 2 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 egg whites, 1 cup table cream, 1 cup heavy cream, pinch of salt. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler, heat sugar and milk in top of second double boiler and add well-beaten yolks stirring. Cook for 5 minutes stirring, then add the melted chocolate slowly. Cool, then fold in stiffly beaten whites. Chill, add single cream to this custard, then fold in heavy cream which has been beaten stiff. Add flavorings and pour into ice tray and freeze, stirring every half-hour until mushy, then let freeze hard.

We hope you like these and that we can help you again.

Baptist Women's Societies Observe Foreign Missions

Wednesday, June 1st, was "Foreign Mission Day" and its sixty-second annual convention being held in Murray Street Baptist church, Peterborough, with Mrs. W. A. Batty, its presiding officer.

This session, like all others opened with the convention hymn, and prayer was offered by the president, Mrs. W. A. Batty .

The morning was given over in a large measure to business and reports of the various departments, by their individual leaders. These included Mission Homes, Miss Kate Robertson; white cross work, Mrs. C. W. Dengate and Mrs. J. W. Davis; Link and visitor, Mrs. J. C. Coveney and Mrs. H. W. Petit; foreign board secretary, Mrs. C. G. Graham; treasurer's statement and presentation of estimates, Miss Edith Wilson; bureau of literature, Mrs. C. N. Mitchell; reading course, Mrs. J. W. Patterson.

Mrs. J. C. Macgregor led the hour with the directors which was an inspiration to both group and leader. Closing this part of the morning activities, Mrs. R. C. Weston, offered prayer.

Election of Officers

The election of officers and members of the board resulted in the following slate by acclamation: President, Mrs. W. A. Batty, 1st vice-president, Mrs. Frank Inrig; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Frank Wright; officers and members of the board: Mrs. Sewell, Mrs. F. Wright, Miss E. Wilson, Mrs. R. Ness, Mrs. J. P. Ryley, Mrs. M. L. Crossley, Mrs. R. W. E. Burnaley and Mrs. W. E. Berkinshaw. Mrs. F. W. Waters, of Hamilton led in earnest prayer closing the session.

At two o'clock, after an enjoyable noon recess, the delegates reassembled.

In her brief talk on our theme, "Controlled Love, Mrs. J. P. Ryley, referred to it as the corner stone of the foundation of Christian life. She spoke of the vital necessity of control in this mechanical age, when air planes and automobiles are so commonly used. It is when they are in action that control is needed, and such is also true of the Christian life. When we come to the danger spots we need the controlling love of Christ. Prayer, that love might be a real force in our lives, was led by Mrs. Audrey Hallyer of Waterford.

Note of Challenge

The president, Mrs. Batty, sounded a note of challenge and inspiration in her address to the delegates. This annual meeting, she termd a milestone on the highway of life, at which we are refreshed and encouraged. "The success of this great enterprise lies with the individual woman, who gives of her time and resources, that the gospel may reach all peoples. How shall we induce others to share this responsibility? Let us try earnestly to answer this question during the coming year."

Speaking of the transforming power of the Gospel, the president briefly outlined the splendid work being done in Bolivia and India. "To-day begins another year of service, with needs pressing in on every side. Our response is "Love in action." The need calls us to renewed prayer and consecration and to a new study of God's will for us."

Open Forum Held.

Much practical help was brought to the representatives in the enthusiastic open forum directed by Mrs. Frank Inrig. Although this usually deals with miscellaneous subjects, this time the discussion centered around the one theme—the reason for the lethargy in regard to mission work and what we can do about it. The agency is the Mission Circle and its program, and the great need is for an increased vision of (1) the needs of the world. (2) the task, (3) the resources, and (4) the glory of the task. The three parts to every well-ordered program were stated to be inspiration, information, and expression. The first of these was dealt with by Mrs. Waters, who stressed the importance of worship. This part of the program ought to provide the atmosphere and set the tone for the whole meeting—it should release the power of Jesus.

Mrs. J. C. Coveney outlined the place of information on the program. She said that our interest in missions was determined by our investment of money, time, service and prayer.

Mrs. R. W. E. Burnaby presented excerpts from her report as corresponding secretary, and introduced to the delegates, the missionaries, and their children who were present. Among these was Miss McGill, who brought greetings from the Christian women and girls of India. "A Missionary Medley" was the extremely interesting word-picture of a missionary's life and work in India, brought by Mrs. A. Gordon, who has seen twenty-five years of active service there.

Miss K. S. McLaurin, also of India, chose for her subject "Looking to the Future." There is a wonderful opportunity in India now, as a mission field, she claimed. It is a land of peace in comparison with other Eastern countries. The mottor of the missionaries is "Each one, teach one," and their aim is "Every Christian literate by 1940."

Mrs. H. H. Bingham offered the invocation, after which the assembly dispersed to conferences for Circle presidents and for agents for Link and Visitor.

The opening service of worship last evening was led by Miss Phyllis Moore of Gilmour Memorial Church who chose her theme from the fourth chapter of John. Young peoples' work was brought to the fore in the fine report by Mrs. John McIntosh, secretary of the C.G.I.T., who briefly outlined the missionary activities of this younger group. Mrs. M. P. McDonald also brought an encouraging resume of the work carried on by the young women. She urged the importance of educational work, particularly that of the reading course.

A delightful variation in the program was contributed by Park Street Church ladies' quartette, which included Misses Iva Pilling, Agnes Sands, Martha Sands and Nancy Lane who were accompanied at the piano by Mr. Stanley Northrop. Their sacred selection was "Nearer My God To Thee" and fitted well into the spirit of the service.

Tour of Bolivia.

The beauties of Bolivia were given to the delegates by way of a tour through that interesting country through the medium of lantern slides and an address by Rev. P. G. Buck, missionary on furlough.

Not only were the scenic beauties of the country unfolded, but the various phases of mission work, both urban and rural were touched upon. It was emphasized that this was a comparatively new work, most of its Christians being first generation. In closing, Rev. Mr. Buck, sang "I am Redeemed" in Spanish, in Quechua, and in Aymara, with the whole congregation joining in the English version of the beautiful hymn.

Prayer by the Rev. W. B. Walker, Lakefield brought to a conclusion a day of unusual interest and inspiration along the line of foreign mission enterprise.

During the afternoon, Mrs. R. Paris presided at the piano, and in the evening, Mr. Arthur Collison at the organ for the congregational music.

A.Y.P.A. Banquet

HASTINGS, June 2.—St. George's Hastings A.Y.P.A. enjoyed a sumptuous banquet on Tuesday evening at a fitting close to the year's activities when they had as their guests young people from the Roseneath and Westwood Anglican churches, also the Rev. R. E. Lemon of Havelock as their guest speaker.

Blue and white, the A.Y.P.A. tabel around which almost forty were seated was very attractive colors, furnished a very attractive setting for the banquet. The long when centred with silver baskets containing bridal wreath and honeysuckle.

A most bountiful supper was served by an efficient committee and following the repast, Ed. Radford, Jr., president of the A.Y.P.A., acted as toastmaster and graciously welcomed everyone.

A toast to the King was proposed by Cyril Backbourne and in the usual way the assembly responded with God Save the King. Miss Bernice Dainard proposed the toast to the church which was fittingly responded to by the incumbent, Rev. Wm. Stocks.

In reply to a toast to the A.Y.P.A. by Rae Puffer, the guest speaker Rev. R. E. Lemon replied by a well-chosen address on "The British Empire and what it means to be a citizen of it." Jess Hall and Jack Taylor gave a pleasing guitar selection before the closing hymn.

Mission Circle Girls

Mrs. Fred Crate, Front street, Hastings, opened her home on Tuesday evening to the members of Trinity United Church Mission Circle girls for their monthly meeting.

The study book was in charge of Miss Grace Orr and was given in parts the following: Mrs. J. B. Scriver, Miss Margery Scriver, Mrs. M. Venters, Miss Jessie Lamb, Miss Helen Collins and Mrs. Grant Sine representing different countries and telling a story of the work in social services.

Mrs. W. Belleghem was hostess at her lovely summer home in Chemong Park for the annual picnic of the Peter Robinson Chapter I. O. D. E. Wednesday afternoon and evening, with over fifty members present.

With ideal weather conditions, a most enjoyable time was spent. The highlight of the occasion was the privilege accorded the members of meeting His Excellency Lord Tweedsmuir as he embarked from the Bessie Butler after his tour of the Kawartha Lakes.

A delicious supper, with arrangements in charge of Mrs. F. I. Puttenham, Florence Adams and Mrs. R. Lewis, was served in the living-room. This was followed by a brief outline by the regent, Mrs. H. Keefer, of a number of proposed Chapter activities, with special mention of the bridge and tea to be held on Saturday, June 18, at the summer home of Mrs. W. Belleghem, Mrs. S. Warne and Mrs. J. Dewart.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games, at the conclusion of which Mrs. F. Harper expressed the thanks of the girls to Mrs. W. Belleghem for her kindness and hospitality.

Lilac Tea and Home Cooking Sale

The lovely home of Mrs. John Mervin, Monaghan Road, was in gala dress Wednesday afternoon on the occasion of a Lilac Tea and sale of home cooking, held by the Southwest Circle of Knox United Church.

The guests were admitted by little Jeanette Sloan, grand-daughter of the hostess, who with Mrs. James Richmond, convener of the Circle, welcomed them to her home.

Mrs. John Barnes ushered the guests to the dining-room, where Mrs. J. Morton and Mrs. Shepherd poured tea at a table covered with a lace cloth and centered with a beautiful silver basket of lilacs and iris. Silver services were placed at each end, their gleaming beauty brought out by the light of tall ivory tapers in silver holders.

Mrs. W. Archibald, Mrs. George Pearson and Mrs. D. Gourley served, assisted by Mrs. George Cunningham, Mrs. A. Pearson, Miss Sidney Mervin, Mrs. W. Hendry and Mrs. E. Briely.

Those who wished their cups read were shown into the den by Effie Dale, where Mrs. A. McKinlay was in charge.

During the afternoon, Mrs. Thomas Williams, accompanied by Mr. W. R. Potter, sang "Cherry Ripe" in her usual lovely manner. Masters Henry and Cyril Robinson gave a violin and piano duet, and Master Gordon Thexton played a piano solo.

Mrs. George Clarke and Mrs. W. Archibald looked after the home cooking table, and Mrs. T. Sarginson was treasurer for the occasion.

IN THE HYGIENE COURT OF JUSTICE

"Undue Fatigue" Charge Against Housewife
(Before Mr. Justice Kruschen)
MOTHER-IN-LAW'S EVIDENCE

COUNSEL: Do you know the prisoner?
WITNESS: Yes, I do. The lazy....
JUDGE: (sternly): Do not be abusive.
COUNSEL: Why do you consider her fatigue unreasonable? The best of us get tired sometimes, you know.
WITNESS: Yes, we do when we've done a good day's work. But she is tired before she begins. Yawning through breakfast, neglecting her home.
JUDGE: As an experienced woman, what advice did you give to this young girl to help her prevent fatigue?
WITNESS: My advice to her is to do a good day's work occasionally.
JUDGE: How can she do that if she is unwell? Didn't you advise her to take Kruschen Salts?
PRISONER: (excitedly): My lord, she advised me not to. I wanted to take Kruschen.
JUDGE: W-H-A-T-!
WITNESS: I don't believe in these ...
JUDGE: Take that woman out of court.
Prisoner, though you have clearly been neglecting your health, I do not think that it was through your own fault. You realized the need for Kruschen, so I dismiss the charge against you.
PRISONER: Oh, thank you!
JUDGE: But I warn you: Do not miss 'the little daily dose' in future. I shall expect to hear no more about yawning at breakfast—or at supper either. Otherwise the consequences will be very serious indeed.
PRISONER: I shall start Kruschen tomorrow, my lord.
JUDGE: Very good. When girls like you get married they often give up outdoor sports and spend much too much time indoors, cooking and managing the home. The need for Kruschen is never stronger. The little daily dose helps keep you as fit and young looking as you were at school when you spent half the day playing tennis and hockey.
PRISONER: Oh, I am so glad to hear you say that, my lord.

KRUSCHEN SALTS
relieve constipation and rheumatism

Kruschen is a combination of several mineral salts which your body must get, in some way, to keep the blood pure, the inside clean, and the system generally toned up, but which you can't get in Nature's own way without abundant exercise and fresh air. You should have those salts every day; hence the importance of the "little daily dose". Every drug counter sells Kruschen in 25c, 45c and 75c bottles. It's the little daily dose that does it.

Britain's Women Get Call To Air Defence

LONDON, June 2—(CP). — Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary, faced with a lagging response to his March appeal for 1,000,000 air raid precaution workers, has started a new drive to enlist women as well as men and bring the voluntary organization to the required strength.

The Home Secretary made his second bid for a vast corps of civilian defence workers in an address to the nation in which he traced the progress of the last three months and urged co-operation in the government's efforts to minimize the possibility of panic and wholesale death in the event of aerial attack.

Sir Samuel placed the present strength of the citizen defenders at 400,000, dealt with objections he had heard to enlistment, promised individual instruction for every family in the United Kingdom in the use of gas masks, in gas-proofing homes and dealing with fires that might be started by incendiary bombs.

Sure Thousands Willing.

He said he knew there were thousands of old and young women passionately anxious to serve their country in any hour of need.

"Be ready for this special appeal when it comes out in the immediate future," he told his women listeners, "and bring to this special job the fresh minds, the keen imagination and the untiring devotion that have made women's work a priceless treasure in our national life."

Sir Samuel said he had heard people say: "These air raid precautions are humbug. If the government meant business they would be compulsory. If they were meant to be effective we would be spending hundreds of millions on them instead of 40 or 50."

Such criticism was wrong, he declared. The government took the project seriously and believed that if the average citizen would play his part an effective system could be established that would check chaos in time of emergency. It believed also that men and women would volunteer for service once they realized the need and were told what to do.

Stolen Car Wrecked

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., June 2.—(CP).—A stolen car driven at terrific speed sideswiped another car and crashed into a fence here last night. The occupants of the stolen car, found abandoned, fled to the woods. Four occupants of the other car were only slightly injured. The wrecked car was stolen from Wiarton four hours before the accident occurred.

Shipyards of Hong Kong, China, are rushed to capacity although hampered by a shortage of steel.

Discusses Crisis

Leslie Hore - Belisha, British war minister, is shown arriving at No. 10 Downing Street for a cabinet meeting during the tense Czech-German crisis. With 400,000 Czech troops facing a possible Nazi invader across borders and France serving notice on Hitler that she would take up arms on Czechslovakia's side. Britain's role was that of a peacemaker.

Doctor Is Arrested

KINGSTON, Ont., June 1—(CP)—On a charge of having performed an illegal operation, Dr. Charles Kenneth Robinson of this city was taken into custody today and appeared before W. W. Sands, Justice of the Peace, today. He was remanded until June 7 and bail was fixed at $10,000. Dr. Robinson has been practicing in Kingston for many years.

Conviction In Bogus Lottery

BOSTON, June 2 — (AP) — Joseph C. Gagne of Rochester, N.Y., pleaded guilty in Federal Court today a she and two other New York men were called to trial on charges they had used the mails in the operation of a fake Canadian lottery.

The court proceeded with the trial of Maurice Barach of Albany and Roy Hamlin of Glens Falls who, with Gagne, were indicted in 1937 on two counts, charging use of the mails in a scheme to defraud and three counts of conspiring to use the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Five Canadians, Dr. Robert Fiset, of St. Paul's Hospital, Saint Anne de Beupre, Que., Mike Zootis and Billy Burns of Quebec City; E. L. Guertin of Sherbrooke, Que., and Sam Feldman, alias Sam Rose, of Montreal, were named in the indictments but could not be extralited.

The indictments were based on seizures of tickets purported to be on the St. Paul's Hospital $500,000 sweepstakes of St. Anne de Beaupre. Federal investigators said 5,000,000 of the tickets, having a purported face value of $1 each, had been printed and that tens of thousands had been sod in New England.

Postal Inspector Tennyson Jefferson said there had not been a legitimate drawing on two previous issues of the tickets and that winners of smal laums had been named beforehand among friends and relatives of the ring.

With his family he once lived in a spacious apartment in Buckingham Palace. Now he is in a tiny flat in Kennington.

Chinese Defence Claimed Crumbling

SHANGHAI, June 2—(AP).—Japanese said today General Chiang Kai-Shek's latest defence lines along the cross-country Lunghai railway were giving way gradually before Japanese aerial power.

Japanese army planes intensively bombed Chinese troops near Lanfeng, although the army of Nippon still appeared to be balked in its efforts to reach Kaifeng and Chengchow, railway points on the Central China front which are important to the Japanese offensive planned against Hankow, China's provisional capital.

Japanese claimed capture of Ningling, 20 miles west of Kweiteh, as a further step in strengthening their 250-mile half-moon front, but they still were unable to force their way ahead to a marked degree, and some Japanese units about Lanfeng were cut off from communication with each other.

No one could say definitely what was the fate of the division headed by the colorful veteran of many campaigns, Lieutenant - General Kenji Doihara. Chinese said it had been cut to "mere remnants" and Japanese admitted the possibility Doihara had been encircled on three sides.

A Japanese naval communique said 30 Japanese planes yesterday raided General Chiang's capital at Hankow and shot down 20 Chinese planes, losing one ship of their own. Chinese said 54 Japanese planes were in the raid, and that 15 of them were shot down. Canton also was bombed.

Found Unconscious

MIDLAND, Ont., June 2—(CP).—Following an accident on the Midland-Penetang highway near here last night, Verne Strafford of Toronto was found unconscious in the ditch by Provincial Traffic Officer Don Coles of Midland.

The car in which Strafford was riding struck a fence on a downhill curve and ripped out several posts. It was stopped 75 feet distant.

Goes Fishing

Although kept busy at his bird sanctuary at Kingsville, Ont., Jack Miner finds time to hike-off on the odd fishing trip. Mrs. Miner generally accompanies him on these trips and as evidenced here is quite handy with the rod and line herself. These two lake trout were caught by the couple during a recent visit to northern Ontario.

Kellett Given Year

TORONTO, June 2—(CP).—Sentence of one year definite and one month indeterminate was passed by Judge James Parker on William Kellett, convicted of theft of $307 from the Ontario Government by whom he was employed some years ago.

Kellett was personally charged with the theft by Premier Mitchell Hepburn in his offices some time ago, when Kellett led a delegation of striking relief recipients from Lakeview.

Only 76 of 138 Meds Pass First Year

TORONTO, June 2—(CP).—Only 76 out of 138 first year medical students at the University of Toronto passed final examinations, the University revealed to-day.

Officials said "the poorest showing in years" was due to higher standards, made necessary by the number of poorer students who have repeatedly failed in previous years.

At the Toronto school anyone who has Upper school matriculations can come in, it was said, whereas at Queen's, the University of Western Ontario and in the United States universities take only the 50 best applicants or so.

It was decided a year ago that in the Toronto school students must attain 50 per cent in each subject and an average minimum of 60 per cent to pass.

In the next term, first-year students who fail in any single subject will be plucked.

Memory Returns To Hermit, Recalls $10,000

TORONTO, June 2—(CP).—Fred Delaney, 65 year old hermit who has been asked by the East York Relief Department to abandon his cave in the Don Valley and return to friends in Parrsboro, N.S., said to-day he had suddenly recovered his memory! and realized he had lost $10,000 in Western Canada.

The aged recluse said he had inherited the money from his father in Nova Scotia in 1915 and placed it in a bank in Prince Albert. But the relief officials got in touch with every bank in the Saskatchewan city and learned there was no money in Delaney's name.

He has suffered from amnesia ever since he was struck by hold-up men in Prince Albert in 1915, and recovered his memory only recently. Delaney believes the hold-up men, who obtained $200, hounded him while his memory was gone and got him to sign a release for the money in the bank.

The relief officials warned Delaney that his relief allowance would be discontinued and he would have to return to Nova Scotia. Delaney however, regards himself as a bona fide resident here, having taken up quarters in the Don Valley in 1931. For some time he managed to eke out a scanty living by gathering scrap metal.

Roebuck Asks Probe Of Mail Deal

Lashes McCullagh, Objects To Trial By Press

TORONTO, June 3 (CP).—Arthur W. Roebuck, former attorney-general and hydro commissioner, suggested to a special legislative committee today that it might "perform a public service" if it investigated the 1936 purchase of the Toronto Mail and Empire by C. George McCullagh, then publisher of the Globe and now of the Globe and Mail.

Mr. Roebuck made a heated reply to a statement by Mr. McCullagh published in today's Globe and Mail that the Toronto publisher had considered Mr. Roebuck "unfit to hold public office."

The former attorney-general read the following part of the McCullagh statement:

"I did tell Premier Hepburn on many occasions that, due to Mr. Roebuck's distorted views of right and wrong and his utter lack of respect for the judiciary, he was an unfit man to hold the position of attorney-General and, due to his lack of honor and principle in dealing with public questions, I regarded him as a menace to public life."

Yesterday Mr. Roebuck told the committee, appointed at the last session to inquire into affairs of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, that his dismissal from office was demanded by Premier Hepburn by Mr. McCullagh in December, 1936. He was not asked by the Premier to resign until April, 1937.

In his published reply, Mr. McCullagh denied the charge that Mr. Roebuck's resignation was "made the price of the Globe and Mail's support of the government.

Protests Trial By Press.

At the opening of to-day's sitting Mr. Roebuck said he wished to "object to the trial by newspaper which I see in this morning's paper." He took serious objection to "an improper besmirching and villification of a witness while he is in the box."

"Is that worse than the besmirching and villification of someone who is not a witness by a witness?" demanded J. H. Clark, Liberal member for Windsor-Sandwich, and a member of the committee.

Mr. Robuck asserted what he had said "was the truth under oath."

After reading part of Mr. McCullagh's statement, he said:

"I want to say that I have never evinced any disrespect for the Judiciary within its sphere. I need no lessons from the Globe and Mail in the matter of honesty, but I don't measure my principles by my bank account and haw they affect it.

"The Globe and Mail has not replied to my statements regarding its being the mouthpiece of private interests which are trying to destroy public ownership.

"This committe might perform a public service if it inquired into the agreement or arrangement or understanding with regard to Beauharnois or other power which accompanied the transfer of the Mail and Empire to The Globe, and determining whether there was any understanding when Mr. McCullagh purchased this paper from one of the power magnates that he should carry on the job."

The Wrong Place.

"This is not the place for that," interjected Attorney-General Gordon Conant, committee chairman.

Under questioning by Leopold Macaulay, Conservative House Leader, Mr. Roebuck said he learned of Mr. McCullagh's demand for his resignation through the Premier.

"This cross-fire is based on a con-

Held By Czechs

Beautiful blonde, Hon. Unity Freeman-Mitford, daughter of Britain's Lord Redesdale and noted in London as a close friend of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, was arrested and searched at Carlsbad on the Czechoslovakian border by Czech guards who held Miss Freeman-Mitford and two others on suspicion they were spies. Cameras, film and an autographed picture of Hitler were seized by the Czech authorities. Miss Freeman-Mitford was released after a five-hour detention, on orders from Praha.

Michael Gorman Struck By Car At Young's Point

While walking along the highway about a mile north of Youngs Point at 8.30 o'clock this morning, Michael Gorman of that place was struck by a hit-and-run driver and painfully injured.

He was walking on the east and right side of the road and the car was travelling south. From Chief Hendren of Lakefield the Examiner learned that the automobile swung onto its wrong side of the road, and although Mr. Gorman tried to sidestep it he wasn't quick enough to escape it. The car spun him around and he fell heavily in the gravel. Cuts on his face and head, and a broken finger, required attention. The driver of the car did not stop, but raced on down toward Young's Point. Mr. Gorman had to walk nearly a mile back to the hamelt to get medical attention.

Madawaska Plans Not Abandoned

TORONTO, June 3 (CP). — The Ontario Hydro Commission has not abandoned plans for development of power on the Madawaska River which runs into the Ottawa River, 35 miles north of the capital, Dr. T. H. Hogg, chairman of the commission, declared today.

He denied statements by T. Stewart Lyon, former commission chairman, and Arthur W. Roebuck, former commissioner, that the commission has abandoned the plan to take from the river an ultimate power load of something under 140,000 horsepower.

The Lyon and Roebuck statements were made during the investigation of Hydro matters now being conducted here, and Dr. Hogg declared "there has been no change in the picture since the old commissioners were there. They did not authorize proceeding with the work. They authorized us to proceed with plans for the work.

The chairman said field survey work has been completed in the area and the commission is now proceeding with plans for initial development.

Lay Treason Charge To Henlein

Czechs Ignoring It To Avoid Chance Of More Friction

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, June 3 (A.P.). — Ernst Eisenlohr, German Minister to Czechoslovakia, protested sharply to-day to the Czech Foreign Office against fresh incidents in which members of Czechoslovakia's Germanic minority were alleged victims.

The German minister's representations were directed at the seizure of a swastika, Nazi emblem, from a Sudeten German couple named Exner at Niederullersdorf on Sunday by Czechoslovak soldiers, and at the alleged ill-treatment of another German named Joseph Schnepf.

Germans said Schnepf was kicked by Czechoslovak soldiers at Maehrisch-Schoenberg because he was wearing Sudeten German party insignia.

The German protest came as authoritative sources declared the Czechoslovak Government had no intention of making a martyr of Konrad Henlein and that charges of high treason against the Sudeten German party leader probably would be ignored.

The Government desired to avoid increased friction with the Germanic minority and with Berlin, it was explained.

The charge of treason was brought before the State's attorney yesterday by Vlastislav Kilma, Czech National Union Party member of Parliament, who cited an interview with Henlein by Ward Price, London Daily Mail correspondent.

Forecasts 'Ruinous War'

Price's account quoted Henlein as forecasting a "ruinous war" unless Czechoslovakia - Sudeten German differences were settled in a few months.

Czechs explained that Deputy Klima belong to a radical wing of the Czechs national Union party which suffered a severe setback in recent communal elections.

They, as well as government officials, regarded Kilma's action as an effort to bolster his party.

Circles close to the government said it would be absurd to start proceedings against Henlein, since the strength of his party must be considered.

In Berlin, Deutches Nachrichten Buero (German official news agency), reported from Saxony a new incident of border violation by a Czechoslovak gendarmerie airplane.

DNB said the plane flew over Koenigswalde, five miles from the Czechoslovak border, Baerenstein, and Hammeroberweisenthal.

Short of Munitions Chinese Weaken

SHANGHAI, June 3.—(AP). — China's army appeared to be weakening again to-day before continuous artillery and aviation attacks on the Central China front, where Japanese are driving toward Kaifeng and Chengchow preparatory to a gigantitc offensive south along the Peiping-Hankow railway against Hankow, chief provisional capital.

Chinese reports from Hankow admitted the situation was becoming critical at Lanfeng, station along the Lunghai railway and a key city in the Chengchow drive.

Foreign military observers reported evidences the Chinese were running short of heavy munitions, having lost a considerable amount in the fall of Suchow.

Heavy Japanese artillery was emplaced against Chinese entrenchments around Lanfeng to-day, and Japanese occupation of that city appeared imminent.

No Germs From Sky

LONDON, June 3.—(CP)—Noxious germs will not be scattered from the skies in a future war, according to Wing-Commander E. J. Hodsoll, Inspector General of air raid precautions.

Bacteriological warfare is impossible, he told a meeting of sanitary inspectors here. It was not feasible to drop "bugs" from the air. They do not take very kindly to being compressed and thrown out," said Commander Hodsoll.

SIMCOE, Ont., June 3.—(CP).—Missing from her home since last Wednesday, Vivian Plews, 14-year-old daughter of Mrs. E. K. Plews, Simcoe, is causing a wide police search of Norfolk and surrounding counties. When last seen she was in the company of two young men, believed to be transients.

Prisoner, Schuschnigg Gets Brother To Act Proxy, Weds Countess

Vienna, June 3 (AP)

MARRIAGE OF Kurt Von Schuschnigg, former Chancellor of Austria, and Countess Vera Fugger Von Babenhausen, with the absent bridegroom represented by his brother as proxy, was reported today by a usually reliable informant.

The marriage, this source said, took place at 1 p.m. today in the private chapel of the Dominican Church in Vienna's downtown section.

Dr. Arthur Von Schuschnigg took the place of his brother, detained by the Nazi authorities since Germany's absorption of Austria March 13.

The informant said the witness for the 34-year-old countess, considered one of the most beautiful women of Vienna, was the ex-Chancellor's father, Major-General Arthur Von Schuschnigg. The bridegroom's witness was the sacristan of the church.

50 Million Housing Scheme Hinted By Gardiner

20 Million To Be Allowed Rural Areas With Loans At Not Over 2½ P.C.

Regina, June 3 (CP).—Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Agricultural Minister, said in the Saskatchewan election campaign last night $50,000,000 will be proposed by the Dominion government at the present House of Commons session to provide for an urban and rural low cost housing scheme throughout Canada.

In a speech at Esterhazy in Saltcoats riding Mr. Gardiner said $20,000,000 would be voted for low cost housing in rural areas and $30,000,000 in urban areas. This would be in addition to the $30,000,000 for self-liquidating municipal works announced in Ottawa Wednesday.

Under the housing plan it would be possible for farmers to obtain loans at an interest rate not exceeding two and one half per cent instead of five per cent as required under present schemes. The plan would not only benefit farmers but carpenters, artisans and trades people who would obtain employment.

First Hint of Total.

OTTAWA, June 3—(CP). — The Federal Government's low-cost, low-rental housing project, mentioned by Agriculture Minister Gardiner in a Saskatchewan election campaign speech last night, will be launched in accordance with recommendations of the now disbanded National Employment Commission.

The housing scheme was forecast when the supplementary estimates were tabled in the House of Commons May 20. Legislation giving effect to the proposal likely will be introduced in the House soon.

No mention has been made in Parliament yet of the amount to be devoted to the plan and Mr. Gardiner's disclosue it would be $50,000,000 marks the first intimation such a sum would be allocated to the housing development.

Ten Miners Perish In Scranton Blast

SCRANTON, Pa., June 3 (AP)—A barrier of debris and deadly gas held the secret today of an explosion which killed 10 miners in the eastern Pennsylvania anthracite field's second major disaster in two months.

State mine inspectors who donned gas masks and went with rescue squads 700 feet beneath the earth's surface to remove bodies and bring out six injured said the exact cause of the blast yesterday might not be determined for several days.

Wives and children of the miners —with several hundred townsfolk from nearby Avoca and other communities—stood silent or sobbing at the mouth of the slope of the red ash vein of the Volpe Coal Company as dead and injured were brought to the surface.

Negro Admits Killing 4 Women, Girl

CHICAGO, June 3 (AP) — A young Negro whose hands and clothing were flecked with fresh blood when he was arrested has confessed slaying four women and a young girl, police investigators said today.

Three of the victims were slain in Chicago, two in Los Angeles. All were killed in the same manner—bludgeoned with a brick by a dusky night prowler who crept into their sleeping quarters.

Officials said the confession was made by Robert Nixon, 18, alias Thomas Crosby.

Presbyterians Like C.N.R., Work, No Cash

TORONTO, June 3.—(CP).— The financial situation of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was likened to that of the Canadian National Railways at the General Assembly of the church here to-day.

Presenting the report of the Board of Administration Chairman C. M. Potts of Ottawa, lamented the lack of working capital available to the church.

"In some ways we are like the Canadian National Railways," he said. "We have plenty of work to do and plenty of territory to cover, but we don't have enough revenue.

"We have come nearer to success than the C.N.R. has, but still we have not succeeded. We have no working capital in cash. It is not good business to work on borrowed money, but I suppose it is good religion."

Mr. Pitts condemned the tendency to concentrate efforts on welfare congregations. He warned that more attention must be given to the position of the church as a whole.

The Board reported it is hoped incorporation will have been accomplished before the next meeting of the General Assembly. He told of the handicaps under which the church worked, because its properties all over the world were held in names of individuals.

Fear Succession Duties

Mr. Pitts voiced alarm over the effects of succession duties legislation in various provinces. He declared if the duties prevent gifts or bequests for religious, educational and charitable purposes, these obligations will have to be taken over by the government.

Any note of pessimism was regretted by the treasurer, E. W. McNeill of Toronto, who told the commissioners amid enthusiastic applause that "your position is sound and solvent."

"Your portfolio of securities is equal to that of any organziation, financial, commercial or otherwise," he said. "Some of them are not what is known as trustee securities but these are gifts. We have been able to maintain an average yield of about four per cent."

Operating deficits have shown consistent decreases in the last four or five years, the treasurer emphasized.

"From the point of view of the church at large you have no cause for dissatisfaction or discouragement," he concluded. He expressed confidence that there would be no operating deficit for the church next year.

Poor On History

SASKATOON, June 3.—(CP). — Many Australians were not aware Canada was part of the British Empire, J. H. Wesson of Regina, President of the Saskatchewan wheat pool, said last night in an address at a dinner tendered by the wheat pool to Junior Club members participating in Inter-Club competition here.

Governor Is Cheered Along Route

Trip From Chemong To Kirkfield Made In 9 Hours

The Kawarthas have claimed another admirer in Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General of Canada. Today he is bidding farewell to the district after a three-day cruise through the great chain of lakes to Orillia.

All along the route His Excellency expressed appreciation of the beauty of the scenery about him, and took a keen interest in the progress of the Bessie Butler. It was a thoroughly satisfying trip in every particular, he said.

Thursdays trip from Chemong to Kirkfield lasted nine hours, from 9.30 a.m. until 6.30 in the afternoon. In the two days he had travelled close to eighty miles over the waters of this district.

While low lying clouds and occasional showers threatened to lessen Lord Tweedsmuir's pleasure in the trip yesterday, the day was saved by the action of hundreds of people, many of whom had journeyed many miles, in turning out to greet the King's Representative as he passed by. Bad weather meant nothing to them—they gave him a royal reception at half a dozen points along the route and at every small lock and overhead bridge there were crowds lined up waiting for a glimpse of him.

Lord Tweedsmuir proved himself a most democratic and obliging person. At every point where only a few scattered residents awaited him

No Clues Found Of Kidnappers

PRINCETON, Fla., June 3 (AP).—Kidnappers of James Bailey Cash, Jr., remained at large today while authorities and hundreds of volunteer searchers bent every effort to uncover a trail already grown cold.

More than five days ago the five-year-old youngster was snatched from his bed by abductors, who apparently made few, if any, tell-tale blunders.

James Bailey Cash, Sr., left his home today for the first time in three days, accompanied by two Federal agents, and sped away in an automobile, giving rise to speculation that a trace had been found of his son.

The trio returned to the Cash home after half an hour, making no comment. It was learned they visited a rock pit where a woman pointed out a burlap bag containing something decomposed, which proved upon investigation to be the body of a dog.

Ask Ottawa Give More Health Aid

TORONTO, June 3 (CP) — Hon. Harold J. Kirby, Ontario Minister of Health, told Dr. J. J. McCann, Liberal member of parliament for Renfrew South, at a banquet of the Ontario Health Officers Association here tonight to go back "to his minister of health at Ottawa and tell him we in Ontario will expect a lot more co-operation on the part of the federal government than we have received in the past."

Dr. McCann had spoken just before the minister. Announcing his intention of talking "about 15 or 20 minutes as a sort of supplement to Mr. Kirby's address," Dr. McCann in a 45-minute address called disease a national problem and urged a more united effort by provincial and federal governments in the field of public health.

Mr. Kirby charged the Dominion Government with a lack of active co-operation. However, he told the banquet, "I do appreciate the co-operation the department has received from the various medical officers of health throughout the province."

Leads Presbyterians

Rev. Dr. Donald MacOdrum, ABOVE, of First Presbyterian church, Brockville, Ont., was elected Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada at the 64th general assembly in Toronto. The new moderator was born in Cape Breton and has been in the ministry for 39 years. Dr. MacOdrum was elected over Rev. Dr. Stuart Parker, of Toronto.

Wheat Acreage Highest In 15 Years

WINNIPEG, June 3.— (CP).—Manitoba farmers, who harvested last year their biggest money crop since 1928, were wel ladvanced today on the trail to another bumper crop. Estimated wheat acreage was the highest in 15 years.

"Present crop conditions are very satisfactory," said J. H. Evans, Manitoba's Deputy Minister of Agriculture. "The grain is not suffering from lack of rain, but rain would greatly help. Unless rain comes soon the hay crop, worth more than $4,000,000 last year, will be short."

There has been little soil drift damage on Manitoba's estimated 3,044,000 acres in wheat, about six per cent more acreage than last year.

Farm experts who saw present crop prospects repeating favorable 1936 conditions cheerfully pointed to a notable difference. The 1936 crop, potentially the greatest in Manitoba history, was ruined by rust, bringing farmers the near-record low of $14,183,000. This year an estimated 75 per cent of the acreage is in Thatcher, a rust resistant wheat.

Value of Manitoba's wheat crop has soared amazingly in the past year. The rust-damaged 1935 crop yielded $14,183,000. Next year it was more than 50 per cent higher at $23,660,000 and last year almost doubled at $46,560,000.

June rains are essential if this figure is to be reached or exceeded. Moisture conditions at April 1, good throughout the province, were excellent in northern crop areas. In April and May northern precipitation remained about normal, but in the south it was between 10 and 35 per cent. below normal.

Canon Hedley Found Dead At Cottage

Believed Overcome By Smoke In Fighting Bush Fire

Dead since Sunday night, suffocated by smoke from a bush fire which he had fought alone near a group of cottages where he had planned to spend the summer on the Burleigh shore of Stoney Lake, the body of Rev. Canon C. W. Hedley, Dean of the Anglican College of the University of British Columbia, was found Thursday evening by his nephew, Kenneth A. Mackenzie, headmaster of The Grove School, Lakefield, in circumstances that offered little more than surmise of the incidents of the tragedy.

Dr. J. C. Smith, coroner, told the Examiner at Lakefield this morning that, pending the verdict of an inquest to be held next week, he believed death was caused by asphyxiation by the smoke of the fire and also from shock.

Arrived May 26.

Rev. Canon Hedley had come to Stoney Lake Thursday, May 26, in advance of the summer colony. He had spent the night as the guest of Mr. Mackenzie at The School, and went on to the lake where he intended to build a small house for himself on the property and near the summer cottage owned by his daughter, Mrs. Townsend of Oakville.

Last Saturday he had gone over to David Charlton's store at Kawartha Park to get a few necessities, including some extra planks for his building. At that time he remarked that he had some raking up to be done, but didn't intend to go at it on Sunday. As the planks were found on the wharf where he had left them on Saturday, and as he would undoubtedly have removed them on Monday, it is supposed that he died on Sunday evening. Possibly it might have been Saturday or even Monday night, but the slender and vague evidence seems to point to Sunday night.

Canon Hedley's wrist watch stopped at nine o'clock from the effect of water, probably as he thrust his arm into the lake to scoop up pailfuls. Apparently it was nine o'clock at night when in some way he noticed the fire. He was wearing slippers and a sweater coat, and he had drawn his trousers over his pyjamas.

Fire Rather Extensive.

He had apparently used three or four pails. One of them was found in a burnt over area among the pines some distance from the shore. Dr. Smith roughly estimated that the fire had blazed over an acre or more. It was quite extensive and far too much for one man to extinguish.

It was sai dthat possibly Canon Hedley had made a fire to burn rubbish he may have raked, but there was no actual vidence on that point, or as to whether it might have left embers that broke out again at dark.

The body was found at the foot of a flat faced stone about eight feet high, which Canon Hedley may have tried to clamber over in retreat from the flames. One arm was bent protectively over his eyes. Ten feet away was a row of teeth probably cast from his mouth by coughing. Somehow the fire had burnt itself out in the little bay of the Burleigh shore not far from Kawartha Park and Clear Lake, probably unnoticed in that rather seclusive section of Stoney Lake.

Mr. Mackenzie informed The Examiner to-day that he had invited his uncle to The Grove School for the visit of the Governor-General,

Greatest Era Of Prosperity Coming, Ford Predicts

DETROIT, June 3 (A.P.).— In his first statement on public affairs since he returned home from a recent Eastern trip that took him to Washington as White House visitor, Henry Ford said in an interview to-day that nothing has happened in recent weeks to change his conviction that "we are going to have the greatest era of prosperity and happiness we have ever known."

Ford sat astride a bench in the mess hall of a boys' farm camp, not far from his home in Dearborn, and pointing toward the nearly 300 acres under cultivation by the young farmers, said: "And it will come through a back-to-the-land movement."

Ford reiterated his criticism of "certain financial interests" in the United States which, he said, would like to bring about another war.

Puts Finger on 25.

"Somebody once said that 60 families have directed the destinies of the nation," Ford said. "It might well be said that if somebody would focus the spotlight on 25 persons who handle the nations finances, the world's real war makers would be brought into bold relief."

The motor car manufacturer said veterans of the Great War would have an increasing part in shaping the future of the affairs of the United States. He charged once more that some financial interests "seek to control food prices" and declined to discuss for publication his call at the White House.

Ford said there was nothing about his recent visit to Wall Street to see J. P. Morgan that was inconsistent with his opposition to "certain financial interests."

Council Names Committee To Meet Police Commission

A special committee composed of Aldermen Bradburn, Dutton, and Glover will confer with the Police Commission in regard to the latter body's request that the Council arrange to have Judge L. V. O'Connor conduct a judicial inquiry into charges made against the Police Department, the Finance Committee decided at a meeting on Thursday night.

When the resolution of the Commission was read to the committee by Ald. Cotton, chairman, Mayor Hamilton said that in January T. L. Garner of The Examiner had complained about treatment accorded Keith Copping of The Examiner staff by Chief Constable Newhall, following the trial of Alexander Welch, and that later a letter had been received from former Constable Joseph Wheeler in which the latter made charges in regard to the manner in which the attempted burglary of a branch of the F. and G. Stores had been handled.

There were two courses before the Commission, the Mayor said, either to conduct the investigation themselves or to request the Council to arrange a judicial inquiry. The second had been decided upon.

"Personally I do not feel competent to sit in judgment on these matters," said the Mayor.

"The investigation should be done by some one who has no connection with the matter and who is not prejudiced in any way. Judge Smoke, I think, feels the same way about the case."

"The Commission, in any case, would have to make the final decision in the matter," remarked Ald. Bradburn.

Circus Faces Charge Of Cruelty With 27 Horses

Oshawa, June 3.

NON-APPEARANCE of Jesse Adkins, of Robbins Brothers' Circus, charged with ill-treating horses, led to the suggestion by Magistrate Ebbs, in Police Court today, who remanded the case for one week, that as a matter of convenience the charge be further pressed at Kingston, where the circus operated today. The charge was laid by the Oshawa Humane Society in conjunction with the Provincial organization, which has jurisdiction throughout the province. The Oshawa inspector, in inspecting the horses of the circus, found a number with sore shoulders and ordered twenty-seven of them off work.

Roebuck Lays His Ousting On McCullagh's Pressure

Price Of Globe's Support For Hepburn, Denies Breach Over C.I.O.

TORONTO, June 3 (CP).—No breach existed between Premier Hepburn and Arthur W. Roebuck on the committee for industrial organization issue in the Oshawa strike of April, 1937, according to the former attorney-general of Ontario. His resignation was the result of differences of opinion on power - purchase contracts with Quebec companies.

Mr. Roebuck yesterday told a legislative committee investigating affairs of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission he resigned on request after C. George McCullagh, president and publisher of the Toronto Globe and Bail, demanded Premier Hepburn dismiss him. He said the publisher also demanded the government change its policy on cancelled power contracts.

In December, 1936, four months before Mr. Roebuck's resignation, the premier told him Mr. McCullagh demanded "that the Government change its Hydro policy and had demanded my elimination from the government," Mr. Roebuck testified. This, he said "was the price of the Globe and Mail's support of the government."

In a statement issued last night, Mr. McCullagh said Mr. Roebuck's charges were "untrue." The publisher said: "I never at any time made the Globe and Mail's support contingent on whether Mr. Roebuck was in or out of the government."

"The Only Conclusion"

"No one can trace the history of what took place and come to any other conclusion other than that I was eliminated because I, like Mr. Lyon, (T. Stewart Lyon, former Hydro chairman) would not sign a new Beauharnois contract," Mr. Roebuck said. Liberal committee members protested the reason given for his resignation was his difference with Mr. Hepburn who opposed the C.I.O.

Mr. Roebuck said no breach developed between himself and the Premier on the C.I.O. strike issue. He found Mr. Hepburn making "provocative statements," and "suggested he be more impartial." There was "nothing to be gained by taking sides," the former Attorney-General said. "I told him to lose as little hide as possible and we parted good friends."

In a three-day speech in the Legislature in 1935, Mr. Roebuck, as attorney-general, expressed the government's determination to cancel the Quebec power contracts negotiated prior to 1934. He said Mr. McCullagh had lauded his address and said: "Your speech cost me $40,000, but you were right."

McCullagh Denies It.

The publisher said in his statement last night:

"Mr. Roebuck tells an untruth when he says I told him his speech had cost me $40,000. Neither his speech nor the government's act of repudiation cost me one cent, as I never owned, nor do I now own, any of the bonds of the Quebec power companies."

Mr. McCullagh added: "Mr. Roebuck's dismissal from the government was due entirely to his failure to fall in line with the stand of his Prime Minister in regard to the C.I.O. invasion of Oshawa. This is perfectly obvious, and I believe the Prime Minister will confirm this."

87,000 On Relief Arouses Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., June 3—(AP)—Cleveland's relief administration was criticized today as law and wasteful in a special examiner's report by state auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

Inadequate financial provision by city council for relief purposes, refusal to maintain adequate records and to adopt safeguards against waste of money, and asserted domination of the relief situation by social service workers were blamed for the recurring crisis in Ohio's largest city, where 87,000 are on direct relief.

"The entire relief administration is being conducted, controlled and administered by the social workers and their union," the report said.

The report added that Cleveland relief agencies had established "a powerful bureaucracy motivated solely for the purpose of establishing a job tenure."

The auditor's report followed charges by an 11-member house investigating committee that social workers in unspecified urban centres were seeking to perpetuate the relief problem for their own benefit.

New Zealand will provide free medical service and hospitals for all.

Need Of Pilgrims Returns Again

TORONTO, June 3 (CP).—Men who were ordained into the ministry of the Methodist Church here 25 years ago will hold a jubilee reunion tonight in conjunction with the sessions of the Toronto conference of the United Church. Most of the 29 members of that ordination class are attending the current conference.

Members of the 1938 ordination class who will be ordained Sunday were presented to the conference last night. They were advised by Rev. Harris E. Kirk of Baltimore that college professors were not their best counsellors.

"The worst advisers youth can have are usually the professors in our colleges," Dr. Kirk said. "They know everything about anything but have no adequate conception of responsibility. The world needs more simplification. We've been travelling too high. We need more pilgrims again. We've got to weed out a lot of camp followers if we are going to make further progress."

Lord Tweedsmuir, on Tuesday, and had been assured that he would come. Mr. Mackenzie missed Canon Hedley that morning, but was not perturbed by his absence. Then, on Wednesday he was requested by the Governor-General to accompany him in his trip through the lakes to Chemong. Hence, it was not until Thursday that Mr. Mackenzie was freed of his duties to motor up to the lake. He left after chapel about 7 p.m., was somewhat alarmed by the expansive evidence of the fire, but had no apprehension that something was amiss. He was accompanied by his wife and a friend, and was the first to come on the body of his uncle.

Survived by One Son.

Rev. Canon Hedley is survived by one son, Paul of Goldenville, Nova Scotia, the site of the Guysboro Mines, and three daughters, Mrs. John Townsend of Oakville, Mrs. George Cassidy of Cobalt, and Mrs. Douglas MacKay of Toronto. He was a chaplain with the 58th Battalion, C.E.F., and was transferred to the 52nd in the same connection, had a very interesting military career, and was keenly interested in the Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, and its ex-service men.

Canon Hedley's wife, who died in tragic circumstances of rescue in 1912, was Florence Mackenzie, the only sister of the late Dr. A. W. Mackenzie of The Grove.

Dr. Smith told The Examiner today that from his examination of the scene on Thursday evening, it seemed that Canon Hedley was overcome by smoke in fighting the fire and that shock was also a factor. That was a matter, however, for an inquest which is likely to be held at Lakefield next week. The body was removed to Webster's Funeral Home at Lakefield, where a post-mortem examination was made.

Unemployment Delay Stirs Up House

OTTAWA, June 3 (CP)—A display of old-time political oratory from Opposition Leader Bennett who scored the government for delay in bringing down even "the first instalment" of its policy on employment, featured debate in the House of Commons on the bill providing works loans for municipalities which finally was passed.

Mr. Bennett yesterday recalled the attitude of Liberals, when in opposition, to the last government's efforts to deal with unemployment, and charged that after four months of the present session the only employment measure produced depended for its effectiveness on provincial legislation.

Finance Minister Dunning, sponsoring the bill to provide loans to municipalities up to $30,000,000 to be spent on "self-liquidating" projects, said it was hoped the measure could be so amended that no enabling provincial legislation would be required. He had previously said some special sessions of provincial legislatures might be needed to pass enabling legislation.

The political aspect of the debate was soon ended and the bill was considered in committee with all parties co-operating with Mr. Dunning in efforts to improve it.

The afternoon session was almost entirely devoted to discussion of the loans bill and the evening was occupied with consideration of the estimates for the national revenue department, with all the items passing.

Ilsley Questioned.

Revenue Minister Ilsley was given a close questioning on operations of the Act, with particular reference to the dumping duties, and at one stage a debate was launched between Conservative and Liberal members on the advantages of free trade as against high protection.

Under Liberal administration, Mr. Ilsley said, the Department had been carried on as a revenue collection agency rather than an agency for the protection of industry.

The Minister told questioners eight lawsuits were pending for recovery of income and other taxes as a result of the Royal Commission textile inquiry, with $1,000,000 involved. He said effective measures had been taken to avoid income tax evasion and there was very little of it in Canada.

Mr. Dunning had occasion several times during debate on the loans bills to reiterate that it was not to be considered the government's answer to the unemployment problem. He intimated there would be several additional measures.

Debate on the general question of unemployment was forestalled when Mr. Dunning interrupted Hon. H. H. Stevens (Recon., Kootenay East) as he was about to discuss the situation of transient unemployed. Mr. Stevens ended his remarks at once but declared the bill, which he was disposed to support, was no solution to the problem.

"I am warning the House," Mr. Stevens said, "that if we do not grapple with these problems in this session we shall invite disaster. We are playing with fire when we disregard the unemployment situation as it applies to single, homeless, unemployed men."

Earlier in the day Angus MacInnis (C.C.F. Vancouver East) had asked the government if a time could be reserved for discussion of the Vancouver transient unemployed. "We might have discussed that instead of the padlock law the last two days,' observed Justice Minister Lapointe.

Labor Minister Rogers said there had already been considerable discussion although he was not suggesting the possibilities of debate had been exhausted. However, the government was fully aware of the situation and as anxious as any that it be settled quickly and properly.

Time For Some Policy.

Mr. Bennett observed that it was now June and the House had been in session since January. It was the function of a government to come to Parliament with policies on major problems and unemployment had been described by the Prime Minister as one of the greatest problems in Canada. If this policy had existed at the start it should have been made known earlier.

"Year after year, month after month, week after week and day after day, during the years from 1930 to 1935, complaints were heard from this side of the House, in season and out of season. Criticisms bitter and remorseless were launched against the government of the day because of what was said to be delay in dealing with these matters.

"Now we find this government, on the second day of June, introducing what the Minister of Labor (Mr. Rogers) described the other day as the policy of the government to deal with unemployment.

"If this government had this policy, as it should have had, when the house met, why did they let the legislatures of the nine provinces prorogue without being advised of it?

"Is it any wonder the people ask what is the matter with parliament? And then, when the mountain labors and brings forth a mouse, what have we? Why did they not bring down a policy that does not necessitate the legislatures meeting?

Can't Satisfy All

Mr. Dunning denied effectiveness of the measure would depend on action by legislatures but said it was impossible to provide a bill that would meet conditions in all provinces with respect to municipal powers.

Loans to the provinces must be secured by municipal debentures guaranteed by the provinces and Mr. Bennett maintained provincial legislatures would have to legislate to that end. The bill, however, provides the assurance from provincial governments, satisfactory to the finance minister, would suffice pending action by legislatures.

Daniel McIvor (Lib., Fort William) brought a clergyman's point of view to bear on the bill. "Perhaps the bill is late in coming," he said, but it is better late than never. Like Jacob—I mean the first Jacob—waited 14 years for Rachel and Jacob would say she was worth waiting for. I would say this bill was well worth waiting for."

versation which Mr. Hepburn passed on to you?"

"Yes, not by a personal interview with Mr. McCullagh."

The week-end prior to Mr. Hepburn's request for his resignation, the Premier had spent with Mr. McCullagh and Bethune Smith, he testified. He understod Bethune Smith at that time was treasurer of the Ontario Liberal Party.

"Mr. McCullagh was in the Premier's office when he wrote the letter asking for my resignation," Mr. Roebuck remarked.

The former attorney-general repeated his belief, expressed yesterday, that he was not asked to resign in April, 1937, because of his disagreement with the premier over Mr. Hepburn's stand against the Committee for Industrial Organization in the Oshawa strike of automobile workers.

Took No Action On C.I.O.

While he did not subscribe to the premier's anti-C.I.O. policy he had made no public statement on the matter and had taken no action. He had been dismissed without being given the opportunity to interview Mr. Hepburn.

"That convinced me that the C.I.O. issue was not the real reason for my dismissal," he said. "I felt then that I knew the reason was the hydro millions and not a passing labor dispute. I could not prove it then, but as events have transpired I can prove it now, at least to my own satifaction."

Mr. Conant mentioned that in none of the correspondence relating to the dismissal was there reference to any other issue than the C.I.O.

My dismissal was the result of a coming agreement with Beauharnois," declared Mr. Roebuck. "I felt it then, but my hope was that I was mistaken. I thought at the time that the premier might be sticking to his guns. I thought so when he talked back-to-Niagara. But I am clear now that he was not sticking to his guns."

Mr. Roebuck said that a member of the power commission he was strongly opposed to the commission signing a contract with the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company for a power supply that was cut off when an original contract was cancelled in 1935.

Mr. Clark, chief Liberal questioner, mentioned that Mr. Roebuck was given the opportunity of remaining on the hydro commission when he resigned as attorney-general.

Why Didn't You Stay?

"Why did you not accept that, remain on the hydro commission and defy the premier to enter into a new agreement with Beauharnois?" he asked.

"I felt that I could be of more use off hydro than on it," Mr. Roebuck replied. "I thought I could do more to protect hydro from being robbed when I was not at the mercy of those who were doing this thing. If I had remained on hydro I would be what the Globe calls 'A disgruntled civil servant.'"

Mr. Clark asked why Mr. Roebuck had considered for some days before resigning from the commmission.

"Well, $8,000 a year, which is what I believe I was to have been paid, is not something a man in my position can lightly diregard," Mr. Roebuck replied. "I could not turn it down lightly and without consideration."

A Cowardly Attitude

Mr. Clark shouted: "I suggest you were absolutely cowardly in your attitude to Hydro. Here was your opportunity to protect Hydro if you wanted to protect it."

Mr. Roebuck: "I leave it to the people of this province whether I have less courage than Mr. Clark."

To a suggestion by W. A. Baird, Conservative member for Toronto High Park, Mr. Roebuck said it would have been "useless and practically impossible" for him to remain as power commissioner.

He had accepted a retainer from the commission to act as associate counsel in an appeal to the privy council in the Beauharnois case. At the time he had not known negotiations were under way for a new Beauharnois contract.

"Didn't the Premier invite you to stay on the commission?" asked Hon. M. M. MacBride, Labor Minister.

"He didn't express a desire. He said I could if I wanted to. I have never spoken to Mr. Hepburn, except across the floor of the House, since April of 1937. I was denied an interview. The offer that was made was made in a newspaper article and not in a letter to me, which I considered extraordinary. I thought it a matter of duty to resign."

The McCullagh "Threat."

Mr. Clark again questioned Mr. Roebuck about his evidence that Mr. McCullagh had threatened to use his newspaper's influence against the Government if Mr. Roebuck was not dismissed.

"You said the Premier told you that McCullagh had gone to him and threatened that if you were not dismissed he would turn the full power of The Globe on the Government?"

"That is your phraseology," said Mr. Roebuck. "This morning's paper corroborates it when Mr. McCullagh says he told the Premier I was not a fit and proper person to be in the Government because of my views on Hydro."

"He did not say Hydro," said Mr. Clark.

"They are all Hydro matters," asserted Mr. Roebuck. "It was because I disagreed with St. James Street that I was dismissed."

"You said that McCullagh would attack the Government if you were not dismissed?"

"There would be an editorial attack."

Mr. Clark mentioned that the premier had not yielded to Mr. McCullagh's "threat."

"Not at that time," said Mr. Roebuck.

"You are the man who says that the Beauharnois deal was the cause of your dismissal despite the fact that he stood by you and defied the powerful Globe," said Mr. Clark. "He stood by you until the Oshawa strike through thick and thin."

Call From Premier.

He had been at Niagara Falls on a vacation when the automobile workers strike occurred in April, 1937, and the Premier had telephoned him, Mr. Roebuck related. He denied Mr. Hepburn had had "to send" for him.

In Toronto he had a "friendly conference" with the Premier, adding: "I said I thought the strike would peter out and said the government should not take sides. I said that the talk of raising an army to keep the union out sent cold shivers up my back."

The question of maintaining law and order during the strike had not been discussed.

"Was that the conference with Mr. Atkinson?" asked Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon.

"Yes, you were still there after Mr. Atkinson left."

(The reference was believed to be to Joseph E. Atkinson, publisher of the Toronto Daily Star).

"He was the champion of the C.I.O. and bitterly opposed to the government," said Mr. Clark.

"No he wasn't," declared Mr. Roebuck. "He was the champion of human rights and the advocate of freedom for labor."

Mr. Roebuck denied the Premier had mentioned his views were contrary to the government's settled policy and that there might be a riot at Oshawa.

Atkinson and Hepburn Argue.

"There was an argument between Mr. Atkinson, the Prime Minister and the Provincial Secretary —and I think Mr. Leduc (Hon. Paul Leduc, Minister of Mines) also chipped in —with regard to the policy that should be followed by a Liberal government with regard to labor matters," Mr. Roebuck related.

Both before and after his resignation Mr. Roebuck said he saw references in the press that a new contract was to be signed with Beauharnois. Resignation of T. Stewart Lyon from the commission chairmanship could also "be seen coming."

Mr. Macaulay took over questioning and asked if there were other indications that negotiations were in progress.

"I ran into Dr. Hogg (Dr. T. H. Hogg, then chief engineer of the commission and now chairman) and Bethune Smith by accident on one occasion," Mr. Roebuck said. "I had gone down to the Royal York hotel to see a client and evidently made a mistake in the number of the room.

"The door was open and thinking it was the room I was looking for I walked right in. I found Dr. Hogg and Bethune Smith in the room with a man who did not rise but had his back turned to me.

"We exchanged pleasantries, but the other gentleman kept his back turned to me. He had reddish hair."

Mr. Clark: "Is that a power baron?"

Mr. Roebuck: "I thought so at the time.

Thought It Was Henry.

He said he thought it was R. A. G. Henry of the Beauharnois Company "and apparently a conference was going on."

Mr. Macaulay: "What did you see in the room?"

Mr. Roebuck: "I saw these three worthies at a table. I naturally drew conclusions."

Mr. Macaulay: "What conclusions did you draw?"

Mr. Conant: "I think that question is highly irregular and I'm not going to allow it."

Mr. Clark said he was willing to let the question stand. "Guesses and deductions" could be eliminated later.

Mr. Nixon said both Dr. Hogg and Bethune Smith would appear before the committee as witnesses.

Answering the original question, Mr. Roebuck said he drew the inference that Beauharnois negotiations were taking place.

He did not know, he said in reply to Mr. Clark, that Bethune Smith had not acted for Beauharnois and that Ward Price, K.C., was the Toronto agent for the Beauharnois vice-president and counsel.

"And I may as well tell you that the other man of the three in the room with his back to you was Mr. Kenny, and he wasn't a red-haired baron," declared Mr. Clark.

But Mr. Roebuck said he knew Mr. Kenny, who was not further identified for the committee, and it was not Mr. Kenny he saw in the hotel room.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Serious rust-damage reports from sectons of the United States winter wheat belt to-day caused a good buying rally on Winnipeg Grain Exchange, lifting wheat futures higher for the fifth consecutive session. At the final bell prices were 1⅛ to 2¼ cents higher, July $1.02⅝, October 79b, December 77½c.

Temporary lack of Southern demand for July wheat allowed that future to slip more than two cents early to-day after it had advanced more than 13 cents earlier in the week.

In the widely fluctuating market, July climbed more than five cents from its bottom levels while October and December advanced more than two cents above yesterday's close. The deferred options encountered good resting orders in early dealings and their declines were small.

Action Held Up On Licenses For July 12

The Finance Committee wrestled with the question of licences for eating houses and refreshment booths on July 12 for twenty minutes on Thursday night, and finally wound up by shelving the whole thing until the next meeting.

When the question came up Ald. Bradburn said that it was only fair that the people who were in business the year round should be protected on a day when there was a chance for them to get some extra revenue.

Other members of the committee agreed with that opinion — until someone mentioned the churches and their habit of serving meals on July 12. Whereupon there was such a chorus of speeches insisting that the churches should be allowed to carry on as usual on the day of the Orange demonstration that Alderman Gordon was heard to say something smilingly about "the church vote."

Nobody seemed to have any workable suggestion of how the regular business men were to be protected against competition and at the same time the churches were to be allowed to have free fling—so finally it was decided to defer action until the July meeting.

Pin Ball Game Issue to Stand

The question of pin ball games bobbed up again before the Finance Committee on Thursday night when Deputy-Clerk E. A. Outram reported that the revenue from licensing these games had been $2,150.

Ald. Malcolm McIntyre suggested that something should be done about such games, and drew from Ald. Cotton, chairman of the committee, a reply to the effect that pin ball games were legal—a point disputed by several other members.

Ald. Glover pointed out that the Dominion Government was amending the Criminal Code in regard to such machines, and suggested that before taking any further action here it might be advisable to wait and see what was done by the Ottawa administration.

He introduced a motion to that effect, and it was seconded by Ald. Dutton, and carried.

Finnish Girl Is Now Minister

TORONTO, June 3—(CP).—By unanimous vote the Toronto Conference of the United Church of Canada to-day received a Finish girl as a full-fledged minister. She is Miss Elma Sivia Hjelt, who became an ordained minister some years ago in Illinois and since has been working in Northern Ontario.

Rev. W. R. Clements of Swastika arose to tell the Conference that Miss Hjelt "has been a fine influence among the Finnish people in the north and is wining them from Communism to Christianity." Rev. Salem Bland of Toronto, said "no people who come to us from Europe give more promise than the Finns. The Finnish people are wavering between Communism and Christianity and if they can be won for Christ they will be an important factor among the foreign peoples in this country."

Miss Hjelt was present and when the Assembly called her she walked to the front with a blush on her face.

Mr. Fleming did not meet the educational standards although the Conference commended his work. Dr. Mursell and Rev. Dickinson were referred to the Settlement committee.

British Transport Chief Rides Truck To Learn Road Conditions

London, June 3 (CP)

DRESSED in an old raincoat, muffler and cap, a man hopped aboard a seven-ton transport truck in London's east end the other night.

The "mate" was Leslie Burgin, Minister of Transport. Sitting in the cab of the truck he drove 70 miles from London to Daventry, then turned around and drove back to London in another truck.

The transport minister wanted to get a first-hand insight into conditions. He steered the truck for a quarter of a mile himself and found it light as a car to handle.

Mr. Burgin complimented the truck drivers on their road sense. After the trip he said "I saw half a dozen examples of bad driving, every one on the part of a private car."

Bacteria Counts

TORONTO, June 3—(CP). — Dr. J. Edgar Davey of Hamilton to-day told the convention of Ontario Medical Health Officers the only way restaurant and beverage room operators could keep their dishes and glasses thoroughly disinfected would be by publishing actual bacteria counts found by Medical Health Officers.

Dr. James Roberts, Medical Health Officer of Hamilton, said in his city it was found restaurant dishes were far cleaner than glasses in beverage rooms.

Pro-Nazi British Girl Searched At Czech Border

PHAHA, June 3.—(AP).—Czechoslovak authorities explained to-day the five-hour detention of Hon. Unity Freeman-Mitford, daughter of Lord Redesdale of England, was but a part of the routine inspection of all travellers passing through military defence zones.

Miss Freeman-Mitford was stopped yesterday when she drove through a military area en route to Karlovy Vary.

Her companions were a Sudeten Germany deputy in the Czechoslovak Parliament named Woolner, an unnamed British journalist and an American.

Although Miss Freeman-Mitford was subjected to a thorough examination by Czechoslovak road patrols in the early hours of the morning, the authorities denied reports she was suspected of espionage and said she was not arrested.

They said three cameras, 14 films and a notebook were confiscated.

(Berlin reports said her belongings were returned to her at Karlovy Vary).

Food For Berlin Press.

BERLIN, June 3—(AP). —Berlin newspapers to-day described the search of Miss Unity Freeman-Mitford in such banner headlines as "Waylayer eMthods in Czechoslovakia."

Carrying the report under London date lines, the papers added that the daughter of Lord Redesdale was stripped by Czechoslovak women police officials while her car was searched. The upholstering was cut open and the tires removed.

Miss Freeman-Mitford, according to reports current in Praha, incurred the displeasure of the Czechs by openly demonstrating pro-Fascist leanings and wearing swastika emblems while staying there.

Conservative Record Is Lauded by Rowe

OTTAWA, June 3 (CP).—"When we call ourselves Conservative, we only define an attitude of mind," W. Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative Leader, told the Ottawa Conservative Business Women's Club last night. "It does not mean to conserve and stand still, but rather to hold fast to the best of tried and tested methods of the past and develop new and sound methods for the future."

The Conservative Party had done more to maintain national development and promote orderly progress than any other party. Confederation, national policy, social legislation, and efficiency of administration all were landmarks of progress embedded in the statute books of Canada by the Conservative Party. The Conservative Party had never been ashamed of its Imperial relationship, Mr. Rowe said.

Plumbing Work Must Conform With City Bylaw

The Board of Works committee decided Thursday night that henceforth applications for sewer connections in the township of North Monaghan will be turned down unless the applicant agrees to abide by the city of Peterborough plumbing bylaw.

City Engineer R. H. Parsons called the Board's attention to the matter. He explained that North Monaghan residents were charged $8 a year for sewer connections and the latter were made under his direction.

Inside the street line however he had no jurisdiction and some of the plumbing work that had been done did not come up to the city standard.

Plumbing inspector Arthur Metheral told of a number of instances where the work was not satisfactory.

The members of the Board felt that the city had a right to insist upon proper conditions when sewer connections were being supplied to outsiders, and a motion by Ald. Gordon and Stocker that applications should be refused unless the city bylaw in regard to plumbing and other conditions were observed was carried.

They All Watch Alberta

Newspaper correspondents are busy sending copy to their papers from Regina and other points in Saskatchewan. There is an election there on June 8. The government has been solidly Liberal, but there is something new in the 1938 contest; something is being done which has never before been done in the history of the Dominion. Premier Aberhart of Alberta has moved over into Saskatchewan and seeks to have a Social Credit government there as he has in Alberta. If he succeeds it would mean that Saskatchewan would actually be governed from Alberta and of course there is nothing in the book of rules to say that must not be done. It is no longer a contest between two political parties. Nominations filed for the 50 seats show this result:

Liberals	50	Independent-Labor	3
Social Credit	41	Independent Social-Credit	1
C. C. F.	31	Independent Conservative	1
Conservatives	23
Independents	5
Labor-Progressive	2

Most of the people in Saskatchewan are in debt and have been for years; the number of those who have lost everything would form a great company. The federal and provincial governments have extended direct relief and seed grain to the extent of millions of dollars, but the weight is still there and it will be there on the day when the people vote.

The correspondents who are making tours of the province are finding that the granting of relief to people who have need of it does not make friends for the government; it does not create the gratitude which suggests working for the government's return. In several places we read of groups who have been much taken with Mr. Aberhart's claim that debt must be wiped out and that a good many existing financial agencies must be taught that they cannot collect interest from people who have no money. The man from Alberta does not go too deeply into the method by which he will rub out debt and erase interest obligations, but he is content to leave the feeling that it can be done. And that is great bait with which to conduct a political fishing party in places where people are deep in debt, and where under existing conditions they see no prospect of ever emerging from it.

This paper realizes election forecasts are more or less useless, nor do they serve any particular purpose, but it seems certain enough that Aberhart from Alberta having crossed the border is going to secure sufficient trophies from the hunt to cause considerable concern to the Liberals.

Might Let It Rest Now

The decision of the Ontario Court of Appeal disposes of the legality of the assessment granted to the De Laval Co. The case resulted from the action launched by G. N. Gordon as a private citizen, claiming the assessment as fixed in 1933 for a period of ten years had been a renewal of a previous fixed assessment. That was actually the starting point and since action was begun last year the case has run its course through the Court of Revision, through the court of his Honor Judge Smoke and then to the Municipal Board which body ruled the assessment to be wrong. The Court of Appeal has reversed that ruling and as the matter stands now it is just where it was when the ratepayers dealt with the matter in 1933.

The fact that the ratepayers themselves voted on this assessment creates something which is actually a contract between the De Laval Company and the city. The matter was all done out in the open; the council of that year acted for the citizens in making the assessment, and the company on its part agreed to certain clauses relating to employment and production. After that the citizens voted on the issue and declared by a substantial majority that they favored it.

When an agreement is made that way we are convinced the citizens would desire to live up to the undertaking of which they had approved. There would be strong grounds for objection to departing from something to which the city had agreed. That feeling goes back probably in point of origin to the time when it used to be said of certain men that their word was as good as their bond, and we believe sentiment of that sort should be kept alive. It should grow to larger proportions rather than diminish.

Right now it is fortunate for the city that the De Laval Co. is able to give employment. We have seen in our midst what happens when some of our industries become slack. There is an increased application for assistance from the relief department because there has been a falling off in gainful employment.

If any further action is taken in this matter it will be by the Attorney-General. Our own suggestion is that he might kindly and well leave it alone.

We Know Little About It

Arthur W. Roebuck, former Attorney-General and Hydro Commissioner, appeared before the special committee of the Ontario Legislature studying the power situation and said "there are 2,500,000 horsepower running loose that is available as soon as we clear up a few difficulties."

The plant at Queenston has a capacity of 630,000 horsepower, but it had not been producing more than 409,000. Engineers said the trouble was that water in the lakes was at a lower level and the flow was therefore less. Mr. Roebuck stated he did not agree with that explanation.

The statements being made are long and the evidence being taken is great in volume, but there is one point quite clear. Just this—the subject matter is something about which the people at large know little; most of us will know nothing at all because we are not schooled in power development. We may look in a book and see what a horsepower is, but after reading the definition we have hardly come to adequate grips with the situation.

For that reason the people are utterly and entirely dependent on the technical knowledge and the sound business judgment of those who are called upon to operate the Hydro Electric business in this province. The fact that the people know so little about it adds to the responsibility of those who are engaged to direct it.

We are not much impressed when Mr. Roebuck says he does not agree with the opinion of the engineers. If competent engineers—and we have plenty of them—and sound business men had been allowed to run Hydro all the time we believe it would be a great deal better for Hydro and the people of the province who own it.

Using the Word "Very"

In a heading in a Toronto newspaper it is recorded "Twenty-Four Cars Very Bad." It is the use of that word "very" which always attract the attention of a number of writers and cause them to renew one of the old arguments and claims which said it should never be used. The late Arthur Brisbane once issued a small book on style in writing, and he was at war always with the word "very." He was of the school which said it should never be used. Nor did he use it. The reason for the feeling it should be dropped is that it is used so much it fails to produce the result expected.

And yet the word has its place. A number of cars were tested in Toronto. There were 24 which had defective brakes and other mechanical defects. The word bad could be applied to them, and that word could go on through its progressive stages of "bad—worse—worst," but stating they were "very bad" puts them easily and plainly in the lowest class.

The Brisbane contention was that if a person said it was a cold day he had sufficiently stated the case and added nothing to it by saying it was a "very" cold day. There were a good many who never agreed with the claim. If that little word which fits in as adjective or adverb is sparingly used it does serve a purpose. This way for example: In a court case where the movements of an accused individual were being traced a witness stated: "I spoke with him the very hour he is said to have been 180 miles from here." We are certain enough the use of the word "very" is an important part of that statement. Leaving it out would not change the nature of the evidence, but putting it in does add strength. We believe too it would carry a certain degree of conviction to those who were listening to the evidence. When used sparingly it is a little word which plays its part well enough, but when used continually it walks over and takes its place in the nuisance class.

Financing Japan's War

There are two sides to war and the side which is presented most frequently is the activity at the battle front. That comes almost every day; it is given in word, picture and in maps. The other side is the financing of a war.

Reliable writers have been dealing with this recently and seeking to estimate how long Japan can keep on putting up money for the war in China. It is an open secret that Japan never considered the war would last so long. Japan keeps on referring to what is going on in China as "an incident." Well the incident started on the 7th day of July last year and has been going on without interruption ever since and we are informed Japan has been blowng $5,000,000 per day through guns and rifles. The total expenditure to date has been placed at $2,000,000,000.

It is known that food is restricted at home, and that the savings of the people have been used to buy government bonds. There is nothing new in that as we were doing the same here during the World War. Japan has been paying cash for nearly all her supplies.

It is claimed that Japan had been preparing a long time in advance to finance the war in China. Japan saw a chance to grow fat in the years when the rest of the world was growing lean—1931 to 1934. With cheap labor and cheap goods she flooded world markets. The reserve accumulated then have been financing her war so far.

Right now Japan begins to face her serious period of war financing. Her exports have already shrunk 25 per cent., and the movement has not been checked. The nations to which she might turn for credits are not financially able to extend them. It means that Japan has been drawing for the best part of a year from her accumulated resources, and now she is nearing the point where these resources will be exhausted. Nor can they be replenished.

The gold production of Japan when operating at capacity is $75,000,000 a year. From New Year's day to April 21 this year she shipped abroad $33,500,000 in gold to pay for cash purchases, but a whole year's production would carry her only two weeks in a war which is costing $5,000,000 per day.

Critics claim that eventually Japan's blunder will be fully revealed. She cannot keep on paying cash and there is no place where she can turn to secure credit. Then what?

Indian "Feels" Coming Rain

Last Sunday afternoon we sat for a short time on the porch of Wilford Jacob's home on the shore of Lovesick Lake. Wilford, Indian guide and trapper, has a snug little property there. On that afternoon there was quite a wind blowing. Driving through the country one could notice that the leaves on the trees were doing what we often call "turning over" before the wind, and that we were sure was a sign of rain.

The suggestion was made to Wilford that there would be rain soon; wind was coming from the south-east . . . leaves were turning over and so on. But Wilford said there was not going to be any rain, and that of course prompted the question as to how he knew, and also that he might predict how long before it would rain. Also if he could tell the weather so well just what method did he use.

Wilford explained he did not go much by wind or clouds; he knew nothing at all about the depressions or air movements which are published daily in this paper. He knew when it was going to rain because "he felt it." His explanation was like this:

"When it is going to rain I feel it in my head. It is not like a headache because I never have headaches. My grandmother was the same; she could feel rain and I remember her telling me when I was very small that I was the same; I had the same feeling she had. I can't tell you exactly what the feeling is like but it is a sure one. I will telephone you from around here some day when it is going to rain and I will tell you just about when it is going to come."

That was on Sunday afternoon, and in order to get something a little more definite we inquired if there were dry or wet days coming through the week. Would there be any rain in three days or four? Wilford was certain there would be no rain for several days.. "The week will be more than half through before the rain comes," he said. That meant it would not rain before Thursday and Wilford agreed such would be the case.

We made a note of it on the desk pad and each day since have been checking it off because our Indian friend had pledged dry weather until Thursday. Monday it looked as though he would be wrong as the probs said something about thunderstorms in certain sections. On Thursday morning at 11 we noticed rain on the window. Wilford had been right.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Uncle Sam has ordered the Japanese to vacate American property in China. And if they refuse to obey?

Ecuador reports its oldest citizen as celebrating his 130th birthday. When a man like that really starts in to remember things he must be able to talk everybody else down.

From a class of 138 first year medical students at Toronto only 76 were successful in their examinations. To them the M.D. degree evidently means—Met Defeat.

It is suggested that the Senate be divested of all responsibility in divorce cases. After all folk do not get appointed to that august body merely to hear other people's matrimonial troubles described.

TOLD YOU SO

(By A. R. K.)

¶ He's rather loose of tongue I know, they call him now "I Told You So," he's really earned his name; he knows the history of the town, knows every one who's slipping down, whose bank account is lame.

¶ The man who ran the corner store, he doesn't own the place no more, he couldn't make it go; he did the very best he could, but business never was too good, his funds ran down too low.

¶ 'Twas than "I Told You So" began, to nail this little corner man, he had to spin his tale; he'd seen it coming weeks ago, he knew he'd never make it go and he was bound to fail.

¶ I Told You So chinned in once more, he'd seen the like of that before, he was inclined to scoff; he'd mentioned it two weeks ago, and he had felt Dan ought to know, that they would lay him off.

¶ I Told You So just feeds on grief, nor does he like it short and brief, he gloats when men go down; I think we'd hit a better stride, if some day he'd think and decide—how he would leave the town.

"Jittery" Finds Place In Debate

(From Parliamentary Reports)

Mr. WOODSWORTH: As yet I do not think the Minister of Justice has definitely raised a point of order.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): I have.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Then I would ask the Minister of Justice to state the point of order.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): I cannot state it more plainly.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Then will the minister let me go on until he finds that I am not in order?

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): We cannot both speak at once.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I was speaking when the minister interrupted me, and prior to that time there had been nothing whatever that was out of order. The minister interrupted and brought on a discussion without being able to point out any particular in which I was out of order. Taking the words out if his mouth, I should like to say that I am not seeking to instruct the government. I have no such idea in mind, and in the few introductory remarks I made there was no suggestion of anything of the kind. Further than that, I have no motion before the house, nor do I intend to make one. How, then, can the Minister of Justice talk about instructing the government, before there is any motion before the house?

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): Let my hon. friend be fair. He knows that those words were used by the right hon. leader of the opposition.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I am speaking to the point of order, or the suggested point of order. I say the Minister of Justice had no right to interrupt me when there was no motion before the house. I am under a debt of gratitude to the right hon. leader of the opposition (Mr. Bennett)—

Mr. BRADETTE: Oh, yes.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: For what? For attacking this question of disallowance, but as a matter of fact I had no intention of bringing up the matter of disallowance.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): Then, what is the hon. member talking about?

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Give me a chance to tell the right hon. gentleman. The minister has been talking quite beside the point. I wish he would not be quite so jittery about this matter.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): So what?

Mr. WOODSWORTH: So jittery; so frightened.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): That is another word I do not know.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: So nervous. Jittery is a word used a great deal on the street these days, and I commend the minister to look it up in some of the slang dictionaries. I wish the minister would not go off on a tack and make remarks that are quite beside the point. Let me repeat. Far from trying to intimidate the government, I have not even a motion to propose, and I had no idea of asking for disallowance. I stand here to bring before the house some grievances of the people of Canada, and I think the minister—who has some streaks of Liberalism in him, anyway—will not deny me the right to do that.

To The Editor

QUESTION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: As a reader of your paper and a Dummer ratepayer I would like to ask—what is the matter with our Dummer men, that a man from Otonabee is hired to construct a portion of the County Road near Warsaw? How would chances be for Dummer men to build roads in Otonabee? Who is responsible?

Has the Reeve anything to do with it? If not, why not?

STATE OF THE NATION.

(Portland Oregonian)

FROM THE Chicago Tribune's New York City correspondent comes the report that someone on Wall Street has worked out statistics on the state of the nation in a manner that has the great mathematicians of that street puzzled and not too amused. Consider:

Population of the United States 124,000,000.

Eligible for old-age pensions, 30,000,000.

That leaves to do the work, 94,000,000.

Persons on federal, state and city government pay rolls, 20,000,000.

That leaves to do the work, 74,000,000.

Ineligible to work under the child labor law, 60,000,000.

That leaves to do the work, 14,000,000.

That leaves to do the work, 2.

The two workers, adds the statistician, are "me and F.D.R. He has gone fishing and I am getting damned tired."

1,282-FEET COVERED.

(The Canadian Press)

TOURISTS like to stop at Hartland, N.B., and look at the covered bridge spanning the St. John river. It's the longest covered bridge in the world.

The structure stretches 1,282 feet. Its nearest rival, in Norway, is 200 feet shorter. The Government pays a man $100 to $150 every Winter to put snow on it so sleighs can get across.

The bridge also has gained fame because it presents an optical illusion. When a motorist drives across it at 23 miles an hour, small cracks between the board sides of the span appear to run together, permitting a perfect and apparently unobstructed view of the river, as if the bridge had no sides.

• Then Is The Time To Watch Out

(Sault Ste. Marie Star)

WAY BACK as the 19th century was closing and the 20th was beginning, Mackenzie and Mann, sometimes considered the "bold bad men" of the story, were busy building up in Western Canada a network of railway lines known as the Canadian Northern Railway. At that time it was the general talk that when the connecting line was built across Northern Ontario it would hook up with the Grand Trunk Railway in the east and so form a continent wide system. Indeed, at one time it was suggested that one of the links across Northern Ontario would be the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway, (later the Algoma Eastern), which Mr. F. H. Clergue proposed to build to the Sault. The current gossip even went so far as to suggest that the line would cross Manitoulin Island that connection with the Grand Trunk would be established by means of a train ferry to the Bruce Peninsula, where a motor car ferry now operates.

Those, it will be seen, were the days of optimism. But optimism went even further than that. The building of the Canadian Northern would mean two lines to the west. Yet, the enthusiasts felt that wasn't enough; there should be three. So there came a proposal for the building of a third line, using as a basis the Grand Trunk Railway, at that time confined to the area east of Lake Huron. The Grand Trunk was at first none too enthusiastic over the idea, but a plan was worked out; the railway organized the Grand Trunk Pacific to build lines in the west, and the government of the day, in a burst of generosity and to provide the link between east and west, build 1,000 miles of railway through the wilderness from Winnipeg to Quebec, the national Transcontinental Railway, which passes through Hearst.

How lightheartedly the government entered upon the project is shown by the debate in the House of Commons when Sir Wilfrid Laurier was asked what information he had on the country through which the N. T. C. R. would pass.

"Mountains of it," replied Sir Wilfrid.

"How much will it cost?" he was asked.

Actually the cost was about twenty times that and as for knowledge of the country, one of the contractors on the section through Northern Ontario offered a reward of $1,000 for information as to the location of a gravel pit.

Meanwhile the Canadian Northern, with the aid of various governmental subsidies, was also being stretched across Northern Ontario, with the result that three trancontinental lines grew where one grew before!

Then came disillusionment. The Canadian Northern, the Grand Trunk, the G. T. P. and the National Transcontinental were merged with the Intercolonial in the Canadian National Railways—and the piling up of railway deficits began.

Today in Northern Ontario, the Canadian National main line uses partly the old Canadian Northern line and partly the National Transcontinental. On much of it there is almost no local traffic, while on sections of the Transcontinental there is only one train per week.

There will probably be something of a battle before these lines will be abandoned, for it will be argued that they are opening up the country. But the condition is a drastic picture of what unconsidered optimism will bring. When governments tackle railways, look out!

• Speaking About The Examiner

THE VACATION NUMBER

(Timmins Daily Press)

A VERY FINE, not to say alluring, Vacation number of the Peterborough Examiner is to hand, extolling the beauties, pictorially and in words of the Kawartha Lakes, the Trent Valley and the Haliburton Highlands. Rotogravure pictures in green provide a striking cover, the back cover being a map in bas relief of the whole area from Lake Simcoe to Haliburton and south to Lake Ontario. While pictorially, the edition does catch the beauty of a widely-varied landscape, it is the piscatorial lure that is trolled before the eyes of the reader constantly and by which he is almost bound to be hooked, sooner or later, even if he had to hitch-hike.

HE LIKED OUR HEN

(Woodstock Sentinel Review)

ONE OF THE most interesting photographs reproduced in a Canadian newspaper in a long time appears in Saturday's issue of Peterborough Examiner, and depicts a hen which, having hatched out a brood of ducklings, in puzzled fashion watches them disporting themselves in a large pond and in her anxiety for these problem children even follows them some distance into the water.

• The Selection of Election Stories

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

ABERHART of Alberta, campaigning in Saskatchewan, where a general election is taking place, has adopted tactics different from those employed in his election appeal to the people of his own province. After his failure to "deliver the goods" in Alberta he knows better than repeat his bribe in Saskatchewan. So in Alberta he has discarded the vague talk about Social Credit dividends and has switched to debt-repudiation, a line in which he is more expert, and one which he expects will appeal strongly to a people who have found the "going" hard in past years.

His favorite platform story, when making his latest promise, concerns a little 90-pound woman, who came to him and said: "Thanks, Mr. Aberhart, for saving my washing machine." It runs this way:

"I knew nothing of her washing machine. But she explained. She was a poor widow with a child to support. She had to do washing by the pound to compete with larger firms. Over the scrub-board she could not make enough to live, washing by the pound. But she ordered a washing-machine. She paid the instalments faithfully, all but the last. Then her daughter took sick and she could not pay the last instalment. And they came and took her washing machine away.

"A neighbor heard of it and he said: "They can't do that; there's a moratorium in Alberta." So he drove down to the store and said: 'You can't take the washing machine away; the Government won't let you.' So the man at the store gave the lady back her washing machine and she came to thank me."

Of course, the story gets a great hand and undoubtedly will gain the Aberhart candidates many votes. But there are other stories, the results of Mr. Aberhart's policies which he seems not to have heard about. There is, for instance, relates the Toronto Globe and Mail:

"The case of Mr. and Mrs. Hudak of Lethbridge, whose predicament was exposed some time ago, but only in the 'falsifying' Alberta press. This couple immigrated to Canada about thirty-four years ago. Mr. Hudak got work in the mines, and after a time had saved enough to make the down payment on a small farm. But as they advanced in years the Hudaks found farm work too strenuous, so they sold out, and with the proceeds bought a small home and a few Alberta Government bonds. This 'nest egg' was 'guaranteed' to yield them $60 a year, and was depended on to pay the $40 taxes and the insurance on their home. Then entered the White Knight of Social Credit and with him the famous debt-repudiation legislation. The interest on the Hudaks' bonds was cut to $30. Now too old to work, even at odd jobs were they available, they have been unable to pay their taxes and are faced with the loss of their only remaining asset, which is scarcely that any longer, since, due to the Social Credit bond and debt legislation, they cannot borrow a dollar on their home to save it."

No, Aberhart will not tell that story. He will stick to the one about the washing machine, and weep copious tears as he tells it. That will have sure effect on the voters.

And Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and withal how he had slain all the prophets with the sword.

Then Jezebel sent a messenger unto Elijah, saying, So let the gods do to me, and more also, if I make not they life as the life of one of them by to-morrow about this time. And when he saw that, he arose, and went for his life, and came to Beersheba, which belongeth to Judah, and left his servant there. Home Mission Day Observed At Convention

Continuing in convention, the Women's Baptist Home and Foreign Mission Society of Ontario West entered its third day Thursday. As "Home Mission Day" there was a fine representative gathering of delegates, all eager and interested, who were led in the morning's devotions by Mrs. Bert Jackson, Peterborough.

A series of interesting and helpful ten-minute reports were heard during the forenoon, touching briefly many of the important phases of work done during the year. As given by the secretaries or superintendents these reports carried an authoritative summing up. Among them are found:

Report.—Reading Course Secretary, Mrs. J. W. Patterson; Comfort Box Sec., Mrs. A. T. McNeill; Treasurer of Indian Fund, Mrs. J. D. Stevenson; Literature Dept., Mrs. C. N. Mitchell; Mission Band Supt., Miss Hilda Calvin; New Canadian Christian Fellowship, Mrs. E. Heath, Recording Secretary, Mrs. O. B. Coumans; Treasurer, Presentation of Estimates, Mrs. V. J. Towers; Moulton College, Mrs. F. H. Adamson.

At the conclusion of reports a very impressive "Quiet Hour," was led by Mrs. D. C. Jones, who spoke of our great need for "Patience," "Kindness" and "Humbleness" in our every word and action in our daily lives, and urged that we earnestly pray for more "Love."

The election of officers and members of the board of this department was held just before adjournment, and resulted in the following:

Hon. President, Mrs. R. J. Marshall; President, Miss Jennie Pearce; Vice-presidents: 1st, Mrs. W. E. Campbell; 2nd, Mrs. V. J. Towers; Rec. Sec., Mrs. O. B. Coumans.

Afternoon Session.

On the platform at the beginning of the afternoon session, with the newly elected president, Miss Jennie Pearce, were the following home missionaries:

Miss Florence Maybee, Polish work, Toronto.

Miss Nellie Smith, Royce Avenue Polish work, Toronto.

Miss M. Renton, Anna Phelps Memorial Mission, Windsor.

Miss Benedict, Brantford.

Miss O. Wilson, Guelph.

Miss Olive Hunter, Hamilton.

Miss Florence Maybee offered a prayer of thanksgiving for the faithfulness of the retiring officers and that power may be given the incoming officers.

"Behold I have set before thee an open door," said Jesus, and this is surely applicable to our Home Mission Work, said Mrs. A. W. Greenslade, in her report of secretary to missionaries, "with all the open doors from coast to coast." Going from the district covering Montreal to New Brunswick and clear across the continent to the Western Provinces, she gave an optimistic report of the work on all the fields and of the many doors that were opening up after persistent work by our missionaries and workers. Our hearts burn within us as we realize the privilege that is ours in sharing in this greatest of all work, that of making Christ known, and we would go on to even greater activity in the Master's service as the days go by. "We may all have a part in the building; we may each be a part of the plan."

The work in the "New Canadian Christian Fellowship" made possible by the Jessie Zavitz Memorial Fund was covered in a most interesting manner by Miss Marion Pearce. "Why can we not show our New Neighbor "Love in action?" she asked. "There is personal work for each one of us in this New Canadian Christian Fellowship. Watch wherever you are and you will have the opportunity of making friends with our new Canadians. Think of the thrill of hearing one of them say: "I know—you—me—friends."

The absence of the beloved retiring president, Mrs. J. R. Marshall, was deeply regretted by all. A telegram of good wishes for the success of the convention was read by the secretary, Mrs. O. B. Coumans, as well as her address. "With years rich in fellowship much has been accomplished. And what a challenge there is when we think of the scope there is for the work," Mrs. Marshall said. "It is good for us to once a year climb the hill of Mount Vision and look back over the year past ,and we must not only see the far goal ahead, but be ready to go forward to it. Women must be "shipbuilders"— Friendship and Citizenship—safeguarding our country by these. Without love we are nothing and our work comes to nought. Let us gather together and take a long look ahead and follow our Master in "Whom we live and move and have our being."

"Sometimes we missionaries get very tired making our reports, but after listening to the splendid reports given at this convention, I have resolved to spend twice as much time in preparing my next one," said Rev. George Balla. Telling of "Work Among Our New Canadians in the Northland," the speaker paid special tribute to the Circle and Young Women of New Liskeard who sent him on his Northern trip last year making it possible for him to tell of the work there."

The Vast Northland.

"This vast territory in the Northland covers over 1,500 miles, and only occasional visits do not show very great results any more than a slight shower would affect some of the drought stricken areas in the West. And in so many of these lumber camps it is very difficult to keep in touch with the people as owing to existing conditons they are constantly moving from place to place and we lose touch with them.

"A Christian teacher said he felt like a 'spark in a ton of asbestos' among these people of the Northlands—so far away from Christian churches and people. Walking 6 to 8 miles to a Sunday service in some places. Hungarians who have never had the opportunity of attending a church service since leaving Hungary.

"We need your prayers," he said, "and your patience with the people—it takes time for them to learn to speak as we do. Practise New Canadian Fellowship. Christianize first and Canadianization will come of itself."

Poster contest awards were made for the best poster, as follows:

First prize—10 yearly subscriptions to the "Link and Visitor," Ontario Street Circle, Stratford.

During the afternoon a delightful sacred solo, "I shall not again pass this way," was the offering of Mrs. George Batley of Park Street Church accompanied at the piano by Mrs. C. Corbett, who also played for the hymns of the session.

STOMACH PAIN

If you have gnawing stomach pains between meals, your case is something like that of Mr. A. B., of Scarboro. For ten years he suffered from these nagging stomach pains between meals. During all this time he had tried dozens of treatments and remedies. Finally he took Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. "From the first dose I felt like a new man," he writes. "Every time these pains come on I take a dose or two of Maclean Brand and in a minute or two they have vanished."

When you get those pains in you stomach, or gas, dyspepsia or heartburn put you in great discomfort, your trouble is in an acid condition. Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, which is used in leading British hospitals, counteracts this condition. It relieves the pain and soothes inflamed tissues. Get a bottle—either powder or tablets—at druggists, 75c. Be sure to look for the signature, "Alex. C. Maclean", on bottle and carton. None other is genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. 110

Buckhorn Welcomes Governor-General

Seymour West Pair Observe Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 3—Members of the family and neighboring friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Stanbury, Seymour West, on June 1 to offer congratulations on the occasion of their fortieth wedding anniversary.

Both were born in Seymour Township where they have resided ever since having first lived on the Stanbury homestead only a short distance from the farm which they now occupy. Mrs. Stanbury was the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Owen of Campbellford and it was at the Owen residence the marriage was solemnized in the year 1898 by the late Rev. W. E. Cooper.

Among the many letters of congratulation they received was one from the Rotary Club at Bath, N.Y., of which a son Gerald is the president. At the present time both are enjoying excellent health and although for many years Mr. Stanbury went into farming on a large scale he is at present working only two acres which is sufficient to supply all their own needs. Of their family of seven, four boys and three girls, all are living and only one, Mrs. Frank Hogan of Fairport, N.Y., was unable to attend the anniversary celebration. Those home to wish their parents many years of continued happiness were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanbury of Campbellford, Messrs. Gerald and Clarence of Bath, N.Y., Ronald at home, Mr. and Mrs. John Kane and daughter, Jerene, and Miss Lillian Stanbury of Albany, N.Y.

England expects to have over 70,000 Girl Guide campers in nearly 4,000 camps this summer.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For aSturday, June 4.

This should be an active day, according to the lunar transits, but not an entirely propitious one. While new undertakings may look promising, there may not be lucrative returns at the present time. There may be delays and postponements, together with financial problems. Speculation is hazardous; avoid risks.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which the energies may be under fine impetus for action and constructive work, but the returns may not correspond with the effort put forth. There may be impediments and delays, but hazards in the use of funds, especially in speculative enterprises. Diligence and prudence may save the day.

A child born on this day may be energetic and ambitious, with much practical talent, but it may meet with obstacles and delays in accomplishing its ambitions. It may have rather fluctuating financial experiences.

Urge Cave Dweller Go To Relatives

TORONTO, June 3.— (CP).— Fred Delaney, 65-year-old Don Valley cave dweller, remained in his crude hillside dwelling on the outskirts of Toronto to-day despite the declaration of the relief administrator, Joseph Vernon, that he should go back to his relatives in Parrsboro, Nova Scotia.

John Hollinger, chairman of the East York Relief committee, said to-day that Delaney should get back to his family because in his present situation "anything could happen to him and no one would be the wiser for weeks."

Delaney has been living in seclusion for some years in the township. He formerly made a little money by collecting scrap metal, but of late months has been subsisting on relief.

Nazi Press Violence Grows Over Shooting

BERLIN, June 3—(CP-Havas).—The German press to-day grew increasingly violent over the cafe shooting incident at Eger in which two Sudetens were wounded by a Czech soldier.

The Voelkischer Deobachter, Nazi party organ, said responsibility and guilt did not lie with the officer who did the shooting but with the authorities in Praha.

"This is the result of savagery without parallel in Europe," the paper said. "The Czechs can no longer claim to be a civilized nation. They have fallen to the asme level as their faithful friends, the criminal scoundrels of Moscow."

Under the headline "Scandal of Europe," the Lokalanzeiger said: "Czechoslovakia is the scene of unleashed soldiers' excesses and has nothing in common with a state. Foreigners are no longer sure of their lives. The police act like the Okhrana (Czarist Secret Police). All who speak German are prey for the Czechoslovakia brutes."

The Berliner Boersen Zeitung said "the treatment imposed by Praha on the Sudeten Germans is more brutal, more shameful than the most backward negro tribe would be obliged to accept."

KRAKAUSKAS, ROSEN FEATURE BALL SEASON'S UPS AND DOWNS

The Guys Who Were Counted On Drop By Wayside As Old Stars And Newcomers Take Spotlight

Jimmy Foxx Throws Surprise With Bat Rosen Going Up

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 3.—In baseball, just as in the stock market, sometimes they have it and sometimes they don't. Last fall a bright future was painted for Joe Krakauskas, left-hander, who came up with Washington late in the season and won four games. But Joe was sent back to Trenton. Bucky Harris said it was simply a case of inability to get the ball over the plate.

Going on from there, who ever expected Jimmy Foxx to start belting that ball this year the way he has? Last summer the lads were writing Foxx's major league obituary. The same service was being performed in behalf of Willis Hudlin, veteran of the Indians' mound staff, who was able to win only one ball game in the whole darn year of 1936. But Hudlin is one of Vitt's most dependable pitchers now.

One Sticks, Two Don't

Joe Cronin of the Red Sox was counting heavily on Ted Olson and Dick Midkiff, young pitchers from the Little Rock farm. But Ted and Dick have been sent back to the minors for another year. And young Jim Bagby, who was ticketed for farm service, has fooled some of the critics who doubted his stuff and is performing nice chores for Mr. Yawkey.

During the spring training season Clark Griffith was looking all over the United States for a catcher, fearing Rick Ferrell was through. Now Rick looks like a million dollars behind the plate and has been hiting in timely and consistent style. Julius Solters, cleanup man of the Indians, was hailed as the deliverer of the Tribe hopes when he finally signed his contract after holding out all during the training season. He went into a three-week batting slump and was removed from the line-up to the bench, where he sits and watches young Jeff Heath blasting the ball all over the lot. Now it looks like his job.

A Mr. J. H. Dean, who used to have it in copious quantities, seemed to be going there without it before tragedy struck his flipper. Another pitcher, who kissed his fast ball good-by four years ago, suddenly has found it again. We mean Wes Ferrell.

Taking inventory of the assets of the Cincinnati Reds last spring, Bill McKechnie became accustomed to telling the inquiring reporters,

"And, oh, yes, don't forget to put the name of Paul Derringer in there." Derringer, an in-and-outer for several years, was regarded as an afterthought. Now Derringer is the mainstay of the staff and one of the principal reasons why the Reds are in the first division.

Manush Out, Rosen In

Don't be too harsh on your favorite when he takes a row of horse collars at the plate. Look at Hank Greenberg, who was removed from the cleanup spot with the Tigers for a while. For further verification, look up Lou Gehrig's batting mark of other years and compare it with his record for 1938. Heinie Manush started the year as the Dodgers' power hitter. Now Heinie doesn't live here any more, and a young stranger from up in Toronto named Goodwin Rosen is making even the Flatbush folk forget Zack Wheat. Rosen has been hitting around .350 in the lead-off sport. Whoops!

Mickey Cochrane's critics became legion when the Detroit manager accepted Vernon Kennedy from the White Sox in the Walker-Walker deal. Kenedy, who suffered the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune last year, was deemed on the way out by some observers. Now Kennedy is the Tiger ace.

So it goes. Today they've got it, tomorrow they may find themselves without it. And the guys who haven't got it now may be the lads who have it to burn next week. There's a moral in it somewhere, I guess.

Louis Trains Hard For Title Scrap

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP).—Joe Louis, the one champion who doesn't appear to be in any active danger from Henry Armstrong's reckless fists, is well along in his training for his combat with Max Schmeling on June 22.

Joe moved into the Pompton Lakes camp the night Armstrong moved out, and he already has boxed 18 rounds, not to mention some 50 miles of road work. The big negro is down to 205 pounds, and he intends to lop off only about five more before he meets the man who knocked him silly two summers ago.

The principal thing a visit to the camp reveals is that Joe still can be hit with a right hand. Basher Dean, a big, willing black, cracked the champ a half-dozen resounding swats in the course of two outdoor rounds yesterday, and the Basher scarcely has as good a right as Schmeling's.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

QUITE A RAFT of former C.O.B.L. players are taking their ball in intermediate doses this summer in the Bay of Quinte wheel. Of course, Walt Gerow's Gibbards have many of their seniors of last season in action once more for Napanee and a good team it is. Dunno much about Picton. The Kingston Locos lineup includes Jim Arneil, G. Arneil, Mercer, Mickey Compeau, Abber Joyce, Boyd and Udell—all of whom have played in the Central League. And the Belleville bunch have Sonny Green, Alex Weir, Bud Wilkins, Piper Latchford, Speedy St. Louis, Johnny Kerr, Sero and Sinfield—this crew having played at one time or another in the senior setup. So ball fans in that district ought to see some fair tussles run off, even if some of the veterans have slowed up to a snail's shuffle.

• • • • • •

KINGSTON PONIES play the Petes here tomorrow. The first chance local fans have had this season to see the revamped Kingstons in action, with Bob Elliott the playing coach. Wouldn't be surprised to see Joe Daley along, though, in an advisory capacity. It ought to pack in the customers as most Kingston-Petes' frays do, since there is always a dandy battle and plenty of colorful baseball shown. The Petes need this win badly as they've lost two so far and Kingston have copped two in a row. But we hear the Petes will trot out a new southpaw hurler of their own—who is some shucks, too!—and will have Calladine and Murphy back in action. They ought to have a winning combination there even against the Messrs. Pollar & Co.

• • • • • •

BIG ED POLLAR is the U.S. lefthander Kingston threw in against Oshawa last Saturday and he only blanked 'em with two hits and fanned 10. He is said to be a big awkward rookie, somewhat wild, but can really bear down and burn 'em across in the pinches. But Lefty McMally, whom the Petes dug up has something of a rep on baseball mounds, also, and this tilt here tomorrow may turnout to be another sweet twirlers' duel. Gosh knows we can use a good forkside flinger! If he goes right, those scrappy Kingston Ponies won't be bruising the apple overly hard. Joe Jakafby, who ended last season with some doggone good pitching, and Rusa Kitchen will be in reserve. The Petes' batting order is likely to be shifted about and we really expect to see 'em flying high on Saturday. We're pulling hard for Eddie Murphy and his men to cop this contest and start going places.

LOT OF LOCAL INTEREST in that lacrosse match here tonight when the Inglewood-Caledon crew tackle the locals—on account of this is the team—barring a couple of changes—which knocked the Auburns out of the Ontario semi-finals last autumn. They are said to be as strong as ever and we know Skipper Frank Randle's bunch are better than a year ago. So it stands to reason, the fray tonight should be hotter than a nigger making his 12th pass with the galloping dominoes. The Petes may take their first loss of the season but they'll sure hustle their rivals first like all getout. Ought to bring out the largest lacrosse crowd to date, and the folks should have no complaints during the struggle.

SOME of the visiting players are, in case you care for monickers: McEachern, Paterson, Petch, Smith, Erskine, Nelson, McConnell, Rayburn, Jones, Walsh, Puckering, Wilson and Chambers. Boss once told us that plenty of names of people always made a good newspaper story. But he nearly canned us the day we copied a page out of the telephone book to help fill up a column! Anyway, here are some more names, the locals: Meyette, Westonfelt, J. Creighton, E. Creighton, King, Dundas, Whitton, Dallin, Crowe, Magee, Worthy, Miller, Chute and Sloan. With Bud Fisher the referee. By the way, Red Creighton now has inflammation of the kidney—but hopes to be out ere too long. So do we.

PREXY H. S. LEYBOURNE of the Petes this a.m. informed us of the O.L.A. senior "B" grouping in which the local lacrossers will play this summer. Yessir, the club has been raised to a senior "B" rating and put in a dandy setup. We'll have 13 home games here during the schedule, which means Peterborough enthusiasts will see nine teams, besides the homesters, playing at the George St. arena before playoffs arrive. All doggone good squads, too. Yeah, it is an excellent setup and ought to mean a big year for the gutted-stick sport hereabouts. Group 1 includes the Petes, Brampton, Brooklin, Toronto East York and Long Branch; and Group 2 has Hamilton, Orangeville, Woodbridge, Owen Sound and Inglewood-Caledon. A double schedule will be played by the Petes in Group 1 and an interlocking schedule (a single one) with teams in Group 2—making 13 tilts for the Petes at home this year. Then the playoffs, maybe. Start June 7th.

SOFTBALL FANS at the Bowl last p.m. had a chance to figure the comparative strength of the Men's City Softball League and the Southend Circuit. When Westclox and Nationals collided in a fray ala exhibish—the Clockmen copping a 7-4 decision. So 'twould look like there isn't such a whale of a difference between these loops, when it comes to pitching, hitting and fielding, as one might expect. Since Westclox are leading the uptown wheel at present and the Nats aren't on top of the southend setup. Parsons had an edge in pitching over Collins, and the winners looked a bit better at bat. A nice snappy contest, run off in an hour. Omemee play the Motorists at the Bowl tomorrow in the twilight.

JUST HEARD of the death in Kitchener the other day of Fred Schultz, long connected with sports in Western Ontario. One of his two sons, Bill, is playing ball in Brantford now. He was pretty well-known around here a few years back. Bill played a trifle of baseball locally, but got into more hockey with the O.H.A. intermediates and the Blood and Thunder Loop, and also coached the C.G.E. lasses a summer in the Girls' Softball League. Came from the Inter-County League in the first place and returned after a mediocre showing up this way.

Paul Dean Is Sent To Red Wings Club

ST. LOUIS, June 3.—(AP).—St. Louis Cardinals announced Thursday Paul Dean had been sent to its Rochester farm club of the International Baseball League on option. Dean will join the club today in Buffalo, N.Y.

The younger brother of Dizzy Dean flew here from Dallas Wednesday for a conference with Branch Rickey, General Manager of the Cardinals, after he had failed to pitch effectively for Houston, the Texas League "farm" of the club.

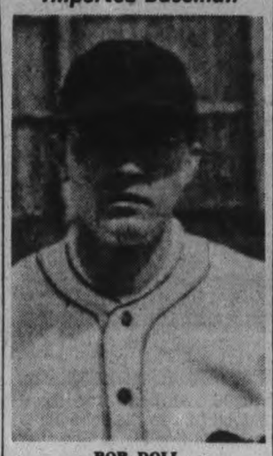
Imported Baseman



BOB DOLL

The Petes' imported third sacker from the States, who will be seen in action here tomorrow when the Kingston Ponies and the locals clash in Riverside Park. Doll is a smart fielder and hard hitter.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

It looked for a while on Wednesday afternoon as if the rain would compel the committee to cancel all bowling, but the sun came out and with the help of a wind the greens were in good condition—and bowling there was. It was unfortunate for the ladies, though, as their games in the afternoon were called off.

We see up on our notice board the announcement of our big open tournament of Wednesday, June 8. It will be men's doubles, and commences at 1.30 p.m.. The fee is set at $2.50 per pair, and five sets of prizes will be distributed to the lucky winners.

Don't forget the men's tournament to-night. Draw from the board at 7.30 sharp—25c fee.

Bantams Run Wild In Loose Contest

In a weird Bantam Church Softball League affair last night, the George Street crew outran St. James' to take a 37-27 win to climb to the top of the heap. They started off with a mere 15 runs in the first and added to it in big gobs, while the Saints' slugged the apple merrily in several big heats later on. Big hitters were Richardson, Smith and Burnham for the winners, and Murduff, Lawson and Roode for the losers. The victors had an edge in hitting and fielding. The teams:

St. James': Estlick, 1b; Ellis, p; Baldry, c; Leether, 3b; Wildman, 2b; Rutherford, ss; Roode, lf; Murduff, cf; Lawson, rf.

Golf Facts

TAKE CARE OF YOUR FEET

Feet! The last things the average player thinks about. In fact, I've known many players who never give them a thought until they get tired or sore. And yet they play a mighty important part in the game, for no player can be any better than his feet. By this I mean that the rest of his swing can't be any better than his foot action.

Surely the lower extremities are worthy of more than passing attention. Obviously, the first thing to do is to look to their comfort. Shoes and socks figure strongly in this matter of comfort. Most players wear thin socks with street shoes. The lighter sock may be practical for the small amount of walking a business man does during the day, but when it comes to stepping off four or five miles on a golf course, something more substantial in the way of hose is needed.

I attribute much of the absence of trouble with my feet to the fact that I always wear woollen socks of more than medium weight. And the rougher the going, the heavier the socks. At times I have worn a light cotton sock inside the woollen socks for even greater ease and comfort.

Most golf shoes allow for the wearing of heavier socks so that a trial does not necessarily call for the purchase of new shoes.

Cricket Notes

Neither local club has a match Saturday but there will be an interesting game here. Using Nicholls Oval as a half-way neutral meeting place the Grove school will play a match there against a team from St. Andrew's College. The latter with Upper Canada College, Ridley and Trinity College School form a Big Four in contests in all branches of inter-scholastic sport.

Orfuns' Club Football Step Up Excites Much Press Comment

Word of Peterborough's entry into the senior O.R.F.U. this autumn has already spread throughout Ontario and a dozen sport pages in the past few days have commented upon it. Most of them favorably. The local Orfuns will be grouped with Montreal C.N.R., Toronto Balmy Beach, and Sarnia Imperials. The Hamilton Cubs have been dropped. Following are some of the clippings regarding the local entry, picked from various papers:

(Sarnia Observer.)

Art Massucci's Sarnia Imperials and Alex. Ponton's Balmy Beachers from Toronto will be playing on strange gridirons this fall. Montreal's brand new Canadian Nationals have been followed into the senior series of the Ontario Rugby Football Union by the coachless Peterborough Orfuns, last year's intermediate champions.

Word of the new entry was important and pleasant news to Imperial football officials to-day. Jackie Baker, manager of the team, declared that no intimation of the fourth team had been given the local management by the provincial authorities.

Two Backfield Stars.

Two of last year's backfielders, Marsh and Loucks, are said to be senior calibre. Besides that pair, they have Gil Putnam, the rangy middle who starred with Sarnia's first senior squads; Leo Deady, Argo end; Eddie Murphy, formerly of St. Michael's College; Charlie Kearns, ex-Argo, and Don Crowe, Tech graduate from Toronto.

Efforts are being made to line up "Bam" Bamforth, Lambton County graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College, as coach for this year's team. If Bamforth can secure permission from the Board of Education to coach, he gets the job. His work in piloting the Peterborough Collegiate to the championship won him recognition. If he is unavailable the Petes will probably go to Toronto for a tutor.

Plenty of Room.

Peterborough Stadium will seat 3,000 fans and parking accommodation for cars will bring the capacity up another thousand, according to club officials.

With Peterborough in the running the DeGruchy circuit has a balanced grouping for the first time in years. And regardless of how strong Montreal and Peterborough may be they will give more opposition to the Imperials and Beaches than has been forthcoming from Hamilton's second best club.

(Toronto Telegram.)

For the past two years Gil Putnam, formerly of Sarnia, Beaches, and Michigan Tech, has been coaching the Peterborough team, because his territory as a salesman for Imperial Oil has been up that way. He has made a fine job of it, too, but we do not know whether ne will have time to take hold of a senior club. By the way, two of the best football players in Toronto work for a firm with a big office in Peterborough. So perchance even this season the new entry will revive the good old days of Ross Craig and Gene Hurtubise, football heroes of that hamlet in times long gone, and go out and give good battle to the big teams of Sarnia, Montreal, C.N.R., and Balmy. They are game, at any rate.

(Kitchener Record.)

Admission of Peterborough Orfuns to the senior division of the O.R.F.U. rounds out the loop into a four-team circuit, with Sarnia, Balmy Beach, Montreal and Peterborough represented. The jumps are going to be long ones all down the line, but in the event that the teams are fairly-evenly matched, attendances at all four cities should help solve the train fare question.

(Kingston Whig-Standard.)

As hinted some time ago, when Hamilton failed to build a team to measure up to the improved standards of the Ontario Football Union, the franchise was switched to Peterborough and the circuit next fall will be composed of Montreal C.N.R., Peterborough, Toronto Balmy Beach and Sarnia. Apparently Peterborough has been preparing for an entry into the senior ranks for some time as several senior players have located in the Lift Lock City in recent months to strengthen last season's intermediate champions.

(Lindsay Post.)

Peterborough Orfuns, after several years in the Intermediate branch of the O.R.F.U., have entered the senior series. This report, published in the Peterborough Examiner on Monday, came as a distinct surprise to us despite the fact that we had heard rumors and counter-rumors since the close of the last football season. We discounted all reports of Peterborough's entering senior football by the thought that public support down there wouldn't warrant it. The cash customers didn't support the intermediate Orfuns very royally and we can't see them laying any too much on the line even for senior football. One ray of sunshine, however, is the fact that they'll get plenty of support from surrounding centres like Lindsay. There have been enough football fans, of the very rabid type, developed in Lindsay during the past few years that they will probably mean quite an asset to Peterborough's senior club next fall. More power to the executive, a really active bunch of sportsmen, for their courage.

Local Interest.

The dope on the change into senior football is contained in an article on this page in which information interesting to Lindsay fans is contained. Ford Loucks, former local star, is mentioned as an outstanding secondary man. Since there'll be no football in Lindsay this fall, except the L.C.I. team, players like Kirley or Campbell may have ambitions to get into Peterborough. If any of the Peterborough players of last year are fit for senior ball, either of the above are similarly fit. Both are short, chunkily built fellows who have been mainstays of Lindsay's football teams for several years.

(Oshawa Times.)

Definite word is now out that Peterborough Orfuns—who have never won the Intermediate O.R.F.U. championship yet — will now enter the Senior O.R.F.U. ranks, taking over the franchise released by Hamilton Cubs.

It will be nice to see "Gus" Guiltinan and "Danny" Daniels playing rugby on the Peterborough gridiron again. These Oshawa boys wear the Balmy Beach uniforms in the Senior O.R.F.U. race. ePterborough should have a fair team at that, and will no doubt be strengthened by a few "imports" in the near future.

(Belleville.)

Our little "scoop" on the O.R.F.U. subsidizing a senior football team in Peterborough wasn't far off the straight and narrow after all. Last evening the O.R.F.U. admitted Peterborough into the senior football ranks, we presume as a jumping off place between Sarnia and Montreal. The Peterborough Orfuns are to replace the old Hamilton Panthers. The Orfuns intend to play their home games at the Peterborough Exhibition Grounds, where accommodations for 4,000 are being provided. O.K. Cec., good luck.

Mark St. Juveniles Defeat Park Gang

Mark St. Juveniles defeated Park St. 10 to 9, Thursday night at the Oval in a good Church Softball League fixture. Davis on the winners' mound was in Santa Claus mood and handed out no less than 17 free tickets. However, he pitched two-hit bal land fanned seven, getting good support from his mates at bat and in the field. Campbell walked four, fanned none and was nicked for nine safe blows. A fielding feature was Anderson's running catch of Moore's fly in the fifth. The teams:

Falcons Surprise With 13-12 Win

The fourth series of the Canadian Watercraft Loop softball schedule was staged Thursday night at the Exhibition Grounds, when Falcons surprised the peppy Venetians by a 13-12 count. All teams are now on an even keel with two wins and two losses each, with the Admirals yesterday copping a 30-28 win over Comets in the second tilt. The opening fray saw the Falcons cash in on all chances and Hunter, their hurler, had good support. Ferguson clouted two homers. Some fair fielding was shown and G. Mongraw banged out a double for the Admirals when it was needed in the second scrap. Miller also hit well for Comets. Umpire Doug Mitchell performed his job well. Thursday next at the Ex., Venetians meet Admirals, and Falcons play Comets.

Lacrosse Club Joins Senior "B" Grouping

At an O.L.A. meeting in Toronto Thursday night, at which H. S. Leybourne, president of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, and Pete King attended from here, groupings were drawn up. The Petes were placed in an interlocking senior "B" grouping, having a double schedule with the four other teams in Group 1, and an interlocking single schedule with the five clubs in Group 2.

Group 1 consists of: Peterborough, Brampton, Brooklin, Toronto East York and Long Branch. Group 2 includes: Hamilton, Owen Sound, Orangeville, Woodbridge and Inglewood-Caledon. It will mean 13 home games and 13 away for each club, and the schedule opens June 7th. Playoffs between the groups will be definitely arranged later. It was decided to raise the rating of these teams to a senior "B" calibre in Ontario Lacrosse Association competition.

First section games affecting the locals are: June 7—Petes at Woodbridge; June 10—Brampton at Peterborough; June 14—Petes at Inglewood-Caledon; June 17 — Inglewood-Caledon here; June 24—Long Branch at Peterborough; June 25—Petes in Brampton; June 29—Petes at Long Branch; July 1 — Owen Sound at Peterborough.

SCHOOLBOY ROWE FAILS IN COMEBACK—SENT TO BEAUMONT

Fans Will Remember Detroit Pitcher As Main Support Of Tigers' Pennant Drives

Bottom Drops Out Cochrane Drive For '38 Bunting

NEW YORK, June 3 (CP)—They said so long to the Schoolboy today—one of the grander guys in this baseball business.

They'll remember Schoolboy Rowe for his "How'm I doin' Edna?" when he knocked them in the aisles back in the palmy days. They'll remember him pitching Detroit Tigers to pennants in 1934 and 1935.

And they'll remember him, too, working his heart out this spring trying to come back, trying to overcome an arm ailment that specialists had been laboring over for more than a year.

But it was just no go for the Schoolboy. For four or five innings, the arm held up, although little of the snap was left. Then it went out. Three times this spring he took the long walk to the showers. His heart was there, but that ailing wing couldn't finish what it started.

Back To Beaumont

So yesterday, the Tigers sent him back to Beaumont from where he skyrocketed to the top in 1933. They hope the warm, sunny climate of the southwest may restore the life and zip to the salary whip.

And in Schoolboy Rowe, you have, largely, the picture of the disappearing chances of Mickey Cochrane and his Detroit dynamiters in this year's American League wars.

The Tigers had shown their first consistent winning effort of the season when they headed east, with their first stop Yankee Stadium, where pitching is the No. 1 need of every visiting outfit. With Kennedy up, they finished in front in the series opener Wednesday.

But yesterday, Mickey sent Poof Poffenberger and Submarine Baller Elden Auker to the post and neither had it. The Yanks won both ends of a doubleheader, 5-4, with Spud Chandler turning in a six-hit effort and Red Rolfe whacking a homer, and 5-2, with Monte Pearson hurling his best game of the season, a five-hitter. Tommy Henrich and Billy Knickerbocker supplied the home-run production.

Yanks Gain On Indians

That left the Tigers with a less-than-.500 average for the season again, and boosted the Yanks up to within 2½ games of the American League leading Cleveland Indians. The Tribe outlasted the Athletics in a battle of home runs in Philadelphia and posted a 10-5 victory.

The pace-setting Giants in the National League were rained out in Pittsburgh, but picked up half a game anyway as the second-place Chicago Cubs lost a 6-2 affair to Boston. Johnny Lanning, relieving Milt Shoffner in the second inning, hurled shutout ball the rest of the way.

Homers by Ernie Koy and Cookie Lavagetto featured an 11-5 win for Brooklyn over Cincinnati Reds. Ducky Medwick collected four hits, three of them doubles, to pace the Cardinals to a 12-5 victory over the Phillies.

Dutch Leonard pitched a six-hitter as the Senators swamped the Chicago White Sox 7-1, and young Jim Bagby duplicated that effort in hurling the Red Sox to a 6-1 win over St. Louis Browns.

70 YEARS A CHORISTER

G. Kennedy is celebrating his 70th year as singer in the Garrison Church choir in Windsor, England.

Yesterday's Stars

(By the Associated Press.)

Spud Chandler, Red Rolfe and Monte Pearson, Yankees—Chandler pitched six hitter and Rolfe hit homer with two aboard in 5-4 opening win over Tigers; Pearson allowed five hits to take nightcap 5-2.

Ducky Medwick, Cardinals — Hit three doubles and a single, driving in three runs in 12-5 decision over Phillies.

Babe Phelps, Dodgers—Hit double and three singles and drove in two runs in 11-5 win over Reds.

Hal Trosky, Indians—His homer, double and single drove in four runs and paced Tribe to 10-5 triumph over Athletics.

All Saints Win Over George St.

All Saints Juveniles pulled a Church Softball League surprise last night at Queen Mary by copping a 12-11 nod over George St., the latter's first loss in five. All Saints were shorthanded but got to L. Routley for seven runs and then added five off his cousin, E. Routley. Abraham of the winners pitched neat ball though getting banged about in the late frames. Hamilton, Duncan and Richardson hit homers for the losers as Mortimer hit safely three times for All Saints. Hill pulled off three feature catches for the winners. The teams:

Ace Lacrossers Here Tonight

Two of the best intermediate lacrosse teams in Ontario will clash here to-night (Friday) at 8.30 o'clock in the George Street Arena when the Anglewood-Caledon Combines meet the Petes, weather permitting. It will be an exhibition game and should draw a big crowd of fans. All kinds of lightning-fast action and smart play by experienced gutted-stick outfits will make for a nifty fixture. It is something of a revival of the O.L.A. semi-finals last year when the locals lost to the Inglewood crew after a thrilling series, the winners going on to cop the Provincial pennant. They are reputed to be just as strong this season, while the locals have bolstered over the 1937 lineup. It will be anybody's battle to-night.

Following are the Inglewood-Caledon players, with numbers: Chambers (1), Wilson (2), Puckering (3), Walsh (4), Jones (5), Rayburn (6), T. Paterson (7), N. Nelson (9), O. Nelson (10), Erskine (11), Smith (13), Petch (14), S. Paterson (15), and McEachern (16). Maybe a few more, too.

Joe Mayette will be in goal for the Petes, with J. Creighton and Westonfelt on defence. One line has King, Dundas, Whitton and Dallin, and the other has Crowe, E. Creighton, Magee and Worthy. Extra defenders are Miller, Chute and Sloan. Bud Fisher wil lreferee it.

Injury Jinx Hits Orioles

TORONTO, June 3 (CP).—Bucky Crouse, the ex-glass blower who manages Baltimore Orioles of the International League, must be longing for the comparative peace and quiet of a glass factory as trouble continues to follow his harassed ball club.

Bucky's woes began early in the season when Lefty Carl Fischer broke an arm, and the injury jinx has been trailing him since, touching among others, Outfielders Frank McGowan, Ab Wright, Shortstop Nolan Richardson, and Pitcher Harry Matuzak.

Add to these injuries the suspensions handed to a few of the eccentric regulars, and the current seven-game losing streak which has sent the Birds from second to seventh place in less than a week, and you get a picture of what Crouse has had to contend with.

Rollie Stiles, veteran right-hander of the Jersey City Giants, plastered defeat No. 7 on the Orioles yesterday as he held them to five hits to win 4-1.

The triumph moved the Jerseys into fifth place and sent Syracuse to sixth as the champion Newark Bears edged out the Chiefs 7-6 for their sixth straight victory. Meanwhile Buffalo Bisons strengthened their grip on second place by whipping Rochester 4-1 and the Montreal Royals defeated Toronto 7-6 to end a six-game losing streak.

Ponies and Petes Play On Saturday

Kingston Ponies play the Petes here at three o'clock to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon in Riverside Park, weather permitting, in a C.O.B.L. contest. It will be the first showing of the Ponies here this year, and the Petes' second home game of the season. They dropped a 2-0 opener to Oshawa, and lost a 5-0 tussle in Kington last Wednesday. They are determined to break into the victory column at home this week-end, and will be in there battling tooth and nail all through. Manager Eddie Murphy will trot out his strongest squad and make them hustle from start to finish. He feels the Petes are due to crack their early-season jinx this time. Coach Bob Elliott's gang will be equally anxious to cop the nod, and it ought to be a fine fixture before another big crowd of ball rooters.

Ed. Pollar, imported U.S. southpaw, will in all probability pitch for the Ponies to-morrow. It is his turn, and the big left-hander, who blanked Oshawa at home with a two-hit performance, will be worth seeing in action. There are several other C.O.B.L. newcomers on the Kingston team. A new southpaw is likely to hurl for the Petes, and it will be a nifty hurlers' duel. Kitchen and Jakafby will be the reserve tossers. Calladine and Murphy will be in the local lineup, and are expected to aid a great deal on the offensive.

Nationals Lose To Westclox 7-4

In an exhibition inter-league men's softball game last night at the Bowl, Westclox of the City League took a 7-4 decision over Nationals of the Southend Loop. The losers threatened hard near the finish with two runs in the ninth and it was a neat encounter throughout, with Westclox having a little edge. Parsons pitched nine-hit ball, walked five and fanned seven for them. On the losers' slab, Collins was nicked for 13 safe blows and a pair of free bases as he struck out two. His support was not quite as good as his rival's.

Dormer hit three singles for the victors, as Ellis got a homer and double, and Parsons a two-bagger and single. Rennie clouted two singles for the Nats, with Loucks blasting a double and single. Rennie, Adamson, O'Leary and Foster looked good defensively. The Nats had a neat double-play, Thompson to Cameron to Loucks. Carlson, Westclox catcher, was hurt twice during the fray—as he played without a mask—but stayed in the game. It was a snappy nine-inning affair, lasting but an hour. The teams:

CASTROL DRIVES "DULL CARE" AWAY!

No Action Taken By Board On Proposed Street Paving

The Board of Works turned thumbs down Thursday night on a suggestion that two blocks of Water Street from Charlotte Street to Hunter Street should be re-surfaced this year.

Instead the stretch of pavement, admittedly in bad need of replacement, will be patched up and the $6,500 that re-surfacing would have cost will be used for other street work. By next year it is hoped the city will have a plant that will enable it to do this paving itself.

A letter was read from the Warren Paving Company offering to resurface the two blocks in question with warrenite at $1.82 per square yard, or with asphaltic concrete at $1.72 a yard, with 15 cents a yard additional in each case for tearing up the old pavement. The company said the work would have to be done almost at once as they were moving their plant from Lindsay shortly.

City Engineer Parsons said the total cost of the work, if warrenite was used, would be $6,536, while the asphaltic concrete job would cost $6,145.72.

Ald. Glover said that rather than resurface Water Street he would rather see the money spread out over other streets.

Do Its Own Paving.

Ald. McIntyre asked why the city should not do its own paving. He understood a small plant capable of doing the work could be procured at a reasonable price.

City Engineer Parsons said that a plant large enough to give satisfactory service could be secured around $4,500.

On motion of Ald. McIntyre and McCannan, the engineer was instructed to report on the cost of the city's doing its own paving, and on motion of Ald. Cotton and Dutton, was given instructions to patch Water Street as soon as possible.

Mayor Hamilton moved, seconded by Ald. Cotton, that the City Engineer be instructed to level the top of Memorial Park hill at a cost not to exceed $500. Carried.

It was decided that Stewart Street, from Hunter, Charlotte Street to Townsend should be provided with a brisk gutter and re-treated road surface and similar improvements be carried out on Reid Street from Charlotte to Sherbrooke Streets, Brock Street from Aylmer to Rubidge Streets, and Simcoe Streets from Reid Street to Park Street, while King Street will be re-treated from Park Street to Monaghan Road.

Ald. E. R. Wilson (chairman), the Mayor and Ald. Glover were appointed a committee to interview the property owners affected in regard to the rip-rapping of the drain near the De Laval plant.

Hitler's Cloak

When he dedicated a new station in Munich recently, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler turned out to inspect his honor guard draped in a cloak that is somewhat reminiscent of the Duke of Wellington's campaign cape, or the toga of a Caesar. Here is Der Fuehrer wearing the new mantle as he saluted the guard.

Ecuador Troops Get Ready To Fight Peru

QUITO, Ecuador, June 3.—(AP).—Ecuador's frontier army sharpened its defences to-day in the wake of a new incident of violence in the country's 107-year-old territorial dispute with Peru.

Two Ecuadorian soldiers were reported killed and a lieutenant wounded yesterday in a clash with three Peruvian gunboats, along the River Aguarico in the north-eastern portion of a vast jungle claimed by both countries.

The Ministry of Defence at once ordered troops to refrain from retaliatory aggression, but to "defend themselves with all their characteristic valor."

It was ascertained reliably that Peruvian troops were concentrating at Tumbes, near the frontier and close to the Ecuadorean Pacific coast.

The Defence Ministr yorder charged that Peru, once the centre of Spanish power in South America, was "trampling on Ecuador in an unjustifiable way," and instructed Major Abelardo Aguirre, chief of the military garrison at Rocafuerte, "in no case permit any aggression by our troops, but if they are attacked they must defend themselves with all their characteristic valor."

Cabinet Meets 3 Times.

There was considerable tension here, and the cabinet met three times yesterday. There were unofficial reports the Ecuadorean minister to Peru had ben instructed to demand an explanation. (There was not at once any intimation of Peru's reaction).

Ecuador and Peru have been at odds over sovereignty over a vast area of jungle, approximately the size of New York State, since Ecuador established her independence in 1831.

The territory, sweeping eastward from the Pacific Andees into the continent, is inhabited chiefly by Indians. There are no roads and few white men have penetrated the thick forests.

OBITUARY

JOHN FINLEY HOUSTON.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, June 3.3 — John Finley Houston, president of the Houston Lumber Company, Limited, Belleville, passed away at the family residence, 175 Charles Street, late on Tuesday, after an illness of about four months' duration.

In the death of Mr. Houston, Belleville and surrounding district has lost a good citizen and one who was prominent in business and in the activities of church and fraternal organizations.

About ten years ago, Mr. Houston moved from Tweed to Belleville where he assumed a high standing in the affairs of the city. The late John Houston, who was in his 65th year, was born in the Village of Madoc, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Houston. For many years he resided in Tweed, where the Houston Company carried on business prior to removing to Belleville. In the Village of Tweed, he occupied a prominent place in the life of the community. For a considerable time he was active in the municipal affairs of Tweed.

In religion, Mr. Houston was a member of the United Church. Fraternally, he was Past Master of Tweed Lodge, No .239, A.F. and A. M., and was affiliated with Eureka Lodge, No. 283, A.F. and A.M., Belleville, Past First Principal of Madoc Chapter, R.A.M., and affiliated with Moira Chapter No. 7, R.A.M., Belleville; member of Tweed Chapter, No. 148, Order of Eastern Star, and a member of the Tweed Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 747. He was fond of sport, and was an active member in the bowling and curling clubs at Belleville.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Ann Elizabeth Easterbrook, two daughters, Miss Grace Houston, Mrs. Harry Rollins of Belleville; one son, Robert E. Houston, Belleville; one sister, Mrs. B. A. Holgate, Kirkland Lake, Ont.; two brothers, Dr. George Houston, Hamilton, and Frederick E. Houston, of Belleville.

The funeral was held on June 2 from his late residence, Belleville, to Tweed United Church, where the service was in charge of the Rev. Mr. Nicholson and the Masonic Order. Interment was made in the family plot in Victoria Cemetery.

MRS. ROBERT BELL.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, June 3. — The death of Mrs. Robert Bell on Sunday at Ottawa while visiting her son, Alvin Bell, B.A., teacher of that city, came as a shock to her family and friends. On Friday morning the Bell family, accompanied by Mrs. Bell's sister and brother, Miss Emma and Edward Lathangue of Lifford, left for a week-end visit at Ottawa, intending to return on Monday. Early on Monday morning, before any of the family had risen for the day, Pearl Bell, only daughter of the deceased lady, found that her mother had passed quietly away. For the past two years Mrs. Bell had been in failing health, but was feeling as well as ordinarily when the trip was undertaken. It was thought a stroke had caused her death.

Before her marriage the late Mrs. Bell was Annie Lathangue, second oldest child of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Lathangue (nee Anne Colvin), pioneer settlers at Lifford. Her happy girlhood days were spent at Lifford, where she received her education at Lifford School along with eight other members of the family. Following her marriage at her father's home to Robert Bell of Cartwright, she has resided in that district for many years. To their union were born two children, Miss Pearl Bell at home and Alvin Bell, who has taught school at Ottawa for several years, having married a young lady of that city a few years ago.

A particularly sad feature of the sudden death of Mrs. Bell is the fact that her sister, the late Mrs. John Henderson, passed away only two months previous at the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay.

Besides her husband and children there are left to mourn her loss the following sisters, Mrs. Archie Staples (Minnie), Fleetwood, Mrs. William Patterson (Phoemie), Toronto, Mrs. Albert Finney (Ola), of Fleetwood, and Miss Emma Lathangue, Lifford. The brothers are: Edward and William Lathangue on adjoining farms at the homestead at Lifford and Obie Lathangue of the Western Provinces.

The funeral took place on Wednesday at two o'clock at the farm home, the remains having been brought by train from Ottawa, accompanied by a brother, E. Lathangue. The floral tributes were magnificent and added their silent sympathy on this sad occasion. The service was conducted by Rev. V. Walker, pastor of Nestleton Presbyterian Church, with which the Bell family are closely connected, the late Mrs. Bell having been an active worker in the church, and the community life. During the service an appropriate solo was rendered by Percy Preston of Lifford, accompanied by Mrs. Herbert Neals. The remains were laid to rest in Riverside Cemetery, Lindsay, where the aged parents of Mrs. Bell were laid to rest a few years ago.

Goes To Geneva

Following a series of informal meetings of the international labor office governing body's three groups, it is reported in Geneva, Switzerland, that John G. Winant, ABOVE, of the United States, is virtually certain of election, as director of the international labor office to succeed Harold B. Butler, assistant director. E. J. Phelan, of Ireland, also is a candidate, but it is expected he will withdraw in favor of Winant.

Burglar Arrested In Lindsay Booth

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, June 3. — Burglary in a local store was nipped in the bud at midnight Tuesday by Constable Reeves, and as a result a young man named Peter Ward, of Toronto, is on remand for a week, charged with breaking and entering. The constable was on his rounds, and when passing the grocery store of J. Burke he was surprised to find the door of the booth annex open. He saw a man hiding behind the door and another man farther in the booth. When in the act of placing them under arrest they turned on the officer and started to put up a battle. One of the men escaped. Ward was taken to the police station and a detachment of the force went out in search of his partner, but he was not located.

An all day session of the police court was staged Wednesday when Magistrate Gee was called upon to hear the charges of resisting arrest, obstructing police and theft in which two residents of Cambray named Douglas (father and son) figured. Provincial Constable Hardy and two officers were given a battle when they undertook to arrest the son on the charge of theft. The officers told their story of the affray in court and stated that the father was most active in obstructing them. He declared that he was not afraid of all the police in the county as well as County Crown Attorney Anderson.

Magistrate Gee sentenced the son to three years in Kingston penitentiary and the father was remanded one week for sentence.

Joyhopping Taboo

LONDON, June 3 —(CP)— Civil aircraft operators have been warned against joyhopping over London at night, or in fact flying within 20 miles of Westminster Bridge between sunset and two a.m. at altitudes between 3,000 and 1,000 feet.

A ban against night flying over London between those altitudes has been issued by the air ministry after it received reports of near collisions between civil machines and unlighted Royal Air Force planes engaged in manoeuvres.

Presbyterians Ask Unity Of Action

TORONTO, June 3—(CP). — An appeal for unity of action between the churches to combat tendencies directed against democratic peoples marked the opening business session today of the 64th annual assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The appeal was delivered by Bishop W. C. White, former Bishop of Honan, who brought greetings from the Church of England in Canada as personal representative of Archbishop Derwent T. Owen, Primate of all Canada.

Similar sentiments were expressed by Dr. T. C. Pollock of Phliadelphia, representing the alliance of Reformed Churches, western section. He said that Americans appreciate the stand taken by Great Britain in Europe in the last few months.

"Someone is going to have to stop those who want to trample down western democracy," said Rev. Mr. Pollock. Without our inheritance of justice and truth we are on the way back to the jungle. He reminded the commissioners of the concentration camps in Europe and of those suffering in them for their religious beliefs.

HE WAS ALWAYS TIRED AND ILL

Three Complaints Gave Him a Miserable Time

Suffering from three complaints —disordered kidneys, sciatica, and rheumatism, how could this man be anything else but always tired and ill? This is what he writes:—

"Up to a month or so ago, I had suffered continually from kidney disorder, sciatica, rheumatism, and generally felt off colour. I was constantly tired, and under medical supervision, I tried many remedies, but without effect until I gave Kruschen Salts a trial. In four weeks, Kruschen has brought about a complete transformation. I have a healthy appetite and once more feel that it is good to be alive."—S.V.N.

The kidneys are the filters of the human machine. If they become sluggish, impurities find their way into the blood-stream, and the seed of half-a-dozen common ailments is sown.

The scientific combination of salts in Kruschen quickly coaxes the kidneys back to healthy, normal action. Soon your ailments are relieved and life becomes a joy again. —adv.

WOMEN SIT IN DARK CHURCH HEAR FORTUNES, COURT TOLD

Two Jobless Men Deny Pretending to Tell Future

SING DURING TRANCE

Liverpool — In the Spiritualists' Church of Faith here, it was alleged, women sat in the dark around a man supposed to be in a trance and giving messages from a Chinese spirit.

Ernest Bond, 35, unemployed laborer, and Robert Cameron, 36, unemployed steeplejack, pleaded not guilty to charges of pretending to tell fortunes. Mrs. Jane Stewart, 40, pleaded not guilty to aiding and abetting. The hearing was adjourned.

H. A. Fry, prosecuting, said fortune telling was growing at Liverpool and having a serious effect on credulous women and girls.

"When a pseudo-religious atmosphere is associated with it there is a danger that the supposed fortune teller may be regarded as a divinely gifted person," he said.

The discovery of women sitting in the dark was made by a woman witness. The women were singing hymns, while in the centre Bond was "putting the 'fluence" on Cameron, who appeared to go into a trance.

Bond seated the woman visitor in a chair, and he and Cameron told her fortune. They said she would marry soon, but must be careful of her man until she got the ring.

The following night the woman called again, and Cameron, while in a supposed trance, said to her: "Sister, you are not going to be married after all. You will have to watch the man who wants to marry you, because he is not to be trusted with other women."

The woman arranged to bring this man the next night, and she brought a policeman in plain clothes, for whom Bond predicted "a hell of misery."

SCOTLAND YARD ACTS TO FIGHT MARIJUANA

Court Hears Canadian Under Influence When He Was Involved in Gunplay

London. — A move by Scotland Yard to stamp out traffic in marijuana has been made, following a court statement that Andrew Vanderberg, Canadian war veteran sentenced here to 10 years' imprisonment for gunplay, was under the influence of the drug at the time. A product of Indian hemp plant, marijuana may be eaten, drunk or inhaled. The most popular form of taking it is in cigarettes.

The News-Chronicle declared a gang with a distributing centre in Soho had become increasingly active "and the cleverest men in the Yard's dope squad have been put on the track of pedlars of cigarettes containing this dangerous drug. Enormous profits are made, and, as is often the case in the illicit drug trade, the customer is frequently swindled.

"Addiction is held responsible for many murders, suicides and particularly sexual assaults. It differs from that due to opium, cocaine and alcohol, because it does not produce a craving."

HOUSING ESTATE HAS BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUB

Facilities Are Provided for Football, Cricket, Swimming and Boxing

Birmingham. — England's first fully-equipped boys' and girls' club for a housing estate has been opened at Weoley Castle, Birmingham.

It cost £6,000 ($30,000) and the main charge has been borne by Messrs. Cadbury Bros., Bournville. The opening ceremony was performed by George Cadbury.

The accommodation includes a clubroom and handicraft room for girls, and a large games room, clubroom and workshop for boys.

Activities will range from football, cricket, swimming and boxing to socials, dances and film displays. It is hoped in the winter to continue outdoor games by floodlighting.

Club members serving on committees will share the responsibility of running the new venture.

SOUGHT CITIZENSHIP IS HALED TO COURT

Fiance of Alien Made False Marriage Declaration

London.—"She wanted to marry and become British," stated Det.-Sergt. Smith at Clerkenwell of an Austrian girl whose intended marriage with a Cypriot waiter had been the subject of a prosecution.

The man, Vasos Michael Vasiliades, 28, was bound over for making a false declaration in a notice of marriage.

The magistrate dismissed a charge against the woman—Hermine Vitek, 28, a servant—of aiding and abetting. She pleaded guilty to being an alien failing to notify change of address, and was put on probation

REAL ROOF GARDEN HAS PURLING BROOK

Erected 100 Feet in Kensington Shopping Area

London.—In the heart of the Kensington shopping district, the Earl of Athlone opened 100 feet up in the air, an acre and a quarter of charming gardens.

They are the roof gardens which Derry and Toms have been laying out on top of their store for two years.

Surrounded by battlemented walls one can wander in an English garden, along winding walks, by a little stream and a waterfall, over bridges and among flower beds; or one may find oneself in a Spanish garden, with balconies and pergolas.

SACRIFICES FORTUNE FOR LOVE OF GOSPEL

Distinguished Surgeon Devotes Life to Evangelistic Work in Wales

Aberavon — Pastor of a little church in the toughest quarter of Aberavon's dockland, Dr. Martin Lloyd Jones, a former colleague of Lord Horder, has refused an offer to become minister of the prosperous and fashionable Marylebone English Presbyterian church, London.

Eleven years ago Dr. Jones, a brilliant heart specialist, sacrificed fame, fortune, and West End social life to answer the call of the Welsh Presbyterian church.

From the church at Aberavon, Dr. Jones and his wife set in motion a revivalist movement that is sweeping Wales.

Today men in silk hats mingle with men wearing cloth caps in the crowds entering every church where Dr. Jones preaches.

"It is a great disappointment to us that Dr. Jones prefers to remain in Wales," the Rev. J. Chalmers Lyon, Moderator of the Marylebone church, stated.

"The Welsh Presbyterians — his own denomination — have great need of him down there. He will carry out important work all over Wales.

"He is a wonderful man. If he had remained a doctor, and ignored the call of the church, he would have been earning £15,000 ($75,000) a year, and probably have had a title."

INFLUX OF FOREIGNERS

London.—The number of permits issued for the employment of foreign women and girls in domestic service in this country during the year ended March 31 last, was 13,576, including: Austrians, 7,007; Swiss, 2,210; and Germans, 1,267. The figures are given in a home office return.

Permits issued in 1936 numbered 8,449 and, with the addition of girls who entered in previous years, it is estimated there are at least 25,000 foreign domestic servants now employed in this country.

YOUTHFUL "DICTATORS" AMUSE LONDONERS

As Hitler and Mussolini were engaged in the serious task of inspecting Italy's armed forces in Rome recently, students at King's college, London, England, were aping the dictators in a ride through the Strand and along the embankment to the amusement of noon-day crowds. Preceded by other students wearing cabbages on their heads, the students saluted onlookers from their car. Police questioned the "leaders" and found the "rag" was the result of a bet.

DECIDES TO LAUNDER BURNS $1,500 NOTES

Husband Hid Money in Boiler as No Washing Done in Year

Chesterfield.—Charred fragments of 300 £1 banknotes ($1,500) burned in the fire of a housewife's copper boiler at Chesterfield were taken to London for the Bank of England to decide whether restitution can be made.

The notes were drawn by Ernest Dunlop, haulage contractor, to pay his father for a house. For safety he placed them in the boiler fireplace, knowing that his wife had not had a washing day at home for more than 12 months.

But Mrs. Dunlop suddenly decided to wash some clothes, and her husband came home to find the copper fire alight.

He made a grab for the notes, burning his arm to save the charred remains.

Mr. Dunlop consulted the police. Inspector Olive and Detective Shelton photographed the fragments and sent them to the forensic science laboratory at Nottingham.

ROYALTY REFUSES TO ATTEND ALL-STAR MATINEE CANCELLED

First Step Under New Rule Stipulating Amount To Be Raised

FACE HEAVY LOSS

London—The first step under the new rule whereby royalty will not attend charity events unless a sum stipulated by them is raised was taken when an all-star matinee at the London Hippodrome was indefinitely postponed.

The matinee was organized by the Ladies' Association of the Royal General Theatrical fund, of which the Marchioness of Carisbrooke is president and Lady Weigall chairman. Queen Mary Princess Helen Victoria and Princess Marie Louise had promised to attend.

They had stipulated that the fund should benefit to the extent of not less than £2,00 ($10,000). A few days before the event the organizers realized this sum would not be reached, and communicated with Queen Mary's private secretary, Sir Gerald Chichester. They were informed there was no alternative but to cancel the matinee.

Now the organizers are faced with the following expenses, which had already been incurred and must be met: Hire of the theatre, exceptionally heavy printing costs for programs, tickets, posters and circulars, postage, general organization, and advertising.

Less than a week before the performance was to have taken place notice of cancellation was sent to members of the cast, including Sir John Martin-Harvey, Sir Seymour Hicks, Irene and Violet Vanbrugh, and a group of artist members of the Savage club headed by Starr Wood.

Two days previously Lady Weigall had given a party at her house at which Princess Helena Victoria and Princess Marie Louise were present.

This was not a business meeting, although members of the committee attended, and there was no suggestion the matinee would not take place as arranged.

BLAZE INTERRUPTS STROLL OF MAN, 101

Preparing for Walk Carried From Burning Building

Cuffley, Herts.—John Fortnum, aged 101, was carried from his bed above a butcher's shop when the shop building, a private house and a cafe were destroyed by fire in Station Rd. He had been about to get up and go out for a walk.

"He often walks from two until after four," said a neighbor, S. Wackett. "I don't expect the fire has upset him so much as one would expect."

YOUNG WIDOW HELD IN HUSBAND'S DEATH

Woman, 25, Arrested After Checking Library "Murder Thrill" Readers

Downham Market (Norfolk).—Scotland Yard officers investigating the death from strychnine poisoning of Lewis Arthur Sandford, 30, of West Dereham, returned to Downham Market after inquiring about crime "thrillers" taken out of local libraries.

Among them was "Crime Without a Clue," which was found to have been taken out by a number of people from the little county library at West Dereham village school.

The story tells of a nearly perfect murder, which was detected by a single slip. A number of other mystery books, including Robert Hichens' "Belladonna," were also taken out.

Detective Inspector Garner, of Norfolk C.I.D., visited J. Mattison, West Dereham schoolmaster and librarian and questioned him about the "thrillers."

They had half an hour's interview with Mrs. Mason, next-door neighbor and close friend of the dead man's widow.

Mrs. Rose Emma Sandford, 27, was placed under arrest charged with murdering her husband with strychnine. "I am innocent," she declared.

HE PAID HIS WAY FIDDLING ON SAW

All Went Well Till He Lost His Instrument

Petrus Vromans, 38, who had worked 14 years in British ships, wished to return home when his vessel docked at Falmouth for repairs. His skipper refused to pay him off, so he set off to walk to London. He earned money by his performances, aided by a companion as collector. Near Salisbury he met misfortune—he lost his saw. Then he declared himself an alien.

In court he pleaded guilty to landing without permission, and the magistrates decided to recommend him for deportation.

EXPLORATION FIRM PLANNED TO HUNT LOCH NESS MONSTER

Rear Admiral and Wife Report Seeing Two Humps Break Water

SHARES 25 CENTS

Glasgow—Proudly heaving a pair of prehistoric humps somewhere in the deep, dour waters of which he is the fashionable inhabitant still lurks the Monster of Loch Ness.

Apparently to remind all and sundry that the Glasgow Exhibition is not the only attraction in Scotland, he has been up to have a look at a Scotsman again—and that may rob him forever of his mystery.

A determined effort to "lay" the monster is being planned by Capt. R. Munro of New Galloway, who outlined a scheme to float a "monster-hunting" company.

"I don't want to hurt his feelings," Captain Munro, who is secretary of the Clan Munro association, explained. "I simply want to know what he is—and many people share my curiosity.

"I have a plan of scientific investigation which I think will result in the monster's identity being revealed. And shortly I shall call on those who say they will support me to a meeting to be held either in Glasgow or Edinburgh.

"I shall suggest the formation of a small company with shares at 1s. (25 cents) each. It is a gamble, but if it comes off it will be well worth while."

Meanwhile, the latest to meet the monster, as it were, is Rear-Admiral C. B. Prickett, of Glastullich, Rossshire.

He says that, looking over the lock from a hotel at Invermoriston, he and his wife saw "a dark rounded hump break the surface and dive, followed immediately by another hump the same size, perhaps 10 feet behind the first."

He adds that he would have said he had seen two large porpoises, but there was no sea water within 20 miles, and the objects did not reappear, like porpoises.

Those two humps have been popping up like a zoologist's nightmare for five years now. Some witnesses have sworn to a greater number of humps—Rev. Leslie Rule Wilson, vicar of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, Fort Augustus, plumped for six. But even in its most modest exhibitions the monster has sported a couple.

SEES BOAT OVERTURN SPEEDS UP RESCUERS

Spectator, Through Glasses, Witnesses Sea Mishap

Bognor. — Watching, through glasses, a sailing boat tacking a mile off shore against a strong breeze, A. J. Hallett, of Craigwell, near Bognor, saw it suddenly overturn and throw, two men into the rough sea. He told the police, and rescuers in two motor boats found Ian Trehearne and Frank Collett, both of Hove, clinging to the side of the upturned craft. They were taken to safety, and their boat, in which they were trying to sail from Portsmouth to Hove, was taken in tow.

ORATION DELIVERED BY MESSENGER BOY

Given Ovation by British Postal Union Workers After Speech

Margate — Sandy-haired Ernie Harding, 17-year-old telegraph boy, spread his freckled face in a bashful grin.

"There wasn't much in it," he said, "but I said what I wanted to say—and some more which came into my head when I got up there. Nervous? I didn't have time to be."

Harding had just made the hit of the year at the conference of the Union of Post Office Workers.

A thousand delegates and visitors from all parts of the country heard him make the first big speech of his life, pleading youth's case, and clapped him for minutes on end when he descended from the rostrum.

The union's general secretary, T. J. Hodgson, congratulating him on his speech, said: "It was in marked contrast to the flippancy with which youth is supposed to regard most serious things."

Harding, son of a shopkeeper living in Sydney Rd., Stockwell, S.W., is the hero of 158 telegraph boys in the southwestern district.

SECRET BRIDE GIVES INQUEST TESTIMONY

Jury Finds Son Murdered Mother and Took Own Life

Wolverton. — After a secret bride had given evidence at a Wolverton inquest, the jury found that Mrs. Lizzie Tryphena Robinson, 63, had been murdered by her son, John Thomas Paul Robinson, 27, who committed suicide during temporary insanity.

Mother and son had been found shot dead at Haversham Fields Farm, Wolverton.

Charles Gordon Greenhill of Stony Stratford, said he had known the Robinson family for 14 or 15 years. John Robinson, he said, had a temper which could be described as violent.

He knew of John Robinson's association with Miss Kitty Neale, of Stony Stratford. In the early days, John told him that he did not intend to get married as his mother was very much against it.

Walter Ansell, a builder's manager employed on the farm, said he was present at the marriage, by special license, of John Robinson.

Robinson's widow, who was in heavy mourning, gave evidence that her marriage had been kept secret from Robinson's parents and her mother. She agreed that the opposition to the marriage was due to the fact that Mrs. Robinson thought she had less social standing than her son.

Dr. W. E. Fields was asked by W. C. Bull, solicitor for the relatives, whether in the case of first-cousins marrying, as did Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, the first-born child was likely to develop an unbalanced mind. The doctor replied in the affirmative.

'GOSPEL ESSENTIALS' STOP CHURCH UNION

Sacrifice Called for, Dr. Jones Tells Council

Bournemouth.—In his presidential address to the National Free Church council at Bournemouth, Dr. J. D. Jones said that, although union with the Church of England was not yet practical, the Anglican Church were more sensitive to the scandal of different communions than the Free Churches.

"I am not suggesting that we should at once sink our differences. But nothing but the conviction that we hold something that is an essential part of the gospel and which would be obscured or sacrificed if we ceased to be, nothing but that justifies separation."

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

POLICE TORTURED PRISONER INDIAN INQUIRY IS TOLD

High Court Quashes Manslaughter Charge Against Captive

KILLED TORTURER

Rawalpindi, India—A judicial inquiry is proceeding into charges that four police officials and a canteen contractor tortured a prisoner in order to obtain a confession of theft.

The high court held that the prisoner, a watchman named Kiroo, was within his rights in killing Mohamed Ismail, one of the policemen who, it is alleged, tortured him. The high court quashed a sentence of life transportation on Kiroo for manslaughter of the policeman.

The judicial inquiry is before J. Anderson, commissioner for Rawalpindi district. The accused are Inspector P. Crowe, Head Constable Surhan Singh, Constables Iqbal Mohamed and Boston belonging to the cantonment police and Bhagat Singh, canteen contractor.

Captain O'Shea, medical officer in charge of the cantonment general hospital who examined Kiroo, Bhagat Singh and Ismail soon after a stabbing affray in which Ismail was killed, described Kiroo's injuries. He said Kiroo was then suffering from shock but was conscious. He added Kiroo's injury could have been self-inflicted.

Cross-examined by the defence, Captain O'Shea said he did not notice on Kiroo any other marks of wound or injury besides the stab wound he had described. If Kiroo had been hanged by the feet from a girder, marks should certainly have been visible.

Captain O'Shea said there was difficulty in Kiroo's wounds healing as on the fourth day after his operation he deliberately got the wound open and removed the stitches.

GIRL IS 'UNDERSTUDY' TO FRENCH 'RAFFLES'

Caught Running From Paris Mansion With Loot

Paris—A girl burglar, caught redhanded in a Paris mansion, confessed to the police that she was understudying France's "Raffles," handsome George de Lenz.

The woman, Germaine Aupert, is the wife of Raffle' first-lieutenant, who runs the gang while his chief is in the Sante prison.

She was caught running from a house after a servant had screamed for the police. In her pocket were jewelry, medals and a valuable decoration.

ARCHBISHOP REGRETS SCHISM IN S. AFRICA

Refuses to Recognize Opponents of Church Independence

Cape Town, S.A.—What the Archbishop of Canterbury describes as an "unhappy schism" exists in the Anglican church in South Africa. He turned down a request from the body known as the Church of England in South Africa to be recognized as an independent body. He also was asked to consecrate a bishop appointed by that body and a draft constitution was submitted to him.

This small body of churches disputes the right of the majority of South African Anglicans to declare themselves to be the church of the Province of South Africa and independent of direct control of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Acceptance of the constitution of the Church of England in South Africa and consecrating of a bishop would, the archbishop advises, be "merely to recognize and perpetuate a state of schism between the church of the province and "The Church of England in South Africa.'"

COINS IN OLD DESK MAY BRING FORTUNE

Bermuda Negro Finds 151 Pieces Worth About $10,000

Hamilton, Bermuda—A treasure of old gold coins which he found hidden in an old desk he was dismantling may bring a fortune to Russell L. Pearman, Negro cabinet maker. He was advised by an expert American numismatist the collection of 151 pieces is worth between $10,000 and $11,000 at present catalogue prices.

The expert was Mortimer Hammel of the Hammel Metal Co. who was sent to inspect Pearman's find by the Chase National Bank of New York City. Hammel has given the cabinet maker a catalogue of coins which identifies many of the valuable pieces of gold found in the old desk.

Some coins in the find are extremely rare and are valued as high as $200 each. Most of the doubloons in the collection range in value from $40 to $200 and West Indian pieces evidently collected by a connoisseur were described by Hammel as being difficult to obtain.

The metal firm has asked for an option on a number of Pearman's coins.

BRITAIN, GERMANY COMBINE TO GUARD QUEEN'S LETTERS

Student Who Copied Victorian Correspondence Restrained by Reich

HAD NO PERMISSION

Berlin—Negotiations behind the scenes which led to the suppression by the British and German governments of certain letters of Queen Victoria discovered in Germany, in which the queen discussed with an old friend the early days of her married life, are disclosed.

The letters were written to Baron von Stockmar, court physician and friend and trusty counsellor of both the queen and the prince consort, who played a considerable part in arranging the royal marriage.

The royal correspondence with Stockmar, which was kept in the Stockmar family library in Bavaria, was copied by a literary student, Herr Hans Schneider, who recently obtained permission to examine the Stockmar archives. No authorization to publish the letters, however, was given by the present head of the family.

Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador in Berlin, was requested by the British government to intervene, when news that Herr Schneider intended to publish a work on the letters reached Windsor.

The German foreign office promptly requested the Reich Chamber of Authors to forbid Herr Schneider to make use of such delicate family correspondence. The German police later visited his apartment in Nuremberg, confiscated the copies, and informed him that he was to go no further in such literary activities. The letters will be restored to the Stockmar archives.

GERMAN TAX DOOMS MANY VIENNA PETS

$25 License Fee Instead of Austrian $2.50

Vienna—Hundreds of people are having their cats and dogs destroyed because the German tax of $25 on domestic animals is certain to be imposed shortly in Austria, and is expected to be retrospective.

A license in the former Austria cost only about $2.50.

An order has been issued to the public to destroy puppies and kittens at birth, as there are too many dogs and cats, especially in Vienna.

WORKED 60 YEARS AS POCKET-PICKER

Paris—"I have put my fingers in more pockets than any other man in the world," said 78-year-old Giovanni Conte.

And the French police who were taking him to jail believed him.

But the white-bearded distinguished gentleman landed in the hands of the law for the eleventh time when he "lifted" a pocketbook on a Paris bus.

He has served jail sentences in France, Belgium, America and Brazil and will probably change his immaculate garb shortly for a prison uniform.

Loyalist Airmen Slowing Up Rebels

HENDAYE, June 3 (AP). — The insurgent power drive against the Teruel-Valencia highway appears to be stalling again before increasing Spanish Government resistance.

In many sectors of the mountainous front, which guards the highway to the Mediterranean coast, Government counter-offensives in the last two days have recaptured territory lost to General Franco's warriors.

Heaviest fighting centered in a 10-mile zone from insurgent-held Puebla de Valverde on the highway itself toward Mora de Rubielos. Government advices said their militiamen captured Cencerossos El Coso, just outside Valbona.

Much of the Government resistance was attributed to its revised air corps, which again is disputing mastery of the air with Franco's warplanes.

Barcelona pilots prevented large-scale bombardments of Government positions, and in one combat, Government despatches said, 12 insurgent planes were shot down.

Foreman Granted Salary Increase

James Burgess, Board of Works foreman, was granted an increase of $100 a year in salary at Thursday night's meeting of the Board, after an application by him had been read, in which he pointed out that he had completed a year and that when he was appointed there was an understanding that his salary would be reconsidered this year.

Mayor Hamilton said that there had been some sort of an understanding and City Engineer Parsons reported that Mr. Burgess had given excellent service.

It was moved by Ald. Stocker, seconded by Ald. Dutton, that Mr. Burgess' salary be increased from $1,600 to $1,700 a year, beginning from May 1st.

Ald. Bradburn moved in amendment that no action be taken until there was a report from the city engineer, and Ald. Gordon seconded the amendment, which was lost on a vote, the original motion then carrying.

J. O Fife, superintendent of the sewage disposal plant, also requested an increase in salary, but did not fare so well, the Board deciding to take no action. Ald. Stocker opposed any suggestion of a raise, declaring that Mr. Fife was driving a $1,000 car and wearing spats.

Attendance Falling In Sunday Schools

CHATHAM, Ont., June 3 (CP).—Figures which he considered "appalling" were presented to the London Conference of the United Church here last night by Rev. W. J. Preston in a report of the Committee on Christian Education.

"Apparently on every front the church is being defeated in these matters — advance in the church school's enrollment and attendance," he said. He quoted figures to show: The Church of Scotland has declined 29 per cent. in Sabbath School atendance since 1901; the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United tSaes shows a decline of 16 per cent. from 1922; the United Church of Canada reached is peak in Sabbath School enrollment in 192, and has since declined 8.66 per cent.; the London Conference showed the worst decrease, 9.01.

Governor Is

he came from his cabin to wave greetings, occasionally calling out in Gaelic. No gathering was too small for his attention and his friendliness of bearing was apparent to all who saw him.

Impressive Welcome.

The day was full of impressive welcomes from start to finish. When the Governor General arrived at Chemong in the morning he drove under evergreen arches draped with Union Jacks. He found the children from Bridgenorth school drawn up in a line and heard them sing the national anthem and cheer him in his passing.

With the trip just nicely begun his attention was called to the wharf at Curve Lake, where every Indian in the village was assembled to greet him. The Bessie Butler nosed close to the wharf that all might have a glimpse of the Governor General. At the head of the gathering stood Indian Chief Dan Whetung, garbed in his headdress of feathers, his hand upraised in Indian salute.

One of the biggest surprises and thrills of the day for Lord Tweedsmuir came at Bobcaygeon. As the Bessie Butler approached, rain was threatening, but it failed to dampen the welcome residents of that community accorded the Governor General. He strode from his cabin, eyes gleaming, as the boat was met in the open waters of the lake and escorted into Bobcaygeon lock, oldest in the Kawartha chain, by racing power boats that careened around and around the Bessie Butler.

Behind one speeding boat on water skis, a pretty girl with a lovely figure waved her hand in greeting as she sped past. She was Norma McIntosh of Bobcaygeon.

As the Governor General approached the lock sirens sounded, whistle blew, car horns tooted to greet him. On both sides of the shore hundreds of residents crowded for a glimpse of him. Disregarding a sudden downpour of rain that comenced just as the boat was entering the lock, His Excellency jumped ashore to shake hands with school children, ex-service men, and civic officials. The pupils, who had welcomed the Governor General by singing the National Anthem as the boat arrived, were given a holiday by request of His Excellency. They cheered him wildly.

Largest Reception.

The largest reception of the entire trip awaited Lord Tweedsmuir at Fenelon Falls, where Lindsay joined with that town in a royal welcome. Every store in town was closed for the occasion and the boat was halted for nearly half an hour. Nearly a thousand people jammed the landing site and cheered the boat's arrival to the echo. Flags were draped all about the lock entrance. A newly formed detachment of Girl Guides, resplendent in new uniforms, stood at attention along the wharf. A band struck up the National Anthem as Lord Tweedsmuir stepped from the boat. He listened to an address of welcome by Reeve A. E. Tiers of Fenelon Falls and Mayor Claxton of Lindsay, and thanked them for their reception. Then he inspected the Girl Guides, the ex-service men, the flag bearers, pupils from high and public schools. At the conclusion of these ceremonies, he held a reception and met more than a hundred residents. As the Bessie Butler pulled away from the lock school children burst into "O Canada" and flags were dipped.

At Rosedale lock another group of school chidren, some thirty of them, waited for the Governor-General. He went on shore and thanked them for their appearance.

Balsam Lake was choppy and Lord Tweedsmuir remained in his cabin, reading, for the most part. The boat steamed slowly up the canal and reached Kirkfield about 6.30 p.m., remaining at the top of the hydraulic lift locks until Friday morning.

The sound of the pipes as the boat approached Kirkfield brought the Scottish Governor-General hurrying from his quarters. Along the pier marched two pipers in kilts, and His Excellency smiled broadly to them. They were among the first he greeted when he stepped ashore.

There was a gathering of the clans at the journey's end. From miles and miles around whole families had made the trip. Hundreds of cars lined the roads and Lord Tweedsmuir descended the long step to the ground below the locks amid tumultuous applause. It was a successful ending to a successful day.

$4,800 Be Cost Of Footbridge

Estimates as to the cost of a footbridge over the Quaker Oats dam were read by Chairman E. R. Wilson at Thursday night's meeting of the Board of Works, but no action was taken, other than appointing a special committee to confer with officials of the Quaker Oats Company.

The estimates were as follows, the first being for the whole job, the others for steel work alone. Canadian Bridge Company $4,800; the Dominion Bridge Company $3,350, the Sarnia Bridge Company $3,800 and the Hamilton Bridge Company $3,500.

Several members of the board felt that in view of the limited number served by the suggested footbridge that no action should be taken, but Ald. Dutton pointed out that the council was throwing the whole onus upon the Quaker Oats Company for anything that might happen through people crossing the dam.

It was decided that a committee composed of the Mayor, Ald. Wilson, Dutton and Glover and City Engineer Parsons should confer with Quaker Oats officials in regard to the matter.

Controlling Junk Yards Is Discussed

Reeve James Milby and Clerk Bruce Johnston were a deputation from the North Monaghan Council which waited upon the Finance Committee of the City Council on Thursday night seeking co-operation in the matter of controlling junk yards.

Reeve Milby pointed out that at the last session of the Ontario Legislature townships adjacent to cities had been granted the authority to pass by-laws to control and regulate the junk business and North Monaghan proposed to take advantage of this change. The Township Council, however, was anxious that the measure they passed should be uniform with the city by-law, and he asked that the city should not make changes in its junk by-law until the two bodies had conferred.

"In cities," pointed out City Clerk Armstrong, "this matter is entirely in the jurisdiction of the Police Commission."

"We can make recommendations, though," said Ald. Gordon.

Clerk Johnston said that it was desirable that the police should be assisted in tracing stolen articles by proper control of junk and second-hand businesses.

It was decided, on motion, that a committee composed of Mayor Hamilton, Ald. Cotton, chairman of the Finance Committee, and City Solicitor W. F. Huycke should confer with the North Monaghan Council.

Beer Drinking Party Nipped

The top of Memorial Park Hill is a splendid place from which to obtain a bird's eye view of Peterborough but two local men discovered early this morning that it was not the best spot in the world to drink beer.

A prowl car of the police department happened to arrive on the scene in the midst of the frothblowing and as a result the two men pleaded guilty in police court this morning to illegal consumption and were fined $10 and $4.50 costs each.

As a further result a police squad consisting of Sergt. John Thompson, and Officers John Stevenson and W. A. Clark, armed with a search warrant raided the home of Raymond Lee, Euclid avenue, some time after the arrest of the two thirsty individuals, and seized a quantity of beer.

Lee was arraigned in police court before Magistrate Langley, K.C. on a charge of illegal sale of liquor and was remanded until next Wednesday, bail being fixed at $500. He was first remanded until Thursday but later it was discovered that that date was a public holiday and Lee was brought back to have the date changed.

Lord Tweedsmuir was a victim to the charm of the Kawarthas following his three-day cruise of the great chain of lakes as far as Orillia. On Thursday, second day of the voyage, he travelled from Chemong to Kirkfield.

A heavy shower of rain failed to dampen the welcome the Governor-General received at Bobcaygeon, where powerful speedboats raced out to escort the Bessie Butler into the harbor. Disregarding the downpour, Lord Tweedsmuir jumped ashore, talked to school children (1). At Fenelon Falls, where Victoria county extended a welcome, he climbed ashore (3) to be greeted by a large crowd (4). Girl Guides, and boys bearing huge flags, stood at attention (5) while the boat passed on its way up the lakes following a large reception.

Plea of Guilty Is Entered To Theft of Gloves

Louis M. Corbett pleaded guilty in police court this morning to stealing two complete sets of boxing gloves the property of the Riverview Athletic Club, and also to obtaining $27.50 from Nathan Fine under false pretences.

On a third charge of non-support of his wife and three children Corbett entered a plea of not guilty.

He was remanded until Wednesday next on all three charges.

When arraigned in connection with the theft of the boxing gloves the indictment said that the latter were valued at more than $25.

"I plead guilty," said Corbett, "but the gloves were not worth more than $25."

"I think I can accept that plea," said Magistrate Langley, K.C. "Is the crown willing to have this treated as a case involving the theft of property of less than $25 value?"

Crown Attorney McElderry had no objection to the indictment being so changed.

In connection with the false pretences charge it was alleged that Corbett had obtained $27.50 from Nathan Fine by representing himself as the sole owner of a radio and stating there was no lien on the set.

"How did you obtain the $27.50," asked the Magistrate.

"I sold the radio," the accused stated.

Corbett said that he would plead guilty to the third charge of non-support but added that he had been unable to contribute anything toward the maintenance of his wife and family because he was out of work and had no money.

"I can't take that plea," said the Magistrate. "Nine out of ten lawyers, if you told them those facts, would say that you were not guilty."

"Then I will plead not guilty," the accused stated.

Kenneth Roy, also charged with the theft of two sets of boxing gloves from the Riverview Athletic Club, pleaded guilty and was remanded until Monday for sentence.

The alleged offence took place in April and Corbett and Roy were arrested yesterday in Havelock and brought here last night.

Welcome Governor At Young's Point

YOUNG'S POINT, June 3—Young's Point inhabitants and school children gave a royal welcome to Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General of Canada, on his arrival by the steamer "Bessie Butler" on Wednesday.

When the boat had entered the locks, His Excellency got off and shook hands with P. P. Young and his brother, Con. Young, and told them how glad he was to be able to visit Young's Point. They then walked across the locks to view the monument, which the two brothers had been instrumental in having erected to commemorate the founding of Young's Point by Francis Young and his family, who located here in the month of August, 1825. The monument is erected on the same ground where the first log-house stood on the Point.

As they were returning from the monument, His Excellency Lord Tweedsmuir went on to the veranda of P. P. Young's home and shook hands with Captain Pat Young, who has been ill for over a year, and chatted with him and his sister, Miss Irene Young, for a few minutes.

Before the party again got on board he shook hands with Rev. E. C. Moore, and asked for the schoolmaster, Mr. Willock, and declared an afternoon holiday from school.

Led by Rev. E. C. Moore, the boys gave three robust cheers for the Governor General.

Roy D. Dodge of Cobourg Heads Northumberland Conservatives

Five Hundred Attend Warkworth Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 3.—At their annual meeting for the election of officers held in the town hall, Warkworth on Thursday evening, Northumberland Conservatives elected by acclamation Roy D. Dodge of Cobourg, as president of the Association. The representation which came from all parts of the riding numbered between four and five hundred and after electing officers for the coming year delegates to attend the Ottawa convention were chosen.

Among those present on the platform were Roy Wilmott, candidate at the last provincial election, who spoke briefly of George Drew, Denton Massey and Dr. Manion as possibilities for the federal leadership. He referred to the choice of leadership as being a matter of far greater imoprtance than the friction that has arisen due to the unsettled date of the convention.

Austin Hall of Colborne who also spoke attacked the lack of power in the association to direct the party platform.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Roy D. Dodge, Cobourg (acclamation); 1st vice-president, Austin Hall, Colborne; 2nd vice-president, Fred Dennyes, Brighton Township; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. E. J. McCurdy, Cobourg (acclamation); secretary, C. H. Calver, Campbellford (acclamation); treasurer, John A. Anderson, Campbellford (acclamation).

In electing delegates to attend the Ottawa convention the plan submitted by the Murray Township executive was adopted and the county was divided into four zones in order to insure fair representation. The delegates were elected as follows with the second named being the alternative: For Murray Township, Brighton village, Brighton Township, Crahme Township, 1, William Goodfellow, Brighton Township; 2, Grant Broatch, Murray Township. For Percy, Seymour and Campbellford, 2, John Locke, Seymour; 1, Chas. Davidson, Campbellford. For Alnwick, Hastings, Colborne, and Haldimand, 1, Arthur Willoughby, Colborne; 2, James Greaves, Alnwick. For Hamilton Township and Cobourg, 1, A. R. Wilmott, Cobourg; 2, Mrs. E. J. McCurdy, Cobourg.

Race Sheets Seized

TORONTO, June 3—(CP)—Three men were arrested and several hundred racing sheets seized in a police raid to-day on premises where a race track paper known as "The Little Green Sheet" is printed to be sold at race tracks for 10 cents.

Ernest Griffith, 50, said by police to be proprietor of the paper, was arrested along with Joseph Elsler, 20, and Alec Wayman, 26, on charge of supplying information intended to assist betting on horse races. The trio were held pending arrangements for bail.

Veteran Nears 107

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., June 3.—(AP).—Old Soldier Charles W. Eldridge said to-day he would celebrate his 107th birthday June 29 by attending the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Gettysburg, Pa. He was wounded five times during the Civil War.

Simpler Phrasing Urged in Religion

TORONTO, June 3 (CP)—Simpler phrasing of religious beliefs and more emphasis on the type of life led by Christ would lead young people to the church, in the opinion of Dr. H. C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University.

Dr. Wallace told the Toronto conference of the United Church last night that young people of high purpose are not joining the church as they should because of dislike for the "dogmatic viewpoint" in religious phraseology. Ancient statements of belief, he said, "seem to our young people to carry a note of insincerity and dishonesty."

Youth distrusts the surface terms in which religious teaching is conveyed and "they think that points of view are held as a creed they cannot subscribe to," he continued.

Rephrasing of the church's thinking into more modern terms is needed, Dr. Wallace said, and emphasis should be on simple language.

"If you were to ask me what might be taken as a simple statement of Christian faith, I would suggest that it is a way of life as shown to us by Christ," he concluded. "Beyond that we should leave to others such domestic assertions as are necessary for our spiritual lives."

The conference elected Rev. George W. Barker of Kingsway-Lambton Church, Toronto, its president on the first ballot over Rev. John Coborn, general secretary of the Social Service Council.

Natural Thing to Do.

"Mr. Garner did what any employer would have done under similar circumstances," said Ald. Gordon. "The facts as given to him were reported to the Commission—a most natural thing to do. The matter has been before the Commission since January, and Copping is now in Calgary, I believe. The cost of a judicial inquiry would be charged up against the appropriation of the Legal Committee, and I hesitate to suggest that we should make the expenditure involved. I do not think Mr. Garder has renewed his complaint."

"So far as Wheeler's complaints go," continued Ald. Gordon, "I am not impressed with them. I defended one or two of the boys in the case he mentions, and I do not think the facts as stated by Wheeler are correct. We must appreciate the fact that he has a grievance. I defended Wheeler before the Police Commission, and I must say that I agree thoroughly with the action taken by the Commission."

"I do not think these charges should be hanging over police officers," concluded Ald. Gordon. "They should be cleared up because it is not fair to the police to have them hanging so long."

"It is not fair to the public either," pointed out Ald. Glover. He suggested that the Legal Committee might confer with the Commission. Ald. Gordon asked to be left out, because he had predisposed views on the matter.

Objects to Expense.

"I do not think we should go to the expense of asking for an outside Judge," remarked Ald. Bradburn. "It is up to the Police Commission to do the investigating."

"That may be true," said Mayor Hamilton, "but at the same time you can appreciate why an inquiry by someone not connected at all with the case would be preferable."

Ald. Gordon moved, seconded by Ald. McCannan, that a committee consisting of Ald. Bradburn, Dutton and Glover should confer with the Police Commission, and report back to the Council.

"I have every confidence in the Commission," said Ald. McIntyre. "I feel they are better qualified to pass judgment."

"It would cost a couple of hundred dollars to get Copping here," said Ald. Gordon. "They are depending, too, on the evidence of Cohen and Welch," he continued. "Cohen has been before the Discipline Committee of the Law Society several times and Welch hasn't worked since the Simpson strike and is a professional agitator. A lawyer would make a lot of trouble for such witnesses, and I do not believe in spending the money of the public in bringing such people here."

Without further discussion the motion to confer with the Commission was passed.

Eating House License Is To Be Withheld

The Home Lunch restaurant on George Street will not be granted a license until such time as the chairman of the finance committee of the city council is satisfied that an adequate settlement has been made with is creditors who are city taxpayers.

This action was taken at a meeting of the finance committee Thursday night at the suggestion of Ald. Gordon, who reported that the situation in regard to the financial side of the Home Lunch poposition was most unsatisfactory. There were a number of city taxpayers who were large creditors but their chances for settlement were being interfered with by claims from various Chinese for a total of around $11,000 most of it put in as loans.

Ald. Gordon intimated that the setup was far from being satisfactory and declared citizens who were financially interested in the matter should be protected.

He moved seconded by Ald. Dutton that a license should not be granted until satisfactory arrangements have been made with local citizens who are creditors and the committee unanimously passed the motion.

The question of stalls in this and other restaurants was also discussed and it was decided to ask the Board to investigate in regard to stalls and sanitary conveniences and to prosecute when there were violations of the bylaw.

"You already have had a report from the Board of Health on this" pointed out Ald. Dutton.

"This motion provides for prosecuting" remarked Ald. Gordon.

Two Are Caught Stealing "Gas"

Two young men from Toronto who early this morning tried the always dangerous experiment of mixing gasoline and alcohol and tried it in a new way found themselves before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court, charged with the theft of a quantity of gasoline from J. D. Fitzpatrick.

The two, while under the influence of liquor, found their car out of gas and they started to take some from a car parked on the street when they were arrested.

Today the two pleaded guilty to the charge and Crown-Attorney McElderry informed the court that he was as much surprised to see them in court as they were to find themselves there. They were boys of good family who had never been in trouble of any kind before.

Magistrate Langley allowed the two to go on suspended sentence on condition that they pay for the gasoline and all the court costs, a total of $16.50 each.

READ THIS FIRST:

Having saved the life of Ellen Dale, screen star, with a lucky parachute jump after his plane had run out of fuel in a terrific storm, Bill Baron and his lone passenger finally arrive at a ranch house across the Mexican border, unharmed but fatigued. Here they are warmly received by Don Julio Montoya, wealthy Mexican, and extended every courtesy. Ellen becomes intrigued with the life at the Montoya ranch and her interest in Bill grows. She feel salmost resentful when Panola Montoya, attractive daughter of their host, asks Bill to ride with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 4

In the 10 minutes that followed, Ellen definitely made up her mind. She would accept Bill's suggestion of building a home in Arizona, safely over the international frontier.

It did not enter her consciousness that this Bill Baron was gradually coming to shape her movements and even most of her thinking, but she decided after a bit that she could not do any further planning until he returned. She, who had been independent almost to a fault for years, thus was finding quiet, unadmitted pleasure in having a man on whom to lean.

When you have absolutely nothing to do on a southwestern rancho, the hours are incredibly long. There is no noise and bustle and excitement around the home buildings, whatever may be happening in the distant corrals or with the cattle herds. Ellen could only wander around lazily—and revel in the pleasure of doing so.

In the bright sun out rear, against the adobe wall of a storage house, a peon woman was grinding corn by hand, squatting to rub one stone over the grain on a large one. Nearby a younger woman was mixing the coarse meal into a sort of batter and baking thin cakes of it on a rock before the open fire. The two workers smiled at Ellen and spoke respectfully in Spanish. Ellen watched them a long time, fascinated. The cakes she recognized as being like those she had eaten there.

She wandered aimlessly around the out building, gazing idly across the strang scrubby trees on the nearby landscape, thorny things that she had seen when approaching the ranch home in the cold rainy night. She turned a corner of the house and paused there. Abruptly, then, her attention was commanded by a heavy breathing. She turned to look over her left shoulder.

"Oh!" she cried and jumped back in alarm.

There in the thick adobe wall of the out building was a window, not more than two feet square and heavily barred. It had been within arm's length of her. And framed in it now were two of the most frightening faces she had ever seen.

Savage, masculine faces they were; men of almost black skin, whose feature were fierce and whose hair was a long uncombed scraggle. They had singularly penetrating eyes.

"Wh—who are you?" asked Ellen, when she stared at them a moment. They made no reply. They only gripped the metal bars and glared back. She could not fanthom the expression they bore, save to know that it was frightening. Ill at ease, she moved away from them, remembering then that they probably were the Yaqui Indian prisoners that Felix Montoya had brought in.

This gave her a topic for speculation. She wished there was someone to talk to about it, but of those on the premises now only she spoke a word of English. What had these Yaquis done? Why were they being held here, instead of in jail? What would happen to them? Her imagination conjured up all sorts of things, vague bits she had read or heard about violence in old Mexico. Weren't there revolutions and things down here? She wished Bill Baron were present.

Bill and Panola had ridden away about 9 oclock, and while nothing was said about it. Ellen assumed that they were to return in ample time for lunch. Around 11 o'clock she began watching for them.

Toward one oclock there was some stirring of activity around the big rambling building, and after a bit Don Julio Montoya rode up. When he came into the living room and greeted Ellen, he suggested that he escort her in to the dining table. Senora Montoya was found already seated, alone.

The meal was well prepared and served, but the conversation was limited. To begin with, only Don Julio would try to speak any English at all, and Ellen knew no Spanish. His talk was necessarily broken. Ellen wanted to inquire about Panola and Bill Baron, but was not sure either of the proprieties or of the words to use. She decided to say nothing.

When the suggestion of a siesta was made after the meal, she went to her room. She did not let down, though. She felt quite depressed, without any very definite reason. In mid-afternoon she walked through the patio into the living room again and there encountered Senor Montoya. The elderly lady did not smile now. Her face was obviously showing concern. She made a motion as if to halt Ellen and address her, but turned hastily and went out. She returned in just a moment with Don Julio.

"Ah, senorita," he began, "we have thee worree. We—" The old gentleman struggled for his words as well as for the correct manner. He was greatly disturbed, Ellen could tell, but still was striving to be the placid, perfect host.

"We weesh to know, donde—where maybee, thee Senor Baron go. Ah—we have thee worree—"

Ellens face showed deep concern.

"You mean—you don't know where they are? Where Bill is? And, Panola?"

"Si, senorita!" The mother and father were agitate now. "They have go a long time. Can you say—?" He halted, the unfinished question an obvious one.

"No, Don Julio, I do not know. I—I have been worrying. They rode away this morning." She shook her head.

"You have not know?" he repeated, very seriously.

"No! I havent the slightest idea!"

He did not appear to doubt her, but he did seem greatly surprised. In truth he had expected her to know ,but had hoped that he wouldn't have to annoy a guest by inquiring. He was sorely disappointed. He was a straight, military-looking old fellow, and he stood up now to full height, his face showing somewhat alarming fears. He bowed formally and left the room. Soon she saw a horseman leaving the corral on a run and knew that Don Julio had sent a messenger somewhere. She thought best not to be too inquistitive, so she stayed in her room and worried alone.

At dusk she came back to the living room and found Senor Montoya there. The gentle lady looked up to take Ellen's hand, patted it but said nothing. A servant came in and spoke to her, but she merely nodded sadly.

No dinner was served, and nobody seemed to miss it. Don Julio was gone, evidently searching or directing a search. The women could only watch anxiously from the windows or from the porch. When the stiuation was unchanged at 10 o'clock, Ellen began to feel the fear of desperation.

At midnight there still had been no word, and she and the Mexican mother were standing together and crying gently. Bill Baron and Panola had been missing for nearly 15 hours.

What fun she had storing away in her mind amusing scraps of conversation. And instead of "he said" and "she said," she made the hero "bluster," "grin" or "stammer" his words; the flirt "mocked," flattered," "cajoled"; while the clinging vine "tittered," "sighed" and "cooed."

Looking Back
On This Date

The Gazette, Montreal, will begin its 61st year this morning because it was first issued June 3, 1778.

And thereby hangs a tale, involving the tragedy of a French printer, an echo of the American revolution, and another illustration of the fact that at that time Canada was saved to the British Empire by reason of the loyalty of the Bishop of Quebec and his clergy.

Fleury Mesplet, a printer, made his way from Paris to London in the hope of being able to meet the "great Mr. Franklin," then a special envoy to both Paris and London. They met in a London street; Mesplet told how he had press, type and paper and wanted aid to get to America. Benjamin Franklin knew the province of Quebec wel. He had inaugurated the first British post offices there; he thought the also knew the mentality of the French habitants, not yet used to the change of allegiance from Louis to George (only 15 years by treaty), and was convinced that, with proper propaganda, he could add Quebec to the 13 colonies.

When, in the spring of 1778, Franklin and the other envoys went to Montreal (then in American possession), he told Mesplet to follow him by way of the Hudson, Lake Champlain, the Richelieu and the St. Lawrence. He did so, taking with him his beloved press, his type and a supply of paper. Franklin reached Montreal April 28; Mesplet did not arrive until May 6, then to report that most of his paper had been spoiled by an upset. Franklin tried to buy some wallpaper, the only stock in town, but the holders demanded good British cash, which he did not have, so he was unable to get the paper; and, for want of it the plan of propaganda failed.

Five days after Mesplet's arrival, Franklin and his colleagues went south, having been told that Carleton had defeated Arnold at Quebec, and being thoroughly convinced that there was no possibility of overcoming Bishop Briand's allegiance to Britain. So Fleury Mesplet was left stranded in Montreal, with his press, his type and his wife. He was thrown into jail as a suspect. He told how he had been induced to come to Canada and how he had been deserted by "his patron." He was freed by taking the oath of allegiance to King George—a printer with a press was a real addition to the town's assets. He won the confidence of the Roman Catholic clergy who gave him a contract to print a hymn book, the first in the Quebec province, and it was printed on the reverse of the wall paper, which the Scots traders who had refused to sell to Franklin, eagerly sold to the clergy. Mesplet's future seemed assured. Then, he decided to start a newspaper, which, named the Gazette, was issued on June 3, 1778.

It was a disastrous step. Within a year Mesplet was in trouble with the authorities. He and his editor, Valantin Jutard (an attorney) were thrown into jail, where they remained for over three years. The Gazette was taken over by others and converted into a bilingual paper, developing in course of time into entirely English, passing through many hands and playing its part in affairs until in the 1870's it was bought by Thomas and Richard White, who made it the power it now is in business and politics and Canada's national life.

Mesplet, released from prison in 1782, resumed work as a printer and lived quietly at Montreal until his death in 1794.

Cooking Stove Is the Cornerstone of Every Marriage and Upon It Depends the Success or Failure of Husband and Wife to Be Perfectly Happy

A FAMOUS movie star who has accomplished the well-nigh incredible feat of keeping out of the divorce court attributes her success in marriage to having fed her husband on nonirritating foods.

This goes the time-honored recipe for retaining a husband's love—feed the brute—one better, for it does not stop with admonishing wives to stuff their lords and masters. It tells on what diet they should be stuffed. And it will be tidings of great joy to many a woman who has wrestled hopelessly for twenty-five or thirty years with grouchy and cantankerous man to learn that the answer to her problem is spinach and bread pudding.

The only drawback to this alluring theory of appealing to a man's better nature through his stomach instead of his heart is that there might be a division of opinion in the family circle as to what constituted nonirritating foods, and it is conceivable that a husband who was addicted to savory soups, steaks and onions, things a la this and a la that, would not be soothed by a dinner of herbs but would, on the contrary, fly into a rage and raise heck over it, and say things that would send Angel Face from the table in tears.

Be that as it may, however, the crowning dumbness of wives consists in their not realizing the cooking stove is the cornerstone of every successful marriage. It is the promoter of domesticity and the preventer of sidestepping in husbands. It is the preserver of romance. It is the one and only instrument with which a woman can work magic that will keep her husband thrilled and surprised and wondering what she will do next until his dying day. And it is the basis of the family fortune.

If this seems an exaggeration, consider these few facts: What occasions the first rift within the lute with the newlyweds? What starts their first scrap? Isn't it when the bride sits her bridegroom down to a meal of dishwater coffee, soggy bread, overdone meat and underdone vegetables? Who are the happy and contented husbands? Are they not those who sing their wives' corned beef hash and pies and cakes in the market place?

Who are the men who turn joyously toward home of an evening? Are they not the ones who can sniff in their imaginations the savory odors of the dinner of the things they like best, cooked th eway they like them, that they know is awaiting them? Who are the men who are as domestic as the house cat and against whom no siren can prevail? Are they not the men who have been gorged with good food until they are too lethargic to move further than their easy chairs at the fireside? And what is the onething of which no man ever tires? Isn't it eating? A man may lose his youthful enthusiasm, his sentimentality, his desire to step out, his interest in most things in the world, but he never loses his appetite, and as long as he keeps that his wife has a sure thing to which to appeal.

That a man's success depends largely upon the way his wife feeds him is an established fact. When a lad marries he puts his stomach in his wife's keeping, and whether he is a nervous wreck at 40 or going strong at 60 depends upon how she has treated it. If she has been a good Little Marv, all is well. If she hasn't, she is first aid to the doctor and the undertaker. Not all the husband poisoners are in jail. Most of them are in the kitchen.

Also, a man's prosperity depends upon his wife's cooking. Many a man succeeds just because he is buoyant, enthusiastic, optimistic and filled with pep because he has a good home-cooked meal under his belt. And many another quarrels with his boss or throws up his job or turns down the opportunity that would have made him a fortune because he is blue and dyspeptic after a breakfast of leathery pancakes.

That food affects a man's disposition is one of the things that every woman knows. No sane wife ever asks her husband for money or presents him with the bills or tells what she paid for her new hat when he is hungry. She waits until he is soothed and comforted by a good dinner, and then even a child could handle him. Amiability is promoted by a full stomach, just as irritation and grouchiness are the result of an empty one.

All of which goes to show that the way a husband treats his wife depends a lot on how she feeds him.

Don't pity yourself. You have had the courage to face the struggles of youth and early manhood. Rally your forces now for a last fight against the pessimism of age. Don't give in to it. Meet it with a smile. And carry on gallantly to the end. When you are lonely summon from your memory all the men and women you have known and loved and enjoyed. When you are bored, recall all of the adventures you have been through. Do not think of being old as a misfortune, but as the quiet twilight hour in which you can sit and muse and wonder what all the fuss and turmoil has been about.

Happiness lies in ourselves. We must make it for ourselves. And that is true whether you are old or young.

Goodnight Story
By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid, the shadow children with the turned-about names, looked with astonishment as the caterpillar came out of its little white bed. It really was a bed, you know, even though the caterpillar had spun it on the first branch of the elm tree. He had slept in it all through the long, cold winter. Now the sun was shining, the birds were singing, and the leaves had come out on the trees.

"It's springtime! Wake up!" the two shadow children had called to the sleeping caterpillar.

And it had stirred, and broken through its blankets. And now it was looking out, blinking its eyes in the bright sunlight.

"But Caterpillar — you're different!" Hanid exclaimed. "You don't look the same! Something's happened to you!"

"You don't look the same."

"You're all shiny and brown," said Knarf, gazing at it sharply. "You used to be soft and green. You had skin like velvet before you went to sleep in the autumn. Now you're all changed."

Not Caterpillar?

Hanid shook her head. "No — you aren't a caterpillar at all. You are something else. You're like a brown worm. You're — did you do anything to that caterpillar we used to know who went to sleep in this bed?" she suddenly asked.

"You went into that bed yourself!" Knarf added in a louder voice. "You pushed the caterpillar outside. Goodness knows what's happened to it now. You made it sleep in the snow. What did you do to it?"

"But—but I'm the caterpillar," it answered, trying not to sound frightened. "I really am. I mean—well, I thought I was. I guess I've changed a bit. I've slept a very long time, you know. I must have changed in my sleep. I had a very strange dream, too. It was the strangest dream a caterpillar ever had. I'll tell you about it from the very beginning—"

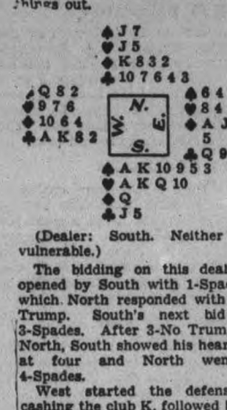
TOO LAZY TO COUNT

THERE ARE people who either can't or won't add up to 13. Usually they just "wouldn't be bothered". Or perhaps they "only play for fun". Others would like to ask them what fun they can find in just playing any old card. The real joy of the game is in figuring things out.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal was opened by South with 1-Spade, to which North responded with 1-No Trump. South's next bid was 3-Spades. After 3-No Trumps by North, South showed his heart suit at four and North went to 4-Spades.

West started the defense by cashing the club K, followed by the A. When both East and South followed on both rounds, it was apparent that a switch was in order. The diamond 10 was next led by West and a small card was played from dummy. East decided to hold up his ace to knock off the king. The result was that the diamond Q captured the trick and South had no difficulty in making his contract. His losses amounted to the two club tricks and the spade Q.

Had East been awake and listened to the bidding he would have realized that, as South followed on two club leads and had shown a distribution of six spades and four hearts by his bidding, he held only one diamond.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is South's correct play to make his contract of 4-Spades, after the lead of the heart K?

Machinery For Peat

OTTAWA, June 3 (CP).—The government will consider fully any definite request for application of its facilities to conduct research into development of suitable types of machinery for production of low cost due from Canadian peat bogs, Gordon Graydon (Con. Peel) was informed yesterday.

A reply to his query on the matter, tabled by Resources Minister Crerar, disclosed several investigations in the question had been undertaken since 1910 but none was underway at present.

The two nieces of the bride, Miss Norma Knight, in pale green taffeta, and Miss Marion Knight, in pale pink taffeta, carried old fashioned nosegays of roses, and were the bride's attendants.

After a wedding trip to Buffalo and Cleveland, the couple will live at 32 McGill street, Hamilton.

Suggests Page Boy

The high-waisted skirt is of sage green sheer wool and is topped by a page boy jacket of navy blue outlined in sage green. Six silver buttons mark the front of the brief jacket, while the tiny vestee is of white pique.

The little boy hat sets well on the back of the head, and white suede gloves and blue antelope bag and shoes complete the costume.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

Dear Friends:

The other day I was fixing a coat over, taking it apart here, and putting it together there, ripping out stitches one place and putting them in another place, steaming and pressing, and when it was all done, when all the hours of labor were finished, it remained—just a made-over coat.

And, I thought how often it is like that in our lives, We choose a mode of life, we like it at the time, it fits us and we feel good in it. But time comes along and alters the fashion, we grow more plump so that it fits us too snug, or we grow more thin so that it hangs too lossely on us.

So, we must get busy and remodel our lives. We must pull apart here, we must put together there, and if we have been careless in the wearing of this life of ours, sometimes we must send it to the cleaners.

Too many of us think that our coat of life will last us all the way. We trim it with prejudices and opininions, then find they have gone out of style, and so we have to hunt around for another set, for with our lives as with our clothes, we do not want to seem old-fashioned.

And sometimes we rend and tear our lives, then grumble because of the patches which show our own carelessness. A garment made on good lines of good material, will always look well although it may become threadbare.

A life built on good lines, with a good inner core, will wear well no matter what our fortunes or misfortunes may be. Yet, how many go around with a patched-up life when they could be wearing the one they started out with.

We bang up against so many other lives in this process of living, that we get little worn on the outside, but if the "line" is true, if the "cut" is there, this banging will do us no harm.

It is not what others do to us that spoils the cut and line, it is what we do to ourselves. We cannot go around with sagging principles, nor let the hem of our divinity drag in the dust without spoiling the "hang" of our garment of life.

And it is easier to keep ourselves fitting this garment, than have to keep remodelling it. My mother was born in Elgin in Argyishire, and in that small place there was a woollen mill.

One day, Queen Victoria came there to visit, and when being shown through this mill, she ordered a woollen cloak. My mother was just a young girl, but she saw and spoke to her. Later, when the cloak wore thin and she like it so much, she sent it back to have the thin part removed and another piece woven into it, so that at last there was very little of the original cloak left.

So it is with us. We must remove the thin parts of our lives and weave so carefully another part in if we are not to have a patched or torn garment of a life. When our morals, or our sense of values, or our ideals wear thin, we must be ready with loom and shuttle to restore these worn parts.

And it is easier by far to do that than have to take the whole fabric apart and re-model it. There is much said about keeping up appearances, the appearance of being happy, the appearance of getting along alright when things are going every which way, and it is just as necessary to keep up our inner core of life, the I that is I, of which others only see the appearance by my mode of life. Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

Passing Resolutions Brings Baptist Convention to Close

The closing session of the highly inspirational three-day convention being held by the Women's Baptist Home and Foreign Missionary Society, in Murray Street Baptist Church, began Thursday night with a service of song. Led by Mrs. Gunton, old familiar hymns of missionary tone were enthusiastically sung by the largest attendance of the convention.

The scene in the Upper Room, was the basis upon which Mrs. Minton Johnson so beautifully built her service of worship, which included silent and spoken prayer.

Adding to the attractiveness of the service was the fine musical program arranged by Mr. Collison, the church organist. "Alone With Thee," was the sweetly-sung selection by the Murray Street Ladies' Quartette, Miss Phyllis Rome, Miss Marjorie Stenton, Mrs. Percy Dallin and Mrs. Harold Scott. The entire choir sang for their anthem the lovely spiritual, "Goin Home."

Resolutions Passed.

The business part of this last session, was extremely brief and consisted only of the report of the Resolutions committee, ably presented to the convention by Mrs. R. E. Stillwell. The first of these dealt with the promotion of Peace, which was felt to be important, due to the prevailing conditions among the nations contrary to the spirit of Christianity.

Opposition to lottery in any form was declared in the second resolution, while the third expressed the deep concern of the convention regarding all civil and religious liberties. This resolution was called forth because of the Quebec Padlock Law, which the committee asserted, nullifies the basic principle of Canadian democracy and so might have a detrimental effect upon the Grand Ligne and Home Mission generally.

The next resolution strongly condemned the beverage rooms and registered opposition to the manufacture and sale of all intoxicating liquor.

Missionary Education was also stressed by the resolution committee, who urged a more concerted effort for increased membership in the Reading Course.

The last resolution was one of warm appreciation for the hospitality of Peterborough homes, to the four entertaining churches, Murray Street, Park Street, Gilmour Memorial and Lakefield; to the pastors of these church; to the speakers, the organist and pianists, the choir, the city press, and to all contributing to the success and interest of the convention. All of these resolutions were heartily endorsed by the delegates present.

Western Missions was an apt subject for a Home Mission program, and proved one of the high lights of the convention with Rev. J. H. Slimon of Parkdale Church, Toronto, giving the authoritative message of his own experiences in the West. "Beyond peradventure," said the speaker, "the Canadian West presents one of the greatest missionary opportunities, and one of the greatest field in the world.

Every nation of the world is represented here in goodly numbers in an area roughly 2,000 miles by 490 miles.

This western field presents an interesting study in geography alone, with its mountains, prairies, barren stretches and its varied climate. The story of the beginning of Baptist mission work in the west is one of faith, adventure and romance. In April, 1869, the Home Mission Society met in Aylmer and appointed a delegation to make a survey of the then Northwest Territory. Their reports said that the time was ripe for missionary work, and accordingly, in 1873, Alexander McDonald was sent out as the first Baptist missionary to the west.

He organized the first Baptist church in Winnipeg, with a membership of seven. At first this work extended toward the north and south, but through the years the movement west has gained a momentum until now there are 223 Baptist churches with 23,000 members.

Drought and depression has done much to stem the tide of progress, yet twenty-eight churches were established in the last eight years.

In spite of the fact that many of the churches are magnificent buildings, they still need help, because, to a large extent the churches are missions. Of the forty Baptist churches in Manitoba, only six are self-supporting.

The speaker told also of the fifty German churches—with a membership of over 5,000, all of whom are aggressive evangelistically.

A great work is also being done among the Ukrainians, of whom there are 3,000 in Saskatoon alone. The Swedes, the Czechoslovakians and the coloured people are also being cared for by our Baptist missionaries in the west.

In active warfare the centre of battle changes, and the same thing is happening in connection with mission work in the west, where the slogan is "The Call of the West is North." So the door of opportunity is opening for the north, and if we enter a great work can be done in the Canadian west.

When the Fathers of Confederation chose the name "Dominion" of Canada, they were thinking of the 72nd Psalm, which says: "He shall have Dominion from sea to sea." This Psalm, which has been called the Psalm of Canada, should be the prayer of every Canadian, said Rev. Mr. Slimon in closing this very instructive lecture.

The convention closed on a triumphant note with the singing of the hymn, "Hark the Song of Jubilee," and the Benediction, pronounced by the pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe.

Vancouver Japs On Relief Neill Bares In Losing Fight

OTTAWA, June 3 (CP).—After its sponsor had taunted the government that it was afraid of Japan and lukewarm in its support of Great Britain, the bill designed to restrict Oriental immigration, introduced by A. W. Neill (Ind., Comox-Alberni) was defeated in the House of Commons last night by a vote of 87 to 39.

Six leaders and the entire Conservative and Social Credit group present in the House voted with the veteran British Columbia member. C.C.F. members present divided on the vote and J. S. Taylor (Nanaimo) voted with the government.

This was the final act in Mr. Neill's long fight to cut down Japanese immigration, a fight that has waged over two bills introduced at this session and brought several evenings of sharp debate.

A previous bill, which would have completely excluded Japanese, was defeated May 24 by a division of the House. Last night's bill provided that all immigrants of 15 years or over be required to read and write the English or some language native to the countries of Europe.

Would Let In No Horde.

Closing the motion for second reading, Mr. Neill said he had consulted numerous legal experts to verify his belief the bill would not open the way to immigration of thousands of Japanese who cared to learn the English language.

Under existing laws, Mr. Neill said, Japanese are admitted to the number of 150 a year under a gentleman's agreement if they can read and write their own language. His bill would add the restriction that they must also be able to speak the English or some European language.

"If every Japanese in Japan were able to speak English the gentlemen's agreement would still exist and would permit only 150 to come in. I have the agreement before me and it states that thereafter immigrants from Japan will be subject to all the regulations of Canadian Immigration Act, and there is the additional extra provision that the number coming in shall be limited to 150."

Mr. Neill said he believed if the interim report of the government committee recently appointed to investigate reports of Japanese illegally entering British Columbia had been laid before the House his bill would be passed.

Schoolchildren Double.

It had been disclosed to that committee that the number of Japanese schoolchildren in Vancouver had more than doubled in the last 11 years.

"Does this House know that in Vancouver today there are 1,000 Japanese on relief? They are not put to the trouble of going into a public building to get it. They receive their relief as regularly as old age pensions. Yet we have the spectacle of white men driven by despair to start what is practically a revolution."

Notice had been served on the committee in Vancouver by a Japanese official to the effect that if their investigations resulted in the deportation of "30 or 40" Japanese "then there would be trouble."

The committee was told "there would be repercussions in Japan."

Mr. Neill suggested the reason the government opposed his bill was that "there has been an agreement made with Japan that there will be no further restrictions on immigration for a given period—not a treaty.

MUGGS AND SKEETER —By Wally Bishop

Not After Australia Is Jap Assurance

MELBOURNE, June 3 — (CP.-Reuters).—Assurance Japan has no territorial designs on Australia is made by K. Mikyake, Japanese Vice Consul, in a long letter to the press.

After referring to the part played by the Japanese warship Ibuki in the events preceding the sinking of the German cruiser Emden at Cocos Island, during the Great War, Mr. Miyake says:

"I am confident Australians, recollecting this historical evidence of Japanese-Australian friendship, will realize that 'good understanding' with foreign countries is far more conductive to the security of a nation than armaments—which impose a heavy burden upon its people, while necessitating a constant effort to keep up with those of foreign powers.

"May I take this opportunity to state, as has been often declared by responsible Japanese statesmen and officials, both civil and military, that Japan harbors no territorial designs upon Australia, and strives always to keep on the best possible terms with Australia.

"However, it is not unnatural that the feeling or attitude of the Japanese people toward Australia should depend on those of the Australian people toward Japan."

Red Wins Sweep Purse

MOSCOW, June 3—(AP).—The Irish Hospitals sweepstakes yesterday poured sudden wealth even into the socialist realm of Soviet Russia and thereby enriched the valet of United States Ambasador Joseph Davies.

The valet, Carl Carlson, learned by wireless at Odessa that he had won $150,000 on the derby. On a trip through the Ukraine with the ambassador; the 56-year-old Carlson held a ticket on Bois Roussel which he had refused to sell for an offer of $5,000. He sent word to Moscow he would continue to work as a valet.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM THOMAS ALLAN.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 3.—After a lingering illness which lasted over a period of nearly two years, death claimed William Thomas Allan on Monday morning last. Mr. Allan, who was the last of the founders of the old Allan settlement near Madoc was in his seventy-fourth year. Although his entire life was spent on the farm, he was for twenty-five years clerk of the township in whose affairs he always maintained a keen interest.

His wife, the late Mary Susan Anderson, of Rylstone, predeceased him in 1924, and one son Fred was the victim of a drowning accident in 1921. Surviving are one son, Charles of town, and one daughter, Emma, on the staff of the Ontario Hospital at Whitby.

Following his death at the Whitby Hospital on Monday, the body was brought to Campbellford, where a short funeral service was held at the home of Mrs. Andrew Hay, Rear Street, on Wednesday afternoon, after which the cortege went to Cooper, where at the United Church the funeral service was conducted by the Rev. B. Simpson Black of St. Andrew's Church, Campbellford, and the Rev. J. W. Foote of Port Hope.

Pall-bearers were: Messrs. Fred Rutherford, Douglas Rutherford, Robert McCulloch, Stanley Rollins, I. Smith, and Frank Reynolds.

KENNETH GRAHAM
(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, June 3.—The funeral of the late Kenneth Vincent Graham, of Smith township, was held at 2.30 p.m. on Sunday, from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Wannamaker, Lakefield.

Mr. Graham died at 5.45 a.m. Friday morning, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Graham, in Smith township. Mr. Graham, who was in his twenty-eighth year, has been in poor health for some time. His death on Friday terminated a four weeks' illness.

The late Kenneth Graham was born in Peterborough on April 10, 1911, the eldest son of William A. Graham and Grace Milligan of that city. Kenneth resided in Peterborough for about ten years, when he moved with his parents to the farm in Smith, where Mr. and Mrs. Graham still make their home.

On June 27, 1936, he married Mildred Olive Coons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Coons of Douro. For a time after their marriage the couple resided in Buckhorn but later moved to Lakefield, where they have made their home since.

System of Placing Ministers Scored

TORONTO, June 3 (CP).—Sharp criticism of the present system of placing ministers was made by Rev. R. S. Laidlaw, retiring president of the Toronto conference of the United Church of Canada, in his address to that body here today.

He said the general council of the church meeting here in September would have to deal with the problem and find a solution in the interest of the entire church.

"Our settlement committee has become largely an authenticating body," he said. Certain congregations refused to take counsel with those who were qualified to give it, and the ministers were constrained in their own interest to arrange exchanges for themselves.

Rev. Dr. Laidlaw said the church "has no authoritative body whose judgment is sought by the ministers and congregations."

He said he had visited all 12 presbyteries of the conference, which extends to Northern Ontario, in the past year and paid tribute to the clergymen of the North districts, saying "with such loyalty as theirs the future of the church is assured."

Good Advice About Constipation!

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with any ailment is to get at its cause. If you're constipated, don't fiddle with makeshift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are you won't have to look very far, if you eat just the things most people do. Most likely, you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean just a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the intestinal tonic, vitamin B$_1$.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Roebuck Claims Credit In Seaway Plan

TORONTO, June 3—(CP).—The former Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission under Chairman T. Stewart Lyon conceived the joint St. Lawrence seaway and power-development plan proposed to Canada by the United States, according to Arthur W. Roebuck, a former Hydro Commissioner.

Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Toronto Bellwoods, Mr. Roebuck told a special Legislative committee yesterday that in 1936 the commission, conferring in New York with the New York State power authority, arranged "the very offer made public to-day by the United States."

The statement was made during the committee's third day of sittings in connection with investigation of Hydro affairs. The inquiry followed charges by Leopold Macaulay, Conservative leader in the Legislature, that while Premier Hepburn publicly advocated a 'back to Niagara' Hydro policy last fall he secretly was negotiating with Quebec power companies for renewal of contracts cancelled in 1935.

Enough at Niagara.

Mr. Roebuck and Mr. Lyon, Commission chairman from 1934 to 1937 when he was succeeded by Dr. T. H. Hogg, chief engineer ,agreed yesterday that further development of Niagara was preferable to purchasing power from outside sources, though International agreements on water diversion were involved.

Describing the former Commission's visit to New York, Mr. Roebuck said New York officials "were prepared to recommend to us a further 5,000 cubic feet per second of water at Niagara permanently." He added :"They would take 5,000 more cubic feet a second also. It was that easy.

"It was I who made the suggestion to them that they go ahead and either do the development of the International section of the St. Lawrence themselves or supply us with the money to build the dam on our side of the river.

"That's what you'll find in modified form to-day in the present offer in connection with the St. Lawrence waterways."

Fires Out Of Control In Alberta Hill Lands

GRAND PRAIRIE, Alta., June 3—(CP)—Causing extensive damage to the lumber industry in the Burnt Hills area 40 miles north of here, bush fires today raged beyond control. Several camps were destroyed and some sawmills threatened as the fires burned through valuable timber stands. Grand Prairie is 260 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Fanned by a strong wind, the fires gained headway despite efforts of large crews of men. Dense clouds of smoke seriously hampered firefighters.

Firefighters said rain was needed soon if the fires were to be checked.

One Friend Like Hepburn Enough For Roebuck

TORONTO, June 3 (CP).—Arthur W. Roebuck, former Attorney-General in the Ontario Government, told a House committee today he didn't want many friends like Premier Hepburn.

The former Minister, who resigned from the Cabinet prior to the 1937 general election over a dispute on government policy during the Oshawa strike of automobile workers, was testifying before a committee investigating Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission affairs.

A member of the Hydro Commission from 1934 to 1937, Mr. Roebuck said he strongly favored cancellation of power contracts with four Quebec companies in 1935.

"And you did a good job and saved the Hydro a lot of money," observed J. H. Clark, Liberal member for Windsor-Sandwich.

"One minute they seem to want to hug this infant of cancellation and the next they want to disown him," remarked Leopold Macaulay, Conservative House leader.

"No," declared Mr. Roebuck, "they want to hog all the credit for it and leave to me all the discredit."

Mr. Clark: "Isn't that kind of mean, Mr. Roebuck?"

Mr. Roebuck: "Yes, isn't it mean."

Mr. Macaulay mentioned that Premier Hepburn had referred to the former Attorney-General in a speech as "one of my dearest friends."

"You still believe that, don't you?" inquired Mr. Clark.

"Yes," replied Mr. Roebuck, "but I am glad I haven't many more friends like that."

When you drive too slowly your attention wanders—so does your car. When you're on a main highway—keep moving at a steady pace. Chinese Arm Junks, Attack Japs

2 New Canton Raids Kill Or Hurt Over 2,000 Natives

SHANGHAI, June 4 (AP) — Six large Chinese junks armored with steel plate today attacked a Japanese patrol vessel off the south China coast in what a Japanese naval spokesman called "extension of guerrilla activities to the sea."

The attack, which took place off Kwanghoi, southeast of Canton, was repulsed with the aid of naval aircraft, the spokesman said, three of the junks being set afire and sent to the bottom and another being disabled. The other two escaped.

"This amounts to extension of guerilla activities to the sea," he declared. "We are prepared to cope with it."

2,000 Victims Of Raids

CANTON, China, June 4 (CP-Havas) — More than 2,000 persons were killed or injured in devastating Japanese air raids today, a casualty list higher than any recorded for a single day since the Japanese started their attacks last Saturday, initial estimates indicated.

The Japanese air force carried out two raids on the South China metropolis. The first centered on the naval yards, the Canton-Kowloon railway terminal, and government buildings.

This raid, made by eight bombers, was cut short by rain which caused temporary poor visibility. About 30 bombs were dropped.

The second raid was carried out by an armada of 36 machines. They swept over the city, inflicting terrific punishment on many quarters, particularly the Saichuen sector.

Finally anti-aircraft batteries got the range of the raiders shooting up an effective curtain of fire which eventually dispersed the three squadrons of bombers.

Tornadoes, Lightning, Hail Kill Five In Four States

Oil Derricks And Power Lines Go Down, Many Are Injured, Damage High

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., June 4 (AP).—Tornadic winds, lightning and hail killed five persons and wreaked heavy crop and property damage in widely separated portions of Texas, Oklahoma and Missouri yesterday and last night.

Explosion of an oil tank ignited by lighning killed Joe Battle, 36, and John Spell, 26, employees of the Mackhank Petroleum Company at Eholding, Tex. A. H. Marx, another workman, was injured seriously.

In Kansas City lightning killed two spectators at the $5,000 Kansas City open golf tournament, William D. Boyle, contractor, and E. M. Critchfield, a credit manager. Several others were injured.

Hubert Arlen Thomas, Jr., six, was electrocuted at Lawton, Okla., when he walked into a radio aerial which had blown across a high tension line.

Oil Fields Swept

At Wichita Falls, at least 10 persons were injured, one seriously and many derricks were toppled by a tornado which roared across the oil field section. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

At Grandfield, Okla., near the Texas line a tornado wrecked five brick business buildings and from 20 to 30 homes. Two women were cut by flying glass. Power lines in the vicinity were blown down and the town of 1,000 population was plunged into darkness.

The storm raged over the countryside north and east of Grandfield. Several farm homes were demolished. Occupants found safety in storm cellars. A hailstorm damaged crops almost ready for harvest.

At Claremore, in northeast Oklahoma, wind and hail stones disrupted electric service and smashed windows.

King Ananda May Let His People See Him

Hepburn Hints Fireworks In His Turn At Probe

TORONTO, June 4 (CP)—Legislative investigation of Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission affairs stood adjourned today with interest centred on testimony concerning a report on the commission's accounting department methods. The special report criticized the department.

W. M. Holland Pettit, head of the accounting firm of Oscar Hudson and Company, commission auditors, told a special committee of the Ontario legislature yesterday that the report, which he had signed, was removed from commission files this spring. "I was told Mr. Hepburn wanted that report gone over," he said.

Premier Hepburn last night denied any connection with removal of the report. "I issued no instructions or intimation of any kind about these reports," he said. "I know nothing about them; they were never brought to my attention. And I have never concerned myself with the accounting branch of hydro."

Mr. Hepburn added: "I'm just waiting until I can get in the witness box and clear the air on a lot of matters. I'll have considerable to say, too."

Reflections On Department.

Reference to the auditor's report came shortly before adjournment for the week-end. Mr. Pettit said paragraphs in the report "cast reflections on the accounting department." It was prepared in 1937 at the request of A. Murray McCrimmon, then secretary and comptroller of the commission.

One paragraph withdrawn had said "the accounting staff in a large measure should be changed because they had neither the theoretical nor practical commercial experience" necessary to cope with their work. The accounting department is headed by W. P. Pierdon.

Earlier, Mr. McCrimmon had told the committee the auditor's report for the fiscal year 1935-36 stated 95 errors were found in the commission's financial report. One such error was a mistake of $70,000,000 in the balance sheet.

Hints Hepburn May Close Beer Parlors

NAPANEE, Ont., June 4 (CP) — Premier Hepburn, who has "the courage to change his policy when it is expedient to do so," soon may change his policy on operation of beverage rooms in Ontario and close them "without notice," in the opinion of Rev. George A. Little, editor of Sunday School Publications for the United Church of Canada.

"It would exactly satisfy his sense of theatrics," Dr. Little told the Bay of Quinte Conference of the church here yesterday. "Mr. Hepburn registers trends in public opinion like a seismograph and it need not surprise Ontario if Mr. Hepburn, without giving notice, announces the beverage rooms are to be closed."

Dr. Little, speaking on behalf of the Ontario Temperance Federation, said "the evils of the liquor traffic are creating temperance sentiment" among the people. "The church can give leadership in creating public opinion," he added. "The worship of Sunday morning cannot undo the evil effects of indulgence on Saturday night."

Toronto Couple Clamped 3 Terrifying Days In Salzburg Nazi Jail

Grabbed Suddenly While Sightseeing Fed Only Bread, Black Coffee, Canadian Commissioner Inquiring

LONDON, June 4 (CP Cable).—After spending three "terrifying" days in a Nazi jail in Salzburg, Austria, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Bennett of Toronto have returned to England, happy, they said, to be once again in a "free country."

On his arrival in London Mr. Bennett reported his experiences to the Canadian high commissioner's office which is investigating the circumstances.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, who are resting at the Surrey estate of relatives, declined to discuss their experiences with the Austrian authorities, dismissing inquiries with "we prefer not to say anything at present."

Mr. Stewart's cousin, R. Bennett added it would not be wise to magnify the incident and the family were satisfied to leave the matter in the hands of the high commissioner's office.

It was learned, however, that Mr. and Mrs. Bennett were sighseeing at Salzburg when suddenly they were stopped by two policemen who marched them off to jail. There they were interrogated and later locked in separate cells.

During the three days they were held incommunicado they were given a diet of bread and black coffee. Then they were released without any reason for their detention being given.

The high commissioner's office refused to go into details of the case but admitted Mr. Bennett had "called."

U.S. Proposes Humanizing Rules of War

WASHINGTON, June 4—(AP)—The United States, condemning bombing of civilians, offered cooperation with other nations today in "humanizing" rules of warfare.

Willingness and desire of the United States to join in such an effort was expressed by State Secretary Cordell Hull in a significant address on foreign affairs in Nashville, Tenn., last night. He also announced the readiness of the United States just beginning a huge naval expansion program, to reduce and limit armaments instead if other nations will do the same.

A few hours before Hull's address, Sumner Welles, acting Secretary of State, had denounced in a statement here the bombings in Spain and China which have killed thousands of women and children. Welles called such warfare "barbarous" and added:

"Any general bombing of an extensive area wherein there reside a large population engaged in peaceful pursuits is contrary to every principle of law and humanity."

Idea Sent Abroad.

The state department said Hull's address had been dispatched to world capitals and would be available if foreign offices wanted it. However, American embassies and legations were not given instructions, they said, to pass it on to foreign governments.

In addition to asserting willingness to limit arms and agree to a humane code of war practices, the Secretary of State said the United States was prepared to join other nations:

1. "In directing every effort toward the restoration and strengthening of sound and constructive international economic relationships.

2. "In exploring all other methods of revitalizing the spirit of international cooperation."

Officials said Hull had no immediate intention of calling an international conference on any of these points, although this was not excluded for some future date.

In London to-day in connection with final preparations for the voyage, Captain Osborne declared he would make the voyage alone.

Cabinet Quits In Ecuador To Fight Peru

QUITO, Ecuador, June 4 (A.P.).—General G. Alberto Enriquez, Supreme Chief of the Republic, sought to-day to form a new government to replace the Cabinet which resigned last night in the midst of the Ecuadorian-Peruvian crisis.

The Cabinet, composed of army officers, resigned shortly after the Goyernment sent a protest to Peru over a frontier incident in which an Ecuadorian soldier was reported killed and another wounded in a clash with Peruvian troops.

The ministers said their place now was in the ranks of the army. They agreed, however, to keep their portfolios until a new Cabinet was named, which General Enriquez said probably would not be before Monday.

The Chancellory announced it had received Peru's reply to the protest, but the reply was not made public.

(The Peruvian Foreign Office in Lima issued a statement saying Peruvians had not attacked Ecuadorians, and asserting that five Ecuadorian soldiers were arrested for entering Peruvian territory.)

The incident was said to have occurred on Wednesday near the frontier garrison of Rocafuerte, along the River Napo in the so-called Oriente, an area about the size of New York State claimd by both nations. There has long been ill-feeling because of the dispute.

Martial Law Rules French Syria Area

PARIS, June 4 — (AP) — The French declaration of martial law in the district of Alexandretta in Northern Syria was reported today to have eased the tension between France and Turkey over pre-election rioting among Arabs and Turks.

Earlier, French official quarters had received reports 30,000 Turkish troops were gathered near the southern Turkish border adjacent to the district.

The Turkish ambassador in Paris, Suad Davaz, however, was understood to have told Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet his government would be satisfied if strict army control over the district halted the outbreaks and ensured Turks of their election rights.

The ambassador repeatedly has protested the slaying of Turks, who are seeking to gain control of the Sanjab district) in the July elections and who hope eventually to make it a part of Turkey. It was estimated 100 persons, including Turks and Christians, have been killed since aJnuary 1. About 40 per cent of the 40,000 population are Turks.

Alexandretta, once part of the Turkish Empire, has been administered by France as part of her League of Nations mandate over Syria.

A Franco-Syrian treaty signed September 9, 1936, providing for the independence of Syria in three years and a 25-year alliance between Syria and France met with Turkish objections. The Turks demanded an autonomous status for Alexandretta.

Father Resigned to Death Of His Kidnapped Son

Thinks Slayers Will Be Caught Shortly, Volunteer Army Drops Search

PRINCETON, Fla., June 4 (AP).——Wearied, grief-ridden James Bailey Cash, Sr., said today he was resigned to the death of his only child but convinced the kidnap-slayers would be caught.

Cash, his shoulders bent by fatigue and his eyes bloodshot from sleepless nights, appeared briefly on the porch of his home to express to reporters his thanks to the 2,000 persons who hunted fruitlessly over 120 square miles of territory for the blond five-year-old boy snatched from his bedroom last Saturday.

Asked if he thought the case would be solved, he said: "Yes, I think so, as far as catching the fellow who did it is concerned. Once we catch them we will be able to find out what they did with the boy."

He indicated he had given up all hope of finding James, Jr., alive.

"I expect a break within the next week or 10 days," he said, but declined to amplify the statement. The stricken father said Mrs. Cash still was under a physician's care, but was "some better."

Find 200,000 Aliens Residing In Britain

LONDON, June 4—(CP). — The special branch of Scotland Yard, co-operating with the Home Office, has launched a thorough check of aliens residing in the United Kingdom who are estimated to number around 200,000.

Officers are questioning an average of 50 a day and have found many for whom they were searching came to the country last year for the Coronation, renewed their visas last November, and have neglected to renew them again.

Immigration officials also are keeping a closer watch for aliens entering at British ports, particularly because a large number of foreign refugees are seeking entry after fleeing European countries.

At the end of last year British police records showed registration of 193,653 aliens compared with 186,668 in 1936. Last year 535, 674 aliens entered Britain compared with 524,215 who left, a differenec of 11,459.

Immigration figures by major nationalities for 1937 with departures in brackets: United States, 126,153 (128,000); French, 81,730 (92,732), German, 80,236 (78,261), Austrian, 18,722 (13,610).

Officials are keeping a close watch of aliens seeking to enter the country without legitimate reason. More than 50 a week are rejected.

Bennett Lays Charge Of Corruption

Says Tory Coalman's Low Tender Barred By Deputy

OTTAWA, June 4 (CP).—Charges of public money being spent to benefit supporters of the Government, brought up on frequent occasions by Opposition Leader Bennett, again are before the House of Commons.

Climaxing a day of much debate the little progress with discussions ranging over Indian reserves, transportation and national defence, Mr. Bennett last night charged the Deputy Minister of Defence, Col. L. R. Lafleche, with having rejected a Conservative's tender for coal supplies at Kingston, although it was the lowest.

Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie immediately took full responsibility and declared his Deputy-Minister was the most self-sacrificing and able Deputy of his experience. He promised full details.

Admitting the tender of James Sowards Company had ben rejected, although lowest, the minister said it was the only time it had happened since he had been in office, and it was because of reports unfavorable to that firm.

Mr. Bennett demanded full information and the minister promised it. The Opposition Leader said this was but one of 20 similar incidents he would bring up later. Mr. Sowards had been given no opportunity of defending himself and had not even been furnished the necessary tender forms.

Transport Minister Howe's Bill to set up a Transportation Commission with jurisdiction over land, water and air carriage of freight and passengers, aroused keen debate and made little progress.

Mr. Bennett and Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction Party Leader and Minister of Trade and Commerce until he broke with Mr. Bennett in 1934, lined up together against phases of the Transport Bill. They agreed in their arguments that the Transport Bill was designed to increase transportation costs and benefit those who were most anxious to see it passed.

Greater Shipping Costs.

Mr. Stevens declared effect of that section of the measure providing the licensing of vessels would be to increase cost of shipping on the Great Lakes to the detriment of the grain business.

Resources Minister Crerar made little progress with a Bill having the dual purpose of enabling the Government to arrange leases of mineral resources on Indian reserves and granting of loans to Indians.

Defence Minister Mackenzie made good progress with the last of his estimates. He announced that gas-masks were to be made in Canada and a monthly quota would soon be made available.

Photographer-Hunter End Myth Of Loch Ness

LONDON, June 4.—(C P)—The Lock Ness monster, as unidentified as British Columbia's sea serpent, has flashed into the news again with an announcement by Captain D. J. Munro of the Royal Navy that he is organizing an expedition to photograph it.

Captain Munro, a noted big-game hunter, will take a battery of cameras to Loch Ness, set them up in conjunction with flash lights and numerous other devices desigened to render impossible for the monster to escape portraiture.

The monster, or something in Loch Ness, was photographed in 1933. The picture, given wide publication, showed a projection above the watter that looked something like the dorsal fin of a shark.

Captain Munro's project led a columnist in the Liverpool Post to dig through his paper's morgue and find that since 1933 "eye-witnesses" have reported the monster:

Has a small head, a big hairy head, a head like a cow's with horns, a head like a goat's with the horns sawed off, three humps, two humps, no humps, one fin, no fins, two fins on the neck; is the shape of a whale, not the shape of a whale; is eight, 12, 20, 30, 40, 45 feet long.

County Clerk's Picture Has Been Hung In Hall Of Fame – Jollied By Friends

IN having her picture hung in the hall of fame, as represented by the T.H.G. Denne, Miss Jennie Baten, county clerk and treasurer, is being jollied by her friends because of her inclusion among the interesting reproduction of Peterborough antiques. Because of the fact that she is the first woman to be clerk and treasurer of the county, Miss Batten acceded to Mr. Denne's repeated request for a photograph of herself, from which a painting has been made to conform with the other pictures now shown in the Simpson display window. One of the clerks in the store tells of a recent comment by a farmer to a friend as they looked at the pictures: "Say Tom, they must have had a pretty good looking clerk before Ned Elliott's day. Guess she must be dead a long time; kinda easy to look at, eh! and some dresser. She looks almost like the present day." And the humor of the affair a especially appreciated by Miss Batten. Next, some of the members of the county council may have something to say about the contribution to the Denne art or antique gallery, so the last of the picture hasn't been heard yet by the county's competent official.

• Helping Post Office Department

IN ONE mail arriving at the Examiner office there were 56 letters all dealing with the same subject and they were all from outside points. Which meant the government sold 56 three-cent postage stamps.

Each letter contained an order for a copy or several copies of the Examiner Mail-it-Away Tourist edition. The postage on each paper is two cents; in cases where several copies had been ordered it would be more. So that meant another 56 postage stamps.

And that takes place every day. These letters are from people who are interested; the writers say so plainly. They are planning now where they will spend their vacation and that is why they desire to look over the Examiner Vacation number. In that way the Examiner office has been turned into a temporary tourist bureau and we are glad of it. All these addresses of interested people form a valuable file for future use.

Residents of Peterborough and district who have not yet securd their copies for mailing might well do so. The demand for copies from outside points is greater than we had anticipated.

Prince of Wales' Rangers Band Oldest Musical Organization

The Prince of Wales Rangers Band, which opens its concert season on Sunday evening in Victoria Park, will commence the 44th year of continuous service for civic parades, celebrations and events and as the musical servant of Peterborough music olvers.

At this concert the band will make its appearance in concert formation in their new regulation full dress uniforms, for the first time since before the war.

The band has a unique record in that throughout some of the 'trying' years of its 44 years' service, the band room doors have never been shut, and the band has 'traditionally carried on.'

Formed In 1894.

In 1894 the band was formed and known as the Peterborough Fire Brigade Band, except when in military uniform, when it was known as the 57th Battalion Band. Known to this day as Rangers, with the after war regimental re-organization it was known as the band of the Peterborough Rangers, and in 1938 is called Prince of Wales Rangers Band.

Throughout the years it has had only three bandmasters, in the persons of the late Finch Miller, Rupert Gliddon and since 1921 William Peryer.

Mr. Peryer incidentally commences his 29th year as conductor of bands in Victoria Park. In 1935 was made a 'director of music' by appointment.

The personel of the band besides versatile musical talent in soloists and its ensemble has 19 members qualified for Long Service, Efficiency and War Medals who are active to-day. The band also made splendid contributions to Peterborough's war bands.

Five bandsmen have over 25 years' service each and five have sons who are playing with them. Robert Dyer is of the third generation of his family who have served with the band.

This year has been thus far outstanding in all the band's history. It has a live musical committee and thirty-nine interested and full uniformed members.

Throughout the winter months there was an average of over 30 bandsmen at rehearsals and one Sunday afternoon a month the band rehearsed at the request of some of the members who were working at nights in local industries.

Interest has been kept up and the public will enjoy the regular and additional concerts programmed for this season.

The bandsmen have received many comments on the splendid turnout appearance and playing during the Governor-General's recent visit.

PICTURE OF FIRE

In The Examiner to-day is a picture of the fire that caused the death of Rev. Canon C. W. Hedley, former Dean of the Anglican College of the University of British Columbia, on Stoney Lake, sometime between Saturday and Thursday.

The picture, outside its value as a spot news shot, is remarkable for a chain of coincidences that it indicates. It was taken from the deck of the Bessie Butler, by The Examiner's staff photographer, during the Governor-General's cruise of the Kawarthas.

On board the Bessie Butler was Lord Tweedsmuir, whom Canon Hedley had intended to meet during His Excellency's visit to Grove School. His death prevented him from meeting the Governor-General.

Also on board was Kenneth Mackenzie, headmaster of Grove Preparatory School, nephew of Canon Hedley. Mr. Mackenzie passed less than half a mile from the spot where his uncle's body was presumably lying on that day. The next day he returned to find Canon Hedley's body.—P.

$100,000 Airport For Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont., June 4 (CP).—Outlay of at least $100,000 by the Federal Government on development of a modern airport for this city when suitable land is obtained, was promised by J. A. Wilson, controller of civil aviation, at a lengthy meeting with Windsor Board of Control, City Council and the Chamber of Commerce here last night.

Wilson's statement was made on authorization of Hon. C. D. Howe, Federal Minister of Transport, who has been a frequent visitor to Windsor, and after inspection of Walker Airport, has expressed his approval of the site.

Mayor Wigle said purchase of the land required to make Walker Airport, the present landing field, the necessary size, would be considered at a Board of Control meeting Monday with a view to passing of the proposition by City Council Tuesday. Local labor would be employed to build drains and lay hard-surfaced runways, Wilson said.

He added that such an airport would equip Windsor as an integral link in the Trans-Canada Airways system and would give employment to Windsor citizens. Windsor was strategically situated on one of the continent's chief air traffic routes, and as soon as the airport was finished, the Trans-Canada Airways would begin to operate a system here, he said.

Predict Revival In Church Work

TORONTO, June 4 — (CP) — Theological college graduates will be admitted to the United Church ministry tomorrow in sacred observances, marking the climax of the church's Toronto conference sessions.

All week the delegates have discussed problems and the application of christianity to world problems.

Rev. Harold Toys, chairman of the committee on social service and evangelism, told the conference last night of the possibility of one of "the most amazing revivals history has ever seen." The revival could be accomplished, he said, if ministers were willing to suffer as John Wesley suffered to bring about his changes in church history.

"Remember that John the Baptist was beheaded, Christ was crucified and John Wesley was mobbed, stoned, outlawed," he said.

Discussion of a committee proposal for a form of contributions from all parishes whereby a minimum salary of $1,200 for ministers would be set was laid over until today. Rev. A. H. Ferry of Owen Sound asked last night that all ministers' salaries be pooled in a common fund and the sum divided equally among all, regardless of their charges.

A Pure White Fox

TRURO, N.S., June 4 — (CP). — Birth of three pure white fox pups on the ranch of Clarence Chisholm was regarded by Truro fox breeders today as a freak. Although not uncommon in other parts of Canada, pure white foxes have not been raised here. The litter was segregated from the vixen shortly after birth and was doing nicely under the care of their foster mother — a domestic cat.

Time For Optimists

WINDSOR, Ont., June 4—(CP). —Advocating a definite limitation of taxes on real estate as a means of restoring confidence and employment, John B. Laidlaw, Toronto, executive secretary of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards, told a meeting of the Windsor Real Estate Board here last night a definite note of optimism exists in Windsor and throughout Ontario.

No better opportunities for worthwhile investments in real estate ever existed than at present, despite the alleged unfair taxation, he added.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James

THE TEACHING ABOUT JESUS.

Jesus said unto His disciples: I have many things to say unto you but we cannot bear them now.—St. John 16: 12.

How true! After His ascension the disciples had to face and answer the question: "Who is Jesus?" It was a fearful shock to them. They were plain, simple-minded Galilean Jews trained in the strictest unitarianism: "Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is One Lord."

After the exile the Jew as a race believed in the one living God. Then came the Antiochian persecution in 165-168 B.C. The Greek Monarch, Antiochus, brought twenty thousand troops to Jerusalem; offered swine flesh on the altar of burnt offering and tried to destroy utterly the Jewish religion by terrible persecutions. Thousands of men and women laid down their lives for their faith in the one living God. This truth was burnt into the souls of the people by the fires of persecution. This was the attitude of mind of the eleven Apostles and the small band of disciples. "Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is One Lord."

After His resurrection slowly and painfully they had to face the question. One thing they had learnt when they were with Him. There was something mysterious about Him. An otherness surrounded Him. "They were afraid to ask Him." He was not as they were. They were conscious of a perpetual mystery about Him. "What manner of Man is this that even the winds and the waves obey Him?" One fact they knew. He was in the closest possible communion with the Father. He trusted God completely. He spoke with authority about God. "I say unto you" was His own calm assertion. "He spake as never man spake."

His death on the Cross shocked them terribly. The only explanation of their recovery later is that something extraordinary must have happened to cause a handful of plain, simply minded men to face their rulers with the statement: "Let all the House of Israel know that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ."

In those days of companionship they were unconsciously giving him "the value of God." Have you ever thought of the horror in the mind of Saul of Tarsus when he heard the dying Stephen cry—not the confession, the creed of every devout Jew, "Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is One Lord"—but the terrible blasphemy: "Lord Jesu, receive my spirit." A Jew in his dying hour was praying to a man. No wonder Saul of Tarsus went up and down the land harrying the sect within his Church. Its teaching spelt to him the thin edge of the wedge of idolatry—that most subtle and hateful of all idolatry, dualism.

Slowly, painfully by the guidance of the Holy Spirit the apostles, and later the converted Saul of Tarsus, came to the full knowledge of "the many things" the Lord Jesus wished to reveal to them about Himself. The hardest teaching of all is that He is the Son of God in a mysterious, wonderful sense of the word. It was a truth that was not easy for a devout Jew to believe. It meant a tremendous shake-up of his ideas about God.

It has never been easy for thoughtful men to believe in the Diety of Our Lord. You can understand something of the struggle, the spiritual conflict in the mind of St. Paul when he reveals that immediately after his conversion he went into the desert of Arabia for years of intensive study. He had to re-think his whole position about God and His Christ. Then he returned to Jerusalem to report to St. Peter and to St. James, the Lord's brother. Gal. 1: 17, 18. In those days of mental agony God revealed to him the truth that Jesus Christ is indeed the Son of God.

It was his teaching about Jesus that caused the Jews, his former friends, to persecute him so bitterly. Read his graphic description of his sufferings in I. Cor. 11: 23-27. The martyrs of every age died because they believed that Jesus is the Son of God. It was the "teaching about Jesus" for which they died. They could have held to a very large extent the "teachings of Jesus" and thus escape martyrdom.

A popular word today is axis. The axis of their lives turned on the truth about Jesus. It was no "creedless Church" which kept the faith through three hundred years of persecution. To face that awful storm they had to believe with deep intellectual conviction that Jesus is indeed the Son of God. It had to be no mere emotional feeling about Jesus. It was a Church which held definite, clear-cut views of the "teaching about Jesus" that conquered the pagan world. Dr. Glover, the famous Baptist scholar, points out that it was "the high thinking, the high living and the high dying" of the Primitive Christians that brought about the conversion of the pagan world.

"The word was made flesh and dwelt among us."

A National Message

By the Late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

Now a system which is beneficent to the highest races, or classes, must be "life from the dead," to the downtrodden and oppressed, therefore we need have no doubt about the extension of the common law. It has only blessings to carry.

Next in importance to the carrying of the system, is the setting up of the administration. A good system of law may be made very burdensome by bad administration. But what shall be said of those who by legislation have attempted to amend the law? Are they not like Omri who first made Israel to sin? Fortunately they have not as a rule altered the principles of the law; but there is great need for watchfulness in administration and on administrative bodies. Especially is this so when such bodies assume legislative powers.

The common law is unchangeably fixed in the Bible, which is the authorized expression of that law, passed by our Lord. If individuals and the nation walk and act in its light, no harm can come to them; and the earth will be at peace under the benigh sway of the Divinely given law.

The statutes which give expression to the common law are contained in the Bible. One asks for confidence in these statutes because they are illustrative of the principles contained in the commandments, which ultimately resolve themselves into the unchangeable principles of eternal righteousness.

They are looked upon as illustrating the application of those eternal principles. For instance, in the realm of separate effort, what principle should be followed, destructive competition or constructive co-operation? The following statute makes this matter plain:

"If thou see the ass (transportation system) of him that hateth thee lying under his burden, and wouldst forbear to help him; thou shalt surely help with him." (Ex. xxiii., 4-5).

This is a clear statement of principle. There may be no destructive competition between such companies, but there must be helpful co-operation. The judgments of the laws are judicial applications of the principles of equity, as stated in the Commandments, and as illustrated in the statutes, to new conditions and cases as they arise and develop with the increasing complexity of our life.

Cathedral Musings

It is a fallacy to think that all men are born equal, insofar as the spiritual side of their nature is concerned. Men are no more equal in this respect than they are equal in such matters as physique, intellectual power or other circumstances. We all enter upon life at the precise stage of spiritual growth at which we left off. Infinite are the gradations between the lowest and the highest. Life may be likened to a gigantic stairway with its beginning rooted in the foundation of primitive matter and its end at the throne of God. Each one of us stands upon that step to which he has attained. But, and in this alone are we equal, each one of us is free, and in fact is encouraged, to climb the stairway according to his desire. Infinite is the number of the steps, but each one brings us a little nearer to the Perfection of God. If we refuse to climb, then does the procession of life overtake us, bringing its own penalty.

With all the stress of this world placed upon the outer things such as occupation, wealth and position; with our mental training confined to the purely intellectual and objective faculties, it is small wonder that the procession of life moves so slowly up the stairway, or that it halts for centuries upon one step, or that at times it even retrogresses. It is small wonder that out of the teeming millions of earth only a comparative few put first things first and strive upwards irrespective of all else. The wisdom of this world terms such ardent souls foolish, but we must recognize the fact that this worldly wisdom has no value whatever in the spiritual realm except insofar as it is used constructively and in harmony with the Divine Mind. We are not judged by what we have but by what we have become and are. If man is only an intellectual animal then are the children of this world wise indeed, but if man is a spiritual being temporarily inhabiting his house of clay, if he is a son of God, as we know he is, then his search for God is the only true wisdom there is. It should outweigh all other things. But God is not to be found here, nor is He there, nor in this or in that. Neither is He embodied in formula or creed however helpful such may be. He is only to be found by man in the realization of God in man for the Kingdom of Heaven is without us. It is not by saying Lord, Lord, that we find the entrance thereto but by doing the Will of Him by Whom we live, for God's work on earth can only be done by His representative, man. The responsibility is ours, not God's.

The Golden Text

Mark 14-8—"She hath done what she could."

Four Elders Are To Be Ordained

At the morning service in St. Andrew's Church four elders will be ordained to their sacred office: Donald Crawford, Fred Johnston, James Johnston and Dr. Charles M. Scott, who have been elected to that office by a vote of the congregation at a special meeting held on Wednesday, May 18th, which had been duly announced in the church for two Sundays previous to that date.

The United Church of Canada recognizes but one spiritual order in the Church, namely, Presbyters; these are ecclesiastically of equal rank, though differentiated according to their duties. The ministers preach and administer the sacraments, the elders are associated with the ministers in the oversight of the people. There are deacons also sometimes called managers or stewards whose function it is to have charge of the temporal affairs of the congregation.

The session is composed of the minister and elders. The minister is ex-officio president or moderator, and has only a casting vote. He holds his office by consent of the Presbytery.

The session has oversight of the congregation in regards to such matters as public worship, the arrangements for administration of the sacraments, the admission of new members, the exercise of discipline, the oversight of work amongst young people, the use of the church edifice, the recommendation of candidates for the ministry, the care of the poor, and visitation of the sick, the custody of the register of baptisms, marriages and burials, the transmission of petitions and appeals to Presbytery, pastoral oversight of the congregation in co-operation with the minister.

The office of elder is in its origin political and is a relic of the old patriarchal system. It was through the influence of Judaism that the office passed over into the Christian Church. Moses chose a council of seventy "to bear with him the burden of the people." The name "elder" was probably the first title bestowed upon the officers of the Christian Church. The word "deacon" does not occur in connection with the appointment of the seven in Acts vi.

IN DEFENCE OF FAITH

Freedom of will is simply freedom to think what one pleases or wills. It is the key to the moral nature of man. Man's physical nature is not "free." It must be obeyed. It is manifest therefore, that the two natures were created differently and for a different purpose. The tremendous significance of this fact does not impress us as it should. We are apt to think that so long as we can keep alive and enjoy ourselves the rest does not matter. This latter view is known as the barnyard or animal view of life. As in other things, it depends upon what sort of man we are whether we rise above the barnyard view and take the "moral" view of life as well, or not. What would induce us to do it? Manifestly the nobler impulse. As the will is free there is nothing to compel us to respond to this nobler impulse. Therein lies the mystery and the magnificence of the moral nature. The standard, however, can not be set by man himself. That would be a contradiction. Such a standard would be just what we felt like having and would leave us where we began. Hence the necessity of looking to a Higher Power—and that is what constitutes religion and religion to be effective must be answered and revealed to us by the Higher Power and the seeking of that revelation becomes the fundamental duty of man. It is soon found. It may be neglected or even sneered at, but the truth of it is undeniable. This is the philosophical view of life. When it becomes conviction it is Faith. A distinguished Canadian has sent me $25.00 towards my printing expenses. The danger to our national character from neglect of the supernatural is becoming apparent and is reflected in the alarming increase of juvenile and general delinquency. It is directly traceable to the attempt to transfer all power in Heaven and earth from God to man, in our moral nature.

Personal Devotion to Christ

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 5 is Mark 14: 3-11, 27-31, the Golden Text being Mark 14: 8, "She hath done what she could.")

"MARY HATH chosen the good part, which shall not be taken from her." This was Jesus' comment but a few months before the incident of our lesson, on the occasion when Mary "sat at the Lord's feet and heard his words." What she heard from the Master's lips that day greatly influenced Mary to do what she did for Jesus the last week of his life when she saw more clearly than did any of the apostles, the shadow of the cross coming upon him and brought her "flowers for the living," feeling that death at the hands of his enemies would leave her no privilege of honoring his body with the customary burial rites afterward.

Love's Tribute.

Love always will find a way. So, "while he was in Bethany in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at meat, there came a woman having an alabaster cruse of ointment of pure nard very costly; and she broke the cruse and poured it over his head." Merely a few weeks before this supper honoring Jesus in Bethany the whole village rang with the news of Jesus' mighty work in bringing Lazarus, Mary's brother, back to life after death. Now Jesus is about to suffer crucifixion at the hands of his enemies and Mary chooses this method of showing her devotion to him for all he has meant to her and to her family. If he can carry to the cross the odor of her ointment to speak to him of understanding sympathy and grateful love in an atmosphere of murderous hate, she will count no cost too great a sacrifice, though it represents a man's wages for a whole year, as indeed it did. Let others call it "waste" if they will. It will speak to him of love, when he will need it most and when none will be at hand to speak their love.

Love's Memorial.

And Jesus did understand and appreciate. "Let her alone," he said to those who criticized her. "Why trouble ye her? She hath wrought a good work on me...She hath done what she could: she hath anointed my body beforehand for the burying. And verily I say unto you, wheresoever the gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, that also which this woman hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her." While through the intervening centuries myriads of memorials have crumbled into dust, Mary's memorial shines in undiminished glory wherever the gospel is preached.

Greed's Climax.

In horrible contrast to Mary's devotion there emerged the treachery of Judas Iscariot, who, even as he rebuked Mary for her generosity, "went away unto the chief priests, that he might deliver him unto them. And they, when they heard it, were glad and promised to give him money. And he sought how he might conveniently deliver him unto them." The meanest thing in the world is something which can be done by only a professing Christian, viz.: to betray Jesus Christ. That can not be done except by one who works from the inside by professing without possessing personal devotion. And the sharpest pang of Jesus' sorrows was that he must say to those who had known him most intimately for three years, "Verily, I say unto you, one of you shall betray me, even he that eateth with me." With this possibility open to us, as it was to Judas and Peter to betray and deny our Lord, it behooves us all to "watch and pray that we enter not into temptation."

Personal Devotion to Christ — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Mark 14:3-11; 27-31

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

A few months before Jesus' death he was a guest at the home of Mary and Martha, and Mary sat at his feet and listened to him, learning much of his coming death at the hands of his enemies.

The last week of Jesus' life he was again in Bethany, and Mary anointed Jesus' head with precious ointment. Judas criticized her act as wasteful. But Jesus commended Mary for anointing him beforehand for burial.

After criticizing Mary's act of devotion Judas went out and bargained with Jesus' enemies for thirty pieces of silver as his price for help in delivering Jesus to them without violence.

After Judas left the group around the supper table Jesus warned the other disciples that all of them would forsake him that night and that Peter would even deny that he knew Jesus. (GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 14:8.)

Then The Lawyer Spoke

On the 25th of March W. J. Houston tore his trousers when attending an exhibition at Northern Vocational School in Toronto. He promptly made out a bill for $6.50 and then farwarded it to the Board of Education. The bill in size seems reasonable enough for we once heard of a man who paid more than that for a pair of trousers.

Since the receipt of the bill it appears that all the rather elaborate machinery of the Toronto Board of Education has had something or other to do with it, but Mr. Houston had not received his $6.50. The account was being passed from one committee to another, and in each place it was being discussed.

We learn the Business Administrator in company with Trustee Dr. Hugh Ross had visited the offending radiator and while there the trustee had brushed the radiator from all angles to see if the thing would also produce injury to his trousers. It didn't. We read though that the Business Administrator still entertained some doubt. There was the possibility that the trustee in conducting his experiments had not sidled up to the radiator in exactly the same manner as W. J. Houston. Thus the question of the damaged trousers had been shuffled about for over two months.

Recording this rather unusual procedure as it has been unfolded from time to time we come upon the fact that the legal adviser of the Board of Education was asked to shed light on the situation. He settled the thing with a finality which was commendable; he spoke with authority which would lead one to believe he had statutory weight to fortify his opinion. Just this: The Board was not liable inasmuch as the radiator was in plain view, "and Houston had walked into the radiator and not the radiator into Houston."

The Board had been passing this account from committee to committee for over two months, and meantime officers and one trustee had been experimenting to see if trousers could be torn as claimed, and it may be the finance committee was considering whether the trousers should be paid for in cash or by issuing debentures. Then the lawyer settled it in about two minutes by saying the bill did not have to be paid. And that of course leads to the question—why didn't they ask the lawyer about it in the first place?

Brings Home a Trophy

Weekly newspapers of Ontario-Quebec have been holding their annual convention in Toronto. It is not merely a gathering these people have at which they listen to reports or complain about the condition of the world and business in general. It is also the occasion of making awards for good work in various departments.

George W. James of the Bowmanville Statesman was awarded a prize this year, and it was given for the best editorial page in a weekly newspaper. This award, the Pearce Trophy, is given by two brothers, Glenn and Bruce Pearce of the Simcoe Reformer. They did it in memory of their father, himself a good newspaper man and an admirer of a good editorial page. Rather pleasant to think of the desire and preference of a father being carried along this way and actually promoting and recognizing a class of work of which he approved.

Pleased too that such an award should find its way to our near neighbor George James in Bowmanville. He produces an editorial page which is readible, and better still he puts things on that page with which some of his readers will disagree, and that we regard as good editorial work. With a trophy on the pine table in front of him Mr. James should be able to go ahead stronger than ever.

Where Would It End?

Toronto Conference of United Church listened while Rev. Allan Ferry of Owen Sound outlined his views about changing the hours of service on Sunday. Mr. Ferry was certain it would be well to so arrange the hours that "a man who wants to go fishing on Sunday can get a few hours at it and still be back in time for Sunday evening service." The ministers listened but they were not impressed.

Then there was another minister who claimed it was necessary to change the hours of his evening services so people could listen to Charlie McCarthy on the radio and then go to evening service.

And if the hours for evening service were made sufficiently flexible to accommodate fishing and Charlie on the Sabbath day no doubt there would be others who would come forward with good reasons for other changes in order to allow latitude to attend to something else which had caught their fancy.

We believe it all comes back to the simple rule of putting first things first.

Going To Prison

Elias Henry, an Indian of 19 years who lives on the Muncey Reserve in Western Ontario is in trouble. He stole a revolver and a couple of bicycles. In all he pleaded guilty to four different robbery charges, and for the next two and a-half years he will be at Portsmouth Penitentiary.

The magistrate at London who dealt with the case did not believe there would be any punishment in sending Elias Henry to prison for thirty months. He was inclined to believe that being taken from the reserve to the penitentiary would be like going from a humble home to a palace. If there were any way in which it could be done the magistrate would have preferred to see Elias Henry given a sound flogging and then sent home.

We doubt whether this Indian of 19 feels the same as the magistrate at London about being taken from the reserve and placed in prison. Probably there is nothing stately about his home on the reserve, but it is home. And when he was on the reserve he could go and come when he liked and that in itself would mean a good deal more to Elias Henry an Indian than to a white man.

We are inclined to agree with the London magistrate that justice and all else would be as well served in such a case by ordered a whipping for this youth and then sending him home. He wouldn't be liable to forget it.

Asking The Government

Production in the Turner Valley oil field of Alberta will have to be curtailed because it is not possible at present to sell all the oil which can be produced. All the available storage tanks are full.

Oil operators and business men of Calgary have appealed to Ottawa asking that the Dominion government shall do something about it. They want railways to co-operate in taking the oil to eastern markets, or else the government in their estimation should subsidize pipe lines to the Pacific coast or the head of the Great Lakes.

It would be fine to see the oil fields of Alberta doing well. It would give employment and aid business generally, but we are not so sure that the government should be called upon to enter the situation every time things are not going well. These oil wells are being operated by private individuals; people buy shares in the companies and in so doing they know they are accepting all the risks which attend any such enterprise.

One would not care to be unreasonable in such a matter, but after all the government spends money which is being taken from all the people, and there is also a limit to the number of rescue trips which any government can or should finance.

Stories Tell Two Sides

Stories in newspapers sometimes get locations which are interesting as the stories themselves. That may need a little explaining. We have before us two stories which ran side by side. One was from Hollywood and it told of a rumored divorce. The husband has two wives living now whom he has previously divorced, and one of them has since been married to a man who was twice divorced. The wife whom he now seeks to divorce was a divorcee when he married her. It is a jumbled sort of story, and so written as though there were an element of romance or some such thing running through all these events. There was never a word to indicate a sense of shame, regret or apology for spilling all this nastiness before the eyes of readers.

The story in the next column was dated from Simcoe, Ont., and told about Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Longhurst who live at Vanessa. They have been married for 70 years, and it is believed they have made a record for the Dominion. Four months after they were wed they moved to the home where they now reside. Children were born there; they have in their time been active in the work of their church; Mr. Longhurst always took a part in politics and it is stated he was always regarded as a good farmer. There is not a word suggesting that Mr. Longhurst ever thought of parting with his wife, nor is it recorded that at any time in those 70 years has Mrs. Longhurst expressed a desire to be rid of her husband. Everything about their lives seems to have been wholesome, simple and kindly. It made pleasant reading indeed after having looked over the unlovely article which had been sent out from Hollywood.

✦ ✦ ✦

There was another. This one we found in the London Free Press where two stories which ran side by side spoke of traffic on the highway. The first one related that a dinner had been held in London at which awards were made by an oil company for drivers who had made good records, the awards coming in the shape of gold pins with the trade mark of the company on them. There were several drivers so honored, and one of them had been on the road for six years with no accident. Others who had been driving for shorter periods had no-accident records.

The second story told of an auto driving along the road at one in the morning and making a sudden left-hand turn without giving any warning. Another car crashed in; people were taken to the hospital; the drivers will face charges in court, and there will be bills to pay.

The drivers of the oil trucks are on the road all day; they have to meet all kinds of traffic hazards; probably they must be prepared to do the right thing when a driver ahead makes a sudden left-hand turn. And yet it was possible to pay tribute to a number of such drivers because they had not in years of service had an accident.

So it is a fact that at times these parallel stories about the same general topic present that which is desirable as well as that which is not.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If it were not for liquor and automobiles Canadian jails could be reduced to half their number and half their size.

It is worthy of note that as soon as the Examiner's Mail-It-Away edition was off the press. Lord Tweedsmuir started upon a tour of the Kawartha Lakes.

Uncle Sam's postmaster-general will set the pace for millions of Americans this summer by taking a holiday in Canada.

The woman member for the Yukon intends to retire but as her husband will run in her place the prospect is still Black for the Liberals of the north.

East York's relief rolls are the smallest in seven years and more than one municipality would like to know how that result has been arrived at.

Eskimos in the Aklavik district are to be visited by a dentist next fall. They may discover in his arrival a new reason to blubber.

Many folk would like to know whether this battle between Mr. Roebuck and the Globe and Mail is a private fight or whether anybody can get into it.

Two Canadian short stories have been selected in a volume of the best of the year. A copy of Mr. Roebuck's nine-hour speech is not one of them.

Groom of 84 and bride of 79 have been been honeymooning in Niagara Falls. They probably felt there was nothing to be gained by waiting until the new bridge is erected.

A newspaper writer says the Saskatchewan election has become a dog-eat-dog affair. Most of the mustard, we presume, is being supplied by the Social Crediters.

Winnipeg man has been fined for operating a bingo game. That is one form of lottery in which there is some chance for the player; he always has an opportunity to eat some of the corn.

British Social Crediters have been throwing bricks at the official quarters of the Prime Minister. That is an idea that has not suggested itself so far to Premier Aberhart or his followers.

Mayor Day says children should be excluded from midnight shows. Parents are of the same opinion but most of them seem to have trouble in selling the idea to the youngsters.

One thing is clear that when the Dominion government finally brings in a policy to deal with unemployment no one will be able to accuse it of acting with undue precipitation.

Dr. Pequegnat, Toronto deputy medical officer of health says it's the common driving sense of the man behind the wheel that counts in safe driving. The trouble is many ordinarily sensible people seem to change when they find themselves driving a car.

Ontario's Attorney-General seems to resent the fact that Ottawa has been tightening up the laws in regard to reckless driving etc. The co-operation between provincial and Dominion governments these days is something at which to marvel.

Canadian naturalists are urging national control of the Dominion's forest, water and wild life resources but we have a feeling they will have a tough time selling the idea to the various provincial cabinets. And they shouldn't have.

CRUSADER

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Joe Wordage makes long speeches now, he wrinkles both his face and brow, his jaw works like a trap; Joe Wordage crusades now and then, for all the poor down-trodden men, words run through him like sap.

¶ Joe is exposing many things, and when he speaks the building rings, he's tired when he gets through; financial giants he'd seize each time, he'd bundle them with binder twine, or cut them clean in two.

¶ Taxation is his newest theme, he's stored some figures in his bean, his sorrow makes him groan; his heart is said for folk today, who can't afford to pay and pay, and so may lose the home.

¶ Joe Wordage grieves for those who lost, when markets had a touch of frost, he stiffens up his back; the ones who lost their hard earned kale, should put a lot of folk in jail, or get their money back.

¶ I know Joe Wordage fairly well, have often sat and heard him yell, and noted what he said; he doesn't own a house and lot, there's not a thing he ever bought, that put him in the red.

¶ I guess Joe has to look around, to see where grief is easy found, so it's within his reach; for otherwise he'd have to quit, and be content to simply sit—and never make a speech.

Straight Talk In This Debate

(From Parliamentary Reports)

Mr. POWER: That was the Simcoe post office?

Mr. BENNETT: Yes. The Minister of Pensions and National Health is quite right. It was in connection with the Post Office Department. I do not recall the exact letter, but it was under that department—whether it was the Simcoe office or not, I cannot say. However I believe the hon. member was interested in the matter at that time, and probably will have a very good memory with respect to it.

The reason for the rule is obvious. Let us look at it for a moment. A member of the government, having access to public papers, sees fit to refer to those papers, and to place upon the contents of the document the construction which suits him, when presenting his case to the house.

Mr. Dunning: That is not the case in this instance.

Mr. BENNETT: Yes, it is the case in this instance. The hon. member for Kootenay East (Mr. Stevens) asked for some information which he did not get. He thereupon asked for definite information with respect to a letter. The minister admits that he has the letter but he says, "This is a personal letter written by a member of the board to somebody who is a member of Dreyfus and Company".

Mr. HOWE: May I correct my right hon. friend?

Mr. BENNETT: Certainly.

Mr. HOWE: I may say that I have never seen the letter. I have never seen it and I do not know whether it is in existence; it is certainly not in any file of the department.

Mr. BENNETT: That makes the minister's case so extraordinary as to cause me to wonder how he can possibly stand in his place and make the statements he has.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): It is quite true.

Mr. BENNETT: Yes, it is quite true—what I say. Anyone would wonder how a minister of the crown could stand in his place and make that observation, how any minister could stand up and say, "I don't know what is in the letter; I do not know whether it exists; I have never seen it". That is monstrous. Surely the minister does not mean that. Think what that means. He is a responsible minister of the crown and this is a responsible government, not a dictatorship. The minister says, "I don't know what is in the letter but I have been talking about it. I don't know whether it exists or not, but I have been talking about it. I have never seen it, but I have been talking about it." Can anyone imagine a responsible minister doing that? I say the minister must have an entirely erroneous impression of what the duties of a minister of the crown are. Does he realize what his responsibilities are? There are those sitting beside him who can tell him.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): To what item is my right hon. friend speaking?

Mr. BENNETT: I am speaking to a question of high privilege— a privilege of the house.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): Privilege?

Mr. BENNETT: Yes, privilege of the House of Commons. If I am to find myself unable to deal with public matters because I cannot get access to papers to which a minister may refer, then the House of Commons becomes nothing more or less than a rubber stamp.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): The rules provide the way to order the production of papers.

Mr. BENNETT: The rules do more than that. The rules provide that when a minister of the crown refers to a public document he must table it.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): It was the hon. member for East Kootenay who did.

Mr. BENNETT: Just imagine anyone seeking to cover himself up with a statement such as that. Can anyone imagine it? The hon. member for East Kootenay asked a question about a document, as he had a right to do, having ascertained that there was such a document, and a minister of the crown now says, quite calmly, "I don't know whether there is such a document."

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): The rule is as follows:

It has been admitted that a document which has been cited ought to be laid upon the table of the house, if it can be done without injury to the public interest. The same rule, however, cannot be held to apply to private letters or memoranda.

Mr. BENNETT: Why, of course not. Now we have the more beautiful sight of a minister of the crown asserting that there can be anything like a private communication between a member of the harbours board and Dreyfus and Company with respect to public business. Imagine that!

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): We have the more beautiful sight of the leader of the opposition agreeing with the member for East Kootenay.

Mr. BENNETT: That, Mr. Speaker, only illustrates the calibre of the ministry. Are there on the treasury benches men who are unable to understand that public business may transcend personal differences? Are there upon the treasury benches men who cannot understand that the public interest is paramount? I occupy a position in which I am placed by statute, and one of my duties is to do exactly what I am doing, to try to safeguard the liberties of parliament from encroachment by the government of the day. That is my duty. That is one of the difficulties of the position which I occupy, and I will discharge that duty whether it be on behalf of a member of the opposition or of any other party when there is tyrannical exercise of power on the part of the government by reason of a great majority.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

IMPERIAL ARMY

Editor Examiner:

Sir: A welcome visitor to our town on Wednesday was, Mr. J. Tinling, of St. Thomas, Ontario. Mr. Tinling is the Hon.-Secretary of the British Imperial Comrade Association. The purpose of his visit was to open the first meeting of this Association in Beterborough and to form a branch here. The meeting was attended by a fair number of ex-Imperial Army and Navy men. The idea of the B. I. C. A. is to draw together all men and women who served in the British Army and Navy, the Nursing Service, the W. A. A. C. and those who served in any official service during, before, or after the War.

We have been granted a Charter by the Dominion Government and we are now a body and free to work for our fellow comrades in need. Mr. Tinling described the workings and fundamentals of the Association in his address and all these met the favor of the members and, I am sure, would have met the favor of all old ex-Imperial men and women now resident in this country; we cannot expect our adopted country (Canada) to bear our burdens. No—it is up to the British Government to do so and this is our only way, in forming a body that will have some sway and influence in this respect. Therefore I would kindly appeal to all ex-Imperial men and women to get behind this branch of the Association and to rally with us, to further the cause of those of our ranks who are in need.

Another meeting of the Association will be held on June the 15th when we hope to swell our numbers to overflowing. A notice of our meeting on June 15th will be advertised later.

IN SPAIN

Editor Examiner:

Sir: After reading numerous editorials in the Examiner and other newspapers, and listening to newscasts from a dozen different radio stations condeming Franco, we learn through a recent writer, namely, F. J. O'Sullivan that the Spanish rebels are saving Spain (not wrecking it) This comes as a surprise and the source of his information should get publicity if the authenticity of Associated news dispatches are questionable, no real Canadian likes to be a victim of deceptive journalism or propaganda.

Mr. O' Sullivan points to the freedom of tourists in rebel territory but I'm sure they would be shown about as much suffering and distress as a tourist through Germany or Soviet Russia, or the Governor-General's tour of Peterboough. The fact that 'White' Spain is being govened efficiently means nothing, as our jails and penitentiaries are governed smoothly too, and by the same methods.—Iorce.

No, I don't think Canadians are being misled. Franco is not saving Spain from Communism but saving it for the Fascist countries of Italy and Germany. The progress of Fascism is accomplished by force. Manpower and armaments are all that is necessary. Mass marriages in the Fascist countries will supply the manpower, in time, and the wonderful transformation of Spain will assure the Fascist dictators a guaranteed supply of mercury and high grade steel for the shells. With a good oil supply and Ontario's rich nickel deposits Franco could probably "Save" a few more countries like Mexico, France or maybe Canada.

Yours truly,
A. G. WARREN.

ANTICOSTI.

(Toronto Star)

ANTICOSTI, the island so much discussed at present, was called Assomption by Jacques Cartier when he first sighted it in 1543, and Ascension by a later explorer, but within the next hundred years had become generally known as Anticosti, from, it is said, an Indian word, Natticousti, meaning "where bears are hunted." Derivation from Spanish words "before the coast" has been suggested, but the Indian origin is more likely.

Lindsay Lasses Lose to Keene; 31 Runs Scored

Keene made their 1938 debut into the Girls' Softball League last night in an auspicious manner, copping a 19-12 decision over Lindsay Supremes at the Ashburnham Bowl before a big crowd. It was a free-hitting and loosely-played encounter, with all kinds of errors on each side, but an exciting fixture nevertheless. The Keensters came on strong at the finish to grab the decision, scoring 12 runs in the last three heats before the fixture was called for darkness.

B. McDowell pitched for Ivan Fletcher's femmes and held Lindsay to nine hits and a walk as she fanned seven in a good performance. J. Corley of Lindsay lasted till the seventh and gave way to M. McCabe. The former was nicked for nine hits and five walks, while striking out eight. M. McCabe gave up seven bingles, two free tickets and fanned one. None of the hurlers had much help defensively from their mates.

Leads Hitters.

For Keene, G. Nelson got four hits, R. Wood three, and B. McDowell hit a homer and a single. For Lindsay, F. Mark, M. Campbell, L. Ashmore and M. Mackey had two hits apiece and D. Botting belted out a four-bagger. Neat fielding plays were dished up by B. McDowell, H. Nelson, M. Campbell and D. Botting. The teams:

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, the biggest news story of the week in sporting circles is of course the announcement that this here man's town is going to be represented in the senior O.R.F.U. serious next fall. Yes siree. All they need is to lay out a new field at the Exhibition grounds, order a coupla dozen unies, find 24 husky lads to viding it is 33 wide.

season—we hope. It's a sporting venture, this launching out into the higher area with teams like the Sarnia Imperials and Balmy Beach but they can't put you in jail for trying and already the very announcement that the Petes is going senior has give the town a lotta publicity on sporting pages all over this favored land.

About Reinforcements

The management is being give plenty of advice as to what they should do about landing a team strong enough to battle the Imperials and the Beachers on something like even terms and I aint going to try to tell them anything about that except to point out they better contact a few key men right pronto and make sure they're the genuine goods. The opposition is plenty tough in the senior loop and any reinforcements what is signed up had better be good.

Shutout Again

In baseball Mac, our lads has amassed another trimming since my last—this time at the hands of their ancient enemies, the Kingston Ponies, and once again the boys failed to find their way round to the counting station—their 2nd whitewash of this young year. They did manager to stick in 9 blows in the Kingston fracas but they couldn't get their hits to jell and the result was not a Peterborough spike dented the home plate during the affray.

Two shutouts in a row is a bad enough but what really hurts is that both times the Murphy Maulers was batting against 2nd stringer twirlers, being blanked by Mister J. Turner and getting the collar in Kingston from that mighty atom Mister Yammy Jamieson, 1 of the last of the old guard left with the Ponies. Mister Jamieson has win many a battle in the Central loop but he don't usually rate a shutout job.

They's Power There

The season is young yet, Mac, and 2 games dont prove very much. I still got a idea there is considerable power in that Pete lineup and that it will brake loose before long and pin somebody's ears back. The return to the fold of Mister Bill Calladine is a big help, Mister Calladine being usually good for a blow or 2, as well as fielding right smartly in any position he's tried out in.

Well, old timer, space is sorta limited and anyway so is ideas so let's scram now.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Yesterday's Stars

(By the Associated Press.)

Red Ruffing, Yankees—Pitched seven-hitter, fanning five, to trounce Tigers 8-1.

Bill Lee, Cubs—Hurled three-hitter for third shutout in row, blanking Bees 4-0.

Mickey Owen and Don Padgett, Cardinals—Owen's "clutch" single with two out in the 11th drove in winning run to beat Phillies 8-7 after Padgett hit homer with the bases loaded.

Wes Ferrell, Senators — Handcuffed White Sox 5-2 with six hits.

Earl Averill, Indians—Hit triple and single, driving in four runs in 10-5 win over Athletics.

Dolph Camilli, Dodgers — Hit triple and single and drove in the winning run in 5-4 victory over the Reds.

George Street Beats Knox Six to Five

Knox and George St. Majors turned in a neat Church Softball Loop tilt last night at the Oval with the latter taking their third win by a 6-5 count. It was a fast pitchers' duel between A. Wedlock and R. Akers, with the Majors getting all six runs in the first frame on three hits, a walk and two errors. They were blanked then by Wedlock, while Akers, who let his rivals down with three hits their last game, came back with another good performance. Knox could only hit effectively in the second and fifth heats. He bore down hard in the last two to cut off prospective scores. Last play saw Copping called out at home on a close play that caused an argument. Both hurlers fanned eight and walked few. G. Gatfield's hitting and McKinley's fielding were features. The teams

HASTINGS

Elgin Defeats Tanners 16-14

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, June 4.—Elgin took a 16 to 14 slugfest from the Tanners Friday night to tie them for the Hastings Softball League lead. It was a nice game, with Elgin having very little edge. The Tanners tried hard in the last of the ninth but could manage to score only once.

McCoy, on the mound for the Tanners, allowed 14 hits but struck out 13 to set a new league record. He walked 8. Hahn came in and pitched to the last batter in the ninth, striking him out. J. Richardson, pitching for the winners, was clouted for 19 base hits and he passed one. He also had poor support as his team-mates committed 9 errors. M. Scott, with 2 singles in 3 times up, and R. Richardson, with a homer, a double and a single in 6 times up, led Elgin at bat. For the Tanners, Ibey with 4 singles, G. Scriver with 2 triples and a double, Hahn with a double and 2 singles and Kelley with a triple and 2 singles were the leading hitters. Elgin had 2 fast double plays, both E. Preston to M. Scott. The last 3 outs for the Tanners were all fly-outs to B. Scott in centre field.

On Monday evening the Clerks and the Outlaws clash.

The teams:

Tanners: C. Scriver, rf; Thompson, ss; G. Scriver, c; Hahn, lf, p; Ibey, 3b; Kelley, cf; Brinklow, 2b; McCoy, p, lf; M. Scriver, 1b; Sargent batted for C. Scriver.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

SOME FOLKS HERE scoffed when they heard the rumor, as early as last December, that Peterborough would have a senior football squad in 1938—but the fact remains that local officers are in Toronto today for the final arrangements and drafting of the senior O.R.F.U. schedule for fall. With the C.N.R. club of Montreal, Balmy Beaches of Toronto, Sarnia Imps, and Peterborough Orfuns making up the group. It'll take plenty of dough and a lot of bolstering for ye Orfuns, but the hard-working ossifers expect to put it across. 'We may not burn up the senior group in our first season," Prexy Ott Cranfield stated recently, "but we'll have a good contending team." Which is all the fans can ask. Likely a single schedule will be run, with games at the new gridiron in the Exhibition Grounds—and admission will have to be upped around these parts—with fans coming from all over Central Ontario.

WE AGREE with the last part of this item from Ernie Foote in the Cobourg Sentinel-Star; "Peterborough steals the spotlight with a startling bit of rugby news. The Liftlock City has graduated to senior company and will replace Hamilton's ill-fated Panthers. This is a smart move on the part of the Peterborough club and our only regret is that Cobourg's '38 edition will not have a chance to tangle with ye Orfuns. It is also a feather in the caps of men like Fred Dufton, Lou Brooks, H. A. Cranfield, Bill Fry and a few others who were so instrumental in forming this loop. They were laughed at when they suggested rugby in these parts a few years back, but now it is going over with a bang and bids fair to overshadow some of the more popular and better established sports from a spectator angle."

BILL PRINDIBLE, president of the Junior City Ball Loop, tells us he has received some equipment for the minor diamondeers. The C.G.E. Athletic Association handed over all their baseball equipment, including four balls, a mask, first-base mitt, seven pairs of sox, two bats, catcher's pad, receiver's mitt, bat bag and 11 suits. Very nice going that. And Art Moffatt turned over six suits, two masks, four bats, shin guards and a catcher's pad. Bill appreciates these gifts to the boys. However, he says they badly need a bunch of baseballs, having only received a few so far. This re-organized circuit is doing well, after being idle so long. The P.C.I. team to date has looked the best and has requested that the loop affiliate with the O.B.A. with winner entering playdowns. This may be done shortly.

OVER AT THE BOWL last e'en, Ivan Fletcher's 1938 edition of Keene softballers made their debut before an appreciative audience by knocking off Lindsay lasses, 19 to 12. And were after another batch of runs in the ninth when 'twas called for lack of daylight saving. Bea McDowell twirled good ball with nine hits and seven strikeouts—also getting a homer and single herself—whilst two Scugog tossers were used, J. Corley and M. McCabe. Keenesters collected their runs in gobs, scoring six in the fifth, five in the seventh and seven in the eighth. On 15 hits, seven walks and about nine errors of commission. Yeah, the fielding on both sides was as loose as beach pajamas on an underfed deb. However, 'twas an exciting fray and the folks who drop the nickels and dimes (well, anyway the nickels) in the chapeau were satisfied.

SOME 800 FANS whooped it up last eve at the exhibition lacrosse match just below the C.P.R. station, and their whoops helped the Petes pull out a 17-12 victory over the Inglewood-Caledon Combines. Let that be a lesson to youse Inglewood hombres to not knock off our gallants again in Provincial semi-finals! They were big and fast but their passing plays were a little off, and the Petes played good all-around lacrosse to earn the nod. Had a little edge in scoring in each frame. One of the Combines said they'd have a couple of the players who were here with Brampton a short time ago, so the Inglewood crew will be tough enough again. So will the local lads.

LOTS OF ROUGH CHECKING and plenty of penalties, ye ref. being strict. Of the 19 penalties, the Petes got 10 with Jack Westonfelt drawing one of five minutes and one of 10, the latter for a fight in the fourth quarter with Puckering. He won the fight but lost to Referee Jerry Kendall of Brampton and got the gate. Norm Worthy and Don Crowe turned in a whale of an effort for the Petes, with Dundas, Magee and Whitton close behind. And Jerry Creighton and Meyette shining defensively. The rest looked good, too. Red Creighton returned to play goal for a period and drew a hand as he took the floor. Chambers in the other net is only 14 years old and he certainly sparkled last eve. Ought to be a good goalie some day. The Petes open their O.L.A. schedule Tuesday in Woodbridge.

HAVE just received a copy of the annual O.B.A. book on constitution and by-laws for 1938. Contains pictures of two C.O.B.L. gents, Bob Elliott of Deloro (life member), and Max Swanston of this city, loop president. Both are on the Ontario Baseball Association. Only seven out of 101 applications for change of residence were refused players last season. Champs were: Toronto Grads in senior, Strathroy Royals in intermediate "A", Ingersoll in intermediate "B", Staffordville in the "C" category, Guelph in junior, Galt in juvenile, and Chatham in bantam. Lot of interesting into contained in the booklet and if the Petes can cop the C.O.B.L. title, the locals no doubt will be interested in O.B.A. rules and regulations then—provided they decide to enter playdowns. At that, the Ontario Association has opened up a great deal.

THERE will be one more Ont. Golf Assoc. test before the Ont. amateur championship, and that'll be at Port Hope Golf and Country Club next Saturday. Peterborough Club, Kawartha, Lindsay, Oshawa, Belleville, Trenton, Picton and Kingston will be represented by strong squads, each hoping to have the winning quartet in the team match. Nifty prizes are provided by the O.G.A. for low gross and low net scores for two divisions, handicaps of nine and under and 10 to 24. O.G.A. championship will be held at the Scarboro Club, Scarboro, on June 16, 17 and 18. Big list of prizes for various flights, we are informed. Sandy Somerville won't be competing, so we may get practiced up a bit ourself—if we can borrow a golf ball.

Orpen Memorial Is Feature Race

The outstanding race of the spring season in Toronto appears to be the Orpen Memorial Hadicap, $5,000 added, which will be run at the Long Branch meeting a week from Saturday. It is outstanding because it appears to be an exceedingly hard race for Racing Secretary Pat Galliger of the Orpen circuit to handicap, weights for which will be announced today.

The Orpen Memorial is the highlight of the Long Branch meeting, which opens June 8, or next Wednesday. The race closed with 42 nominations at $10 each, and it will cost $40 additional to start. As the handicap is for 3 and 4-year-olds foaled in Canada, the list contains the names of all the best racing in this vicinity.

Bunty Lawless, winner of the King's Plate, is among those nominated. Then there is Cabin Gal, third in the Plate and surprise winner of the William Hendrie Memorial Handicap at the Woodbine. Chuckler, third in the Hendrie Memorial, is also nominated, as is the 4-year-old Donosiris, stablemate of Chuckler, and the pride of the Parkwood Stable, owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa.

Goldlure, winner of the King's Plate last year, is entered, as is Suffern, winner of the Mrs. Orpen Cup and Saucer last fall, and Fore Isus, victor in the prominent Canadian-bred Stakes last fall. Incidentally, although owners may nominate as many as they like in this stake, but only two owned by the same interest will be allowed to start. All the 21 different owners have nominated in this race.

British Golfers Leading U.S. Team

ST. ANDREW'S, Scotland, June 4 (A.P.). — Great Britain's Walker Cup golfers solved the secret of the lightning-fast greens of old St. Andrews with greater consistency on Friday than their United States rivals.

As a result, the end of the opening day's Scotch foursomes matches found Britain leading the trophy defenders 2 matches to 1, and looking forward with fresh confidence to its first victory in the international series.

The All-Scottish combination of Hector Thomson and Gordon Peters, used to the tricky greens and the alternate-stroke Scotch foursome technique, turned back U.S. Amateur Champion Johnny Goodman and Marvin Ward, 4 and 2, and the All-England duo of Leonard Crawley and Frany Pennink triumphed at 2 and 1 over Fred Haas, Jr., and Reynolds Smith.

Of the four United States combinations only British Amateur Champion Charley Yates and Ray Billows came through. They had to hang on for dear life to beat Charles Stowe and Alexander Kyle, 3 and 2, after being 7 up and 9 to go and then dormie 6.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, Eng.,—(CP).—Officials here hope to fit about 10,000 persons weekly with gas masks, covering the whole city with a population of 300,000 in eight months.

All Saints Win Over Buzzers 16 Runs to 14

All Saints Seniors won their first Church Softball League game in seven starts last night with a 16-14 decision over George St. Buzzers at King Edward school. Fair pitching by R. Rennie was wasted due to errors by his buddies on the uneven field. Red Fisher started for All Saints but poor control had him in trouble early. He had to retire in the sixth with a sprained ankle. Mgr. "Wimpy" Charlton held the Buzzers, retiring the last five batsmen in order in his hurling debut. Fisher got two homers, and Charlton and Smith also hit well, with Hill and Platt good in the field. Ash hit one of the longest homers of the year for the losers, the ball clearing a shed in left field with the bases loaded at the time. Brown and Parnall also hit well. The teams:

Buzzers: Kingdon, lf; Rennie, p; Burnham, ss; Weir, cf; Ash, 3b; Skitch, c; Parnall, 2b; Metcalfe, 1b; Browne, rf.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

It is not very often that many big ends are scored so early in the season—and yet already there have been a couple of 8-ends and two 7-ends. In last night's game, Gimblett vs. Oke, Gimblett's quartette slipped a seven over the past-president. And then in yesterday's schedule game, although Mrs. D. Lang's rink was defeated, yet they gained the inner circle when they chalked up a Big 7 against Mrs. Hendry's rink. And so it goes; if anyone thinks they can control the scores in this game they had better be careful for "pride goeth before a fall."

Ladies' Scores:

Mrs. Hepburn, 9; Mrs. Staunton, 7
Mrs. Kingsbury, 12; Mrs. Heckman, 11.
Mrs. Hendry, 17. Mrs. De Long, 13.
Mrs. Coleman, 11; Mrs. Coursey, 7.

Mrs. Graham, 19; Mrs. Deyman, 5.

Last Night's Winners:

1st.—H. Wilson, H. Freeman, Judge Smoke, G. Gimblett; each a set of mixing bowls.

2nd.—G. Jackson, P. Moore, G. Cairns, H. Martin; each a pair of towels.

3rd.—Rev. G. Easton, C. Renaud, T. Doughty, J. McDonald; each a set of water glasses.

Frick Orders Replay Reds-Cards Game

NEW YORK, June 4 (A.P.).—Ford Frick, president of the National League, yesterday ordered a replay of the disputed Cincinnati-St. Louis game on May 14. The game will be replayed as part of a double-header at St. Louis on August 20.

The games has been in the books as a 7 to 6 victory in ten innings for St. Louis, but Frick has been studying a Cincinnati protest, and decided in favor of the Reds.

Hastings Beats Campbellford Seven to Five

CAMPBELLFORD, June 4.—The largest group of spectators to attend any game this season saw Hastings defeat Campbellford in an evenly matched softball contest by a score of 7 to 5. It was a benefit match to aid one of the Campbellford players who suffered an injury earlier in the season.

Giants Pass Toronto Leafs For 4th Place

TORONTO, June 4.—(CP)—Jersey City Giants, who take after the parents New York Gaints in more respects than one, are turning out to be a bunch of speed merchants on the base-paths, one fine art in which Bill Terry's men never showed much interest.

With a none too powerful batting lineup, and distant fences in the home park which precule "cheap" homers, the Jerseys are going in for larceny on the diamond in order to get runs.

Even with a couple of ex-Dodgers in the lineup, the Giants are leading the International baseball league in stolen bases with 28. Three of them were made yesterday, one by Babe Herman which paved the way for the winning run, as the Giants deefated Baltimore Orioles 2-1 and moved past the idle Toronto Maple Leafs into fourth place.

It was the third straight triumph for the Giants over the Orioles, who lost their eighth in a row.

Newark Bears won their seventh consecutive contest by downing Syracuse Chiefs 5-4 in an 11-inning battle, and Buffalo Bisons scored their sixth triumph in their last seven starts by defeating Rochester 6-4.

Reggie Grabowski walked Bob Seeds in the eleventh to force home Newark's winning run and give Atley Donald his third win of the season.

Home runs by Ollie Carnegie and Greg Mulleavy enable the Bisons to trip the Red Wings and stretch their second place lead over the Wings to two games.

Petes Revenge 1937 Setback With Neat Win

Getting sweet revenge for a defeat a year ago, the Petes handed the Inglewood-Caledon Combines a 17-12 reverse here last night in an exhibition lacrosse match of senior "B" calibre. Over 800 fans at the George St. arena were treated to a close, exciting scrap with plenty of hard checking and one fight thrown in. Two referees kept rough stuff in check.

Play was fast and smart for so early in the season, and the homesters deserved their margin. They had a 3-2 edge in the first quarter, the same margin in the second heat, took a 4-2 edge in the third and outscored their rivals 7-6 in the windup stanza. The Combines battled furiously early in the fourth to sew up the count at 10-all but the Petes had more punch at the finish to pull ahead again.

Though some of the passing was off at times for both teams, yet play was of midseason form and the checking was strenuous. The Combines had more weight and, in spots, more speed than the locals but the winners played a steadier aggressive game to bore in on combination plays time and again to shoot hard; and they also hung onto their checks better on the defensive.

Lot of Penalties

Referee Jerry Kendall of Brampton was quite strict and threw off a bunch of players during the fray. Of the 19 penalties passed out, the Randle-coached homesters drew 10. Westonfelt had two majors, the last for fighting with Puckering, who also got a major. Only brilliant goalkeeping by the youthful Chambers of the visitors kept the score so close, as the Petes outplayed their rvials in every heat and had far more hot shots on the net. The locals used two goalies, Meyette for three quarters and Red Creighton in the final. They went good, Meyette especially having a bunch of hard ones to kick out.

While all the Petes looked smart last night, Worthy and Crowe were outstanding. They were always dangerous and checked well coming back. Dundas, Chute and Magee were going good also, and Jerry Creighton stood out on defence. The whole roster played nice lacrosse and kept working. Of the losers, the Paterson brothers looked best with Puckering, E. Nelson, Jones and Walsh most effective. There were few dull moments throughout the tilt. The teams:

Combines: Goal, Chambers; defence, Puckering and Smith; centre, McCamell; wings, Walsh and E. Nelson; rover, Jones; alternates, S. Paterson, T. Paterson, Petch, Erskine, O. Nelson, McEachern and Rayburn.

Petes: Goal, Meyette; defence, G. Creighton and Westonfelt; centre, Worthy; wings, King and Whitton; rover, Dundas; alternates, Magee, Crowe, Dallin, E. Creighton, Chute, Miller, Pammett, Bowen, Sloan, R. Creighton.

Referees, R. Ennis of Norwood, J. Kendall of Brampton.

Bill Terry After Second Sacker To Bolster Giants

NEW YORK, June 4 (CP)—Grey hair has stopped sprouting in Uncle Frankie Frisch's head and is popping up now on Terrible Bill Terry's scalp.

What with Dizzy Dean gone, his museum collection of so-called pitchers doing some passable work, and Ducky Medwick and Enos Slaughter leading a return of the Gas House Gang at the plate, Uncle Frankie is finding it a pretty fair world after all.

Terrible Bill, on the other hand, can't quite make out what's come over his once proud and mighty Giants. Only a few weeks ago they were setting the National League afire, as though they were going to finish the pennant race in time to go fishing July 4. But now they're limping along with a porous infield, bats with holes in them, and pitchers, who, outside of Carl Hubbell can't win for losing.

As a result, Terrible Terry's terrific terriers are holding onto the National League lead by the slim margin of 1½ games over the Cubs, while Bill, himself, is busy trying to trade everything from his spare outfielder to a mortgage on the Polo Grounds for a second-baseman who can second base.

Their Fourth Defeat

Yesterday, Pittsburgh Pirates came through with a 6-5 victory behind some neat mound work by Rookie Bob Klinger. It was the fourth defeat in a row for Terry's troupe.

Meantime, the Cardinals, featuring a revamped batting order, stretched their winning streak to four straight with an 8-7, 11-inning decision over the futile Phillies.

The Cubs, getting over the jitters from Boston's pitching, clicked for a 4-0 win. Bill Lee blanked the Bees with three hits for his third straight shut-out and his fifth straight win.

Ruffing Comes Through

Red Ruffing also came up with a classy flinging effort in the American League, turning in a seven-hitter to give the Yankees 5-1 edge over Detroit Tigers and stretching his personal winning streak to seven straight.

The Yankees remained 2½ games off Cleveland Indians' pace, however, since the Tribe knocked off the Athletics, 10-5. Wes Ferrell won his third straight, pitching a six-hitter as the Senators walloped Chicago White Sox, 5-1. Brooklyn Dodgers scored a pair of runs in the ninth and nipped Cincinnati's Reds 5-4. The Red Sox-St. Louis Browns game in Boston was rained out.

HIS WISH FULFILLED

LINCOLN, England—(CP).—Ashes of the late Major C. N. Brownhill, M.C., amateur jockey who died in South Africa, were scattered on the Sandown Park racecourse as he requested before his death.

Propose All Food Handlers Have Health Certificates

TORONTO, June 4 (CP)—Spreading of disease by those who handle food is far from being controlled by health workers or health authorities, Dr. A. E. Ranney of North Bay told the annual convention of medical officers of health of Ontario, here today. He said the problem was not being considered as seriously as it should be by municipalities.

Dr. Ranney suggested legislation compelling employees handling food, including milk and water, to obtain periodical medical health certificates clearing them of being infected or of being "carriers."

"People these days will not do anything which causes them the least inconvenience or expense unless they are compelled to do so by law," he declared.

Dr. Ranney said in the case of a 16-year-old boy in North Bay, the city's first typhoid case in more than eight years, the infection was finally traced to a grandmother who had had an attack 30 years previously.

Dr. Ward Woolner of Ayr said that the public health nurse cannot be charged with indolence; if anything she is over-zealous in teaching of public health measures.

"I do feel that the health of our community has been much improved by the educational work done by our nurses," said Dr. Woolner. "The only criticism I have to offer is their over-enthusiasm and persistence in having defects righted at once.

"People cannot be driven; they must be educated and then led. Too much persistence destroys the leadership of the nurse."

Telegraph Union May Save Million

OTTAWA, June 4—(CP)—Amalgamation of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Telegraph systems woud bring a saving of approximately $1,000,000 a year, D. L. Howard, assistant general manager of the C.P.R. commercial telegraph department told the Senate railway committee today.

Officials of both systems were agreed on this point, and had so reported in February, 1933, he said.

Mr. Howard told how the C.P.R. had presented its telegraph amalgamation submission to the Duff commission in 1932, showing that a $970,000 saving would be effected by unification. A meeting with C.N.R. officials prior to that had placed the figure tentatively at $1,500,000. Later, however, another study made jointly by the systems established on the basis of 1932 business that the saving would be about $1,000,000 a year.

This would require capital expenditures of $101,500 a year for 20 years, Mr. Howard said.

Under cooperation $220,000 would be saved annually at a capital cost of $24,600.

So far as labor was concerned, Mr. Howard showed that in the five years from 1933 to 1937 inclusive 237 employees left the telegraph service, and 205 new men were taken on. If the C.P.R. proportion were applied to the C.N.R. 468 new employees would have joined that company.

The total number estimated to be released by the amalgamated system on the basis of the 1932 joint committee's report was 445. This would require five years, so that the labor situation would thus be looked after by normal turnover during the unification period.

Collegiate Notes

P.C.V.S. was shocked to hear of the passing of the late Miss Edith Murphy, renowned English teacher in the school for the past 17 years. It is with sincere regret that P. C. V. S. mourns this loss of a kind, lovable and friendly associate.

The students of P.C.S. attended a very impressive funeral service conducted by Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson in St. John's Church, to pay their last respects to the late Miss Murphy. Canon Robertson spoke highly of Miss Murphy, and noted the respect that was shown her by the student body in attending the service.

School re-opened Wednesday for the Middle and Upper Schools...It will continue until June 10...At that time the results of the last set of examinations will be made known. After that date there will be no regular classes for those who are exempt from writing the Departmental examinations, starting June 14...The baseball games are called for six o'clock. It is, however, generally about 6.30 before the games begin. For this reason it is requested that all players be on the field at least half an hour before game time so that they will have time to warm up and still play seven innings. ...School was dismissed at 2.30 on Tuesday, owing to the visit of His Excellency Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada...Enough uniforms to equip part of the baseball team were donated to Mr. Jackson this week. There are still some Cadet uniforms not turned in, and Col. W. W. Wheeler, O.C., promised to "get after" any Cadets who have not yet returned their supply of khaki.

Cutting pitched the full game and struck out fourteen men....Both games were no hit shutouts. Congratulations to the pitching staff of Cutting and Foster....Practices were held this week at Riverside.

Two Moonshiners Fined At Lindsay

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, June 4.—Cecil Holder and J. Thompson, two residents of Victoria Road, were fined $100 and costs Friday by Magistrate Gee for having a still in their possession. The charge was laid by Corporal T. J. Woods, following a visit to the Holder home, where a "bush" still was located. A quantity of illicit spirits and mash was also found.

Work has started on the paving of Lindsay and Queen Streets, following the receipt of approval by the Highways Department. The Warren Paving Company has the contract, and a large staff of laborers has been taken on. The estimated cost of the work is $18,000. Work has also started on the resurfacing of the highway from Allsaw to Haliburton, C. Bolander, of Haliburton, having received the contract.

Alberta Oil Men Seek Empire Mart

CALGARY, June 4—(CP).—Empire markets for oil from Alberta's Turner Valley Field, 45 miles southwest of Calgary, will be sought by Petroleum Producers' Association, it is announced by E. W. Kolb, association secretary.

He said last night a two-man delegation, yet to be selected, would leave shortly for London to negotiate with the British Government through Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian Trade Commissioner, for wider markets for Turner Valley Oil.

It will propose that oil for Empire use and for the British navy be obtained from Turney Valley, Canada's major oil field.

Hon. Vincent Massey, it was learned here, has been conferring with British government officials on markets for Canadian oil.

"We plan to give details of Turner Valley and to place a first-class picture of the Canadian Oil situation before British officials," said Mr. Kolb.

Alarm over lack of markets which has necessitated a new proration schedule reducing production of the Turney Valley wells to 30 per cent. of potential capacity brought action from various Calgary interests.

Independent operators and the Calgary Board of Trade telegraphed Prime Minister Mackenzie King urging aid for the oil industry.

The executive of the Calgary Stock Exchange last night considered calling a special meeting tomorrow.

Jobless Use Strategy Fool Police In Raising Funds

Vancouver, June 4

SINGLE unemployed who have been warned by police that soliciting funds on city streets will lead to their arrest found a new method of raising money today.

Instead of shaking tin cans for donations, they appeared on downtown street corners selling tickets for a softball game to be played June 14.

Police who last week arrested 112 unemployed on obstruction charges, when they appeared with their tin cans, said today they believed the new fund-raising campaign was "perfectly legal."

Forests Ablaze On 5 Fronts

TORONTO, June 4—(CP).—Fires ravaged timberlands today in forest areas of Quebec and Northern New Brunswick, and incendiarism was suspected in three of the outbreaks in the Maritime Province.

As Royal Canadian Mounted Police probed the suspicious New Brunswick blazes, many French-Canadian residents in Quebec's Chicoutimi district were preparing to evacuate homes in the face of steadily-approaching flames that raged out of control.

Already, several dwellings had been wiped out in a two-day conflagration in Chicoutimi County. Livestock had been trapped and destroyed, too, though no humans were known to be in danger.

Six hundred men were fighting the fires in the district, and reinforcements were being rushed in. Efforts were concentrated around the village of St. Gabriel de Ferland, where the flames veered away yesterday after approaching to within 200 feet of the church as parishioners and their cure prayed in the village street.

Hundreds Fighting Flames.

New Brunswick's major outbreaks were centred in Restigouche, Madawaska and Gloucester County, stretching across the top of the province. Several hundred men were at work, and more were on the way with additional equipment.

Officials of the New Brunswick forest service said they believed two fires in Restigouche, one a major outbreak near Kedgwick village, had been touched off deliberately. The third suspected blaze was near Cyr settlement in Madawaska.

A hundred men were struggling with the big Restigouche fire, on Crown land, and forestry officers expected it would be under control today.

Early today, fire-fighters reported they believed they had gained control of a fire five miles from Moncton that had destroyed more than 5,000 young maple trees valued at about $1,000.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, June 5.

Sunday's horoscope is a very important one with presage of sudden and far-reaching developments, probably most vitally affecting the social, domestic or romantic affiliations. Drastic change may be looked for, with travel, removal, new interests and contacts. This might all be incidental to a bereavement. It is not a fortuitous condition for dealing with superiors or asking favors.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of most surprising and sudden developments, possibly affecting the whole course of life and its fortunes. There may be decisive change, removal, travel and adventure, particularly affecting the romantic, social, or domestic life. A death or bereavement may bring this upheaval about. It is not a favorable time to seek the friendly aid or preferment from superiors and those in authority.

A child born on this day may have much talent in original lines, with an adventurous spirit and independence in thought and action. It may have a rather influential life and much romantic adventure.

For Monday, June 6.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and interesting day, with much stirring in the handling of papers, writings, publication and promotion. With wise judgment these should thrive, but there is a menace of rash and impetuous conduct which might offset benefits. Shun disputes, contention, litigation and all reckless activities. Although there are signs of romance, yet there may be a disagreeable contact with a woman, perhaps elderly.

If This Is Your Birahday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very interesting year in which papers, documents, writings or publicity may be important and should bring success. But a predisposition to disputes, quarrels, sharp speech, and much impetuosity hold menace, particularly of unfavorable litigation. Feminine influence is shown, both romantically and also detrimentally.

A child born on this day may be extremely versatile, clever, original, constructive, and adventurous, and should make a splendid success of its affairs if it would learn to shun reckless, hasty and vindictive speech.

Gardiner a Dancer

ESTERHAZY, Sask., June 4—(CP)—The Dominion Agriculture Minister, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, drew cheers with his dancing at an election campaign meeting last night in this East - Central Saskatchewan town. By request Mr. Gardiner danced a sailor's hornpipe to the bagpipes of Piper MacLean.

New Parachute Ideas Tried On Huge Rocket

ROSWELL, N.M., June 4 — (AP). —A new art in parachuting has been developed in the desert near here to bring safely back to earth the great sounding rocket of Professor Robert H. Goddard of Clark University.

This is the world's first practical rocket motor aircraft. Her builder to-day revealed some of the details of his unique work which has been quietly under way here for several years.

The early rocket ships usually destroyed themselves by falling to the earth after they had ascended a mile or more. This new "ship" comes down gently with a parachute. But before this could be accomplished the rules about parachute strength had to be revised.

The Goddard rocket is 18 feet long, about a foot in diameter, made of aluminum painted black, and capped with a shining conical head. It weighs only 84 pounds after its flaming oxygen-gasoline tail which drives it up is exhausted. At this point the cap opens and two parachutes come out. A small one carries meteorological instruments sent up with the rocket.

10 Foot Parachute.

The large parachute with a spread of 10 feet is for the rocket's's descent. A pressure valve releases the parachutes at the proper moment. But the speeds which this pioneer rocket ship has developed run up to 700 miles an hour. They make it difficult to operate a light parachute as the rocket slows down.

At first shroud lines holding the edges of the parachute were silk cords, each able to support 100 pounds. There were 10 of these giving 1,000 pounds puling strength to hold the weight of 84 pounds. The lines had to be strengthened until each would hold 400 pounds, or a total strain of two tons.

Thus equipped, the rocket thereupon broke a one-inch steel cable which was attached to the lines. After this had been remedied, it broke a ring of iron one-half inch thick holding the cable to the rocket. This iron ring was a standard part used for tractors to pull heavy loads.

Gazette 160 Years Old

MONTREAL, June 4 — (CP). — The Gazette, Montreal's first newspaper and one of the oldest on the continent, celebrated its 160th birthday to-day. A special edition reviewed its long history from the time of its founding June 3, 1778, by Fiery Mesphlet. With a tiny wooden press, Mesphlet started the paper off as a weekly called "Gazette Du Commerce Et Litteraire Pour La Ville Et District De Montreal." It became a semi-weekly in 1829 and a full-fledged daily in 1883.

ORILLIA.—An unidentified man was struck and killed today by a motorcar driven by Mervyn Cox of Washago on the highway eight miles north of Orillia. Cox told police that it was dark and driving conditions were poor at the time, and he failed to see the man in time to avoid the fatality.

Not a Dressmaker

LOS ANGELES.—"It's not my fault," Willy Pogany told the jury, if he looked at actress Constance Bennett and painted her as he saw her. "An artist is not a dressmaker," he said. "The creative work of art is not on the same level as a dress which is made to fit a person."

FLORAL NOTE.

The hedge of spirea on the grounds of King Edward school looks like a long barricade of bloom. It is the greatest floral show in the city's spirea week. Some of Peterborough's streets and lawns seem to be inundated with cascades of white flower.

COLLECTIONS UNAUTHORIZED.

The attention of the Peterborough Workers and Unemployed Association has been drawn to the fact that persons are soliciting donations under the name of the Association. President Charles Lambert told the Examiner to-day that no authority has been given to anyone to seek donations for the association.

HORSE MEN ARE PLEASED.

Winding up the business of their recent field day, members of the district Clydesdale Breeders' Association last night expressed themselves as thoroughly satisfied with the features of the event, and especially the large attendance of farmers of the two counties of Durham and Peterboro. They regarded it as the best field day they have ever held.

GOOD WALKING

Bill and Basil Robbins staged their walking competition from Peterborough to Lakefield Friday night, starting from the post office here at 6 o'clock. A retinue of motor cars accompanied the walkers and were rewarded for their trip by seeing Bill Robbins cover the distance in one hour and forty minutes, according to the timers. Basil failed to go the route.

Revealing a style all his own, combined with remarkable skill as an arranger, and carrying out his musical groups with a technique that will leave no doubt as to his complete mastery over the keys, his fingering a revelation in digital manipulation. Vacation Number Highly Praised

"The Examiners third annual Mail-It-Away edition should be of the greatest value in attracting tourists into this part of Ontario," Gordon K. Fraser, of Burleigh Falls, honorary president of the Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Tourist Association, said Friday.

"I was greatly impressed with the splendid pictures this year which clearly show the charm of the district, and with the many interesting specia larticles," said Mr. Fraser, a pioneer in the field of tourist promotion for he was president of the Trent Waterway Assocation in 1920 and has been actively engaged in boosting this district ever since.

"I am certainly delighted with the fine contribution The Examiner has made, through these Mail-It-Away editions and in other ways, to telling the world of the manifold attractions this part of Ontario has to offer as a summer playground," Mr. Fraser added.

"It seems to me that those who most directly profit from the tourist trade by the sale of goods or services should be most willing to aid and co-operate with The Examiner in what it is doing to bring them business."

Trent Trip Is Completed By Governor

ORILLIA, June 4.—Coming in luxurious ease on the steamer Bessie Butler, wending its way from the Balsam Lakes, through Buckhorn, Pigeon and Sturgeon Lakes, accomplishing the lift-locks at Kirkfield, and eventually steaming across Lake Simcoe through the narrows into Lake Couchiching and landing at the dock in Orillia's beautiful park late Friday afternoon, Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, completed four days' boat trip through the Trent Valley Canal System. Last night he rested in the Viceregal tarin here in preparation for a strenuous program Saturday.

The Governor-Generals arrival here brought to mind memories of the famous explorer, Samuel de Champlain, who, with his band of French, made exactly the same trip. Lord Tweedsmuir sat in ease on the comfortable decks of the flagship of the Trent Waterways, his mission peace. Champlain struggled laboriously over long portages and paddled from dawn to dark, he and his dusky allies bent on war. Today in the park where the Viceregal vistior arrived, stands a beautiful and famous monument erected to that first Canadian explorer, the first white man ever to see this wild and new country.

His Excellency's ship was first sighted by the large throng awaiting his arrival in Couchiching Park, just as the bridges were swinging at the narrows, three miles away, to admit it to Lake Couchiching. The lake was filled with sailboats, out to give the King's representative a royal welcome. An 18-foot sloop, loaded with photographers and reporters, and aided by a stiff breeze, was the first to greet the royal steamship, salute her and accompany her the three miles to the park dock.

The Governor-General and his party were greeted at the dock by Mayor Pack and several other town dignitaries, including W. T. Douglas and Gordon C. Temple of the Orillia Board of Trade. Accompanying Lord Tweedsmuir were A. S. Redfern, his secretary, and Lieut. R. Scott, R.N., his aide-de-camp. Before being conducted to his train the Governor-General gave small token of remembrance to Captain John Young and the crew of the Bessie Butler, with whom he had travelled for more than 150 miles on Central Ontario's seaway.

The horse shot pitching course is now in operation and those who care for the sport may come along any afternoon or evening and play a game. The members are again reminded of the gardens, lawns and fishing contests and of the necessity of registering their names.

The Imperial veterans held a meeting at the hall on Wednesday evening to organize a branch of the Imperial Veterans' Association. We wish them luck.

Members are hereby notified that we are having a social evening on Monday next to celebrate the reopening of our newly decorated card room and the entertainment committee would like the pleasure of their company on that occasion. Refreshments will be provided and the time will be 8 p.m. If the card room is not soon re-opened we realize that the cribbage addicts will probably have an attack of apoplexy.

We are rather proud of the bright appearance of the front of our hall, our cenotaph has been brightened up, the flag pole has been painted and a new and freshly paitned railing around the front lawns.

The visit of His Excellency Lord Tweedsmuir was the great event of the week. There was about fifty men on parade with a contingent from the Ladies' Auxiliary. There was also a parade of ex-service men at the C.G.E., where 141 men were on parade.

Seven Prizes To Be Drawn Thursday Night

Every ticket that is bought in connection with the Rotary Carnival on Thursday and Friday nights of next week not only means that the purchaser has a chance to win a fine motor car or one of the other splendid prizes offered, but it also means that much more money with which to assist some crippled child back to health.

It is because the public thoroughly appreciates that fact that the sale of tickets is reported as very brisk with sure prospects of increasing to a mad tempo before Thursday next.

The carnival this year will be held for the first time in beautiful Riverside Park on the terrace just east of the tourist camp and it is thought this will prove an ideal spot for the affair. There is room for thousands of visitors on the green sward of the park and the setting should make this year's carnival the most colorful in Rotary history.

Final preparatsions will be made on Monday for the event for the weekly luncheon program is being given entirely to d iscussing and planning for the carnival.

The public should understand that while the Chevrolet coach will be sold for a dollar on Friday night to the purchaser holding the lucky ticket, there are seven other splendid prizes that will be drawn for on Thursday night. These prizes consist of a bicycle, radio, movie camera, percolator set, a Mix Master, table lamp and electric razor.

FICTION AND FEATURES

FIESTA

by OREN ARNOLD

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Having saved the life of Ellen Dale, screen star, with a lucky parachute jump after his plane had run out of fuel in a terrific storm, Bill Baron and his lone passenger finally arrive at a ranch house across the Mexican border, unharmed but fatigued. Here they are warmly received by Don Julio Montoya, wealthy Mexican, and extended every courtesy. Ellen becomes intrigued with the life at the Montoya ranch and her interest in Bill grows. She feels almost resentful when Panola Montoya, attractive daughter of their host, asks Bill to ride with her. Ellen befriends two Yaqui Indians, taken captive by Felix Montoya, the host's son, for stealing cows. Alarm is felt at the ranch when Bill and Panola fail to return.

CHAPTER 5

Don Julio Montoya was the kind of Mexican gentleman who clings to traditions of dignity and conduct as laid down by his fathers. To such as he, hostility is comparable to his religion in importance. If you admire any possession of such a Mexican family—say, for instance, a horse, or a fine painting, or a gold braided sombrero—you may be suddenly embarassed by having the object presented to you as a gift. If you so much as hint that you would like to go somewhere or sample some rare dish, the Mexican family will move heaven and earth and bank account to satisfy your desire.

Nevertheless, Don Julio was also a father, blessed with an only daughter of considerable charm. And civilized fathers are inherently the same everywhere. Toward evening of the day that Panola Montoya and Bill Baron were missing, Don Julio's soul began to suffer tortures.

A normal practical man, usually, he now was conjuring up mental images that maddened him by sundown.

By midnight he was killing his favorite horse, riding and sending messengers to neighboring ranches. His part of Sonora, as with most of the American southwest, is distinguished by one outstanding characteristic—distances. It is a long way to anywhere. Neighbors are not across a driveway or hedge, but are five, 10, 20 miles away, and many of them cannot even be reached by automobile, so rough are the mountain-desert trails.

"They may have gone visiting to the Salazars," Don Julio told his cowboys, dispatching one to find out. 'Or to the Sanchez home, or to el rancho Villaverde where Senorita Esperanza Villaverde is Panola's friend. But I wish to know, pronto. Ride, and ask them to return."

Physical action will keep a distraught man calm for a long time, but by midnight Don Julio had run out of something to do. He came back home at 1 a.m., his horse exhausted and his own fine shoulders sagging a little.

His eyes silently questioned his wife when he came onto the porch and entered their liing room.

"Is there—?" Ellen Dale had left her chair to aproach him.

"No," he answered. "No wan knows, anytheeng."

As if he had just discovered her then, Don Julio began to stare at Ellen. His eyes seemed slowly to narrow, his nostrils distended, the kindliness in his old face momentarily was replaced by rage. But Ellen, noting it, turned away, knowing that she herself was very tired and worried and that Don Julio must be more so.

Senora Montoya was crying audibly again, sitting in her chair by the fireplace. A servant came to her with a steaming, fragrant mug of coffee, and Don Julio spoke soothingly to her, but she would not be comforted.

To Ellen, the situation was all the more maddening because she could not understand their Spanish language, and could reason out no solution to the disappearance of Panola and Bill.

Bill Baron, she herself had discovered was an exceptionally capable young man, strong of body and quick-wited in emergency. Certainly he was no dude, no tenderfoot in the saddle, no stranger to this wild if beautiful country. And surely, too, both he and Panola could hardly have been hurt in an accident. A falling horse or a bucking one might break a riders leg, but when two people ride together—

At sunset Ellen had been simply provoked, angry, feeling that Panola had merely done a good job of charming Bill somehow with her feminine beauty. And Ellen hated Bill for it, at sundown.

But this was midnight. It was hardly reasonable to assume that a girl and a man were still just riding enraptured out on the countryside, or sitting on a rock somewhere so in love as to be oblivious of time. Romance is strong, but hunger is stronger after a while; Panola and Bill had carried no food, probably had not eaten since breakfast. Finally, Ellen comforted herself with another bit of reasoning, Bill Baron was not a giddy college freshman but a mature man; he would know the people at home were worrying, and he probably could see through Panolas wiles anyway.

This thinking did Ellen a lot of good—until she suddenly reminded herself that the pair was still missing, for all of Bill's virtues! And it was now far past midnight.

"Wherever could they be?" she cried desperately at her hostess.

"No sabe nada," that good lady muttered, sobbing. "Nada."

Ellen turned away. Don Julio had left the room. She could hear him growling at his servants somewhere in another part of the house, heard mysterious runnings and answers apparently to commands.

Presently he came back into the living room, and the old Mexican seemed to have gained stature. He was straight again, imperious.

But he looked like a soldier ready for combat, too.

Strapped over his chest from his shoulders were two ammunition belts, filled with cartridges. Pistols of formidable size hung holstered on his hips now, and in his hands he carried a repeating rifle. The ammunition rattled as he walked.

Mrs. Montoya ceased crying instantly, and sat up.

"Julio!" she addressed him in Spanish, "what do you do now?"

But her husband only glared at her a moment, and bade her have more coffee and rest if she could.

The command did not affect her. Senor Montoya was herself a woman of some character. She evidently had been extremely worried, but she was not out of her mind. She began talking rapidly, and not too servilely, to her man. Ellen was fascinated, even though she could not understand the words.

The conversation—attended with many gestures and some storming on Don Julio's part—lasted five minutes or more. Ellen noted that he had little to say toward the last.

Slowly he put down his rifle, began unbuckling his pistols and ammunition belts. When he was free of arms again, his wife took him by the hand and led him into a little hall which Ellen had already noted was a sanctuary, a quiet dim spot with a lighted crucifix on the wall. There the man and wife knelt to pray.

The scene awed Ellen, and embarrassed her too. People did not pray in Hollywood; not, that is, in the mad rush and excitement and labor of producing moving pictures. Maybe sometimes in their hearts, yes, but never openly where she had seen them.

Don Julio came out and at once began strapping on his weapons again. Also he apparently rediscovered Ellen standing there in the light from the fireplace.

"Thees Americano," he began, "who ees he?"

Ellen saw he was addressing her. "Bill? Mr. Baron?"

"Si, senorita! What ees he? Thee work? Who he—ah—ees?" Don Julio labored with his English.

Ellen understood him, understood his thoughts and desire. But she did not answer promptly because she couldn't. She did not know the answer. Who, in all truth, was Bill Baron? An aviator, yes; but beyond that?

Don Julio glared at her and his eyes became steelly, hard. His lips tightened.

"You coom here," he roared at Ellen, "and wel-coom! You come—you estay! Let ees pleasure! Then you esteal my daughter, the Panola! Who thees Americano? Thees Senor Bason? Who ees he? What you do here, HAH?"

In the stress of his emotions he threw up his hands as if to manhandle Ellen. The gesture frightened her. He leaned over a bit, standing very near, trembling in anger.

"I—I—" Ellen could only stammer.

"He take her, thees Americano! He lead her away! Panola mia—what he do weeth her? He make thee love, hah? He take her—"

"NO!" shouted Ellen then. "It is she who took him! She invited him! She has taken Bill—"

Ellen stopped abruptly. Not only would Don Julio fail to understand her clipped anke English, she realized; he would also be unable to understand her point of view. He was a father. A father whose fury was pardonable.

But so, Ellen told herself, were her own emotions to be respected too; her own fear. And yet—of what was she afraid?

Learn Modern Ways to Win a Man's Love

"What's the Matter with Me?"

She thought she had happiness within her grasp. Then something went wrong. Instead of proposing, Jack lost interest. Finally she learned of his engagement to someone else.

Don't let this happen to you. Take some tips from a well-known psychologist on what makes a man stay in love.

Men are afraid of too efficient, "know-it-all" women. Be feminine. A sweet playful remark and the flutter of a chiffon gown are more appealing than the brainiest discussion.

Women that men like best are always the ones they are a little mystified about, who are not always the same. So don't be afraid to show your moods. Be gay, thoughful, flirtatious by turns.

Remember that men like to feel strong and protective. Show your confidence in the one you love by turning to him for advice so he'll know how much you value his opinion.

Our 32-page booklet tells you what to do at critical times in love and marriage. How to straighten out emotional tangles.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO WIN AND HOLD LOVE to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—We are a young married couple with three small children. We are high in the social but low in the financial bracket. The result is a young mother who is on the verge of nervous prostration, with too much housework and baby-tending, and a poor, tired young father who has to come from his day's hard work at the office to help out with the chores around home. Now in our family there are two grandmothers, one on either side, financially well off, who send us lovely presents for Christmas and birthdays, and there it stops. But that isn't what we want. We need personal help. Somebody to stay with the kids one night a week and let us go out stepping, or on Sunday afternoons so we can go to a tea, or the movies, instead of spending them in an orgy of nursing. Don't our sisters and our cousins and our aunts, and especially those who have been through the same experience that we are going through now, realize that no matter how much one loves one's children, one would like to have a little respite from them at times, and that we are young and dying to go to some of the parties we can't go to because we have nobody with whom to leave Sammy and Junior and Mamie? Believe me, it would be grand charity to help out a couple of child-bound young parents.

MR. AND MRS. BLANK.

Answer:

So it would, and I commend it to the attention of Grandmother and Aunt Sally, Sister Sue and all other ladies with kind hearts and altruistic leanings. Indeed, I should heartily advocate the forming in every family circle of a League of Visiting Female Relatives for the Aid of Young Mothers; except that on the occasions when I have personally volunteered to stand guard over a babe at night while its mother went to the theatre she regarded me with as much suspicion and distrust as if I had been an understudy to Herod; and was so plainly surprised and relieved to find her precious lamb still alive when she returned that it discouraged me in further well doing along the nursing line.

So perhaps when Grandma and Aunt Susan don't bob up as enthusiastic substitutes for Mother on football game days and the night of the Junior League ball, it may not be altogether those ladies' fault. It is disheartening to Grandmother, who has brought up seven husky children of her own, to have a little snip of an amateur mother load her down with directions and leave a written schedule of what to do and what not to do, with especial emphasis on warnings about not kissing the baby, or singing to him, or rocking him to sleep. It makes her feel that she had just as well on on to her bridge or her club and let Emeline raise her baby in her own way without any outside help. So chew on that thought for a while, Mrs. Blank.

But all the same the young mother who has a house full of babies and no capable nurses to take care of them; who never gets a good night's sleep or eats a meal in peace; who can't even go to market without pushing a perambulator before her and having a little tike hanging on to her skirts; whose nerves are fretted into fiddle strings by childish fights and squabbles and the incessant cry for M-o-t-h-e-r, is a pathetic figure and she does need help.

For the children's sake as well as her own sake, she needs to get away from them for an hour or two every day so that she can pull herself together and summon more patience with which to deal with them. And she needs to go out at least one night a week where there is gayety and laughter that will cheer her up and give her something pleasant to think about during the long hours she is shut up alone, with no other society than a gurgling infant.

I think it would be a fine thing if the women in her family, or the neighbor women, would think now and then that it must be pretty hard for Emeline, who loves life and who used to be the life of the party wherever she went, to be so tied down with babies, and translate their sympathy into action and volunter to mind the children occasionally and let her have an outing.

We always think of helping people in terms of money, but very often what they need is not a five or tener, but a little personal service.

Suppose you try this out on some young mother. She can't do worse than annihilate you.

* * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—Recently I became engaged to a girl with whom I am very much in love. When I asked her to marry me she told me that she considered it only fair to tell me that one time she had had an affair with another man. At the time I did not think an awful lot of this, but lately I keep thinking about it and wondering if she is as good as I thought her, and if we can be happy married to each other with this terrible fact in our minds. We have talked it over together and promised that we would never mention it again, but I know that the thought will always be in our consciousness and I fear it will ruin our marriage. What do you think about the situation? G. L.

Answer:

When a thing is done it is done, and not all our tears or regrets or repentance can change it. When a woman has dragged her skirts through the mire they are stained forever. There is no moral sanitary cleansing establishment through which they can be run and made snow white again.

I would be dishonest if I told you that I thought that when a man marries a woman with a past the marriage has the same chance of being a success as if he married a woman who had always lived a clean life. Always there will be in his mind the knowledge that he has got damaged goods. Always the thought of her lover. Always the latent suspicion that the woman who has no code, no high standard by which she lived, may yield again to temptation.

That these thoughts and suspicions are often unjust makes no difference. They are always there in the man's mind, poisoning marriage. Many a girl who through folly and ignorance steps aside in her youth repents it bitterly and makes the most loyal and discreet of wives, but all the same her husband never feels the same toward her as he would if he had nothing to overlook and forgive in her past.

You alone can solve your problem. From what you say the girl must be a fine and honest one, but for her sake as well as your own don't marry her unless you are sure you can wipe her slate clean and forget as well as forgive her past. After all, it is what she is today and what she will be tomorrow that concerns you most. Not her yesterdays. And perhaps your own past may not be without blemish.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"And this is the strange dream that I had while I was sleeping in my little bed in the elm tree," the caterpillar began: Knarf and Hanid, the shadow children with the turned-about names, came a little closer. They wanted to hear all about the caterpillar's strange dream.

The caterpillar had just come out of its little bed where it had slept all winter long. Its skin was shiny and brown, not soft and green as it had been before it had gone to sleep many months before.

"Was it a very funny dream?" Hanid wanted to know.

"Well," replied the caterpillar, turning around so that the sunlight warmed it on all sides, "I'm not sure whether it was funny or not. No—it was just curious. But this is what I dreamed: I dreamed that I had come out of my bed and stood on a branch in the sunlight—"

"And I went . . . flower to flower."

"Just like now?" Knarf asked.

Just Like Now

"Exactly like now. And it was the springtime, and the sun was warm and bright—"

"Just like now?" said Hanid.

"Exactly like now. And I kept turning round and round to get warm all over because it had been very cold all through the winter. And then all of a sudden the strangest thing began to happen. That brown skin of mine got all dried up and began to look like an old coat which was much too small for me and I wanted to get out of it."

While it was saying this the shadows noticed with surprise that the caterpillar's brown skin was really beginning to get dried in the sunshine. They saw that the caterpillar was now trying its best to wriggle out of it somehow.

"And all at once," the caterpillar said—"well, I don't expect you to believe it happened, but it was in my dream. All at once the coat split and fell off me. It dropped down to the ground. And there I stood, all white and red and orange, with a great velvety cloak hanging at my sides, and huge shiny eyes, and six slender legs. But the clock was the most wonderful thing of all, for when I lifted it up it was a pair of beautiful wings, the most beautiful in the world. And as I lifted them I rose into the air and away I went....away I went.... from flower to flower....away...."

And Knarf and Hanid, looking at the butterfly fluttering off across the sunny meadow, glanced at each other and nodded and said: "Just like now."

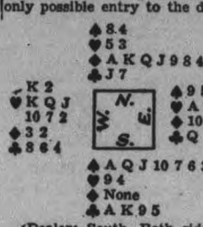
RUFFING AS AN ENTRY

USUALLY ruffing is done to get rid of the losing card which is ruffed. Sometimes its more important function is to act as an entry to a hand which otherwise cannot get the lead. There are times when a trump finesse must be avoided because it risks the loss of a crucial trump which is the only possible entry to the dummy.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

North and South ended in a contract of 4-Spades on this deal, but South handled the play in such a manner that he was set two tricks.

When West led the heart K, East played the 8 as a signal to continue. The heart 10 followed. East overtook with the A to lead the spade 5. When West won the Q finesse with the K, he returned another spade. With no possible entry to the dummy to play the diamonds, declarer was obliged to give up two club tricks.

His correct procedure on the third trick was to have played the spade A, as from the lead he should deduce that the finesse was likely to lose. The clubs A and should then have been cashed and the lone trump in dummy used to ruff a club. On the diamond A the remaining club could have been tossed, so that the losing tricks would have been limited to two hearts and a spade.

After Pneumonia Couldn't Get Strong

After many severe illnesses the patient is often left in an extremely weak and exhausted condition.

To all those convalescents needing a tonic to strengthen and build up their weakened system we would recommend Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills to assist them to recover the full enjoyment of robust health. They help to tone up the nervous system and bring back bodily strength and vigor.

Buy a box and be convinced.

Mrs. George Clark, Wallace, N.S., writes:—"Some time ago I had a severe attack of pneumonia. I never seemed to get my strength back, and was always in a weak, nervous condition until a friend advised me to take Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills.

After I had taken two boxes I felt as well as ever, so I will recommend them to any one who is suffering as I did, for I could not have taken any medicine that would have done me so much good."

Branch Notes

LAKEFIELD
St. John's Branch

St. John's branch held a very enjoyable evennig on Monday in the parish hall when they entertained the ex-members at an open night. The first part of the evening was spent in composing a newspaper with John Creighton as editor-in-chief. Six teams were chosen and each team given an item of the paper to write. It proved to be a very amusing paper and brought forth peals of laughter from all present.

At the conclusion of the reading of the paper Miss Patricia Earnshaw, president, read a short address telling how sorry the members and ex-members were that three of their most valuable members were soon leaving Lakefield, but sincerely hoped that Rev. and Mrs. Creighton and family would have health and prosperity in their new home. J. Hampton then presented Mr. and Mrs. Creighton with a reading lamp and H. Baldwin presented John with an initialed cigarette case. Everybody joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows."

Mr. Creighton, on behalf of his wife and son, thanked the members in a few well-chosen words and hoped that the A.Y.P.A. would carry on successfully for many years to come.

Magistrate O. A. Langley spoke on behalf of the ex-members thanking the present members for the invitation to attend the evening stating that everyone had enjoyed themselves very much. He gave an outline of some of the important undertakings the A.Y.P.A. used to do when he was a member and hoped that younger members would carry on in the same work.

Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening brought to a close.

IN MEMORIAM

NORTHEY.—In loving memory of dear mother, Mrs. W. T. Northey, who passed away June 5, 1937.

She gave to us no last farewell,

Nubian Lions Wave Greetings Circus Audience

"King" and "Menelik," two huge black-maned Nubian lions, which sit on their haunches and wave greetings to the audience in the stands, are spectacular additions this year to Clyde Beatty's sensational display of forty-three jungle-bred lions and tigers with the Cole Brothers Circus, which comes to Peterborough on June 7 for afternoon and night performances at the Exhibition Grounds.

"King" and "Menelik" are in addition to "Nigger," the ferocious Bengal tiger, which creeps with eerie stealthiness from a high pedestal to the sawdust floor of the huge circular all-steel arena at Clyde's command and hypnotic gestures. On the ground, "Nigger" rolls over like a playful and obedient kitten, then flies in to a tornadic spin after his own tail to provide one of the most spectacular sights in all circusdom.

The world renowned Beatty display of wild animals is just one of a whole myriad of sensations being brought by the Cole Brothers Circus. There are the Great Gretonas, who have made two continents gasp with their brazen daring on the high wire; Ken Maynard and his Rough Riders of the World, a vast assemblage of reckless riders; beautiful Dorothy Herbert, who rides reinless, rearing and hurdling horses with sensational abandon; Eileen Harold of the famous Flying Harolds, the only woman in the world ever to accomplish a two-and-one-half somersault to a catch in mid-air from the lofty trapeze; and the Great Florenzo, Europe's latest and greatest sensation, with his somersaulting automobile.

Also, the Cole Brothers Circus huge double-menagerie, one of the largest and most costly traveling collection of wild animals in the world, will be on display one hour before the 2 and 8 p.m. performances.

Newfoundland Presbytery Is Planned For 1939

TORONTO, June 4 — (CP). — Plans for establishment of a Newfoundland presbytery by next year were outlined before the 64th annual assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada here by Rev. James McNeill of St. John's, Nfld.

If the Assembly granted the appeal of Queen's Road Congregational Church, St. John's, to be constituted a congregation of the church, there will be three congregations in that Dominion, Mr. McNeill said last night. Work of the church in the island would be helped greatly by setting up a presbytery, he said.

Inviting the new moderator, Dr. Donald MacOdrum of Brockville, Ont., to visit Newfoundland, Mr. McNeill remarked the Dominion is little known or understood in Canada. He said it is "a land which ought to flow with milk and honey but for the mismanagements of man all down her history."

He cited Newfoundland's great natural resources. "We have the largest iron ore mine in the British Empire," he said. "Yet Great Britain, who keeps us in poverty, goes to Spain and Scandinavia for her ore."

Never in all his life had he seen such poverty as could be seen within a stone's throw of St. John's main streets. In spite of the moderate climate, there was a great incidence of tuberculosis.

"There are 20,000 known cases in the island out of a population of 290,000," he said, "and I don't dare guess how many unknown. The Commission government and the churches are doing all humanly possible to alleviate conditions."

Reds After Ukrainians.

Mr. McNeill's address came at the conclusion of a night devoted to reports on home missions. Reporting on the work of the church among Canada's 350,000 Ukrainians, Rev. M. Fesenko, Toronto, warned that the Communists are not leaving a stone unturned to win Ukrainians for their organizations. The girls attract the boys and the boys the girls, he said.

A courageous veteran of the foreign field who calls himself 'just a jungle missionary" although his ministrations for the last 50 years have been in the realm of medicine as well as the spirit and he was once moderator of the Presbyterian church in Canada, is the most beloved figure in the eyes of commissioners to the Assembly.

Dr. John Buchanan admits he will be 80 years old in a few months. But he laughs it off by quoting fellow medical men that "a man is no older than his heart." He is home on his last furlough. Retirement comes at this Assembly but he is going back to Central India on pension and at his own expense to carry on the work he does not want to quit.

Mr. Buchanan is doctor of medicine as well as divinity and his late wife was a doctor and teacher. Yet most of his half century to the church has been spent in the Vindhiya and Statpura mountain district of Central India. His association with the jungle comes partly from the fact that he and his wife came to know and love so well the little known Bhils, an aboriginal people sometimes referred to as "monkey men."

MORE ABOUT—

Bennett Lays

Mr. Bennett brought up what he described as a matter that "concerns the right of a Deputy Minister to libel a citizen of this country because he occupies a position of importance."

James Sowards Company had tendered for coal supplies at Kingston, Mr. Bennett said, and its bid was lowest "whereupon the Deputy Minister advised the Minister that acceptance of the lowest tender was not recommended because of reports received concerning this firm.

"The Minister passed on that information in his Order-in-Council, and it became part of the permanent records of this country. I should like to know just what these reports are.

"Mr. Sowards is a large taxpayer and a reputable citizen. He does not support the Government of the country. At the present moment he is a supporter of the Opposition and has been for some time."

While unfamiliar with the details of the incident the minister said he took full responsibility for every action by the Department. He recalled complaints had been made regarding a previous contract given the Sowards Company involving "a definite breach of the labor conditions in the contract."

British Justice?

Mr. Bennett replied that the minister had used the deputy's statement of reports against the Sowards firm as support of the order in council rejecting the lowest tender. That was his point. "Did he take steps to ascertain whether they were correct or not. Did he give the man an opportunity to answer? Did he communicate with him at all?"

"No," the minister replied.

"And that is British justice," Mr. Bennett remarked.

Mr. Bennett made a "confession of faith" advocating "planned economy" when he came to discuss the transport commission bill.

"I believe that a planned economy may be very necessary under new conditions in many parts of the world. I am making that confession of faith at once. I believe that the vast accumulation of knowledge that has come to mankind through the ages cannot be utilized unless by some planned utilization of the accumulated skill that comes to people only by reason of planning their operations, whatver they may be.

"But to plan in this instance, without it being part of a general plan, is to set up one branch of a bureaucracy without correlating its activities to a planned or logical scheme for the whole."

"I know how strongly this has been advocated in certain quarters and I understand their motives," said Mr. Bennett. 'They are endeavoring to increase their revenues by diminishing the traffic that is handled by unlicensed organizations, and increasing the traffic of those whom they say are entitled to licenses—their own organizations."

Locking the Door Too Late

Referring to the duties of the proposed Board of Transport Commissioners—to ascertain whether proposed transportation systems are necessary—Mr. Bennett observed "what a splendid thing it would have been if we had had such a provision when we built some of our present railways lines. This is locking the door after the horse has been taken from the stable."

"There is no need of subterfuge or evading the issue," Mr. Stevens said. "Parliament ought to face the fact that the only possible effect of part two of the bill (licensing shipping) would be to raise the cost of transportation on the Great Lakes. That is the object."

Mr. Howe sharply disagreed and said the purpose of the bill was to create an efficient transportation system which should bring about lowered costs to the public. He described Mr. Stevens as a "defender of everybody from the needle-workers to the Montreal brokers."

As far as the shipowners were concerned, Mr. Stevens continued, "this is being done for the Canada steamship companies alone. The minister knows that practically all other shipping concerns on the Great Lakes oppose this part of the bill.

"The Canada steamship company will benefit because it happens to carry the major portion of the package freight on the Great Lakes."

"People talk very freely about drastic solutions of the railway problem," Mr. Howe said, "but think of the havoc that would follow the tearing up of any 5,000 miles of railway in this country, and compare that with any disabilities to the people that could arise from this bill. The latter must appear very trivial indeed.

"I believe this is a constructive step to place the tranportation industry on a sound basis and I sincerely trust that honorable members will take a kindly view of the bill."

Windsors, Wed Year, Busy Fixing Home

ANTIBES, France, June 4 (AP). —The Duke and Duchess of Windsor celebrated their first wedding anniversary to-day, working together on their first real home. They were so engrossed in getting the Chateau De La Croe ready to live in that they planned no formal celebration. It was just another day of supervising alterations inside and outside the chateau, which they have leased for two years.

The Duke and Duchess, who are living at the Grand Hotel while work on their home is being completed, drive their car a mile and a half each day to the chateau, carrying with them a picnic lunch. They have been going hatless, she in navy blue and white sport dresses with white flannel coat, and he in double-breasted grey flannels.

The couple are seeing only a few old friends here, sticking to the "simple life" of the Riviera. So far, the only servant they have engaged is the gardener of Sir Pomeroy Burton, whose chateau they have leased.

Havelock Beats Deloro 21 to 3

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, June 4.—The Havelock Wreckers walloped the Deloro softball team by a score of 21 to 3, in an exhibition game last evening in the Havelock park. Deloro was much better than the large margin would indicate, but they had several tough breaks. Havelock were, however, playing at their best; Brunton, their star hurler, receiving 19 strikeouts and allowing only three walks.

"Shorty" Gray, on the Deloro mound, pitched steady ball until the fifth, when he allowed eight runs to cross the plate, which gave the locals a 15-run lead. Wright, replacing him in the sixth, held the Wreckers for that inning with his change of pace, but was touched for five runs in the next two innings.

Deloro's only run up until the ninth was scored on a homer by Leonard, their second baseman. The Havelock boys also collected a couple of home runs, by Kennedy and Harnden. Kennedy's drive into deep centre field, was one of the longest ever hit from the present diamond.

The Wreckers next home game will be on Tuesday, June 7, at 6.30 p.m., when the eKene softball team will be the visitors.

The teams:

Deloro.—Richardson, c; Gazzley, ss; Wright, cf; P. Gray, p; Regan, 1b; McColl, lf; Loveless, 3b; Leonard, 2b; W. Gray, rf.

Havelock.—McCullen, lf; Ketchen, c; Pollock, ss; McCutcheon, cf; Peters, 3b; Harnden, 2b; Bedford, rf; Kennedy, 1b; Brunton, p.

Charge Parks' Heads Hit Poorer Tourists

BANFF, Alta., June 4—(CP). — Charge the Federal Parks Department is "discriminating against the poorer clas sof tourists", was made in a protest telegram sent last night to Hon. T. A. Crerar, Federal Minister of Mines and Resources, by the Banff Advisory Council.

New cabin regulations of the Parks Department brought the protest. The Department has refused to grant operation permits for cabins of the cheaper renting type, ordered demolition of the picnickers' pavilion and raised swimming pool fees.

A resolution adopted at a Citizens' Association protest meeting and forwarded to Mr. Crerar said:

"This Dominion park was intended for the enjoyment of all the people, rich or poor and we ask the government be urged to stop discriminating against the poorer class of tourist."

MacBride Labor Chief Dies at 60

Mayor Of Brantford Eight Times, Won Seat In 1919

BRANTFORD, Ont., June 6 (CP) Hon. Morrison Mann MacBride, whose lifetime of work in the cause of labor was recognized last fall with his appointment as Ontario Minister of Labor is dead. A heart attack ended his life Sunday morning.

Shocked by the suddenness of his death, leaders of Ontario's opposing political parties united in paying the 60-year-old, white-haired minister tribute. He had returned home from Toronto Friday and was ordered to bed Saturday after he complained of feeling ill.

His death, Premier Hepburn said in a tribute from his St. Thomas farm home, left a vacancy in the Ontario cabinet that may be difficult to fill. Mr. MacBride was with several of his cabinet colleagues on the special legislative committee inquiring into affairs of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission last week, and was in apparent good health. Resumption of the probe, scheduled for today, has been postponed to Wednesday.

A striking figure on the public platform, Mr. MacBride was known as one of the government's ablest speakers and hardest- workers. "I know that he had been overworking for some time," said Premier Hepburn, who appointed him minister of labor after the provincial election last October.

Started As Printer

A native of White Lake, Ont., educated in the public and high schools of Arnprior, Ont., Mr. MacBride rose from a printer's job in Ottawa, Quyon, Que., Galt, Brantford and Winnipeg to set up business for himself on his return here from Winnipeg. He served eight terms as mayor of Brantford, first in 1917. He declined to stand for re-election last December.

He first entered the Ontario leg-

Canon Hedley's death is believed to have been due to smoke suffocation, shock and exhaustion, the result of his efforts to extinguish a bush fire near a cottage on the shore of Stoney Lake, 25 miles north of Peterborough.

"I do not know, for instance, how the people feel on the Pacific Coast about the Japanese situation, but I intend to find out," he said.

Labor Minister Dies

Hon. M. M. McBride, eight times Mayor of Brantford who passed away of a heart attack at the age of 60. He was a life long champion of labor.

150 Million Loan Program To Aid Building

OTTAWA, June 6—(CP)— An expanded home building program, involving government loans of $47,000,000 in a building revival that would cost $116,000,000, is expected to come before parliament this week.

Finance Minister Dunning gave notice on Saturday of the government's intention of making some $47,000,000 available for home building. The loans would be entirely apart from those to municipalities for self-liquidating works, announced last week. The whole program would make almost $150,000,000 available in new business in the building industry.

Under the Dominion Housing Act of 1935 $10,000,000 was made available for home loans that would be 20 per cent of the total cost, the builder providing a like amount and private lenders the other 60 per cent. Under the act about $14,000,000 was spent with the government loaning about $3,000,000. The 60-20-20 ratio would be retained in the new legislation.

Mr. Dunning's resolution indicated the amount available for loans of this type will be increased to $20,000,000, less the amount already loaned under the 1935 act. The figure will be $17,000,000, making it possible for about $86,000,000 to be spent under the program.

Guarantee On Losses.

The provisions of the act would be extended so as to enable the minister of finance to guarantee lending institutions or local authorities against loss up to certain limits on small loans and remote communities and in certain districts of other communities and to pay lending institutions for the cost of making such loans.

This is expected to meet the cases of communities where, owing to expenses of inspection or local conditions, lending institutions have been unwilling to make loans.

The second phase of the governments program, involving $30,000,000 is described as authorizing the making of loans at low interest rates to local housing authorities to assist in the construction of houses to be leased to families of low income at rentals "less than the economic rentals therefore."

Forecasting the legislation last week, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said the interest rate would be 2½ per cent. This compared with the five per cent. rate provided in the present housing act for loans to home builders in conjunction with lending institutions.

There is no indication in Mr. Dunning's resolution whether provincial government guarantees will be required for the loans to housing authorities as would be required for the loans to municipalities under the self-liquidating works program.

Duff Attacks Latchford Comba Stand

Scoring Colleagues In Judgment Branded a "Pity"

OTTAWA, June 6 (CP) — Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff of the Supreme Court of Canada said today it seemed a "pity" that Chief Justice F. R. Latchford of the Ontario Court of Appeal should criticize the judgment of his four colleagues which quashed the murder conviction of John A. Comba.

Referring to Mr. Justice Latchford, who handed down a dissenting judgment in the Comba appeal, Chief Justice Duff said: "It's rather a pity, it seems, that the Chief Justice felt it necessary to criticize the judgments of his colleagues. It would have been better for him to express his own views without entering critical condemnation."

The Chief Justice's remarks were made during the hearing of the appeal of the Ontario attorney-general's department against the Ontario appeal court decision freeing Comba of the alleged slaying of 13-year-old Ethel Hedderwick.

Hearing of the appeal opened before the Supreme Court today.

Just Want A New Trial

The crown, represented by C. L. Snyder and C. P. Hope, both of Toronto, and H. B. Johnston of Pembroke, Ont., was not seeking to have the Supreme Court of Canada "pass on the innocence of guilt of the man," Mr. Snyder stated. "All we are asking is for a new trial."

The Ontario attorney - general was fully prepared to admit the Ontario Court of Appeal should have granted Comba a new trial, Mr. Snyder said. Nor, was the crown now arguing that the Ontario court was without authority to quash the conviction. But, the whole case was such, counsel asserted, that he should have been granted a new trial and not be given complete freedom.

Comba was convicted by a trial jury in Pembroke, Ont., Nov. 25 of the murder of 13-year-old Ethel Hedderwick.

The girl was assaulted and beaten to death near the town limits of Renfrew last Aug. 3. Comba, member of a search party organized when the girl failed to return from a choke-cherry picking expedition, found the body in a cow pasture.

Inaccuracy In Time

C. L. Snyder referred to the judgment of Mr. Justice W. E. Middleton of the Ontario Appeal Court and said he felt Mr. Justice Middleton had been misinformed in connection with sections of his judgment dealing with Comba "stumbling" over the girl's body.

An inaccuracy existed concerning the time of the murder. He hoped to prove it took place at 10 a.m. and not noon. Mr. Justice Middleton also erred in finding that there was a piece of cloth in the girl's hand when she was found. The fibre was so small "it might be floated in the air in this very room," Mr. Snyder said.

Counsel said the Attorney General's department had given considerable thought to the case and found Mr. Justice Chevrier had made an error at the conclusion of the Pembroke trial. He did not specify the "error."

Reverting to general observations on the trial and the appeal, Mr. Synder said the first point of law to be considered was that if at the close of the crown's case there was not sufficient evidence to convict the accused, the trial judge should have so charged the jury. Comba's failure to take the witness stand in his own behalf was referred to by counsel.

Ontario Bridge Ban Ignored by I.R.C.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 6.—(CP).—As soon as plans are prepared and approved, the work of rebuilding the Falls View bridge will be started, Bernard Yungbluth, president of the International Railway Company, has advised Hon. G. D. Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, it was learned here today.

Mr. Yungbluth's letter was in reply to a communication from Mr. Conant last week in which the railway company, owner of the bridge which collapsed under the pressure of an ice-jam last Jan. 27, was warned not to proceed with its announced intention of rebuilding the structure.

President Yungbluth, concluding his letter, told Mr. Conant:

"It is the opinion of the company's legal advisers that exclusive jurisdiction in the matter, so far as Canada is concerned, is vested in the Dominion authorities, and that the act of the Legislature of Ontario, referred to in your letter, if it relates to an international bridge such as ours, is invalid as beyond the powers of the legislature of the province."

His announcement was made in a radio address over a Quebec hook-up. Present leader is former Premier Adelard Godbout.

This tiny fawn, one of the smallest yet to be seen in this district, was picked up Saturday by Arthur Montgomery of Lakefield. Only a few days old, the little fellow was standing beside the road to the Nepheline plant, near the head of Stoney Lake. Seen here with the fawn is Frank Coyle, in charge of the company's trucking. Daladier Flies To Border After Spanish Raids

Two Attacks By "Unidentified Craft" Bring Orders To Shoot Attackers

PARIS, June 6 (AP).—Premier Edouard Daladier today left by plane for the French-Spanish frontier, accompanied by General Jules Decamp, chief of his military staff, immediately after he received word warplanes from Spain had crossed the frontier for the second successive day.

His aides said he would go first to Ax-Les-Thermes by automobile from Toulouse to make a personal investigation at the scene of yesterday's bombing.

Daladier planned to discuss with commanders of anti-aircraft, aviation and army units in the Toulouse border region all means of protecting the district against further bombardments.

"The next bombing error Spanish planes make over French territory will bring them an unpleasant surprise," one French official commented.

Today's air raiders from Spain, like those of yesterday, were nine unmarked planes flying in three "V" formations, but they dropped no bombs and turned back after a 10-minute flight over French territory during which they were greeted by warning shots from at least two French anti-aircraft batteries.

"Shoot Any Raiders."

Squadrons of French warplanes patrolled near the Spanish frontier under orders to shoot down any air raiders attempting such an attack on French soil as that made by nine bombers "of unknown nationality" yesterday.

The planes roared over the Pyrenees from the directon of Spain and dropped bombs 15 miles inside the French border.

Witnesses told government investigators the planes flew for two hours along the main trans-Pyrenees railroad from Toulouse to Bar-

Western Pioneer G. A. Garbutt Dies

PORT HOPE, Ont., June 6—(CP)—George A. Garbutt, 79, who drove the first horse car to be put in operation in Winnipeg in 1883, died Saturday night in hospital here after a brief illness.

Born in Thurlow township, near Belleville, he went to Western Canada in 1882 as a member of a party which travelled by ox-cart across the prairies to survey the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Later he entered the employ of the Hudson Bay Company in Winnipeg.

A son, Gordon C. Garbutt, is news editor of the Jornwall Standard-Freeholder.

Rebels Arrested For Friction With Italians

HENDAYE, June 6 (AP).—General Franco was reported today to have ordered severe measures to avoid open conflict between his Spanish insurgent officers and their blackshirt Italian allies.

Franco was said to have left the eastern war front, where his drive on Valencia was virtually halted by government militiamen, to hold a hurried council of war at Burgos, seat of the insurgent government.

The meeting was called, insurgent sources said, following fights between insurgent and Italian officers, the most serious taking place at Malaga and Zaragoza, where they engaged in fisticuffs and exchanged revolver shots a week ago.

These sources said Franco had ordered the arrest of a number of his officers as an indication of his continued friendship and cooperation with Italy, which has been one of his heaviest backers in the civil war.

(Travellers reaching Gibraltar quoted insurgent officers as expressing resentment at "the dictatorial attitude" of the Italian officers and expressing fears that the Italians and Germans intended to maintain a military hold on the country when the war ends.)

Except for slight insurgent gains in the Albocacer sector, the battle along the 60-mile front from the mountains east of Teruel to the Mediterranean was stalemated.

5 P.C. Meal Tax

MONTREAL, June 6 (CP).—Effective today, Montrealers must pay the provincial government five per cent "meal tax" on all beer and other alcoholic liquor purchased in clubs and restaurants. Club and restaurant owners were advised to this effect over the week-end and application of the law, which has been on the statutes of the Quebec Legislature, will be put into operation for the first time.

Japan will reform its school system.

Britain Shapes Convoy Plan For Next War

LONDON, June 6.—(CP)—Great Britain, strengthening her vast navy in its greatest peace-time expansion, has 520,000 tons of warships under construction at dockyards and private yards, including five battleships, 17 cruisers, 19 submarines, 39 destroyers and numerous smaller craft.

The admiralty has launched a three-point plan which, it believes, would keep principal trade routes to this country open in any emergency. In a speech at Liverpool Geoffrey Shakespeare, parliamentary secretary to the admiralty, told an audience the plan called for:

Special naval convoys for main trade routes;

Conversion of old cruisers into anti-aircraft vessels;

Strengthening the navy's destroyer arm.

The admiralty, he said, believed that on the outbreak of any hostilities it could keep trade routes open and protect shipping bound for the United Kingdom with food and raw materials by a method of routing, convoy and escort.

Use For Old Cruisers

"All our plans are laid for this end," he declared. "The conversion of a large number of old cruisers to anti-aircraft vessels, the provision of a new type of vessel known as an escourt vessels and the strengthening of our destroyer arm, are all being undertaken for this purpose.

"Plans are laid on the basis that immediately the danger matures we should have to go into convoy on certain routes."

The secretary attacked critics who claimed strength in the air was a more vital factor in safety than strength afloat. He said experience in recent wars had shown that "air power by itself is not likely to win a war."

The effect of sudden ruthless attack on modern cities is appalling, but the effect so far has been to screw up the determination of citizens of the attacked cities to win through and give them the morale to take necessary counter measures," he said.

"Airplanes are fast but they are not self-contained, and it may take weeks and months for the necessary equipment, stores, ammunition and ground staffs to be taken to the bases overseas; whereas ships are self-contained and, though slower, they are mobile, can go anywhere and stay anywhere, and they provide their own bases."

British Ship Fired In Alicante Raid

MADRID, June 6 (A.P.). — Insurgent aircraft left 21 persons dead, 50 wounded, and another British ship ablaze in a fierce foray to-day over Alicante, 75 miles south of Valencia on the Eastern Mediterranean coast.

The dead included nine women, one child, three members of the crew of a British ship identified as the Winnifred and two Alicante stevedores.

This and other new raids along the coast followed a week in which more than 400 persons died in aerial bombardments and in which new protests came from neutral nations.

Five German-made Junker planes carried out the assault on Alicante. Several houses in the centre of the city were shattered. The bodies of the nine women and the child were taken from those ruins.

Concurrenly with these new forays on the eastern seaboard, General Jose Miaja's headquarters at Valencia said two captured Italian airmen had disclosed there were six groups of Italian-made airplanes in Spain, entirely staffed by Italians.

Movie audiences of Japan saw 239 American films last year.

Hit and Run Drivers Get Six During Weekend, Only Three Are Arrested

Conant Goes In Huddle With Police In Effort To Reduce Toll Hints Rewards May Be Offered

TORONTO, June 6 (CP).—Six week-end automobile accidents in which the participating motorists failed to remain at the scene were being investigated by Ontario police today. One such mishap resulted in the death of Adam Haverstock, 20-year-old farmhand, near Cooksville, west of Toronto.

Haverstock was struck by a car as he walked hom from a theatre Saturday night. His body was found in a ditch Sunday, the skull fractured in several places and with severe internal injuries. There was no known witness to the fatality. Kenneth Selman, 26, was arrested today in connection with Haverstock's death. He is held in custody at Brampton.

Mrs. Elizabeth Paulik was struck by a motorcar near Niagara Falls Sunday. The offending driver stopped for a moment then drove away. Alex Perger of Delhi was arrested there in connection with the accident. He was charged with criminal negligence.

Philip padington was knocked from his bicycle in Niagara Falls by another machine, the driver of which continued.

Cyclist Is Victim.

At Oshawa, William Moyer, 15, one of three young cyclists, was knocked from his bicycle as an automobile swerved to the wrong side of a highway on Sunday. The car did not stop, a but an hour after the accident a man who gave the name of Robert Speers, Oshawa, gave himself up to police. He was arrested on a charge of failing to return to the scene of an accident. In Police Court to-day he was remanded a week on bail of $5,000.

George Andre, 42, suffered facial and arm injuries when struck by a car near Fonthill, five miles north of Welland, early to-day. He said the driver failed to stop.

At Peterborough, William Langford was arrested and charged with reckless driving and with failing to remain at the scene of an accident after a crash on Saturday night, when one car sideswiped another on a highway near that city.

Conant Sees Williams.

TORONTO, June 6.—(CP).—Hon. G. D. Conant, Ttorney-General of Ontario, conferred here to-day with Gen. V. A. S. Williams, Commissioner of the Provincial Police, to determine what additional measures can be taken to reduce the toll of highway traffic accidents.

Mr. Conant, while not disclosing the result of the conference indicated rewards may be offered in connection with week-end hit-and-run accidents in which arrests have not yet been made.

Urges Use of Lights.

TORONTO, June 6.—(CP).— W. G. Robertson, general manager of Ontario Motor League said to-day walking the highways at night without a flashlight or something was cuorting death.

"Walking the highways is dangerous at any time, but at night pedestrians should protect themselves by facing oncoming traffic and carrying a reflector or a light to show them up," Robertson said.

SEEDING BY AIRPLANE

Tree seeds packed in "bombs" are dropped from airplanes which fly over barren mountain areas of Hawaii.

A five-inch knife later was found at the scene. Mrs. Cote was arrested and held without bail.

Hodza Disputes Slovak Autonomy Claim

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia, June 6 (AP).—In a fighting speech, cheered by a great crowd, Premier Milan Hodza today repudiated the claim of Father Andreas Hlinka and his Slovakian autonomist followers to speak in the name of this republic's Slovakian minority.

"They can speak only for their party," declared the Premier, himself a Slovak, "and your present here"—waving his arm toward the cheering crowd—"is the best answer to what they said here yesterday.

"We of the republic declare to the world that we are carrying on. We are solid and unshakeable as a rock. We will not permit anyone to destroy our republic."

Hodza threw the whole weight of his influence into efforts to solve dangerous problems arising from the demands of Father Hlinka's group for Slovakian autonomy, another disruptive factor added to the agitations carried on by Germanic, Polish and Hungarian minorities.

The Premier arrived amid echoes of a hostile demonstration yesterday by the Hlinka party, seeking to answer the autonomists' display by a more powerful one for Czechoslovak unity.

"You and I have been loyal to each other until now," the Premier told his hearers, "and we will continue to be loyal forever.

"It is true that black clouds hang over the republic today. You have gathered here at a time when we must ask ourselves whether we are capable of maintaining our independence."

Here he was interrupted by shouts of "We are! We are!"

Farmer Gets Stabbed Ex-Housekeeper Held

TIMMINS, Ont., June 6 (C.P.).—Fred Newton, 5-year-old farm laborer, was in serious condition in hospital to-day as police investigated a fracas on a lonely road in nearby Mount Joy Township in which Newton was stabbed in the abdomen. Mrs. Kate Cote, 48, was held in custody on a charge of wounding.

Police said the alleged affray occurred on a lonely stretch of a dark road which passe a farm where Newton was employed. Mrs. Cote, Newton's former housekeeper, was said by police to have engaged a taxi in Timmins early on Sunday and to have gone within half a mile of the farm where Newton worked. The taxi driver then walked the remaining distance to tell Newton he was wanted outside.

An argument between Mrs. Cote and Newton ensued, police said. During the quarrel, the farmhand was stabbed in the lower abdomen.

Fishers Fight Lake 12 Hours After Fire Wrecks Boat

WINNIPEGOSIS, Man., June 6 — (CP) — Two young Winnipegosis fishermen escaped death aboard a blazing motor boat yesterday and were rescued after drifting for hours on Lake Manitoba.

Nick Popyden and John Gansesky were in mid-lake at 1.30 a.m. when they discovered the motor boat was leaking. Ont lit a match in an attempt to locate the leak and immediately the launch burst into flames.

The craft carried two small boats and each youth took one but as Popyden attempted to transfer from the launch he upset the smaller boat and only after great difficulty managed to crawl on top of the overturned boat. There he drifted for 12 hours until he was sighted from shore and rescued by John Stephenson. Popyden was suffering from exposure.

Gansesky had started to row ashore in the other small boat but found it was filling with water and in desperation he swam back to the burning launch. He seized the burning gasoline tank and as he threw it overboard it exploded in mid-air but Gansesky escaped injury.

Working with a small bucket he extinguished the flames and by throwing most of the cargo overboard lightened the launch sufficiently to keep it afloat until morning when it drifted onto Hunter's Island. He was rescued later.

Scientist Debunks Air Raids And Poison Gas Horrors

OAKHAM, Rutland, June 6—(CP)—Science Master H. Anderson of Oakham has a low opinion of those who write of the horrors of air raids and gas warfare and has launched a course of lectures to debunk their claims.

"Since the recent war atmosphere came into being some four years ago we have been deluged with drivel and balderdash about the problem both by officialdom and by the writers of cheap and expensive newsprint," Mr. Anderson said.

He had hard words for H. G. Wells' book, "The Shape of Things to Come," which when filmed "sent all the old ladies into cold shivers and drove them to despair."

Many writers, he said, concentrated on poison gas because the general public knew little about it and had no opportunity of verifying what was written about it. He declared no poison gasses of "mysterious" identity existed.

Need All Lined Up.

However, he agreed that one ton of poison gas might kill 1,000,000 persons "if those were so obliging as to line up with their tongues out."

"One steam-roller would suffice to flatten the whole of the population of London if they lay down in front of it, but no one panics at the sight of a steam-roller."

During the Great War, he continued, 51 Zeppelins and 52 airplanes killed 1,414 persons and injured 3,416 while automobile accident at the present rate took an annual toll of 6,500 killed and 225,000 hurt. Total war-time gas casualties were 8,109 killed and 180,597 injured.

"There is no mystery about a car and you do not panic. Gas is mysterious and does cause panic."

Weekend Toll Sees 10 Die Over Ontario

4 Hit-Run Victims Left On Road As Drivers Flee

TORONTO, June 6 (CP).—Losses of 10 lives was recorded today as Ontario's drowning and traffic toll for the first weekend in June. Another resident of the province died of injuries suffered two weeks ago in a motor mishap and another was burned to death.

Among highway accidents which left many injured were four in which police alleged automobile drivers sped away without investigating.

Adam Haverstock, 20-year-old farmhand, was left to die in a ditch near Cooksville, just west of Toronto, after being struck by a car as he returned home from a picture show Saturday night. There was no known witness to the fatality and police were left almost without a clue.

William Nuttall of Preston, former alderman of that town, died in hospital at Galt yesterday of injuries suffered Saturday when his truck collided with a car driven by Harry Ryder of Windsor. Ryder is in hospital with broken ribs and face, head af arm injuries.

Victim Unidentified.

Orillia police are still trying to identify a man killed on highway No. 11 Saturday when struck by a car driven by Murray Cox of Washago. Cox said a heavy ground mist prevented him from seeing the pedestrian, whose legs and one arm were broken and skull fractured.

Mrs. William Down, 63, of Detroit, died in hospital at Chatham of shock and injuries received when a car driven by her husband skidded on wet pavement at Thamesville, 16

Factories Must Board All Cheese

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 4. — Members of the Campbellford Cheese Board took a firm stand in the matter of factories seeking exemption from boarding cheese when they met in the board room of the St. Lawrence Hotel for their weekly meeting on Saturday. According to G. A. Elliott, president of the Cheese Makers' Association of Peterborough county, the request for exemption made by a factory in this district could not be entertained since it was not producing a special type of cheese when they made twins and triplets, and therefore should board as usual. The motion was put before members of the board and carried unanimously.

Speaking further in reference to the matter of granting exemption especially in such cases as had been brought to light during the meeting, Harold Wood, president of the Campbellford Cheese Board, claimed that such policies would if continued mean the breaking down of the whole system of boarding cheese.

celona and penetrated 50 miles into France before retracing their course and bombing in the vicinity of Orlu.

One powerful bomb wrecked electric power lines from the plant at Orlu and another struck near the railroad. Most of the explosives, however, fell in open fields and no casualties were reported.

An official investigation of the bombing was ordered. A foreign office spokesman declared an energetic protest would be made as soon as it was determined from which side of the Spanish civil war the raiders came.

Witnesses said they were painted grey and bore no identification marks. French newspapers, however, expressed belief they probably were insurgent planes because supplies for government Spain have been moving along the railroad.

Even Rightist newspapers here put quotation marks around the official description of the nine raiders, "unknown planes," and said they undoubtedly were insurgent.

A light fog overhung the region of the flight at the time of the bombardment, and opinions differed whether the bombing was accidental or deliberate.

One Mistake Enough.

"It was either a mistake because of bad flying and judgment," one official said, "or something much more serious, although at present it looks like a mistake of the sort that must not happen again."

Officials of Ariege Department, where the bombing occurred, immediately notified Premier Edouard Oaladier, asking that he take stern measures to prevent repetition of the attack.

The Premier quickly issued orders designed to reassure terror-stricken inhabitants of the region, who had scurried into underground shelters to escape the explosives.

"Pursue all planes of whatever nationality which threaten French territories in the Pyrenees region," he instructed the Air Force, in a terse communique.

Jap Peer Urges Grabbing Of Hong Kong

TOKYO, June 6.—(CP)—After a month's study of the situation on the spot, Motojiro Sugiyama, a member of the Japanese House of Peers, is convinced "positive steps" must be taken to wrest Hong Kong from Great Britain.

He was quoted by the Domei News Agency as saying the sight of armaments and machinery, apparently bound for China, on the docks at the British crown colony had prompted him to return to Japan to urge the government to take measures toward "controlling Hong Kong as quickly as possible, both militarily and diplomatically."

Japan's diplomatic negotiations with Britain regarding China have been a long list of successive failures," he declared.

1,500 Bombing Victims.

CANTON, June 6 (C.P.-Haavs).—Japanese bombers to-day killed or wounded 1,500 persons in this South China city and damaged more than 1,000 buildings.

In two raids, the planes marked the ninth day of almost uninterrupted aerial bombing by zooming over stricken Canton in squadrons of 40 and 50 and dropping more than 100 large bombs.

Apart from to-day's official casualty toll, the previous attacks killed 2,500 persons, mostly civilians, and had injured many more than that number.

Physicians and Red Cross nurses, active in helping the victims, were themselves targets for the explosives. The French Doumer Hospital and the nearby quarters of the Chinese Red Cross were hit. More than 50 were killed at the Red Cross building, among them internes, nurses, and Boy Scout orderlies.

Laboratories worth about $700,000 were destroyed at the Doumer Hospital.

Warning Issued Dictator Nations

BOSTON, Mass., June 6.—A warning to nations "whose governments have been conceived largely in selfish ambition and brought forth by human force" was issued here today at the Annual Meeting of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, The Mother Church, by The Christian Board of Directors who declared the lessons of history show such governing bodies to be "of few days and full of trouble."

Reports disclosed continued growth of the Christian Science movement, increasingly higher standards for authorized periodicals, and a larger number of requests from groups of non-Scientists for representative Christian Scientists to address them.

Election of Ralph Hastings Knapp, C.C., of Needham, Mass., as President of The Mother Church was announced. He succeeds Judge Clifford S. Smith of Newton, Massachusetts. Edward L. Ripley of Brookline and Ezra W. Palmer of Marshfield were re-elected Treasurer and Clerk of the Church respectively. The President is elected by The Christian Science Board of Directors to serve for one year. His duty is to be presiding officer at the annual meeting.

The Trustees Under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy reported assisting many branches of The Mother Church in acquiring their own church buildings. They also aided in placing Mrs. Eddy's works in a number of public libraries in towns where there are no Christian Science organizations and in supplying literature in Braille.

Roland R. Harrison, Manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, stated that the Trustees seek every opportunity to emphasize the fact that true progress in our publishing activities is spiritual unfoldment rather than material gain.

Cobourg Watchman Drowned In Lake

Tumbling from a gangplank extending from the pier to the stern of a ferry, James Deelborn, 34-year-old watchman, was drowned on Sunday afternoon at Cobourg.

The boat, Ontario Ferry Number 2, was moored to the dock and Deelborn, a married man with three children, fell into the water in full view of an incoming ferry. He was clad only in a pair of trousers, and spectators thought he had dived in. When he did not reappear rescue work was commenced. He was brought to the surface within a few minutes and artificial respiration commenced.

A contingent of Rover Sea Scouts from Rochester, N.Y., worked over the man for more than an hour before life was pronounced extinct, spectators said. One of them claimed the man's color remained good and that his heart commenced to beat and his lips to move at one time during the rescue work.

Farmers Gun For Pack Dogs After Prize Sheep Mauled

WHEATLEY, Ont., June 6—(CP)—District farmers today sought a marauding pack of dogs which raided the farm of Cecil Stobbs two miles east of here yesterday and wrought havoc among a flock of 72 prize Dorset sheep. One of the animals was killed and 25 others mauled so badly they may have to be destroyed. Loss will amount to several hundred dollars but extent cannot be estimated until the scattered flock is rounded up.

Dubbed Western Ontario's "Sheep King", Stobbs was grooming the flock for fall exhibition. He has carried off majority of prizes at Western Ontario fairs with his breed of sheep for many years and has won major awards at other Canadian and United States exhibitions.

Wheatley is on the borderline of Essex and Kent counties.

Butter and Eggs Not As Plentiful

Prices showed little change on the market Saturday, holding steady at almost the same levels as a week ago. Supplies of butter and eggs could hardly be called plentiful, but they seemed to be adequate for the demand. Butter ranged from 30 cents down to 25 cents, and eggs from 22 cents to 25 cents. Broiler chickens sold at 28 to 30 cents, a slight decline from last week, and the yearlings were 20 to 22 cents.

There was again an abundance of plants in pots and boxes, in all lines of flowers and vegetables, at two boxes for 25 cents, tomatoes, asters, snapdragons and all the other varieties. Potatoes slumped off in supply and sold at 70 and 90 cents a bag, and the new vegetables, onions, asparagus, radish and so on were five cents a bunch. Many hampers of spinach were offered on the outside market at fifteen cents a big paper bagfull.

Pleaded Guilty Reckless Driving

As a result of an accident Saturday night between Young's Point and Burleigh Falls, William Langford, faced charges of reckless driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident in police court this morning and pleaded guilty to both.

The car driven by Langford sideswiped another machine driven by Allen Davis of Young's Point and the latter's car was somewhat damaged. Langford was arrested by Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton.

"I am not going to impose sentence today," said Magistrate Langley, K.C. "Your mother has some imaginary grievance against me and on that account I prefer to have Magistrate Gee dispose of these cases."

Langford was remanded until tomorrow, bail being fixed at $500.

"You will probably draw a sentence on such serious cases," Magistrate Langley stated.

While Shopping On Farmers Market

Business was brisk at the market Saturday, and we were told by one stallholder that it was the best day she had experienced for several weeks.

A large variety of flowers and plants were to be had for rock gardens. Namisia, a rare plant which came originally from Ryder's, England, with tiny yellow, red or orange flowers, was priced at 15c a box, and grows best in shady places. Sempervivum, better known, perhaps, as "hen and chickens" was selling at 10 cents a plant, and a new variety of the same plant (to us) was smaller, but unique in that it spun a web similar to that of a spider, across its face! A plant for rock gardens, resembling swamp moss, but with a white star-shaped flower, was priced at 15 cents a box, blue Forget-me-nots were 15 cents or 2 for a quarter; Lamb's ear, a plant which hugs the ground in a rosette, gets its name from its thick, downy leaf, shaped like a lambs ear, and was 15c a plant.

Tiny spruce trees were priced at 25 cents, 50 cent and 75 cents, and the lady in charge was careful to warn her customers not to trim their trees until the second year. Harmony Marigolds, recommended for borders, were 15c a box, Asters and Petunias, 2 for a quarter. Plantain lilies, ideal for planting on each side of a door-step or on top of a verandah post, were 15 cents a bunch or 50 cents a large pot. Coreopsis, Gallardia, Bachelor's Buttons were 10 cents and 15 cents a bunch.

Tomato plants were 15 cents a box, or 2 for a quarter. Bunches of green onions 3 for 10 cents, rosy strawberry rhubarb was selling at 3 generous bundles for 10 cents, potatoes, grown in Cavan township, were 15 cents a peck. Radishes, from Crawfords Grove, were 3 bundles for 10 cents, asparagus 5 cents a bunch or 3 for 10 cents.

Eggs had a fine scope in price, large white ones were selling from 23 to 30 cents a dozen. Tiny broilers were priced at 30 cents a pound, and 20 cents was being asked for a 12-pound, 4-ounce turkey. Jersey butter, with toothpicks sandy for sampling purposes, sold at 27 cents and 28 cents per pound.

Homemade bread was 10 cents a loaf at one stall, and large buns were 40 cents a dozen. Tarts were 20 cents a dozen, large pineapple or raisin pies 25 cents each, and lovely little jars of gooseberry jam were selling at from 15 cents to 35 cents, according to size.

A pretty little golden-haired lassie was selling bright, painted songbirds, dwarfs and sunbonnet babies of wood for flower gardens, which were mounted on wire sticks, and priced from 15 cents to $1.00.

Drunken Driver Is Given 10 Days

After first pleading not guilty to the charge, A. A. Anderson of Oshawa finally pleaded guilty in Police Court this morning to being drunk in charge of an automobile on Sunday afternoon, and was sentenced by Magistrate Langley to ten days in jail.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who appeared for the accused when his case was finally disposed of after Anderson had been before the Magistrate several times this morning, said that he was informed that Anderson had been working long hours and had had a breakdown.

Magistrate Langley made the sentence ten days to start from yesterday.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, June 6 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures hit the down trail to-day after five successive days of rising values. Lack of support loomed as the major depressing influence with futures closing 2⅛ to ¼ cents lower, July $1.00¾, October 78⅞ to 79c, December 77⅝ to ¾ cents.

July wheat eased more than two cents. Five-cent setbacks on contract grades of wheat contributed to July's weakness. No Canadian wheat export business could be confirmed and cash wheat was neglected.

No. 1 Northern wheat spread eased five cents at one time and was at 13 cents premium above the July future. Durum spreads in the cash market were relatively strong.

All coarse grains eased in late stages through lack of interest.

Pay sheet, No. 81, Fred Heard's division, tractor, power and crusher, $201.40; No. 82, Don. Mc. Naughton's, gravel and trucking, $115.75; No. 83, Francis Tedford's, gravel and team work, $21.10.

Council expressed itself as agreeable to the cancellation of the Hydro contract on a summer cottage in Chemong Park formerly owned by the late Mrs. A. Elliott, which was completely destroyed by fire on May 2, 1938.

By-law No. 986, giving the road superintendent authority to arrange for the location of any poles being erected in Smith Township by the Bell Telephone Co. of Canada and other details in relation thereto received its several readings and was passed.

Court of Revision.

After the members of the court of revision had taken the oath of office, Reeve Mann was elected chairman of the court.

Appeals were heard as follows:

Fred Berry.—Removed, and asked to be assessed at new location. Allowed.

W. A. Heard.—Appealing assessment of George Thorne. Assessment too high. Reduced assessment on land, $700.

P. Parker.—Part of buildings burned. Reduced assessment on buildings to $100.

S. R. Pearson.—Assessment too high. Withdrew appeal.

William Taylor.—Assessment too high. Reduced assessment $200.

Dr. Willoughby.—No buildings on island. Reduced assessment on buildings, $400.

The clerk was instructed to make and enter the above charges in the assessment roll for 1938 and sign the thus-amended roll.

The court of revision then adjourned and council resumed in general session.

G. Dunford asked council to rent him the road allowance opposite S½ Lot 28, Con. 15 for pasture land. Mr. Roman Braun, flying school instructor, was present to ask permission to erect a sign at the end of the 8th Concession Line to advertise his flying school. Permisson was granted him to place a sign 3' x 4' within two feet of north side of 8th concession line and west of the county road. Also if he chose, he may erect one any size within ten feet of the property he leased from A. K. Nichols.

Survey Summer Cottages.

Assessor G. D. Mann was instructed to make a survey of the summer cottages in Smith, with the view of checking up on same. The remuneration was set at $5 per days and transportation. Messrs. Henry Coons and Howard Beavis, representing the Lakefield Agricultural Society, were awarded a grant of $55.

The clerk was instructed to request the county treasurer to delete from her books the arrears of taxes on Pt. Lot 13, Con. 6, for 1930, as they are paid. Also to delete arrears of taxes on Lots 21 and 22, Plan 37, Con. 12 Smith, up to the end of 1935.

A petition from the cottage owners near Chemong Bridge was received, asking that the road at the rear of their cottages be improved. A motion was passed requesting the clerk to notify Bert Manning that the road has not yet been taken over by the council, and intimating to him that the cottagers first petition council to take over the road, profill them and were all set for a big

G. D. Mann was paid $10 for taking census in addition to his assessment duties. By-law No. 987 creating S.S. No. 13 as at present bounded as a restricted building area received its several readings, and was passed. A note for $2,000 matured on May 21 was renewed for a period of three months. The clerk was authorized to sign Hydro cards relating to the Buckhorn Lodge property. The clerk was advised to procure from the county regstry office a copy of Plan 43 of the Township of Smith. It was agreed to procure and place two "stop" signs on the 12th Concession line east and west of Selwyn.

Reeve Mann and Councillor McIlmoyle were appointed a committee to meet the Bridgenorth Cemetery Board on Thursday, June 2, re making cemetery ditch ready to be mown with a lawn mower. H. Fowler and G. McIlmoyle constitute a committee to interview Allan Olver and Joseph Mann re purchasing of gravel pit on S. ½ Lot 15, Concession 7, providing conditions of sale are satisfactory. Les. Spencer was present to offer Council gravel from his pit at 10c per cubic yard if they would place the crusher therein and crush the large stones which have accumulated therein. Council promised favorable consideration.

Payment of a bill for $200 for the recent trip of a detachment of the Peterborough Fire Department to Chemong Park on May 2 was rejected since Reeve Mann had not been consulted in the matter. There is a motion on the books of Smith Township that unless authority from the Reeve has first been obtained, Council does not assume the responsibility of paying for unauthorized trips.

Moved by H. Fowler, seconded by G. McIlmoyle, and carried, that the following accounts be paid:

Moncrief Dairy, May relief account $1.10; Department of Health, insulin account January 1 to March 1, $2.40; Peterborough Examiner, insertion re Court of Revision, $2.52; Peterborough Printing Company, 25 anti-dumping cards, $7.56; J. Fowler, on allowance, $10.00; E. Hughey, burial of animal, $1.50; Ed. Young, May relief account, $18.00.

Council adjourned to meet on Tuesday, June 28, at 1 p.m.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT, if you are cross, lifeless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure.

Why not try LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND!

"I DO"

Mystic words, these! Words that, in the wedding ceremony, change the lives and the buying habits of thousands of young Canadians annually. Words that create new consumers for your product, or new customers for your store.

The needs of such young people are many and varied. And as newspaper readers, they regard their daily newspaper as a guide to value in the personal and household goods they buy. If you tell your story to these newly married couples through the columns of daily newspapers, they will patronize your store and buy your products!

Youth Admits Slaying Girl

A 16-year old shabbily dressed newsboy, Lindbergh Heist Trent, was being held without bail for the mutilation murder of Shirley Ann Woodburn, 6, of Cincinnati. Police say he confessed the crime. The youth was apprehended after photos of him were identified by a playmate of the child victim as those of the youth who lured or followed the child victim into the woods where police found her mutilated body. The confession, announced by Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcalt, was disputed by Trent. When questioned by reporters, he said, "I don't remember." Photo shows Trent in jail awaiting arraignment on a first degree murder charge.

16 Settlers' Homes Wiped Out By Fire

TORONTO, June 6 — (CP). — Hungry flames, that ate their way eastward at more than two miles an hour in New Brunswick's 8-day forest fire and destroyed 16 settlers' homes and perhaps double that number of settlers' lots, abated somewhat to-day, while blazes in Charlottetown, Halifax, Cape Breton and Northern Quebec, were said to have been brought under control.

No casualties were reported from the New Brunswick area around South Paquetville, Gloucester County, where the homes burned Thursday. Reports last night said the eastern fire was fairly quiet, giving the men a much-needed rest.

The only thing feared was an increase in the velocity of the wind such as fanned Thursday's conflagration which raced through South Paquetville, through Range St. George and into North Paquetville, several times jumping open fields from one stand of timber to another. Only a skeleton crew of firefighters remained on the western front.

About 20 miles from Charlottetown a fire of unknown origin threatened other buildings yesterday, but men fighting the blaze said the danger was past.

The Crippling Effect Of Rheumatism

Rheumatism is a constitutional disease caused by an accumulation of uric acid in the blood and is greatly aggravated by cold and dampness. It generally leaves in its train distorted joints, crooked limbs, crippled hands, and the intense pain and agony is almost unbearable.

Burdock Blood Bitters by invigorating the digestive organs, and eliminating the uric acid from the system will help in giving you relief from this torturing trouble.

MR. HENRY THORNTON, Beeton, Ont., writes:—"I have been a well digger for the past fifteen years, and five years ago I got rheumatism in my left hip and knee from the dampness in the wells.

I tried everything I could think of, but nothing seemed to do me any good until our druggist advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, which I did, and it was only a short time until the rheumatism was completely out of my system."

A Chicken Feast

CHICAGO, June 6—(AP). — If Andrew H. Provo, 80, can't find buyers for his eight hens and 11 roosters quickly, he's going to do some intensive "chicken" eating. After neighbors complained that they were disturbed by the barnyard racket originating in the hen-coop on the second floor of Provo's home, Municipal Judge Samuel H. Trude ordered him to dispose of the birds. That was agreeable to Provo. He said that two of his flock were already in the pot.

Seek Body Of Pilot Killed In Crash

In Our Own Province

From a story in the press we take the following excerpts:

Between 200 and 300 militant anti-Fascists were threatening to break up a meeting of blueshirts.

Police reserves battled with the angry demonstrators who threw tomatoes and disputed the right of the foot and mounted constables to clear the sidewalk.

An ugly situation was prevented when police drove anti-Fascists and arrested two men.

A barrage of rotten tomatoes was hurled in his direction. The anti-Fascists were said by police to be mostly Communists.

Where was all this taking place? Right in Toronto, the capital of the province of Ontario. Those who connect the words Fascism and Communism with events which are taking place in other countries may not relish the idea that we in Ontario have the same problem. But we have.

The Examiner believes it knows the feelings of the people of Central Ontario and we are certain these people want neither Communism nor Fascism. We do not want mobs demonstrating on our streets nor police battling with them. We do not want blue shirts or brown shirts or black shirts parading in our land.

A City Paving Plant

The Board of Works did not favor the repaving of Water street from Charlotte to Hunter streets. The cost of such work was estimated at $6,500, and it was felt that this amount of money could be spent to better advantage. Instead of being repaved it will be patched, and of patches there will need to be quite a number. It is an important thoroughfare being part of No. 28 Highway. The present pavement was put down 24 years ago, and the foundation is there as good as ever but it needs to be resurfaced.

In order to do a job like that there ought to be suitable equipment in the City Engineer's department. That is, the city should own and operate its own paving plant. By such a method it would be possible to attend to repair jobs quickly and when that is done the life and excellence of a road is much better preserved than by waiting until it has become unfit for safe travelling.

We have in Peterborough 65 miles of roads, and of this total 16.1 miles have been paved in a permanent way. With a paving plant it would be possible to construct various kinds of roads according to the need of the section served. A good example of that can be found on Burnham street south of Hunter. There has always been a fair amount of traffic on that street and some of it is in the heavy class. Formerly there was a macadam road there. Five years ago it was given what engineers refer to as a "retread." That is stone and ashphalt were used after the road had been levelled and prepared for its new surface. The cost of that road was 44 cents per square yard and at the end of five years it is in good shape. That would indicate that if the city owned its own paving plant it would be able to deal with a good many of our road problems on the same basis. The cost of other roads where pavement must be of a heavier nature in order to stand constant traffic runs from $2.70 to $3 per square yard. We believe the Board of Works is well advised in considering the purchase of a paving plant. A city the size of Peterborough with but 16 of its 65 miles of roadway permanently paved should be in possession of such equipment. We believe it would be a profitable investment.

What Good Will It Do?

A committee of the Ontario Legislature is holding an inquiry to ascertain the manner in which Hydro business has been conducted in this province. At least that in a general way was the stated purpose of the committee. It has been somewhat of a field day for those who wish to justify their past records; it has been quite a time for the telling of what Mr. Roebuck said to Mr. McCullagh of the Globe and Mail and of what the publisher said of Mr. Roebuck. There have been several chapters relating to a supposed understanding of what Mr. Hepburn was going to do if her was to receive the support of the Toronto paper.

Instead of a serious-minded session for fact finding it has become much like a session of the Legislature when members were seeking to justify some particular course rather than explain it and then correct any weakness which had been exposed. There is also in the inquiry evidence of the number of beaten paths there are between offices in Toronto of which the people in the great province of Ontario have known nothing at all previously, and there is also testimony of the fact that many of those in public life are still obsessed with the belief that Hydro — the property of the people — can be managed in a way which leaves the real owners in darkness.

The strike in Oshawa, the by-election in East Hastings, the method of securing and amalgamating the Globe and Mail and Empire—are so far from the point under consideration that one can wonder why they were ever allowed admission. Unless there is an abrupt change of policy there will be no clarity introduced and the public at the conclusion will be left wondering what the inquiry was all about and why it was ever undertaken.

Do The Ducks Know?

It is almost a full ten-year period since people started to wonder about our Western prairie land. Moisture seemed to have departed from it; the ground brought forth no crop in many districts and the dry soil drifted before the winds.

Since that time our wise men have worked on the problem. They have talked and planned man-made works for catching and retaining the rain in season; they would plant many trees to break the force of the wind; others were certain large sections should be abandoned and they added to that the plain statement that the land should never have been cultivated.

In parliaments—provincial and federal—other men have planned relief for the prairie dwellers and they have made grants for seed in the hope of a crop.

In all this there seemed to be nothing definite. Today we read that old-timers in the West have perked up a good deal and all because they have seen some Old Squaw ducks winging their way across the land. One report says the ducks know when there is going to be drought in the land and they left the dry prairies ten years ago and have not been seen since. Not until two days ago.

What it all amounts to we do not know, but the Old Squaw duck which knew enough to leave before the drought came is now coming back. At any rate the duck report on the situation does not cost a ten-cent piece and it may actually mean a great deal.

Henry Ford Says:

Henry Ford is back in Detroit and he is ready to go to work. When Mr. Ford returned to town reporters asked for a statement because he had been in Washington and had been talking with the president.

Of that Mr. Ford had nothing to say, but he did make the plain statement that "we are going to have the greatest era of prosperity and happiness we have ever known."

It may be held that Henry Ford as a prophet lost standing during the first year of the war when he was going to have the troops out of the trenches by Christmas, but he has seen a lot come and go since then and his power of prediction may have improved.

You can do what you please with Mr. Ford's opinion, but it is at least cheering to hear an industrial leader of his standing come plainly to the front and say we are going to see better times in a decided way and that people are going to be happier in consequence. The pessimists have been having their fling, so it is well that Henry Ford has seen fit to rise and say something better.

Two Sides To It

Rev. Gladstone E. Wood, pastor of King street United Church in London, attending the annual Conference at Chatham, brought attention to centre on the old system of billeting delegates to church gatherings in the homes of the people. Mr. Wood thinks the old system is played out and that henceforth people attending conferences or associations as delegates should be prepared to pay their own way and secure lodging in hotels or rooming houses and get their meals in the regular way. The London minister is certain it would look better and would give the gathering a better standing in the eyes of the business men of the community.

There was an association meeting held in Peterborough within recent days, and nearly all the delegates were from the Western part of Ontario. The Examiner knows a number of the people who opened their home for delegates and asked them what they thought about the custom. We wanted to find out if Mr. Wood was right or not and if the taking of delegates was looked upon as a hardship or if it kept any of the ladies from attending the meetings on account of extra work in the home. Without any comment we give three replies:

No 1: We had two delegates in our home and we enjoyed their presence with us. They were not the least trouble and there was actually less work because they insisted on doing things for themselves. I went to more of the meetings than I otherwise would have done because I became interested in them because our delegates were. They had never been in Peterborough before and we had a chance now and then to show them around a little and they were delighted. Also we feel that we know these people and and have added to our list of friends.

No. 2: We had delegates and liked them. One of them I admired so much that I would like to have an outlook similar to hers. She is a home missionary and really has a very small amount to live on but she would not change her place regardless of salary for any other kind of work. We felt it a privilege to have them in the home.

No. 3: I know there is always a lot said about delegates coming to your home, but our place is open for them whenever they desire to come. We found one was like an old friend because she now lives in what was years ago our own town. We found those who stayed with us were devoted people, intensely interested in the cause of missionary work and I only hope we were able to catch a little of their unselfish enthusiasm.

So it looks as though there were two sides to the delegates business.

Taxes And Population

A correspondent sent to the Examiner a clipping from what he describes as a "weekly paper up north." The name of the paper or the town in which it is printed is not known, but in part it was this:

"I realize the tax rate is high for such a a young place, but we are going to grow. We have natural wealth here which will bring more people in. When more people come they will own houses and in that way they will help share the burden we are carrying today. That will be a better day for us all; there will be more to us to carry the common load and therefore less for each of us to pay."

The reader who forwarded the item added a little something about the enthusiasm of a new town "looking forward to the future" as being something encouraging today. We can only hope he is right, but we candidly fear he is wrong.

The history of taxation does not run that way. It is a nice thing to look forward to the day when there will be many more people in the community and when that time comes there will be more to share the costs and therefore less for each ratepayer to carry. We suppose Peerborough is an average city in the matter of growth and development and taxation, so its experience can safely be taken as the experience of other places.

In 1905 this city had a population of 14,175, a tax rate of 18 mills and a tax levy of $114,611, which meant that the per capita amount raised by taxation in that year was $8.08. Without looking up old newspaper files to see what argument was being presented at election times then we are willing to take it for granted there was something said about the cost of municipal government. It may be folk then were thinking if the place grew there would be less taxation for each taxpayer to provide.

A few of the figures for succeeding years show just how it worked out:

Year	Population	Tax Levy	Per Capita
1905	14,175	$114,611	$ 8.08
1910	16,907	210,191	12.43
1915	20.653	339.048	16.41
1920	21,230	570,267	26.86
1930	22,487	904,989	40.24
1936	23,072	923,791	40.04

The Examiner believes other cities have experienced a similar change in population and the per capita rate of taxation. This city has not gone through what might be called a boom when unwise expenditures might be made to burden ratepayers of future years. The reason for the increase in taxation along with an increase in population is not hard to find. There are more people to carry the tax load, but there is an increasing tax load to be carried. More people mean more streets, more pavements, more schools, more hydrants, more city services, and all these cost money.

If that up-and-coming place in the north does grow as expected we fear the taxes will not become less when more people live there. The history of taxation is all against such a desirable thing taking place.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is a little difficult to decide whether Hydro matters are being investigated by a committee or in the columns of the Toronto newspapers.

Ottawa is studying the question of protecting the civil population against air raids. The capital should be airminded at all times in view of the speeches delivered there.

An upswing in business is predicted by an American expert after the harvest and he seems to be one prophet whom everybody hopes will prove to be entirely correct.

Reading the evidence in the Hydro probe one wonders how Premier Hepburn has been able to get any business done with his office cluttered up all the time with Toronto newspaper executives.

Danforth business men are planning a campaign against pan-handling and wine-drinking and the experiment will be watched with interest. If it succeeds we could use something of the same sort here.

MISTAKE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The folks were out the other day, 'twas then I quietly went my way, to get the screen door hung; each year I battle with the thing, but never can I make it swing, my hopes are always strung.

¶ It's always had a nasty sag, and it's inclined to scrape and drag, about it I can't blow; and files will scamper all about, and travel easy in or out, nor is their traffic slow.

¶ I had a new and better plan, I went and got the handy man, he said he'd fix the thing; for doors are putty in his hands, their ways and tricks he understands, for him they'll gaily swing.

¶ He has a way at doing his stuff, nor is he clumsy like or rough and when he's through it's done; his temper stays as sweet as can be, and it seemed very queer to me, he never hit his thumb.

¶ I tarried till the folk came home, and greeted them when quite alone, I swung the door for them; they praised the skill that I displayed, remarked the progress I had made, I ranked with clever men.

¶ Alas I see my blunder now, it's put eight wrinkles in my brow, my happy days are through; they tell me now I am so smart, that I can go ahead and start —there's lots more jobs to do.

Can't Find Work Sitting Down

(From Parliamentary Reports)

JOBLESS IN VANCOUVER

Mr. WARREN: I venture to say that many of these men, at all events, could find work on the farms of the different provinces if they wanted to; but that is the trouble; you cannot get them to take that work after they have been doing government jobs. They do not want that kind of work.

Mr. MacINNIS: Are there any unemployed in the other provinces?

Mr. WARREN: Not in the rural districts. There are plenty of farmers looking for men.

Mr. MITCHELL: Is the fault that of the men who are in the post office and art gallery of Vancouver, or is it the fault of this nation which has not been able to meet their needs for work?

Mr. WARREN: I think it is greatly the fault of the young men there, that they did not get out of Vancouver when they had the money and the price to get out where work was to be found, and to take on the work available.

Mr. MITCHELL: Does that clear us of our responsibility?

Mr. WARREN: I do not see why any governing body should have to take the responsibility for taking care of all of its citizens. If we are going to adopt that sort of attitude —well, what are we drifting to?—just a dictatorship; that is all.

Mr. MacNEIL: Is the hon. member aware that a large number of young men are from the drought areas and could not return to the conditions which obtained there without being a great burden upon those municipalities.

Mr. WARREN: I suppose they are putting in crops in the dried-out areas this year, and in doing that they require help. If they have moisture, they will naturally want to put in crops, and in doing that there would be employment for numbers of these men.

Mr. MacINNIS: The hon. member says that he supposes; is there any indication that a person would get employment if he arrived there? You cannot go to the prairie provinces only on a presumption.

LOANING MONEY

Mr. TAYLOR (Nanaimo): In view of the earlier remarks of the leader of the opposition (Mr. Bennett) and the remarks now made by the Minister of Finance (Mr. Dunning), I should like to know specifically, Mr. Chairman, whether in your judgment I am misinterpreting this resolution. I had no idea that I had done so. I instanced a certain municipality in British Columbia which had a faulty waterworks and desired to improve it; desired to take out the old wooden pipes and replace them with concrete pipes. That is all work which would involve labour, and it would, as I see it, come within the purview and under the provisions of this legislation. Am I correct in so interpreting it?

Mr. DUNNING: You have omitted one essential qualification. The work must be self-liquidating.

Mr. TAYLOR (Nanaimo): Oh, yes. That was in my mind, although I did not state it.

M. BENNETT: And one other qualification.

Mr. DUNNING: The approval of the provincial government.

Mr. BENNETT: One other.

Mr. EULER: It has to provide employment.

Mr. DUNNING: That is the essential basis, yes. Might I ask my hon. friend if there is any unemployment in the municipality concerned?

Mr. TAYLOR (Nanaimo): Yes.

Mr. DUNNING: A great deal? That would be an essential primary condition.

Mr. ELLIOTT (Kindersley): Just to make the resolution unanimous, Mr. Chairman, I wish to endorse it for our group here. I can see that a great deal of credit will be derived from this resolution. I have in mind a problem in Edmonton which for a number of years has been debated, and which has been a financial issue; that is, the additioff of another unit to the electric light plant of the city. I assume that would come under this resolution?

Mr. DUNNING: Provided it comes within the scope of the conditions I have named, yes.

Mr. MITCHELL: Will the minister tell us whether or not the federal government will accept the guarantee of the province of Alberta?

Mr. DUNNING: I am sorry that question was asked.

JAPANESE LOSE FACE.

(A. T. Steele, in Chicago Daily News)

SAIGON, Indo-China. — Throughout southeastern Asia, from Singapore to Saigon, the Japanese have lost face and business as a consequence of their blundering aggressiveness in China. The polyglot populations of the Malayan and Indo-Chinese peninsula who before the war were giving sympathetic consideration to the Pan-Asiatic doctrines preached by smiling good-will ambassadors from Japan now view the activities of their island cousins with emotions of suspicion and dread. They are asking, "who will be next?"

Here is tropical Indo-China, where France holds protectorates over four nations and exercises colonial control over another. French prestige has been strengthened by the Japanese invasion of China. Nationalistic elements which had been clamoring for independence are less noisy now and there is wider recognition of the fact that without the French army to back them up the various Indo-Chinese kingdoms would be at the mercy of any land-hungry neighbor.

The French administration is at least benevolent. The native kings governing under French supervision seem quite content to let the French do all their worrying.

AN HONEST FIRM AT LAST

The professor had called at nine shops in town for his lost walking-stick and had found it in the tenth.

"Thank you so much indeed," he beamed, as he took possession of it. "Do you know, this must be one of the few honest places in town? I've called at nine shops already and in each I was told that they hadn't got it."

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

THE CLUB FLAG

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Why were the Wolf Cub Pack of the fourth troupe so down-hearted looking when they reached the Scout headquarters on May 31? The reason is they started out from their club house with the Union Jack and the Club Flag. They got as far as the C. P. C. on George St., when a car drove up and stopped, a gentleman stepped out and took the Cub Flag from the standard bearer, which was at best an unkind thing. Did this gentleman realize the harm he has done to the troupe and also to himself, especially while on parade for such a grand occasion of the visit of our Governor-General? If this gentleman had a reason that was no time to act.

WESTERN CONTEST

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The Toronto daily newspapers are attempting to present a confused and bewildering picture of the general election campaign now raging in Saskatchewan. They are all complaining that it is a four-party battle, as if the number of parties were the most important issue.

Actually the issue is clear cut and the electors have but one choice to make. The Patterson Government after four years in office has proved itself to be a racket rather than a government. It has acted as a loyal debt-collecting agency for Eastern financiers. It has built up a terroristic relief system, designed solely to strengthen the Liberal party machine on the prairie. A stout defender of capitalism, Patterson has blithely left farmers to the tender mercies of drought and low prices.

The C. C. F. Opposition in the province, ably led by George H. Williams, has consistently fought for the interests of the people against the Patterson tyranny. Both in and out of the Legislature, the C. C. F. has been tireless in exposing the Government and in advancing constructive measures for the betterment of a stricken province.

A ponderous red herring has now invaded the province in the person of Premier William Aberhart. There is no doubt that his followers will get some support chiefly from Liberals disgruntled with the complete failure of the Liberal party to do anything as promised for the cause of monetary reform.

There is also a noise off-stage created by Mr. J. G. Diefenbaker, who is trying vainly to resurrect the Conservative party. The Conservatives did not hold a single seat in the last Legislature and nobody takes Mr. Diefenbaker seriously except the Toronto Daily Clarion which persists in believing there is Tory strength on the prairie.

A third distraction is the plea made by a handful of Communists that the C. C. F. should abandon its name, its program and its fine record in the West to embark on a vote-catching alliance with Social Crediters and assorted opportunists of allegedly progressive leanings. The Social Crediters of course are not interested, their great leader having declared that he "would rather vote Liberal than C. C. F." and the other "progressives" are few in number. The Communist manoeuvre is merely an attempt to prevent the election of a C. C. F. Government. Such a manoeuvre is treason to Socialism when a Socialist power is making a bid for power.

The statement issued by Mr. George Williams this week indicates that the C. C. F. drive is gaining strength. Whatever the result, the Saskatchewan C. C. F. can be trusted to strike a great blow for Socialism in Canada. The whole Dominion will watch the province make its choice on June 8th between the old order and the new.

DOES NOT AGREE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: In your paper June 3rd, I noticed the account of the council meeting where G. N. Gordon does not think the facts stated by me are correct. I would just like to say I have proof for the facts I stated and I can also prove that G. N. Gordon did not defend the boys in the case I mentioned. In this particular case those boys were not charged with "attempted burglary" but charged with "breaking and entering." If Mr Gordon does not know the first duty of a policeman I will be only to glad to tell him. It is to prevent crime, not to encourage it.

If Mr. Gordon thoroughly agreed with the action of the commission in regard to my dismissal from the force, may I ask why he wrote to Mayor Hamilton to have me reinstated and why did he convince me I had not been given a fair deal. I was advised by the Attorney-General's Department to put my complaints before the commission and they know more about the complaints than Mr. Gordon does.

NOT CALLED FOR

Editor Examiner:

Sir: In the Examiner we read a report of the Board of Works meeting held Thursday night. This body being the citizens representatives it is only natural to expect that any legitimate request tendered by any of our citizens would be treated with common courtesy rather than a joke or insult.

In dealing with the request J. O. Fife superintendent of the sewage disposal plant for an increase of salary, the Board decided to take no action. One Alderman seemingly had more courage than all the others stripped himself of all dignity and came to the low level in making reference to his personal matters in which the board has no jurisdiction over whatever. It was simply a question of remuneration for services rendered.

• Completes A Hard First Year

(By F. D. R. in Brantford Expositor)

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN, Premier of Great Britain, has completed his first year in that position and there will be quite a widespread feeling that he has made good.

He has had a difficult task in following Stanley Baldwin, who always inspired complete confidence and who enjoyed the respect and the trust of the people to an extent almost beyond parallel in the case of other occupants of the position.

Chamberlain had scarcely assumed the reins when a number of correspondents, largely of the U. S. variety, commenced to intimate that he was not the man for the job and that Winston Churchill might be asked to take hold.

There is no more brilliant personality in England than the said Churchill, but even those who admire his qualities the most would feel some qualms with regard to his efficient occupancy of the post of First Minister.

A devastating critic and an exceptionally fine speaker, whether in the House or on the platform, he apparently lacks the elements of stability which the residents of the Old Land desire in their public leaders. This is largely the reason for his exclusion from all the recent Cabinets.

Meanwhile Chamberlain has held steadily on his way manifesting calm judgment in more than one threatening situation and holding to his own opinions in a firm though not dogmatic manner, as it is recorded that he is always ready to consider the viewpoints of his colleagues.

The most disturbing incident in connection with his Cabinet centred around the resignation of Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, with whose course, more particularly towards Italy, the Prime Minister did not agree.

There are those who consider that Eden was absolutely right in his attitude and others who regard him as a good deal of a visionary but with his disappearance there can be no doubt that a better understanding has been reached with Mussolini. Many people, however, still think that Il Duce will not carry out his part in the new relationship but that remains to be seen.

At any rate some accord was reached at a time when the Berlin-Rome Axis seemed to be most threatening and public apprehension was at once relieved to that extent.

Under Chamberlain's auspices the armament expenditures of John Bull have been greatly increased on land and sea and in the air, while still further outlays of a colossal nature are to be undertaken.

At the same time no one doubts that these preparations are for peace and not aggression and that Britain's First Minister and his associates are bending every effort to bring about a solution of many European threats and difficulties without a resort to arms.

In this regard there cannot be much question that the British attitude has thus far had a restraining effect upon the Czechoslovakian situation, although this may yet cause a major flare-up, while the latest effort is to seek an armistice in war-torn Spain.

At this moment Neville Chamberlain is occupying the most difficult of all world positions but he has had a wonderful training for the herculean task.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND IN THE synagogue there was a man, which had a spirit of an unclean devil, and cried out with a loud voice, saying, Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? Art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art; the Holy One of God.

And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. And when the devil had thrown him in the midst, he came out of him, and hurt him not.

And they were all amazed, and spake among themselves, saying, What a word is this! for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean spirits, and they come out. And the fame of him went out into every place of the country round about. . . .

Now when the sun was setting, all they that had any sick with divers diseases brought them unto him; and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them.

And devils also came out of many, crying out, and saying, Thou art Christ the Son of God. And he rebuking them suffered them not to speak: for they knew that he was Christ.—Luke iv, 33-37, 40, 41.

COSTLY FOR ALBERTA.

(Lethbridge Herald)

IT'S COSTING Alberta taxpayers a lot of money to fight the general election in Saskatchewan in which they have not the slightest financial or other interest.

Here's the accounting:

Premier Aberhart at $30 a day and expenses.

Hon. Solon Low at $25 a day and expenses.

Hon. W. A. Falow at $25 a day and expenses.

Hon. D. B. Mullen at $25 a day and expenses.

Hon. N. E. Tanner at $25 a day and expenses.

Hon. E. C. Manning at $25 a day and expenses.

Hon. Lucien Maynard at $25 a day and expenses.

Ten private Social Credit M.L.A.'s at least $8 a day each expenses.

Figure it out and ask yourself where the money is coming from, and why Albertans should be called upon to pay this high figure to fight an election in a friendly neighbor province.

DOES NOT NEED PENSION.

(Niagara Falls Review)

ONE CAN understand the opposition of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett to provision for a pension of $5,000 for Hon. Phillipe Roy, who is retiring as Canadian minister to France. It is pointed out that for the past ten years he has been receiving a salary of $12,000 a year, plus $13,000 as living allowance. For twenty-seven years Mr. Roy has worthily represented Canada, until a decade ago as commissioner-general, during all that time having received handsome emoluments. Most other people drawing large salaries over a period of years, are expected to make some provision for themselves. There will be many people who figure that Mr. Roy should be able to get along from now on under his own steam.

CAMPBELLFORD

Town Provides Parking Lot For Its Shoppers

(Examiner Correspondence).

CAMPBELLFORD, June 6.—Work on the parking lot which is located on the west side of the town will begin immediately, it was revealed at the meeting of the Town Council held on Friday evening. The lot on which the Armory is situated is being utilized for this purpose and it was stated that Major Free, who is in charge of the building, had given his approval. Mayor F. F. Long indicated the land could be put in condition with a very small expenditure and that all that was necessary at present was the installation of lights and cutting down of weeds. Councillor James L. Dorie, who has opposed the project, refused to take charge of the work, holding to his opinion that a majority of the property owners on the west side of the town were not in favor of it. On motion of Councillor Battisby and Deputy Reeve Percy Locke, the matter was left in the hands of the property committee, of which Mr. Dorie is the chairman.

No Action Taken.

A letter from the English Line Egg Circle asking permission to use the parking lot on Front Street as a driveway to give easier access to the adjoining property of Thomas Rowe was discussed and no action taken. Councillor Macmillan voiced his objection to the parking lot being used as a private thoroughfare after the town had spent $600 in fixing it for the benefit of all.

A communication from the Council of the town of Kitchener suggesting that all persons between the ages of 21 and 60 and neither a tenant or landowner, should pay a head tax of $5, and asking the local council to forward a copy of the resolution to the Minister of Municipal Affairs, received no action.

On motion of Deputy Reeve Locke and Councillor Donald, it was decided to accept the offer of a Kingston contractor to make repairs to the pavements in town filling with bituminum the excavation made by the Bell Telephone Company and the Water and Light Commission and also repairing all other cracks in the streets, at the rate of 90 cents per foot for the excavations and $250 for repairing all cracks. It was pointed out that the cost of the work caused by both the Telephone Company and the Commission would be borne by them.

When it was revealed by Councillor MacMillan that nothing further had been done regarding a fence on the south side of Hastings Road, Councillor McColl suggested the agreement with the Department of Highways be again considered by the Legal Committee who will investigate the matter thoroughly and bring in a report at the next meeting.

Live In Jail.

During a discussion of supplies for the local jail, in which it was decided to place two new mattresses, Councillar Macmillan drew attention to the large amount of coal that was used during the past winter. This, he claimed, was due to the place being left open to transients, one of whom, it was stated by Mr. Macmillan, remained as a guest of the town for three months during the winter while he held a position with a road gang. It was decided that a lock should be purchased for the back door of the police station. Reeve Calver presented a bylaw for the transfer of the two lots owned by the town to A. Rapport, who had purchased them for the sum of $10, plus the cost of the necessary deeds. The petition presented by five restaurant owners asking the council to take steps to prevent the opening of any further establishments of this nature was discussed and no action taken.

Tax Collector J. C. Birmingham told the council that $523.18 had been collected in tax arrears during the month of May, and that during the same month $945.24 had been collected on 1938 taxes.

Relief Officer J. Lewis Hay reported one request for relief had been made to him on doctor's orders and two others had asked for assistance during the month.

The question of certain fixtures having been removed from a house purchased by D. W. Grills at the tax sale was brought to the attention of the council by Mr. Grills. He claimed that a sink and cupboard had been removed from the house before the keys had been turned over to him, and claimed the town was responsible for the items. On motion of Councillors McGoll and Battisby, the matter was referred to the town solicitor, who was instructed to bring in a report at the next meeting.

Branch Notes

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH.

On Monday the final meeting for the spring season was held and arrangements were made for the summer months.

The branch is repeating the play, "Sis Perkins," on June 18th, at a strawberry social to be held in the United Church, Bridgenorth.

The members are anticipating an excellent tennis season this year. Don Menzies has been appointed sports convenor, and with the help of the boys a splendid job is being done on the courts. Two new nets and new wire have been purchased.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH.

A delightful tennis tea was held in Nicholls Oval on Wednesday evening, opening the tennis season of St. John's A.Y.P.A., with Rev. R. J. F. Brain attending. The tea was very much enjoyed and arrangements for it were in charge of Huda Douglas and Alex Chivas. Softball and tennis were indulged in until the close of the evening. The tennis committee is Alex. Chivas, Wilf Gynane and Charles Jeffries, and Huda Douglas and Eileen Gynane.

ONTARIO PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE.

The committees of the Peterborough Conference Committee for the Provincial Conference are hard at work and their efforts are running along smoothly. The billeting committee reports that their work is meeting a fine response from the people of the four parishes in the City. Quite a number of billets have been promised, but there are by no means enough of them obtained yet. If there are any persons who would be willing to take in a young delegate in October, it would be greatly appreciated if they would get in touch with the billeting convenor in their particular parish or with Miss Florence Hutchinson, the general billeting convenor.

The catering committee has arranged for the meals for the different days of the conference and have submitted their menus to the Provincial Council for their approval. These meals will be handled by various women's organizations of the four city churches. The arrangements for the Saturday evening banquet are being made and further news of this will be made known as soon as the details are available.

The reception committee has been formed and are working on plans for receiving over five hundred delegates to this city when the Provincial Conference convenes here in October. In co-operation with this committee, there is the transportation committee, which is planning a sight-seeing tour of Peterborough and as far away as the floating bridge at Chemong, as well as making arrangements for taking delegates to their billets.

The church services to be held during conference are under the supervision of the district council chaplain, Rev. H. Johnston, of Omemee. This takes in the Thursday evening rally service, Friday morning corporate communion, and the Saturday installation service for the new officers of the Provincial Council.

Arrangements for the Friday evening entertainment has been left in the hands of the program committee, under the chairmanship of Miss Queenie Hope. Any suggestions in this regard will be gratefully accepted by Miss Hope and her committee.

All these committees are working together so that the theme of the conference, "Fourfold living for Christ and the Church," may be successfully presented to the delegates in October, so that this conference will be the very best ever held in the Province of Ontario.

Any assistance which the young people of the branches of the A.Y.P.A. may be able to render the conference committee will be greatly appreciated by them.

Keeping Their Eyes On Clyde Beatty

It is said the big cats always keep their eyes on the boss man and here's the proof. Although Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Beatty—stars of Cole Bros. Circus—respond to the photographer's demands, the lion and tiger atop the 1938 Studebaker coupe keep their eyes glued on thei rtrainer. The picture was made just before the circus started its 1938 tour. The circus will be in Peterborough on Tuesday.

With The Boy Scouts

A letter of appreciation received as follows:

Dear Mr. Hornsby.—I desire to thank you as Chief of the Boy Scouts of Peterborough district for the splendid manner in which you and other scout leaders and the scouts themselves, co-operated with the city in making for the success, from an official viewpoint, of the visit of the Governor General.

The scouts had a splendid turnout, and I know that the Governor General was impressed by them.

Kindly convey my thanks to those associated with you in this effort. Yours very truly, Jas. Hamilton.

Mayor.

The boys were accompanied by their parents on this occasion. Instructions were given in knots, Union Jack, signalling, and first aid. At Red Flower, our old friend, Gerald Grady led the boys German kazoo band, Akela Bob Baldwin told the boys an interesting story.

Scouter Bill McKenzie was a welcomed guest at the meeting.

For patrol competition double points will be given to anyone passing handyman's badge during the next month. At a special meeting the P.L.'s were given instruction on behaviour. The patrol leaders will have full control of the next meeting. Our old Scouter, Mike Crough, will pay the troop a series of visits during the next few weeks.

On Sunday the cubs and scouts attended church parade. A.D.C. Lew Grant, Akela L. Bull, Bagherra F. Lemmings and Scouter F. Ford with several boys from St. John's and St. Paul's attended, with the St. Andrew's boys on this occasion.

All Saints' cub pack were practising their new formations and several new games were introduced. Sixer Cameron Shannon lost the blue silk neckerchief to Sixer Stan Alexander in the sixer competition, whilst the Yellow six won the Six pennant from the White six. Akela Miss Whalen was a visitor during the evening. The Red six will meet at Akela's home on Monday evening (tonight) from 7 to 8 o'clock.

A large turnout of cubs was on hand at St. John's to receive instruction in signalling, first aid, compass and knot tying. Several boys proved efficient and passed tests.

A special meeting of the mother's auxiliary was held on Friday afternoon and it was decided to hold a garden tea at the home of Mrs. Dobson, 245 Engleburn Avenue, on Wednesday, June 8, at 3 p.m. A sale of home-made cooking will be held at the same time. Everyone is urged to support this, as the funds are towards the cub camp. All cubs are urged to be present next Friday when important announcements will be made regarding the cub jamboree and St. John's troop church parade. The St. John's cub parents' night has been postponed until Friday, June 24.

The cub leaders who attended the training course are asked to turn in their note books to A.D.C. L. A. Grant, on or before June 15. The course finished last Wednesday and final results for successful candidates who have won their certificates must be sent to provincial headquarters at once.

What are the final instructions regarding the Bill Coleman Memorial Trophy Competition.

The St. Johns Rover Crew have gained the support of the St. John's A.Y.P.A., and the combined groups are putting on a strawberry social and entertainment on Wednesday, June 22, at 6 p.m. The Rovers ask all friends of scouting to keep this date open and come along and enjoy a pleasant evening on the lawn to the east of the church.

Attention, Mothers.

A meeting of the committee of representatives who are helping in the booths at the Exhibition Grounds during the cub jamboree on Saturday, June 18, will be held in the headquarters of the local association on Wednesday evening, June 8, at 7.30 p.m. The headquarters are situated over the stores at the northeast corner of George and Brock streets, opposite Turnbull's flower shop. Go on the first door north of Watson's tire shop. Any cub mother who is interested and has no auxiliary attached to go, is cordially invited to attend. All auxiliary reresentatives are urged to be on hand.—The Skipper.

Brintons Beat C.C.F. 8 to 1 In League Game

The strong team of the Brinton Athletic proved too much for the C.C.F. in league game on Saturday afternoon, when Brintons won by the score of 8 to 1. The losers deserve credit for the sportsmanship shown in bringing and encouraging the youth in the game.

An Early Score.

Within two minutes Brinton were up a goal when Richardson connected from a corner kick. This was followed by another when G. Downer travelled down the wing to beat the defence on a tackle to find the corner of the net, giving Chamberlain no chance to save. The Politicians came into prominence through their effective passing, which gave J. Mayette the opening, to leave Smelt in possession from a perfect cross to reduce the count.

A little later, Dyer made an effort to break down the strong defence as he travelled towards goal, but Crennell diverted the ball upfield again. Plan run from end to end, until finally Adams made it 3 to 1 when he broke through the centre. A foul against the C.C.F. custodian for carrying the ball too far, resulted in making the score stand at the interval: Brinton 4, C.C.F. 1.

Ten Men Aside.

On resuming, the game was very keen whenever the forwards came within sight of the citadel. This gave the half-backs the action they desired to make the game wide open. Ten minutes later, G. Downer scored the fifth counter as he rattled the net high up in the rigging. The players action thereafter proved detrimental to the play, when Art Downer and Smelt received the referees notice to leave the field of play. Towards the end, Leether added two more, and G. Downer to make it: Brinton 8, C.C.F. 1.

C.C.F.—J. Chamberlain, goal; G. McDonald and F. Lawrence, full backs; E. Jobe, S. Jones and J. Mayette, halves; J. Thorn, R. Smelt, F. Dyer, J. McLellan, and F. Mayette, forwards. Sub.—W. Denisin.

Brinton. — C. Crennell, goal; A. Todd and N. Downer, full backs; A. Downer, E. Jones, and J. McLeod, halves; S. Clarke, J. Richardson, T. McMaster, D. Leether, G. Downer, forwards. Subs.—A. Downer, A. Adkinson and H. Adams.

Referee—W. Downer.

Skunk, Fox-Rabbit Chase, 4-Lb. Trout Give Tourist Treat In One Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Tweed, June 6.

FISHING at Dickey Lake, on Friday afternoon, an American fisherman was treated to three back-to-nature studies which probably will be remembered.

Enroute to the lake via the old Bancroft Road, the American tourist just north of Madoc, encountered a full grown skunk which gave indication of disputing the right of way. Halting the car the company waited until the skunk with tail still aloft ambled slowly into the roadside bush.

Renting a boat at the lake the fisherman became aware of a disturbance in the woods. Then hotly pursued by a fox which loped rapidly just behind, a frightened rabbit broke into a little clearing, bounded from the shore into the lake water and paddled desperately along the edge. The fox, sighting the spectators, disappeared into the bush.

To climax the day's event, the fisherman managed to capture just at the close of the fishing, a nine-pound trout to add to the small catch earlier in the afternoon.

TORONTO, June 6 (C.P.)—Senior teams in the Ontario Rugby Football Union will open their 1938 schedule on October 10, Thanksgiving Day, with games in Toronto and Montreal, it was announced, following a special meeting here on Saturday night.

Opening games will see Sarnia Imperials, 1937 champions, meet Balmy Beach at Toronto, and Peterborough at Montreal. An arrangement was made at the meeting whereby a certain percentage of all gates would be pooled, proceeds to be divided equally between the four clubs at the end of the season.

Officials, Coaches to Meet.

Golf Notes

R. Abbott Tops Again.

Match play against par was the contest held here on Saturday, and despite the rain, a large field of mashie wielders battled it out to the finish against the "old man," but the bets that could be done was to break even, and that was done by R. Abbott, who proved to be the best muder of the day, finishing with a score of 73 to be all square with "old man par." His nearest rivals were well behind 5 down, 5 to par being the next best three players, tied for second place marbles, so they split 2nd and 3rd prizes. They were W. J. Hardill, D. B. Falkner and E. R. Taylor. Other results were:

J. Wham, 6 down; J. H. Vernor, 6 down; A. Donnelly, 6 down; W. F. Huycke, 6 down; M. G. Harill, 6 down; J. McKrecher, 6 down; C. B. Shaver, 7 down; S. Payne, 7 down; H. T. Cranford, 7 down; Eric Westbye, 7 down; F. Falkner, 8 down; Les Reid, 9 down; O. R. Degraw, 9 down; R. L. Dobbin, 10 down; G. Munro, 10 down; C. V. Elliott, 10 down; G. Maniece, 10 down; J. F. Strickland, 10 down; D. T. Diplock, 10 down.

Friday, June 3, 1938, the ladies of the Peterborough Golf Club were the guests at the Lindsay club and came home victorious by the close margin of 16 to 14 pts. Peterborough representatives were: Miss L. Lyle, Mrs. C. Sootheran, Mrs. G. A. Wood, Mrs. C. G. Graham, Mrs. O. A. Degraw, Mrs. J. J. Hall, Mrs B. D. Hall, Mrs. L. Scott, Mrs. J. H. Vernor, Mrs. R. Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THOUGH, strongly advised to take a raincoat to the ball game on Saturday, we declined—saying we would be under cover but maybe the players could use a raincoat or two. And they certainly could have. It drizzled nearly all through the fixture, and the tilt was finally called late in the seventh when a heavy downpour started. Coach Bob Elliott and his Kingston Ponies no doubt now wish it had poured pups and pussies from noon on, after absorbing that 11-0 licking they took at the hands of the Petes. The locals grabbed off their first win in three starts and left no doubt about it. Every C.O.B.L. game to date this year has been a shutout and the Petes have been blanked twice, but Saturday they scored more runs than both their rivals combined so far this summer. Took 'em 20 innings to cross the plate but then they crossed it so often that the old platter is as worn down as a 20-years-married hubby! Dunno how long since it was that a team took such a licking.

* * * * * * *

GAME only went seven innings, minus one more putout. In that time, Frank (Lefty) McNally, our new twirler, fanned 10 men and let 'em down with five hits—one a scratch bingle. This U.S. flinger looks good. He reminded us a lot of our own Frankie Whitehouse, before he turned pro with Baltimore. Has all kinds of class out there and certainly knows what it's all about. He southpaws that apple across the platter with plenty of speed, throws the odd sharp-breaking hook and has a change of pace. What is mort important—where lefthanders are concerned—he has control. Yeah, McNally will be a big help, we imagine, to the Petes this semester. He looks like a pitcher. The same young tosser looks like a hitter up at the plate, too.

* * * * * * *

AS FAR AS the game went, it was draggy. Especially after the third inning. Only went seven but the last three or four were pretty dull for the customers. Chiefly on account of the big local lead, but also due to the lack of pep of the Ponies. And the rain. Ed Poller, the Ponies southpaw from the States, looked bad. He was wild to start and the rain finished him. Couldn't hold the ball at all for control. Walked eight men and threw four wild pitches, as well as hitting a man. We don't doubt he is good at times, else how could he fan 10 of the GM-men and hold 'em to two hits? But he didn't have a thing Saturday. Rube Boon—dunno where he hails from—took over in the fourth and went a bit better, but wasn't a world-beater. No, the Ponies were well beaten by the Petes this time.

* * * * * * *

AL CLARK and Bob Doll got two hits apiece for the locals, and Cliff Cadd banged out a lengthy triple. None of the Ponies got two hits, the side generally being retired in order, with one or two strikeouts an inning. Only threatened twice, once being nipped at the plate and the other time leaving a guy dying on third. Nice catches were made by Burton and Handford, and the latter conked a double for the losers. It was a nice game for four or five innings to watch, if you came from Peterborough, but the one-sided count and the weather naturally spoiled things. We had some 600 fans on hand—a tribute to the new hurler—but it might have been a record crowd on a swell sunny day. For years now, ball fans here have been saying: "Heck, what we need is a good lefthand pitcher." Well, they've got one.

* * * * * * *

NOT MUCH ELSE to say about the tilt. Perfect pitching for the Petes, some timely hitting, and wildness on the part of Poller. That's the story. All runs were earned, but Poller was wilder than six hawks. Deadey did some neat base-running. Al Clark didn't have a fielding chance, nor did Deadey. And Cadd at first had but one. All highly unusual in baseball. The Ponies were beaten from the third on and did plenty of growling at each other on the bench. The Petes don't play again till Saturday when they got o Oshawa and watch those GM-men worry in the meantime!

* * * * * * *

MAY SEEM a bit odd to get 11 runs on eight hits, but Dan McCabe, oldtime one-armed ace twirler for Peterborough, recalls a queerer case. Back in the good old hoss-and-buggy days, Lindsay ball moguls decided to knock of ftheir ancient enemies from this town, so they brought down a pro pitcher from Toronto, a gee named Dooney Hardy, later with the Cubs. He was a pip, too, and struck out 21 local batsmen that first game. Who won? Well, the Petes took a 14-5 victory—on account of the Scugog catcher couldn't hold up the Toronto tosser and it became a Peterborough parade around the sacks, despite grand flinging! Dan hit a homer. Some of the local ballsters of that era included: Chris Graham, Dan McCabe, Art Thompson, Jack Sheridan, Bill Grady, Jack Connors, Jack Mulhall, Dr. A. Scott and Wallie Parnell.

* * * * * * *

THIS ITEM was clipped Saturday from Bun Morganson's column in the Tely: "If present arrangements come through as expected, the Toronto Baseball Club will operate a farm team in Kingston next summer. The team will carry the several young players Howley has under contract and others now being scouted by Clyde Engle. They will play in the Canadian-American League." For the past three years, Kingston has been rumored as going pro in baseball, but nothing has come of it yet—and we doubt if the town would support a professional club. Doesn't even pay an amateur team's expenses.

* * * * * * *

PREXY H. A. CRANFIELD and Walter Jackson, business manager, of the local Orfuns attended the schedule meeting of the senior O.R.F.U. in Toronto on Saturday. And this is the schedule: Oct. 10—Sarnia at Balmy Beach, Peterborough at Montreal; Oct. 15—Balmy Beach at Peterborough, Montreal at Sarnia; Oct. 27—Sarnia at Peterborough, Montreal at Balmy Beach; Oct. 29—Sarnia at Montreal, Peterborough at Balmy Beach; Nov. 5—Montreal at Peterborough, Balmy Beach at Sarnia; No. 12—Balmy Beach at Montreal, Peterborough at Sarnia. Two top teams then playoff in home and home games for the group title. So we open on Thanksgiving Day in Mo'real and finish day after Armistice at Sarnia. Meantime having three home games and a short hike to Toronto. A good schedule for the local gridders.

Peterboro' Club Won In Cricket

As the school match between the Grove and St. Andrew's arranged for Saturday at the Oval had to be cancelled, the two local clubs again fought for local supremacy. On May 24 the older club won by 48 to 32, and repeated their win on Saturday by 94 to 40. This was mainly due to a freely hit 39 by Captain Frank Dyer; he hit hard and often, and his score included seven boundaries. The following is the full score and analysis:

Giants Tumble To 2nd Place, Cubs Take Lead

New York Giants, if they aren't too busy wondering what has happened to their batting averages during the past week or so, probably are wishing Kipling had been right when he wrote that the East and West never shall meet.

The Giants are down in second place in the National League now, a half-game behind Chicago Cubs, as a result of their fruitless western invasion. They're the same players who recently were breezing along with a five-game lead.

The Giants got only three hits yesterday as they took a 4-1 drubbing from Cincinnati Reds after losing 11-2 on Saturday and finally lost their lead to Chicago, which belted over the Phillies 7-1.

The Reds wrecked Clyde Castleman's mound effort in the eighth when Buck McCormick's 16th double of the season brought in two runs and Harry Craft singled McCormick home. With Tex Carleton hurling steadily for his sixth victory, the Cubs hammered "Losing Pitcher" Mulcahy for three runs in the fourth and four in the seventh with doubles by Carleton and Ken O'Dea sending home most of the tallies.

Cincinnati climbed into fourth place as Brooklyn Dodgers belted over Pittsburgh Pirates 10-5. A six-run sixth inning in which 11 men went to the plate turned the trick for Brooklyn.

Martin Doubles in Two.

Boston's third-place Bees got only an even break in a twin bill at St. Louis. They dropped the opener 6-5 when Pepper Martin doubled home two runs with a pinch hit in the ninth and then came on sliding in when Elbie Fletcher made a wild peg. Then they hammered out a 10-3 victory in the afterpiece behind Milt Shoffner.

Cleveland Indians, who were expected to receive a few lumps during an American League eastern tour, continued to confound their critics by beating Washington 5-4 in 10 innings. It was their fourth triumph in five games since they left home and put them four full games ahead of New York Yankees, who dropped a 6-5 decision to St. Louis Browns in what started out as a double-header, but finished as one game and several thundershowers.

Tigers Blast Red Sox.

Detroit Tigers and Chicago White Sox ended losing streaks without getting anywhere. The Tigers, after four losses, came back to blast Boston Red Sox for nine runs in the second and won 10-4. The White Sox, who had dropped 10 in a row, hammered the Athletics to win the first game of a double-header 8-2 behind Monte Stratton's six-hit flinging, but went down 7-6 in the second clash.

Cleveland defeated Washington 11-4 on Saturday, while Boston knocked over Detroit Tigers 5-3. Philadelphia won from Chicago White Sox 9-4. Rain cancelled the scheduled American League tilt at New York between St. Louis and the Yanks.

St. Louis Cards lost 8-5 to Boston Bees on Saturday, and Brooklyn last a 4-3 decision to Pittsburgh. Chicago Cubs won 5-1 from Philadelphia.

Orillia Terriers Beat Brampton

BRAMPTON, June 6.—Playing Coach Bucko McDonald led his Orillia Terriers back into a first-place tie with St. Catherines in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior race here on Saturday night by scoring five goals, as Terriers laced the local Excelsiors, 12 to 5, in one of the wildest games in a long time.

McDonald, the same "Bouncing Bucko" of Detroit hockey renown, accounted for five of his team's twelve goals and shared individual honors with Brampton's young goaltender, Duke Savage, who was pinch-hitting for the injured Bert Large.

The rugged play which characterized the pastime threatened to turn the game into a riot as the teams headed into the fourth and last quarter. Four match penalties had to be allotted by Referees Max Peart of Port Colborne and his sidekick, Marty Cahill of St. Catharines, as the players sought to take matters into their own hands.

Fights 'n' Everything

Two fist fights, the first involving Mooney Gibson and Ernie Curran, and a later one between big Jerry Connell and Kelly DeGray, came in the final minutes of the game, and match penalties were given the principals. Gibson figured in a first-period scrap with George Coles, to, and on that occasoin each was given a major penalty.

Wright driving in two runs in the second heat with a double for the only tallies. The local squad lost out in the finals to Queensville, a strong squad picked from Toronto and Newmarket. PETES WHITEWASH THE KINGSTON PONIES 11-0 IN C.O.B.L. TILT

Lefty McNally Pitches the Petes To Their First Victory Of Season In Fine Performance

Poller Is Sent To Showers In Fourth Frame

Kingston Ponies suffered an 11-0 coat of whitewash at the hands of the Petes here Saturday in the fourth consecutive C.O.B.L. shutout this season. Played in a drizzle of rain before 600 fans, the game was terminated in the last half of the seventh inning during a heavy downpour. The result did not materially change the loop standing but tightened the race up.

The Petes' new southpaw from the States, Frank (Lefty) McNally, mowed down the Ponies in a masterful pitching performance in the abbreviated contest. His whistling fast ball and sharp hook had his rivals helpless, 10 of them going down on strikes and only two getting as far as third base all afternoon. McNally allowed but five hits, one of them quite scratchy, while walking three—one free ticket being deliberate. He was never in trouble and made an excellent Central League debut.

While they had fine flinging, the Petes stepped out and played first-rate ball. Their fielding was good, though some of the players had no chances at all to handle, and they hit in timely fashion as well as taking full advantage of plenty of walks and wild pitches. They ran bases well, too. The Ponies fielded well under the circumstances, but were unable to give their twirlers any help with the willow.

Ed Poller, imported U.S. forksider for Bob Elliott's gang, was as wild as a hawk. With a tendency toward wildness at the start, the wet ball finished him and he issued eight walks and had four wild pitches in the three frames he toiled. He left early in the fourth, having eight earned runs and four hits against him, and no strikeouts. Bob Elliott, behind the plate, was a bit unsteady himself and failed to help his hurler a great deal. Rube Boon, right fielder, took over the mound and made a better job of it the rest of the route. He was touched for three runs, four hits and a walk as he fanned one.

Leads Hitters

Al Clark and Bob Doll led the hitters with two safeties apiece. Cliff Cadd connected for a long triple against the wind to right field in the sixth, scoring a run. None of the ponies got more than one safe blow, but Hanford hit a two-bagger. Fielding features were catches by Burton — up on the bank in left—and Hanford (running back) and a Handford-to-Scrutton double play in the second stanza.

Scrutton was thrown out at the plate in the first, trying to score from first on a long single by Elliott. McIntyre hit safely in the second but was forced out. The Ponies threatened in the third with two out when Scrutton singled and Handford doubled. Elliott was deliberately walked and McIntyre struck out to end that. They did not look dangerous again, though Wilson got a hit in the fifth, Elliott was safe on an error in the sixth and Webber walked in the seventh—none reaching second. Meantime, McNally was fanning one and two an inning.

Score in Second

Clark's hit was wasted in the first but the Petes got two runs in the second. Burton and Whatley walked, moving up on a wild pitch. Burton scored on another wild heave as Cy took third. Deadey walked in the meantime and took second. Cadd's hard grounder to third had Deadey caught off second but he got back in a run-down after Whatley had scored. McNally walked but a double-play finished the frame. They got three next heat on singles by Murphy and Doll, three walks to Whatley, Deadey and Cadd, with two wild pitches and two steals thrown in.

The Petes added three in the fourth on walks to Calladine and Clark, Murphy being hit by a pitch and singles by McNally and Doll. Two more counted for Eddie Murphy's squad in the fifth canto. Cadd was safe on a miscue but was forced by McNally. The latter took second on Calladine's singled an third on a wild pitch. Both crossed the plate when Clark got his second hit of the game. In the sixth, Deadey got to first when hit by the pitcher. He stole second and scored on Cadd's mighty triple to right. With two out in the seventh, Murphy walked and took second on a passed ball, but a heavy downpour of rain forced the umpires to call the contest.

Giants Score 9 In 54 Innings

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP).—No wonder those Giants are nose-diving ...They scored the grand total of nine runs in their last 54 innings... Incidentally, wouldn't it be the height of something or other if terrible Terry, who's frantic search for a second-sacker, wangled Tony Lazzeri from the Cubs and brought him back to New York—but in the National League.

The Indians have signed their classy third-base rookie, Ken Keltner, for 1939 already..Around town you hear that if Chuck Dressen doesn't want Burleigh Grimes' job at Brooklyn, Lippy Leo Durocher or Frankie Frisch might land it.... Chuck's first choice, but it seems he's getting about 10 G's in Nashville—with lots less headaches.

George Earnshaw has just released by the Buswicks, the Brooklyn semi-pros who signed Waite Hoyt only last week..Barney Ross, who lost his world's welterweight boxing title to Henry Armstrong last week, is going into business with his father-in-law, A. R. Seigal.

How Doth the Busy Little Bee?

Improving the shining hour by fortifying the inner man with huge quantities of Italian dynamite is Vince DiMaggio of the Boston Bees, a firm believer in the theory that the consumption of large quantities of spaghetti and large batting averages go hand in hand. Apparently Vince hasn't been eating enough of this delicacy this year (see averages). But when he does . . . well, note the nifty technique.

Man Who Forced Son To Hold Hot Coal Guarded From Mob

Brighton, Eng., June 6 (AP) POLICE Saturday night placed a heavy guard about the home of Stanley Parrack, 37-year-old Royal Air Force aircraftsman, who was fined £25 ($125) in Magistrate's court for forcing his 7-year-old son to hold hot coals in his hands as a punishment.

A crowd of 1,500 persons gathered about Parrack's home and threatened to lynch him. Parrack and his wife were taken away secretly to spend the week-end elsewhere.

Anxious Dizzy Worries Grimm

CHICAGO, June 6 (AP)..—Manager Charlie Grimm of Chicago Cubs admits that $185,000 worth of pitching arm is "something to worry about."

Dizzy Dean, who cost the Cubs that much money, has been fairly itching to get back into action after a layoff because of arm soreness—and for more reasons than one, Grimm will be glad to hear the doctor say that Dean is ready, an announcement which is expected momentarily. Twice Grimm has had to warn the ambitious Diz against throwing too long for fear of undoing the good accomplished by a gradual conditioning program.

Yesterday, Grimm ordered Dean to stop throwing to a teammate, and later halted a "pepper" bunting game which Diz had promptly joined. Grimm, relaxing on the bench, then spotted Dean tossing to a bat boy in a distant part of the field. He ran out and took the ball away from the lanky hurler.

COULD KEEP SECRETS

PLYMOUTH, England—(CP). — After Nathaniel Till, 80-year-old retired schoolmaster died in apparent poverty, a bank book was discovered showing a credit of $30,000 and deeds to property valued at $200,000.

Double Header Split By Leafs With Rochester

TORONTO, June 6 — (AP).—Perhaps this year's edition of Newark Bears isn't as good a ball team as the one that ran away with the International League pennant and practically everything else in sight last season, but the players don't like to be reminded of it. Anyway they showed their power yesterday.

After giving the Orioles seven runs in the sixth inning of the opening game at Baltimore and trailing 9-4 going into the ninth, they blasted Johnny Wittig and a couple of successors for five runs in the ninth to tie it up then won 11-9 in the 10th on Les Scarsella's homer.

Then they went on to paste "Cousin" Pat Malone for three runs in the opening inning of the nightcap as Bob Seeds hit his 17th homer with two aboard and breezed through to an 8-3 triumph behind Ernie Bonham's seven-hit flinging. Seeds homered again and Charley Keller did it twice to produce the rest of the runs.

The two victories ran Newark's string to nine straight and stretched their league lead to 5½ games over Buffalo's twice-beaten Bisons. The Orioles who lost five straight and reached the cellar.

Royals Take Bisons Twice.

Montreal Royals whipped the Bisons 7-3 and 5-0, adding home runs to steady flinging.

The other bargain bills were divided. Brilliant pitching prevailed at Jersey City, where the Little Giants beat Syracuse Chief 2-1 in the opener as Hy Vandenberg bested Earl Cook, then went down 1-0 in a duel between Johnny Gee and Tom Baker. Each team made four hits in the first game and three in the second.

Mike Meola's fine relief flinging and some well-timed hitting enabled Toronto to turn back Rochester Red Wings 7-4 in the opener, but Nubs Kleinke, back from a month's layoff with a sore arm, gave the Maple Leafs only three hits in the nightcap and Rochester won 7-0.

Only one game escaped the rain Saturday, and in that fixture Buffalo blanked Rochester 5-0.

Hikers of England are using roller skates this season.

Circus Train Is Due To Arrive 6 A.M. Tuesday

The Cole Brothers Circus banner will fly high over Peterborough tomorrow, signalizing the return to Canadian soil of one of the world's largest and greatest amusement institutions.

The huge circus, traveling on special all-steel trains of double-length railroad cars, will roar into Peterborough from Pembroke, where it is showing today. It is due to arrive about 6 a.m. over the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

Immediately, the tremendous task of unloading the great itinerant city of white tops will get underway. The mountains of tents and equipment will be transported with army-like system to the Fair Grounds where, by mid-morning, if there is no mishap, the big city will be ready to receive hordes of Peterborough citizens.

Four Acres of Tents.

The tents alone cover approximately four acres of land. The big-top is one of the largest tents ever made, while the huge menagerie tent is larger than the big-tops of most other circuses. In addition, there are the dining and cook tents, the "padroom" or stable and dressing tents, and a myriad of other tents required by a city of 1,100 persons and more than 1,000 animals.

The white ticket wagon, offering reserved seat tickets for the main afternoon and night performances, also will be opened during the morning, while the red ticket wagon, offering general admission tickets, will be opened one hour before the 2 and 8 p.m. showings.

As a further convenience for circus-goers, reserved seat tickets for both performances also will be on sale all day in downtown Peterborough at Bond's Drug Store, 399 George Street.

The Cole Brothers Circus is truly a Canadian institution, founded and nurtured for many years by the Cole Brothers, a family of forward-looking Canadians, who built their enterprise into one of the greatest shows of its kind the amusement world has ever seen.

This is reflected in the glittering roster of Spangleland greats appearing under the Cole Brothers circus banner. They include such names as Clyde Beatty, the greatest and most daring wild animal trainer the world has ever known; Ken Maynard, who has endeared himself to Young and Old Canada alike by his motion picture acting and his artistry in the saddle and with the rope and firearms; the Great Gretonas, who have made two continents gasp with their death-defying daring on the high wire; the Aurelia Troupe of bare-back grace and agility; the Zoeppe Family of unsupported ladder fame; Eddie Allen's three great herds of performing elephants, presented by a bevy of beautiful girls; the Great Florenzo, a brand new spectacular attraction featuring his famous triple somersaulting automobile; Hal Silvers, unrivaled wizard of the slack wire; huge groups of trained seals; 24 beautiful Palamino horses in the largest and most spectacular Liberty Horse display the world has ever seen; and whole galaxies of other astounding stars and displays.

Always Plenty Of Drama

The circus is always packed with drama, but never has more drama been featured under one big-top than is presented by the Cole Brothers Circus. This is best exemplified by Mlle. Dolores Florenzo, the stunning young sister of the Great Florenzo.

In the 1938 matinee debut of the Cole Brothers Circus in the huge Chicago Stadium, the Great Florenzo was so seriously injured when his scarlet somersaulting automobile landed upside down that doctors forbade him to attempt the feat again.

Word of the mishap was wirelessed to southern France, where Dolores was studying nursing. Although she never before had appeared in public and had never dreamed of attempting her brother's hazardous feat, Dolores immediately abandoned her nursing career, boarded a fast plane for Paris and LeHavre, then embarked upon a speedy liner, which carried her to America. Eleven days after the tragedy to Florenzo, Dolores reached Chicago.

She insisted that she be allowed to take his place in the brilliant car. She won over the vehement protests of the circus managers, Florenzo, doctors and others. Since then, twice each day, Dolores has taken her life in her hands to shoot with blinding speed in the little car from the dizzy top of a nearly-perpendicular incline, lunge into space, twist in three lightning-fast somersaults in thin air, then land with a severe jolt in a safety net.

She has been bruised, shocked and shaken, but Mlle. Dolores has steadfastly refused to quit her new career and return to nursing. Her stand is:

"The show must go on!"

Beatty and Maynard, also, exemplify this big-top drama. Only two years ago, a huge lion, one of 43 lions and tigers of both sexes, which Beatty presents at the same time in the great circular all-steel arena, leaped upon him and began to make a meal from his right leg. Beatty spent sixteen weeks in the hospital that time. Only a year before, he was in a hospital for 10 weeks following a similar encounter with a tiger.

Maynard, too, has had his share of broken bones and narrow escapes from death. Western broncos know when they feel him in the saddle that they have met someone upon whom they must try their trickiest and wiliest capers. Year after year of that, naturally, has brought Maynard his share of injuries, although many an untamed bronco on the western plains could testify that Ken was the only master they ever knew.

Pin Is His Reward For Safe Driving

For driving 20 years without an accident, J. Beckwith, LEFT, was presented with a barpin by the Duke of Kent at a Safety First congress held in London, Eng. Back in 1918 the National Safety First association started a competition in safe driving, the best at the end of two decades to receive an award. Beckwith, a bus driver, and 20 others completed the 20 years with perfect slates and received their awards at the congress.

Rioting and Looting Spread In Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica, June 6.—(CP Cable).—Death total in Jamaica's labor troubles mounted to 10 to-day as rioting and looting continued in the island's interior. The disorders began a month ago.

Despite pleas by Jamaica's labor leader, Alexander Bustamante and Norman Manley, K.C., eminent lawyer, to the strikers to keep order and submit their case to a conciliation board, disorders flared again in Central Jamaica villages. Four men died in Islington village riots yesterday and another was in hospital, not expected to live.

A small band of police were being rushed to Islington to curb disorders. Hundreds of rioting with sticks and stones paraded about the village and authorities were forced to fire upon them to prevent looting of business places. More than a score were wounded, some requiring hospital treatment.

Reports reaching Kingston, which was quiet, said that mobs were forming in many sections of the British colony, the purpose believed to be for the looting of Chinese grocery stores.

EDUCATION can bring temperance!

Wherever and whenever it has been tried, prohibition has failed . . . anyone who is capable of learning from experience must realize by now that people cannot be made good by law.

Yet there is a constant flow of propaganda seeking to prejudice the public against the present sensible system of government control.

It is better to educate the individual in self-discipline and self-control than to attempt impossible prohibitions.

Such education is the object of this series of advertisements. We sincerely commend it to those genuinely interested in the cause of temperance.

A LETTER FROM DICKENS

"I am certain that if I had been at Mr. Fuzziwig's ball I should have taken a little negus—and possibly not a little beer—and been none the worse for it, in heart or head. I am very sure that the working people of this country have not too many household enjoyments, and I could not, in my fancy or in actual deed deprive them of this one when it is innocently shared. Neither do I see why I should deny it to myself."

—CHARLES DICKENS
replying to a letter from a lady who objected to references to drinking in his books.

Sons of England Hold Big Rally In Peterborough

Nearly a hundred members of the Sons of England Lodge converged on Peterborough from half a dozen centres south and west of Toronto on Saturday afternoon to meet fellow club members from this district.

A rousing welcome at the city's outskirts, planned by the Peterborough club, went flat when the guests arrived by highway 28 instead of highway 7. The clubs met at the Legion Hall later.

Highlight of the meeting was the presentatian of a Veteran's Jewel to Brother Dave Curtis, members of the Peterborough Lansdowne Lodge for the past half century. The presentation was made by Brother Sam Oakley, supreme vice-president of the order, assisted by the Supreme Secretary, Brother W. G. Oglesby, and Brother Edward Green, Supreme Treasurer. Three candidates were initiated into the order at an evening lodge meeting, by the degree team of the Southwestern Toronto District.

Following a delayed arrival on Saturday afternoon, the visitors from Southwestern Toronto district went to Peterborough's War Memorial in Confederation Square, where a short service was conducted. Brother George Medhurst, District Deputy, laid a wreath at the foot of the memorial. Charles Patrick, Chaplain, led in prayers and conducted the service. The Last Post was sounded by J. W. Sage.

The group, who travelled in cars and busses, toured the city completely, visiting the Lift Locks, viewing the district from the top of Armour Hill, and stopping at each point of interest.

A hundred and twenty-five lodge members sat down to a banquet in the Legion Hall following the tour. Visitors from Toronto district lodges numbered 85. Others were from Peterborough, Lindsay, Millbrook and Port Hope. W. G. P. Benton, president of Lansdowne Lodge, presided. Brother Arthur Harris, District Deputy for Peterborough, proposed the toast to the Supreme Lodge, responded to by Brother Sam Oakley, Supreme Vice-President. A vote of thanks was extended to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, who provided the banquet.

A lodge meeting followed the banquet and a smoker concluded the program. At the smoker Mayor James Hamilton welcomed the visitors to the city, hoped for their return at an early date.

Martin Chenhall was accompanist for the numerous artists on the lengthy program. Adam Sands and George Hall led in community singing, also sang solos. Adam Hall was another soloist. Arthur Thomas entertained with card tricks. A cornet duet by the Hughes brothers, gold medalists of the Lindsay Boys' Band, was an outstanding feature. Chief speakers were the officials of the Supreme Order.

Youths Are Given Month In Jail

Having previously pleaded guilty to a charge of creating a disturbance on Reid Street, and having been remanded until this morning, James Woodcock and Thomas Madill, two youths, were sentenced by Magistrate Langley to a month in jail.

Howard Woodcock, a brother of the first-named, who had also pleaded guilty on his previous appearance, asked for permission to change his plea to "not guilty," and was remanded for a week.

Chief Constable Newhall told the court that the boys after having been questioned at the Police Station in regard to another matter, had gone along the street in a noisy manner and later there had been several calls to the Police Station as to their conduct on Reid Street. They had been drinking wine, he said.

Previous records were scrutinized by the Magistrate before he inflicted sentence, and Madill's plea that he had a job to go to did not have any effect.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

PIGS AT $11 A PAIR

Young pigs on Saturday's market sold at $11 a pair, and there was only one farmer offering them. He had only one left at 11.30 o'clock.

BEEKEEPERS MEET.

Beekeepers of the district began assembling at the home of W. J. Telford at Bridgenorth this morning for the field day they had planned. Wet weather kept them indoors up to noon, but they were hoping that rain would be past by the time luncheon was over.

FOUND IN TORONTO.

A fifteen-year-old Dublin Street girl who ran away from home a week ago was located in Toronto Sunday and held by the Toronto police at the request of the local authorities. The girl's parents went to Toronto Sunday night and brought the girl home. She had been given a ride to the Queen City.

PARTLY RECOVERED.

Part of a bicycle stolen from the Salvation Army Temple on May 9 was found hidden beneath a cedar tree in North Monaghan just west of the city and reported Sunday by two small boys. The thieves had left only the frame of the machine, taking the wheels and pedals.

WEDNESDAY FIELD DAY

The big event of the week in local agricultural affairs, especially in its dairy branch, will be the Holstein Breeders' Field Day at Exhibition Park on Wednesday. It is an all day affair with farmers coming from at least four counties. Luncheon will be held on the grounds, and it is expected that the attendance will be the largest ever seen at a local field day.

CRUSADE PLANNED.

A party of Church Army officers and cadets spent the weekend in Peterborough Anglican churches before commencing a three months' crusade of Witness through the Archdeaconry of Peterborough. On Saturday and Sunday they were at St. John's and All Saints' Churches; on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday they will be at St. George's Church. After that date they will travel throughout this district.

AGAINST SCHOOL MERGER

George Fife of Otonabee informed the Examiner Saturday that few farmers attended the Lang School section Friday night, and those who were there voted unanimously against the proposed merging of sections under one board of trustees. "No one knew enough about it to explain, and they weren't much interested in it anyway," Mr. Fife remarked.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

Inspired perhaps by a similar stunt in a recent movie or by the coming of the circus, a gang of small boys has been indulging in a dangerous practice at Point St. Charles, and the police have been forced to call the whole thing off. The youngsters rigged up a swing by hanging a rope from a tree and they were swinging wide over deep water of Little Lake. Some very small boys were being initiated in the game and the police were notified by an alarmed parent.

CIRCUS VS. JUDGING.

Enthusiasm of the junior farmers who are holding a practice judging competition here on Tuesday is going to be severely tested by the circus. Apparently they did not know the circus had pre-empted the date when they were deciding when they would hold their contest. Their day's program begins at 8 o'clock in the morning, the Exhibition Park is the centre of their activities, and how they are going to avoid the distraction of the clowns and elephants is beyond imagining.

ON FORESTRY TRIP.

Munroe Landon of Simcoe, one of the pioneers in the conservation of forests in this province, was a weekend visitor in Peterborough. Accompanied by Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee and Frank C. Paterson, he motored extensively through the county, and spent considerable time on the Dummer-Bethune property which is likely to be adopted by the County Council as a reforestation project. It is understood that Reeve Anderson's committee will have a comprehensive report to make to the County Council at its approaching sessions.

GIRL RESCUES BOY.

The Carlisle Avenue neighborhood was crediting Lily Brand with saving Robert Doherty from drowning in the Canal on Sunday. They are children living within a few doors of each other, but they were off to school this morning as if nothing had happened during the weekend. It was reported that a small boat upset, tossing Robert into deep water, and that he might have drowned if Lily Brand had not been able to help him to shore.

TO-DAY'S FLORAL NOTE.

John A. Smith, president of the Horticultural Society, reports the season excellent for rose growing. He has buds on stems a foot long or more, with the first flowering period two weeks earlier than usual. The Society's rose show, he says, will perhaps have to be held this month instead of July.

FRACTURED WRIST.

In Saturday's soccer game between Brinton Athletic and C.C.F., Jack Chamberlain, Politician goalkeeper, broke his wrist when he was saving a shot in the early part of the game. He did not know it was broken until Sunday, when medical examination revealed the fracture in two places. The popular soccer player will be out of the game for a long time.

LIKES TOURIST EDITION.

Dr. Frank Kenworthy of Pittsburgh, has written the Examiner for a supply of the special tourist edition. "It is a fine piece of work, and I have enjoyed it immensely. You are to be congratulated upon your excellent issue which shows lots of effort and I am sure will reflect much credit upon you." Dr. Kenworthy ordered extra copies to distribute among "prospective tourists down here."

"GOD THE ONLY CAUSE AND CREATOR."

"God the only cause and Creator" was, the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created." (Revelation 4:11.) Selections from the Bible included the following from Genesis 1:1, "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, included the following: "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-all." God is individual, incorporeal. He is divine Principle, Love, the universal cause, the only creator, and there is no other self-existence. He fills all space, and it is impossible to conceive of such omnipresence and individuality except as infinite Spirit or Mind".

Vehicles Must Pay Tolls On Market Days

"The hands of the municipality would be completely tied if it had not the power to regulate the market in regard to such matters," declared Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning in convicting John Young of a breach of the market by-law, in refusing to pay a fee of 10 cents to the market clerk for parking an automobile on the market on Saturday morning during the period set aside for marketing purposes."

"If there were no such clause, the market square would be filled with all kinds of vehicles, interfering with those who wished to sell goods there," Magistrate Langley said.

"This is more or les sof a test case and the defendant has perhaps been misled by reading sections of the by-law," he added in imposing sentence, "so I am going to inflict the minimum fine of $1."

The defendant had, however, to pay the costs of the case which amounted to $10.

Evidence going back all the way to 1846 featured the case for W. F. Huycke, K.C., city solicitor, who prosecuted, called Col. Arthur Stevenson, secretary of the City Trust Commission to produce a plan of the market square and a copy of the lease of the store occupied by Beattie Brothers, by whom the defendant is employed and Col. Stevenson was questioned as to the ownership of the property which he said had been owned by the municipality since its incorporation.

Deputy-City Clerk E. A. Outram proved the market by-law and Edwin T. Lush, market clerk, testified that Young had refused to pay the 10 cents fee when called upon to do so. He said that Young's car was on the market square fifteen yards away from the Beattie store when he asked the defendant for the fee at 12.20 noon on Saturday, May 21 and that Young had told him the car had been there since five minutes to 12.

"Didn't I tell you that I had been unable to get close to our store to unload some machines," asked Young in cross-examining the market clerk.

"You did, but that wasn't so," said Mr. Lush.

Young did not go into the witness box on his own behalf.

In giving judgment Magistrate Langley said he was satisfied that a 100 per cent case had been made against the defendant. The only point that had given any concern was in regard to the power of the municipality to pass a clause providing for collecting fees for parking but he was convinced that Section 408 clearly gave the municipality power to establish, maintain and regulate a market and that it therefore had full authority for the passing of such a clause.

Sunken Tug Raised

BUFFALO, N.Y., June 6—(AP).—Salvage crews raised the tug L. P. Smith last night from the point outside Buffalo Harbar where it capsized in a squall and sank two weeks ago. They reported no trace of Captain Ben McGrattan who was lost in the accident. The tug heeled over and capsized when a line to a tow of barges fouled in the propeller.

Four Generations

Four generations gathered together on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lambert 151 Park Street North, on the occasion of the fourth birthday of the youngest member of the quartet. Mrs. Jane Bradley, 299 Sherbrooke street, is the great grandmother of Pauline Godfrey, 22 Brown street; the grandmother of Mrs. Elmer Godfrey, the mother of Mrs. C. S. 500 Children Given Aid By Rotary Club

Medical attention for five hundred children, some of them cured of disabilities that would have left them crippled for life, many others cured of sickness that was being neglected, has been the contribution of Rotary Club to the community of the city and county of Peterborough as briefly reviewed at today's luncheon by Dr. A. Moir, Dr. R. W. Frank, Fred Reed and Alderman Juby.

And the main source of revenue for this service has been the annual carnivals which have yielded $11,000. Within the last two months, Mr. Reed said, the sum of $800 has been spent by Rotary on medical care for children.

Directing the aid for crippled children for years, Dr. Moir paid a tribute to the splendid work done by his predecessor Dr. A. W. McPherson and more recently by Dr. R. K. Magee.

"If only one child has been permanently cured of some crippling condition our efforts were well worth while," James Dutton, president stated, "but there has been a great deal more accomplished as the report given by Dr. Moir shows."

Dr. Frank extolled J. H. Seels' management of the series of yearly carnivals which are being renewed this week on Thursday and Friday at Riverside Park. He urged the members to put forth special enterprise to make the carnival a big success, partly for the reason that it would be the last time Mr. Seels will have the general directon of it.

"When you think of what the carnival has meant in providing funds for the help of so many children, none of us need feel it beneath his dignity to appeal to the public to buy tickets for the draw on the automobile that is to be given away Friday night. It is something we might feel proud to do," Dr. Frank added.

Mr. Seels reviewed the details for the Thursday and Friday night affairs which will feature a merry-go-round, booths, games and so on.

It was announced that the first tickets to be placed in the box will be those purchased by Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's Governor-General, purchased by him on his visit here last week, with others bought by his secretary and his Aide de Camp. The draw will be at 11.15 p.m. Friday. The girls' softball league has arranged two games for those evenings, beginning at 6.30 o'clock,—Lindsay vs. Westclox on Thursday and Keene vs. C.G.E. on Friday.

Oshawa Driver Is Given 7 Days

Pleading guilty in police court on Saturday to having been drunk in charge of a motor car, Harry Benson of Oshawa was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., to seven days' imprisonment.

Benson was arrested at the corner of Water Street and Parkhill Road early Saturday after he had run his car on to a lawn and fallen asleep on the front seat.

Addressing Magistrate Langley after his plea of guilty, Benson asked for leniency, not for himself, he said, but for his wife and child. He pointed out that he had not endangered anyone by his conduct and that he was more sick than drunk.

Benson admitted having consumed four quarts of beer during the evening.

Crown Attorney McElderry said that he would be satisfied with the minimum penalty under the circumstances.

Two Are Charged With Illegal Sale

Charged with the illegal sale of liquor on Sunday, June 5, Chris McGrath pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning and was remanded for a week, bail being fixed at $500.

McGrath was represented T. J. Carley, K.C.

Mrs. Minerva Chew, Hunter street, who was charged on Saturday with being illegally in possession of liquor as an interdicted person and had been let out on bail until this morning faced a new charge today when she was charged with the illegal sale of liquor on Saturday night.

She pleaded not guilty on both charges and was remainded until next Monday, bail being set at $500. W. J. Arthur Fair appeared for her. And also Leslie Plunkett who was also charegd with illegal possession of liquor as an interdicted person, and was likewise remanded for a week.

The usual fines of $10 and $4.50 costs were inflicted in two cases of unlawful consumption and one of plain drunk.

Volcano Awakens

MANILA, June 6 (AP).—Inactive for 10 years, the Mayon volcano, which more than a century and a quarter ago buried an entire village in lava, again is spouting flame, smoke and molten rock. The volcano began erupting Friday night, authorities here were informed. It is about 200 miles southeast of Manila. Some residents of towns near the base of the 7,916 foot peak were leaving their homes but there was no panic.

Brotherhood Conduct Service

At their Sunday morning session the Brotherhood of St. James United Church studied the topic, "Serving by Personal Devotion to Christ". Rev. Mr. Craik very graphically described the beautiful anointing of Jesus with precious spikenard as a memorial to One who was to lie in a stranger's tomb ere a week had passed.

The Brotherhood motored to Fraserville Sunday afternoon, conducting a service in the United Church there. Thirty men composed the choir and sung, "O For a Thousand Tongues". The 34th Psalm was read and prayer offered by G. Robertson, assistant class leader. Rev. F. W. Craik and Henry Turner sang with deep feeling "Have Thine Own Way". A capacity congregation sang "Softly and Tenderly," and "Break Thou the Bread of Life."

G. Robinson delivered a splendid exposition of those comforting words "Come unto Me all ye that are heavy laden". Mr. Robinson explained how human wilfulness in all its ramification, defies God until inevitable misery from sordid pleasures forces the repentant sinner to seek his Maker in humility. The travails of the Israelites from arrogant prosperity to repentance in exile are a vivid example. The heart-warming sermon on the Mount overlooking blue Galilee and St. Paul's burning devotion to Christ despite every worldly malice and danger, were plainly impressed on the congregation. The class quartiette, M. Wood, H. Turner, E Lee and H. Lee sang pleasingly "Nearer My God to Thee." The choir sang, "When the Mists Have Rolled Away".

Prayer offered by the Fraserville pastor, Rev. E. M. Cook, closed a most fruitful session together. Mrs. H. Doig very capably accompanied all the musical service.

Carrier Boys Are Given Trip To Toronto

Twenty-seven carrier boys whose records as salesmen for the Peterborough Examiner in this district have been exceptional, were guests of this paper in Toronto over the weekend.

From as far away as Bancroft, the holidaying boys were picked up by Examiner representatives and transported by bus to Toronto on Saturday afternoon, and returned to their doorsteps Sunday evening.

The trip was a "screaming" success from beginning to end, said H. B. Cowan, circulation manager of the Examiner, who was in charge of the expedition and arranged the extensive two-day entertainment for the lads. The Examiner's circulation in towns of this district is higher now than it has ever been in the paper's history, and the boys deserved and received a real holiday, he said.

When bad weather rained out a professional ball game at the Maple Leaf Stadium on Saturday afternoon the youngsters were disappointed, because the game had been slated as part of their trip. But energetic Mr. Cowan broke the disappointment by rushing them off to the Union Station, where the Toronto team was entraining for Rochester. He succeeded in getting Manager Dan Howley to introduce most of the ball players to the thrilled youngsters.

On Saturday evening the contingent went to a 5-hour moving picture show, stayed at the Ford Hotel all night. "They didn't sleep a wink all night," Mr. Cowan reported. "Every time one of them dropped off, others rushed into his room to wake him. At 5 o'clock in the morning they let one of the youngsters drop off to sleep, immediately moved the clock ahead to 8 o'clock, and then wakened him again. He was half-dressed before he realized he had been asleep for only ten minutes." Every few minutes his telephone rang, Mr. Cowan said, and the management asked, "Could we please have a little less noise on your floor, Mr. Cowan?"

Up early on Sunday, the boys went to the Zoo, inspected the Royal York Hotel from top to bottom, including the kitchens, and went to most of Toronto's interesting show places.

Members of the contingent were awarded the trip for outstanding saleswork in their own communities. It was the Examiner's first award of such a nature to boys in the district, will be followed by others. The boys who made the trip were: Donald McQuigge, Cordova Mines; Joseph Hoey, Campbellford; Jim Fowler, Lakefield; Ray Binnington, Lakefield; Chris Cummiskey, Westwood; Jack Fitzgerald, Eldorado; Murray Johnson, Campbellford; Pat Burke, Deloro; Russell Stephens, Norwood; Clare Johnson, Young's Point; Gerald Stabler, Lakefield; Ralph Green, Marmora; Keith Green, Indian River; Charles Palmer, Bethany; Trevor Ball, Bridgenorth; Don Craib, Lang; Ralph Alley, Trent River; Tim Coughlin, Hastings; M. J. McAlpine, Bancroft; Ted Yeo, Havelock; Jack Williamson, Omemee; Willie Franklin, Queensboro; Jim Wellman, Hastings; Harold Robertson, Lindsay; Cecil McAlpine, Bancroft; Treton Dawson, Millbrook; Leonard Lonsberry, Warsaw.

FICTION AND FEATURES

FIESTA

BY OREN ARNOLD

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Having saved the life of Ellen Dale, screen star, with a plucky parachute jump after his plane had run out of fuel in a terrific storm, Bill Baron and his lone passenger finally arrive at a ranch house across the Mexican border, unharmed but fatigued. Here they are warmly received by Don Julio Montoya, wealthy American, and extended every courtesy. Ellen becomes intrigued with the life at the Montoya ranch and her interest in Bill grows. She feels almost resentful when Panola Montoya, attractive daughter of their host, asks Bill to ride with her. Ellen befriends two Yaqui Indians, taken captive by Felix Montoya, the hosts son, for stealing cows. Alarm is felt at the ranch when Bill and Panola fail to return. Don Julio questions Ellen about Bill, still missing with his daughter, but she can tell him nothing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 6

Ellen Dale used what she called common sense at about 3 a.m. with still no word from Bill Baron and the Mexican girl, and went determinedly to bed.

Probably it was common sense, at that, because exhaustion immediately dominated her mental turbulence and she went to sleep. She did not even dream. At 6 o'clock, though, a putty-putt putty-putt putty-putt then a commanding "HO!" outside her window awakened her. Instantly she was up and staring out.

"Bill?...Mr. Baron?"

She called but got no answer.

"Who is there?" she demanded again. The answer came not direct, but in conversation between the horesman and Don Julio. Felix Montoya, Don Julio's son, had returned. As soon as she could dress, Ellen hastened out to him.

"Is there any news?" she demanded at once.

"I know nothing," he spoke fair English. "Father send a messenger for me at Hermosillo. I have ride fast to get here. All I know is that sister and your man are gone together. Can you not say where?"

Ellen missed the fact that he said "your man"; disappointment had gripped her, hard.

"No, she said. "No, Mr. Mon—Senor Montoya, I have not the slightest idea. Panola came and invited him—and they rode away soon after breakfast today. Yesterday I mean. Goodness, it has been almost 24 hours!"

Don Julio spoke crisply to his son in Spanish, and Felix turned again to Ellen.

"This Bill Baron, Miss Dale—who is he? Father is quite concerned, as of course mother and I are too. I am afraid it is time to do something. We demand to know who you are?"

"I am a motion picture actress, and Mr. Baron is an aviator."

"You must admit you came to us under very unusual circumstances. Is it some sort of—how you say?—gag? A trick for the publicity? Are you married? Is it advertising? It is past the trick stage, Miss Dale!"

Felix Montoya himself was a commanding figure. He was darker of skin than either of his parents. Black eyes made him strikingly handsome, yet just a little fearful too. He wore some soft of uniform, evidently an officer's service outfit of some kind, Ellen could tell. He was dirty and wrinkled considerably from riding, but one hardly noticed these details now.

With his father constantly talking to him, with his mother now standing by, and with servants slipping anxiously into the picture, Felix' anger began to mount.

"Panola is my sister, Miss Dale! Can you not understand that?"

"Certainly I do. But I tell you she simply came into the dining room after breakfast, told Bi—Mr. Baron—that she had two horses saddled, and asked him to ride with her. I was surprised that she did not invite me too, not that it mattered, but—"

"Panola would have invite you."

"But she didn't! She vamped Bill and took him alone!"

Instantly Ellen was sorry she had said that. It sounded spiteful. But it was true.

"She vamp him!' echoed Felix, disgust in his tone. "He get funny with her, I tell you! Well, I get funny too! My sister! Nobody's man can come here to make fool of the Montoyas, Miss Dale. We do not get excite about the moving picture trick. You think we are estupid peons! Well, I show him. I run him down, and with my own hands will I tear the vitals from him, the swine!"

Felix was not acting; he meant every word he said and Ellen knew it. She had to say something to convince him.

"Mr. Montoya, it is not reasonable. It is not a trick of any kind. I do not know what happened to them, but I do know it has nothing to do with me or with the moving picture business. Bill Baron never saw me before I hired him and his airplane."

Felix had not listened. He had turned to the servants and was speaking to them in Spanish.

The mother urged him to pause and strengthen himself with food, but all he would take was a mug of coffee offered by a woman. He had ridden all night, but he began at once to organize the search. And, like his father, he strapped on ammunition and guns.

"Mr Baron was not armed," Ellen told him then. 'Nor Panola."

Felix looked at her for a long moment.

"I do not expect them to fight, Miss Dale. But Mexico has other dangers, I am sorry to say. If there is no trick, if they have been kidnap or something, then I shall need guns. If he have make a trick, and I find this man, then I shall want guns, too."

"Could they have been kidnaped?" she demanded.

"Well, they are gone!"

"But by whom? And why? I mean—I don't understand why they should just ride off and disappear. I don't understand it. They were practically strangers to each other!"

"We do not understand, either. In Mexico, when one does not understand, one carries guns."

A fresh horse was brought from the corrals for him, and three other mounted men, vaqueros of the rancho, appeared also. Ellen noted that the three did not look like Mexicans or Americans either. They were darker, dressed somewhat differently from any of the others.

'Where will you go?" she asked Felix.

"I do not know. My father and other of the men hae already been to all the ranches within several miles. Those ranch people will be on the lookout too, and will let us know. There is only one thing left to do, unless you have a better idea? Where do you think your man might possibly take her?"

Ellen's anger mounted at that.

"He is not my man I tell you, Senor Montoya! Can't I make you believe I know nothing about all this, that I am as confused and as worried as you are? And he did not 'take' her anywhere. She took him She invited him. I think he didn't even want to go."

"They did not talk? No mention of where they might go?"

"No. Absolutely not. I remember everything they said. I was—well, I was a little insulted because she took him away from me when we were talking together. Bill and I were making plans."

"I thought you said he was stranger to you also? Not your man."

"He was. I meant—oh!"

She couldn't explain it. Not to a family distressed about a daughter and sister being gone. Not to anyone, probably. Her lip trembled, and Ellen thought she was going to cry in spite of her efforts at self-control.

Felix and the men rode away without another word. Don Julio was preparing to follow, but before mounting he spoke comforting to his wife, then apparently felt he must say something to Ellen too.

"Fayleex, he have los Indios—thee Indian, senorita; tres Indian, you see?" he held up three fingers and pointed to the men with his son.

"They follow thee foot—the tracks. How you say?"

"The Indians will trail Bill and Panola?"

"Si, senorita, si!" he was nodding.

DOROTHY DIX

TENS of thousands of girls are being graduated now from our high schools and colleges, and as they stand bewildered at the crossroads of life they are asking themselves: Where do we go from here?

In what we call the good old times a woman did not have to worry over what occupation she would follow. It was settled for her at birth when the doctor said: "It's a fine girl, ma'am." Father would support her while she was growing up. Then she would marry and be a wife, a mother, a housekeeper and fill that station in life to which it had pleased God to call her. And that was that.

But nowadays few fathers can afford the luxury of a parasitic daughter, and as soon as Mary Jane is out of school Papa expects her to rustle up a job and help him take care of the remainder of the family. Nor can any girl look forward with any degree of certainty of getting married; or, if she does, of getting a husband who will not expect her to provide her own bread and butter and finger waves.

Such being the case, it is virtually certain that the average girl is going to have to earn her living before marriage, and oftener than not follow some gainful occupation after marriage in order to eke out her husband's inadequate earnings. So it behooves her to give more serious thought to choosing her career and preparing herself for it than she has done heretofore when she cherished the idea that it didn't make much difference what she did, or how she did it, because she was only going to work until she could find a man to work for her.

Under the delusion that any job was merely a temporary bridge between the schoolroom and the altar, girls have given no serious consideration whatever to choosing their lifework, or their fitness for what they were undertaking to do. They went into this or that because Mamie or Sadie was doing it, or because they thought it romantic or glamorous, and this has given us the army of stenographers who can't spell and have no vocabulary, the saleswomen without personality or taste, the school teachers who have no faculty for imparting knowledge or inspiring a love of culture in the youthful breast.

And because they have believed they wouldn't have to typewrite, or sell goods, or try to hammer learning into thick little skulls for long, most girls never wasted any time and energy in even attempting to do good work or make themselves experts in their line. They never even seemed to grasp the fact that there is any connection between good reliable work and the size of a pay envelope.

It is to these myriads of girls who are about to face the problem of supporting themselves that I am speaking today, and I would like to say to them with all the earnestness which I can command first to put out of their minds the belief that they are only going to have to work for a few days or months until some Fairy Prince will come riding along and bear them off to his palace in Palm Beach or his Penthouse on Park Avenue, and they will have nothing to do the remainder of their lives but spend money instead of earning it. Maybe he will come, but the odds are a million to one against it. So gird yourself, girls, for the long struggle that leads to self-earned independence.

Then I would implore them to study their own aptitudes and find out what they are best fitted for. Most failures are the result of round pegs getting into square holes. Work is only work when we are doing something that bores us and that we do badly. The work we love is the greatest joy and thrill and excitement that the world can give us.

I would call their attention to the practical, homely, everyday occupations, and especially to those that belong peculiary to their sex and for which they have an inherited talent. The women who succeed best are those who follow womanly pursuits, such as dressmaking, millinery, nursing, hotelkeeping, secretaries and sales women. Don't overlook these. They are your best bet in choosing an occupation.

I get thousands of letters from girls who want to be cinema stars, poets, actresses, aviators, but I have never had a single letter from a girl who wanted to be a good cook. And finally, daughters, remember that you will have to work just as hard doing sloppy work that is ill paid as you will for good work that commands a fat pay envelope. So put your hearts and your backs into your job. It is the only way to succeed.

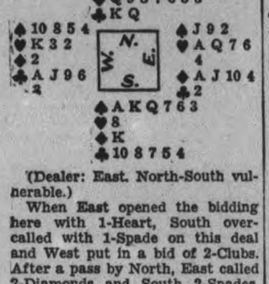
TRICKS ARE NEEDED

ABILITY to stop the opponents' suits is only part of what you require to make no trump contracts. The other part is the taking of the tricks dealt to your side. If you can't get at them because of inability to transfer the lead from your hand to dummy or vice versa, you are like a boxer whose defense is fair but can't punch.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

When East opened the bidding here with 1-Heart, South overcalled with 1-Spade on this deal and West put in a bid of 2-Clubs. After a pass by North, East called 2-Diamonds and South 2-Spades. West passed to await further action. North pondered over his cards for a few seconds and then ventured 2-No Trumps, which East doubled.

A heart was led to the K, then another to East's Q. After he cashed the heart A, a heart was led to declarer's J. That unfortunate then tried a diamond with the hope of getting into dummy. East jumped in with the A, however, and cashed his remaining heart. A club was led to West's A and he returned a club to North, who had nothing left but diamonds. He cashed the Q and led a diamond to East, who took his J and 10. The last two tricks were won with dummy's spade A and K.

The result of North's 2-No Trumps bid was a set of three tricks, doubled, whereas South would have been set only one at 2-Spades.

Looking Back On This Date

It is 47 years ago today since it was my melancholy privilege to give to the world the news that Sir John A. Macdonald had passed away at Earnscliffe Ottawa. Few of the present generation can grasp the sorrow of all Janada, and of the whole empire, at the demise of the Father of Confederation. It was a national loss, indeed. Party differences were forgotten as "the Old Man" lay in state in the Senate chamber, prior to his state funeral and burial at Kingston. Chief among the tributes was that by Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, then leader of the opposition in the House of Commons, whose panegyric on that occasion was equalled in eloquence only by the speech in which 10 years later he mourned the death of Queen Victoria.

Fred Williams

Sir John's loss was a body blow to the Liberal Conservative party, already on the brink of disaster, averted only by the skill of the great tactician, who had faced and conquered so many crises in his long political career. Particularly did Sir John feel the drifting away of that support which the province of Quebec had given him for so many years. It is true that, just before his death, he had won a victory at the polls, having swept Ontario and most of the other provinces, but Quebec had given him only 30 supporters, instead of the 40 odd which had been its rule. The fact that Wilfrid Laurier had been Liberal leader from 1887 had something to do with Quebec's change; but the reason was deeper than that, and Sir John knew it.

Just three years before his death he had received a letter from J. A. Chapleau in which the secretary of state had reproached Sir John for encouraging the attacks of Ontario upon Quebec and for not giving the French-Canadians fair play in cabinet offices. He warned that "great mischief" was brewing in Quebec and that action must be taken "to find the means of alleviating and eradicating the painful and dangerous sentiment which prevails.'"

Sir John, replying on June 6, 1888, told Mr. Chapleau plainly that there was no cause for complaint as to the cabinet. Ontario only had two ministers, customs and agriculture, while Quebec had four, public works, militia, railways and state (with the printing bureau patronage.) "The time has come," he wrote, "when we must choose men for their qualifications, rather than for their locality."

Chapleau wanted the interior portfolio, but the prime minister told him that the northwest was almost wholly British and entitled to an English minister. Anyway the French-Canadians showed no desire to "go west." "They preferred to develop their own lands and to add to their influence in eastern Ontario." And Sir John predicted no great French-Canadian increase elsewhere. He could not foresee the solid French-Canadian bloc now dominating Northern Ontario, one of the few instances where his vision was lacking.

Chapleau had his revenge five years after Sir John's death, when he intrigued with Laurier and betrayed Tupper. It is no new thing for Quebec to be discontented or for its politicans to threaten what they will do if they do not "get their rights."

ACCORDING TO the predominant planetary influences, this may be a day of conflicting conditions. While there may be benefits in connection with employment, yet at the same time there may be delays, disappointments and setbacks in relation to industry or labor. A bereavement may be the obstructing cause, but definite progress may be made by diligence, care with writings and through the influence of elders or women.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of conflicting interests, with much definite progress in work, employment and through favors from superiors, elders or feminine influence. There may also be postponements or disappointments owing to a bereavement. Be careful with writings and documents.

THE CHILDREN were sitting on the back steps blowing soap bubbles. All at once Knarf (who wasn't a real child but only the shadow of one) said to Hanid (who was also a shadow): "I've just thought of something, Hanid. How would you like to visit all the nests of the birds in the trees? We can see if they've laid their eggs."

"How can we see that, Knarf," his sister answered, "unless we climb all the trees?"

"We don't have to climb anything. We can go up in a balloon."

"What balloon? Oh — you mean—"

"We can go up in a balloon.'

Knarf smiled. "Yes, we can go up in a soap-bubble balloon. That's just what I mean. Do you want to do it? The children won't mind."

"All right," said Hanid. "Let's go up in one of the soap-bubble balloons. But it won't be so easy to sit on them."

"But we're not going to sit on them. We're going to sit in a little cabin right under them. You'll see. Just wait here a second. I'll be right back with everything we need."

Sure enough, Knarf came back directly. Hanid was surprised to see that his arms were full of strange things.

Cobweb Is Rope.

"First," said Knarf, "I've brought back rope. That's to tie around the top of the bubble."

"Rope? It doesn't look much like rope. It's very thin."

"It's really cobweb," said her brother. "And then I've brought back the cabin. It's painted yellow."

Hanid looked at the cabin very closely. "Why," she exclaimed. "It's just the top of a buttercup."

"But we're going to use it for a cabin just the same. And then I've brought the bags of sand. You've got to have bags of sand when you go sailing in a balloon. When you throw them off it makes the balloon lighter and it rises higher. They are really empty ants' eggs. I've put some sand in each of them. And do you see this?" he said, pointing to a tiny piece of hollow straw. "Do you know what this is?"

"It's a straw, of course."

"That's only what it looks like. It's a telescope."

"A telescope!"

"Yes, to look down into the nests and count the eggs while we float over the trees. Look—there's a wonderful big bubble. I'm going to catch it and make our balloon!"

Godfrey, of Peterborough, eldest son of Mr. Ralph Godfrey and the late Mrs. Godfrey of Otonabee, Rev. A. J. Preston officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated with an arch of evergreens banked with flowers and ferns.

Walker—Charlton

LAKEFIELD, June 6.—The Baptist Church, Lakefield, was the scene of a very lovely wedding on Saturday, June 4, at 2 p.m. when Alma Beatrice Charlton, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Charlton, Lakefield, became the bride of Walter Edward Walker, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Walker, Lakefield. Rev. Walker, father of the groom performed the ceremony.

A graceful arch of pink and white floral design, backed by a screen of ferns made a beautiful setting for the ceremony, while a profusion of spring flowers in the same bridal colorings—pink and white—decorated the church. Clusters of white snowballs and satin ribbon marked off the pews reserved for guests, and a beautiful arrangement of bleeding hearts and lily-of-the-valley over the organ completed the altogether lovely effect.

The bridal party entered the church to the music of Lohengrin's Wedding March which was played by Miss Grace Yonge of Lakefield. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a graceful gown of white suede lace over satin. The gown was made on princess lines with Queen Anne collar, white satin buttons from throat to waist in front, and long sleeves, puffed at the shoulder and tight-fitting from elbow to wrist, coming to a point over the hand. A central panel of white satin inset at the back widened into a graceful train. The bridal veil of tulle, was floor-length and it was caught in place by a cluster of orange blossoms arranged in coronet effect. The bride carried a shower bouquet of sunset roses and lily-of-the-valley. Miss Marian Payne, Lakefield, the bridesmaid, was becomingly attired in a gown of violet chiffon. The dress was made with long full skirt edged with a wide band of violet tulle, and had a violet bolero jacket of taffeta with short puffed sleeves. Clusters of flowers of a deeper shade of violet scattered through the skirt accented the coloring. Miss Payne wore a shoulder length veil of matching tulle and carried a nosegay of pale pink and coral sweet peas with flowers of the same shade in her hair.

Little Miss Clara Walker of Hamilton, niece of the groom was flower-girl. She looked very sweet in a frock of palest pink with bands of deeper pink velvet trimming the dress and forming a head-dress. She carried a tiny nosegay.

Bruce Charlton, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Frank Payne and Lorne Morrison.

During the signing of the register, Miss Cora Charlton, cousin of the bride, sang very sweetly, the selection "I Love Thee."

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pendant; to the flower girl a ring; to the soloist an evening bag; to the organist a pendant; to the best man a tie pin and clip, and to the ushers brush and comb sets.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. S. J. Charlton, mother of the bride, received wearing a gown of powder blue lace, large white hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of roses and lily-of-the-valley. Mrs. W. B. Walker, mother of the groom, assisted, wearing navy blue sheer with white hat and white accessories, and a corsage of roses and forget-me-nots.

The bride and groom received congratulations, standing against a bank of flowers and ferns in the living-room. Overhead were draped festoons of pink crepe, and a cluster of pale pink balloons of assorted sizes were arranged with green leaves to represent a bunch of grapes.

The dining-room was decorated with pink crepe festoons, a shiny cluster of silver grapes forming the central decoration. The white wedding cake centred the table.

The six cousins of the bride served. They were the Misses Madeline, Cora, Doris and Minnie Charlton, and Misses Mildred and Jean Garbutt, all of Lakefield. Hooper's of Peterborough catered.

After the reception the happy couple left for a short honeymoon amidst a shower of congratulations and good wishes. For travelling the bride wore a navy sheer dress with boléro jacket, a navy silk hat, bonnet style, with veil and navy coat. The ensemble was trimmed with touches of white and she wore navy blue and white shoes and white gloves.

On their return they will live in Lakefield.

Out-of-town guests who attended the wedding included: Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Walker and Miss Pearl Walker, Hamilton; Mr. Allan Hendren and Miss Doreen Hendren, Peterborough; Miss Merle Crawford, Toronto; Miss Reva Preston, Oshawa, and Mr. Urian Springer of Waterton.

Miss Harstone's recital is an annual event, and eagerly awaited by the music-loving friends of the young artists.

The technical ability and powers of memorization were displayed throughout the program, and the audience showed by their continued applause their appreciation of the talent displayed by the pupils.

Music Festival Is Presented By Rural School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 6. — The annual musical festival presented by students of Seymour and Rawdon Township who receive their musical direction from A. Hazel was greeted by an audience which filled the High School Auditorium to overflowing on Friday night.

There were approximately 250 pupils taking part in the program and although it was the first time for some of them the keen interest in this field which is being taken by both school trustees and teachers was evidenced by the fine performance. One of the most commendable features of the festival was that each pupil from the oldest to the youngest all entered into it and did their parts without the least show of awkwardness or stage fright.

R. W. Humphrey of Trent River who was chairman of the evening thanked both teachers and pupils on behalf of Mr. Hazel before the concluding number in which over two hundred children sang "Come Let Us Take A Holiday". The complete program was as follows:

Allan's School—1, Chorus, "Happy Happy School days"; 2, duet "Who'll Buy My Purses", Marion Rose and Louise Weaver; 3, Chorus, "Welcome Hearty Welcome".

Wilson's Settlement — 1, Chorus, "Shine Lights"; 2, Duet, "The Lost Kitten", Margaret Remington and Patricia Duff; 3, duet, "My Comical Puppy", by Billy and Mike Ingram; 4, chorus, "The Skylark."

William's School—1, chorus, "The Irish and Lilac"; 2, solo, "Pansy People" Louis McAdam; 3, boys' solo, "Early One Morning", Donald Spencer, (auto harp accompaniment by Gladys Summers); 4, chorus, "Summer."

English Line—1, chorus "When De Banjo Plays"; 2, piano solo, "Nights of Gladness", Barbara Stephens; 3, recitation, "The Dandelion", Jean Ostifi; 4, girls' chorus, "Welcome To the Spring"; 5, chorus, "Come Let Us Take A Holiday".

Separate School—1, chorus, "Our Countries Name Is Canada"; 2, a, recitation "Planting A Tree", Kathleen Quinn; b, "Pine Needles," Mary Quinn; 3, trio, "Breath of Spring", Frances Mahoney, Agnes Smith, Alex. Mahoney; 4, chorus, "The Scout Song".

Godolphin School — 1, chorus, "Give"; 2, solo, "Toyland", Cozetta Archer; 3, boys' trio, Kenneth Fairman, Lisle Oliver, Everett Anderson.

Union School—1, chorus, "Comrades of the Road"; 2, trio, "Lightly Row", Georgie Rutherford, Dorothy Spencer, Muriel Barnum; 3, reciation, "Imagine If I Was A Girl", Bobbie Reid; 4, chorus, "Day Is Closing".

Royal Family Recalls Windsors' Wedding Anniversary

Antibes, France, June 6 (AP).

LONG distance telephone calls from London to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor on their first wedding anniversary yesterday indicated the Royal Family may have remembered the former King.

The messages were unofficially believed to have been congratulations from the Duke's mother and brother, Queen Mary and the King.

Otherwise, the anniversary was another routine day of work and play for the Duke and Duchess, who have rented a villa here and plan to settle down on the Riviera as soon as redecorations are completed.

New Trade Pacts Said Key To World Peace

REGINA, June 6—(CP). — Saskatchewan and Canada as a whole to-day face something far more important than the June 8 Saskatchewan election, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Agriculture Minister, said Saturday in a campaign speech here.

Mr. Gardiner referred to negotiations for Canada-United States and United Kingdom-United States trade agreements.

"If these trade agreements can be made the budget will no doubt contain results of these which we hope will bring an understanding between the great English-speaking democracies that will stave off the dangers that are confronting us at the present time," he said.

Such trade policies were of vital importance to Canada's interests, he said, because any conflict in Europe with modern methods of aerial bombardment and destruction might lead to annihilation of Canada's United Kingdom markets.

Mr. Gardiner, in his Regina speech, saw the British Empire as playing the leading role in the mission for world peace. On the outcome of trade trade agreements now being negotiated hinged not only the whole future course of Canada and the Empire but of the whole world, he said.

Westwood W.M.S. Preparing Bale

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, June 6.—The June meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was held on Wednesday at the home of Miss Jessie Davidson. Prayer was offered by Mrs. John Hope and a special worship service was conducted by Mrs. James Clysdale and Mrs. E. W. Sargent.

A temperance reading, "Alcohol," was given by Mrs. Hugh Cameron.

It was decided to hold the annual quilting on Thursday afternoon, June 9, in Wesley Hall. Donations for the bale wll be appreciated and may be left at the home of Mrs. E. W. Sargent. The secretary, Miss Mary Cameron, read several communications, including one re the annual summer school at Whitby and verses composed by Miss Margaret McLellan of Almonte on "School for Leaders" read by Mrs. Clysdale, were much enjoyed.

The playlet, "Afterthought or Forethought" was presented by four members, Miss Jessie Davidson, Mrs. Aubrey Wood, Miss Mary Cameron and Mrs. Clayton Brackenridge.

TOO OLD AT FIFTY?

There are far too many men and women in the forties and fifties who think they're "beyond" enjoying work or play. What a mistake! Just when you're old enough to know how to enjoy yourself, to give up because sluggishness and general unfitness make you feel "not up to it"!

Take a look at wealthier people. Do they give in to middle-age? Not likely! They try to keep themselves in the pink of condition until advanced old age; bodies young, minds alert.

How do they manage it? Many by taking the waters at famous Spas. But I can't afford to go to Spas, you'll say. You don't have to, now. Similar benefits of Spa waters can come to you! The combination of the elements of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium in Fynnon Salt gives you remedial effect similar to that which wealthy people go miles to get from Spa waters. "Salts of the Earth" break up the painfully pronged Uric Acid crystals—aid in removing poisons from your body—help stimulate the liver to do its job thoroughly again.

Your regular morning ½ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt in a glassful of water will help drive Rheumatic pains from your joints. Feel fit at fifty. Large bottle of Fynnon Salt 75c at all druggists'.

$5000 INSURANCE and $25 a Month Pension at Age 60 for $11.60 a Month

The Mutual Life of Canada has a special plan for the young man who wants to provide adequate protection for his family during the years when the children are growing up, and under the same policy create a fund that will guarantee him a monthly income at age 60.

This is the "Security at 60" policy, and the protection provided for the annual premium required is particularly attractive. For instance, if you are age 30, a monthly premium of $11.60 gives you $5,000 insurance to age 60, when you will receive an income FOR LIFE of $25 per month. (Should you not live to receive the payments for at least ten years, the income of $25 per month would be continued to your beneficiary for the balance of the ten year period.) Annual Dividends are paid on this policy.

Any of our representatives or Head Office will be pleased to give you complete details regarding the Security at 60 Policy, which can be obtained in amounts of $2,000 and over.

Institute Hears Education Talk

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, June 6—The special feature of the regular meeting of the Women's Institute on Thursday afternoon was the program. Miss Dorcas Atkinson gave a very fine address on education. The address was under three headings: correct pronounciation, bibliography and prominent persons.

Miss Atkinson's talk was interspersed with musical selections, consisting of vocal and piano solos and vocal and instrumental duets, contributed by Mrs. Warren Atkinson and her daughter, Clarice. A touch of sentiment clung to one number, a vocal duet, Mrs. Atkinson announcing it had been sung at her parents' wedding. The duet was "Home, Dear Home."

A vote of thanks was tendered Miss Atkinson, Mrs. Atkinson and Miss Clarice Atkinson for a very enjoyable program.

The meeting was held in the Town Hall, with Mrs. Stewart Thackeray as hostess. Mrs. J. W. Pacey, vice-president, presided in the absence of the president. During the business period a donation of $5 was made to the Alnwick School Fair fund.

Delegates named to attend the district annual at Coldsprings on June 23 were: Mrs. B. Thackeray, president; Mrs. Frank Brown, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. C. Gregg, district director, and Mrs. L. Turner.

A report of the "summary day" held at Cobourg on May 27 was presented by Mrs. C. Grigg. Points brought out dealt with transplanting vegetables, measures taken to combat cut-worm, and criticisms on exhibits presented by the delegates.

After the closing exercises, the hostess served refreshments and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Pacey, who have been spending their honeymoon with relatives here, left for Toronto and Flint, Michigan, before returning to their home in Valdor, Quebec.

No Branch Station

WINDSOR, Ont., June 6—(CP).—Proposal to open a branch police station in the territory formerly known as the town of Sandwich before amalgamation with the city of Windsor three years ago was rejected by Windsor police commission last night. Estimates of Police Chief Claude Renaud showed it would cost more than $7,500 to operate the proposed station for the remainder of 1938.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

Mrs. J. Gainer, president of the Ladies' Aid, presided for their meeting, and completed arrangements for their strawberry festival on June 23. Life In the Congo Told At Warsaw

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, June ...—Though the attendance was smaller than usual, the United Church W.M.S. service on Thursday was especially interesting. Mrs. Allan Taylor presided, and, in the absence of Mrs. Harold Payne, Mrs. Weller took the books. The sectional rally in the fall will be held at Warsaw, and the branch decided, if other branches approve, they would prefer a morning and an afternoon session instead of afternoon and evening.

The quilting for the bales will be in the basement on Friday afternoon, June 10. Mrs. Wilkinson has donated the batting. The bales will be received in Peterborough on June 14, 15, 16, so all who are donating clothing, etc., are requested to leave their parcels at the parsonage before that time. As some had suggested holding W.A. and W.M.S. on the same afternoon, the idea was discussed. No vote was taken, but the greater number present seemed opposed.

Mrs. Weller read a story of the result of the work of one woman in Japan who worked with the children. Mrs. Arthur Edwards gave the study-book lesson on the Indians of the Canadian Northwest.

Personals.

The Misses Fusee were Sunday afternoon guests of Mrs. Henry Clements.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Norwood, spent Thursday with their daughter, Mrs. Harold Payne.

Among those from Warsaw who attended Mrs. R. W. Payne's sister's (Mrs. Humphries of Belleville) funeral at Westwood were Dr. Munro, Mrs. David Payne and son, Sherwood, Mrs. Greystock, Mrs. Mary Thompson, Mrs. Latta, and Mrs. Charlotte Cooper.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Snelgrove, Mrs. G. Brethour and Miss Brethour of Sunderland were Tuesday guests of Mrs. R. W. Payne.

Claim Comba Judge Disqualified

Charge Latchford Discussed Case Prior To Appeal

OTTAWA, June 7 (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada was asked today to consider whether Chief Justice F. R. Latchford of the Ontario Appeal Court had not disqualified himself from sitting on the bench in the Comba murder case appeal.

R. H. Greer, counsel for Comba, said the chief justice admitted discussing the case with Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, the trial judge, before hearing the appeal. He did not approach the appeal with an open mind.

Mr. Justice Latchford gave a dissenting opinion when the appeal court set Comba free after he had been sentenced to death by Mr. Justice Chevrier.

The Ontario attorney-general's department seeks to have the Supreme Court of Canada override the Ontario Supreme Court in order that Comba, crippled young Renfrew, Ont., man, may be put on trial again for the death of Ethel Hedderwick, 13-year-old Renfrew girl, whose body was discovered by Comba the day after she disappeared.

Should Be Cleared By Jury

It has been agreed on behalf of the attorney-general that there were errors in the trial at Pembroke to justify a new trial but it is contended that if Comba is to keep his freedom he should be cleared of the charge by a jury of his peers—not by an appeal court.

J. A. Maloney, trial counsel for Comba, discussing the evidence before the Supreme Court today, suggested that the Hedderwick girl was slain by two men. There were two different types of hair clutched in her hand when her body was found.

Mr. Justice Chevrier erred when he failed to point out in his charge to the jury the fact that Comba's crippled leg would have prevented him pursuing the girl, Mr. Maloney contended. The berry pails the girl was using were 50 feet from the body, indicating she had been chased that far. Obviously Comba could not have chased her.

No Dissenting Judgment.

Mr. Greer read copious extracts from the judgment of the four Ontario Appeal Court judges who nul-

Milton Jail Break Costs Governor Job

TORONTO, June 7 (CP).—C. F. Neelands, Deputy Provincial Secretary, announced today Frank McNiven, Governor of Halton County Jail at Milton, has been suspended pending completion of an investigation into the escape yesterday of William Moore, Toronto. Calvin Fleming, turnkey at the jail, has been appointed acting jailer.

Mr. Neelands said Moore used a bar picked up in the prison yard to force two jail doors. The bar was used as a stake for a horseshoe-pitching game. The Deputy Secretary said he was "not positive" Moore had accomplices in the escape.

Moore broke jail two days before his scheduled grand jury trial on a charge of fraud involving a $16 cheque. Previously he had been sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary in county court at Toronto.

Milton is 15 miles northwest of Toronto.

Nu-spelers Invade Lundun With Eezier Sistm

LONDON, June 7 (CP) — The simplifyde speling sosyeti iz cuming too Lundun Joon 18 too organyz a campane hwich, it iz hopet, wil make speling eezier.

A smawl armi of bludles revoluushunariz heded by Profesor Gilbert Murray and reinforst by Profesor Lloyd James wil invade the capital on behaf of the nu-spelers.

The simplifyde speling sosyeti is an outgrowth of the old nu-spelers founded by the late Sir George Hunter, shipbuilder, who died last year at the age of 91. The new sosyeti hopes to reawaken interest in nu-speling and is holding its conference for the first time in 12 years.

Even members of the sosyeti have not decided what will happen to British family and Christian names if their form of speling gains general use. Professor Murray would have to drop wun "r" from his name. H. G. Wells would becum Wels. Greater difficulty is seen if the system should involve such English names as Cholmondeley (pronounced Chumly), Majoribanks (Marshbanks) or De Uphaugh (Dupper).

Adherents of the sosyeti claim their system of spelling which appears difficult to the beginner, inured to orthdox spelling, becomes far easier than the customary manner after its principles have been learned.

Good Times Arrive In Aylmer With 16-Mill Tax

Aylmer, Que., June 7 (CP)

IN AYLMER, 10 miles west of Ottawa, good times are not around the corner. They're right here. Town council last night announced a 20 per cent reduction in the tax rate for the next fiscal year. The tax rate has been 20 mills on the dollar since 1927. Now it will be 16. And the town is budgetting for a surplus of $1,650.

3 More British Vessels Bomb Victims

MADRID, June 7—(AP).—Three more British merchantmen were seriously damaged today in raids of insurgent warplanes on the Spanish government's Mediterranean ports of Alicante and Valencia.

At least 22 persons were killed and 70 wounded in Alicante, where a bomb crashed into a building in which 200 refugee families from the war zones were living, creating havoc. Another bomb hit the well known Hotel Victoria.

Five Junkers (German type) planes raided Alicante City, but the harbor there was attacked by a single seaplane. Three of its bombs hit the 3,688-ton British freighter Thorpehaven, crippling it badly. Another vessel described only as "the English ship" was set afire.

At Valencia three bombs which plunged into the harbor alongside the cargo vessel Thurston sprung her plates and she started to settle. (Lloyd's lists the Thurston as of 3,072 tons.)

The raids raised to 11 the number of ships sunk or badly damaged in the last fortnight in insurgent raids on Spanish government ports.

Another British freighter, the St. Winifred, was set afire yesterday when five German-made Junkers bombers raided Alicante, killing 78 persons, including three British members of the St. Winifred's crew.

Charge Peruvians Massing Troops

QUITO, Ecuador, June 7 (AP).—The Foreign Office of Ecuador charged today that Peru was reinforcing border garrisons with troops, bombing planes and gunboats despite promises to abstain from force in the two nations' dispute over the Oriente jungle territory east of the Andes.

A Foreign Office statement said Peru had sent five bombers to reinforce her garrison at Pantoja near Rocafuerte on the Napo River and had concentrated Provincial troops near the Ecuadorian boundary at Tumbez near the Pacific coast.

Three gunboats and 10 planes had arrived at Puerto Pizarro in this area, the statement said, and three regiments were in the zone between Tumbez and Sullana, to the south.

The Foreign Office said it was advised by Ecuadorian authorities at this boundary that Peru intended to occupy Matapolo Island at the entrance of the Gulf of Guayaquil. Guayaquil, Ecuador's principal port, is situated on the gulf.

It was near the Peruvian garrison post of Pantoja and the Ecuadorian garrison of Rocafuerte that Ecuador charged two of her soldiers were killed and another wounded in a clash June 2.

(Peru denied a clash occurred but said four Ecuadorian soldiers and a lieutenant were arrested when found trespassing on Peruvian territory).

England may have a problem in handling the 15,000 vacation caravan this summer.

Glides To Nice Lawn, Helpful Owner Proves Edsel Ford

Detroit, June 7 (AP)

ELMER ZOOK, looking for a place to land his glider when he saw Lake St. Clair ahead, picked the expansive lawn of a large estate. The owner hurried over to question the 21-year-old Zook about his unceremonious visit, then helped him dismantle his craft. He offered to store it in his garage and give the youth a ride back home.

"Say, who was that guy who helped me?" Zook asked the man's chauffeur on the way home.

"That guy," the driver replied, "is Edsel Ford."

Practising Digging

Jobless Yell Threats At Aberhart

We've Come For You Shout Gang From Calgary

REGINA, June 7 (CP)—The Saskatchewan election campaign will wind up tonight in a flood of oratory and last-minute, frantic organization plans of the four major parties fighting for control of the provincial legislature.

Climaxing a short but intensive campaign, Saskatchewan voters will go to the polls tomorrow to choose between Liberals, Social Crediters Conservatives and representatives of the C.C.F. party.

There are 156 candidates in the field for 50 house seats. Polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. MST.

The first election disorders were reported yesterday from Estevan, a coal-mining centre in the southeast corner of the province where police were called to a meeting addressed by Premier William Aberhart of Alberta. A later meeting at Rouleau was quiet and orderly.

Claiming to be jobless from Calgary, a group of men raised cries of "We've come to drag you back to Alberta" as Premier Aberhart finished his address at Estevan.

Anthying But Social Credit

Such words as "skunk," "liar," and "double crosser" were heard. The crowd was advised to "vote for anything but Social Credit." Glen L. MacLachlan, chairman of the Alberta Social Credit board, attempted to answer some of the challenges but his words were drowned in the shouting. The police finally dispersed the crowd.

A delegation representing Calgary unemployed came to Saskatchewan some days ago for the purpose of asking Premier Aberhart to have a legislative committee appointed to

11 Poison Deaths Laid To Widow

LIEGE, Belgium, June 7 (AP).—The "widow beckers of Liege"—heavily veiled 58-year-old Maria Petitjean, dressmaker and former nurse—faced murder charges in Assize Court today in the poison deaths of 11 people she had cared for.

Described in the court indictment as "a dirty, wasteful and bad housewife," the woman also was charged with attempting to poison four other persons and for falsifying a will.

The trial was postponed from May 9 to allow police to complete detailed inquiries which took 17 months. The prosecution planned to call 294 witnesses in an attempt to convict the woman, who has denied her guilt.

"I was too good," she declared. "I never harmed anybody."

The trail of mysterious death goes back to 1932, when Charles Beckers, her husband, developed a fatal stomach ache. Her accusers said she appeared to profit by all the deaths, either through bequest or because the deceased had loaned her money.

Hepburn To Fight I.R.C. Niagara Span

TORONTO, June 7 (CP)—Premier Hepburn said today the Ontario government would ask the Dominion government to refuse approval of the plans for a new Falls View bridge to replace the one swept away January 27 by ice.

Mr. Hepburn said the bridge would compete with the structure the Ontario government and New York state plan to build.

"The day of the privately owned bridge is passed," said Mr. Hepburn. "This is a fight to the finish. We are not only going ahead with our plans for a new bridge, but we will use every means at our disposal to prevent the International Railway Company erecting and operating any competitive structure."

Penniless 13 Years Pen Heir On Top Again

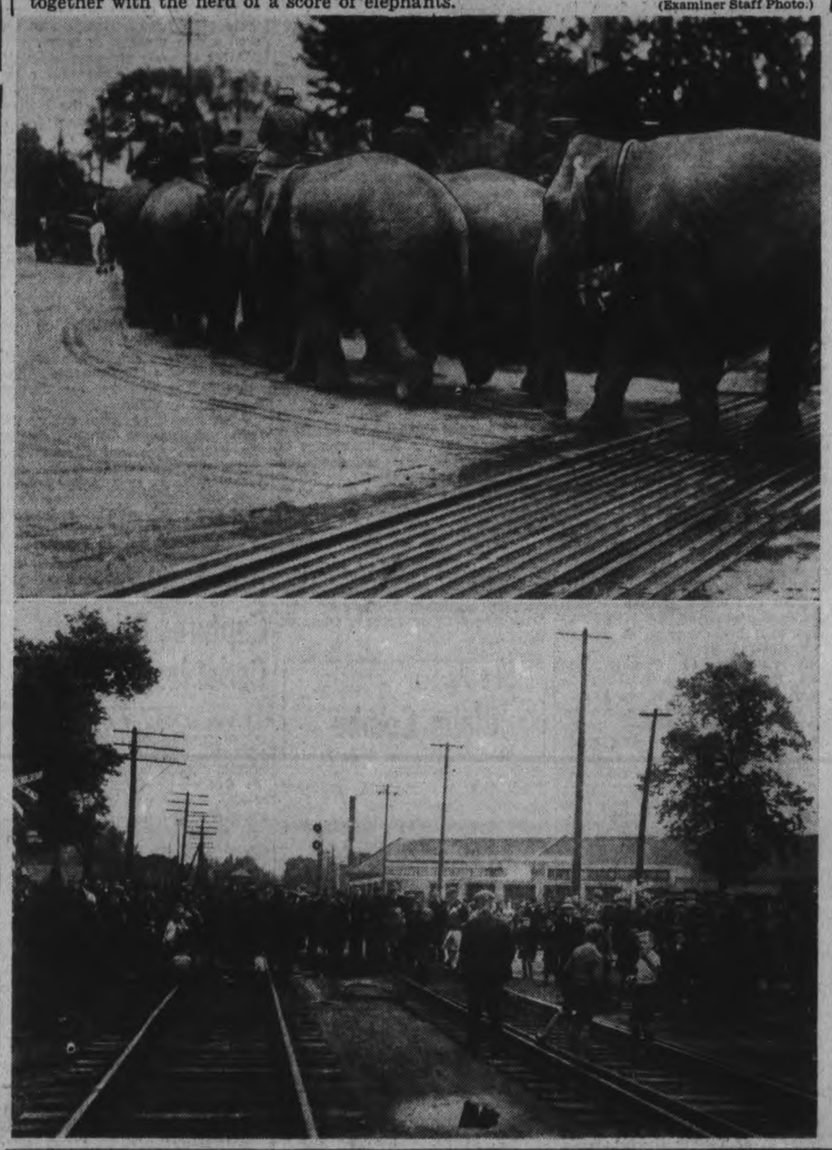
NEW YORK, June 7—(AP). — After 13 penniless years, Elisha Waterman, disinherited member of a multi-millionaire family, became vice-president of the family fountain pen business yesterday.

Although his father, Frank D. Waterman, who died May 6, cut him off with only $100, his death made Elisha beneficiary of a $5,000,000 trust fund left by his great-uncle, Lewis T. Waterman.

The fund included controlling stock in the company, so the board of directors made him an officer and a director.

Waterman had worked as a newspaper reporter, laborer and dishwasher, and had spent several years in a dingy Greenwich village flat, unemployed.

Circus Day The circus arrived in town today! From the break of dawn until eight in the morning anxious boys and girls of all ages from six to sixty waited for the long train to roll into the station, and stood idly by as truck after truck, freight car after freight car, was unloaded. Open mouthed, they gaped at strange animals, and even strange humans. A section of the crowd is shown here, together with the herd of a score of elephants. (Examiner Staff Photo.)



Chamberlain Fears Germany Drawing Italy Into War

Friends Say Premier Uneasy Over Spain, Sees Nazi Striking Before It Ends

LONDON, June 7 (CP-Havas).—The News Chronicle (Liberal) today quoted friends of Prime Minister Chamberlain as saying he fears Germany may draw Italy into a Euopean war before the Spanish civil war ends.

His friends say that the prime minister is anxiously perturbed over the delay (in ending the Spanish war)." the paper said. "He fears that the gamble will not come off, that before non-intervention (by Britain) against Premier Mussolini has brought defeat in Spain (for the Spanish government), Germany will have embarked on her next most critical adventure, which will draw Italy finally and inescapably on her side as a conscripted ally in the consequential European war.

"Incidentally ministerial and other Tory visitors to Stafford in the present by-election are singing a very small tune about the Anglo-Italian agreement. Even more by what they don't say than by what they do say they give an impression of inconclusiveness and doubt.

Experimenting on Spain

"The dictators have now taken the measure of this weakened government, and treat them with contempt. In consequence we are paying through the nose in a vain search for that security which we could have had very much more certainly if the government had only kept to the collective path.

"What is the use of heatedly protesting to Franco? And do nothing. Surely the British government knows that all these bombings are carried out by German and Italian aircraft under direct German and Italian instruction.

"The German and Italian governments are experimenting on the the Spanish people with various types of machines and bombs and with changing tactical methods

They are also conducting what they call psychological experiments on civilians. Careful reports are sent back regularly, not to Franco, but to Berlin and Rome."

"Reprisals by the Spanish government, therefore, should be made not on Spanish centres of population but on German and Italian towns."

27,000 Natives Flee Philippine Volcano

MANILA, June 7.—(AP).— By the light of a towering column of flame and incandescent rocks catapulted from Mayon volcano, Filipinos fled from their homes near the base of the erupting mountain to-night.

The 20,000 residents of Camalig and the 7,000 inhabitants of Libog abandoned their homes when molten lava threatened to block off the roads. Smaller villages and farms closer to the foot of the 7,900 foot peak, 200 miles south-east of Manila, were deserted.

Hot ashes rained down out of the spreading pall of smoke on the three provinces forming the south-eastern tip of Luzon island, the largest in the Philippines.

Weather bureau officials predicted there was no great danger to life or property.

Two Policemen Pass $5 Ransom Cash

PRINCETON, Fla., June 7 (AP).—The Miami Daily News said today Federal agents recovered a $5 bill that was part of the $10,000 ransom James Bailey Cash, Sr., vainly paid for the return of his five-year-old son, James, Jr.

In a copyrighted article the News said the bill was spotted by a filling station attendant in Jacksonville, who notified the Federal Bureau of Investigation and that G-men caught the men who passed it on a highway between there and Tallahassee.

They were two Tennessee policemen returning home after a vacation in Miami, the paper said, and were released after being questioned. Where they obtained the bill was not ascertained. The news did not disclose the source of its information but described it as authoritative.

Tonight will be the 10th since the boy was stolen from his bed.

Yellow River Flood May Stop Japs

SHANGHAI, June 7.—(AP).—Yellow River floods threatened to-day to submerge Central China's battlefields as Japan's army, beginning the 11th month of the war, forged deeper toward the heart of China.

Chinese dispatches confirmed that the river was overflowing dykes in the vicinity of Kaifeng and Lanfeng, where Japan's heaviest forces are concentrated along the Shanghai railroad. There are several Canadian missionaries at Kaifeng.

The dispatches said inundation of the countryside in the path of Japan's westward drive toward Hankow, China's provsional capital, probably would impede operations.

Five Toronto Artillerymen Attend Rally, Salute Fascist Leader

C.O. Brands Group's Action Indefensible; Never Heard Murmer In Ranks But Plans Probe Of Party Platform

TORONTO, June 7 (CP.—Col. O. S. Hollinrake, officer commanding, Royal Canadian Artillery, said today it was "bad taste" for a man to attend or take part in a political meeting while wearing a military uniform.

Col. Hollinrake said that unless ordered to do so, he would not investigate the possible membership in the Fascist party of five of his non-commissioned officers and men who attended a Fascist meeting here last night. The soldiers gave the Fascist salute to Adrien Arcand, Montreal, leader of the Fascist party in Canada, who addressed the meeting.

He said the action of the artillerymen was indefensible "but I am sure they did it unthinkingly." Col. Hollinrake continued: "They were at their own military activities—and they were late for the political meeting. Had they had time they would no doubt have taken off their uniforms before going. But their action is very bad—it is indefensible."

No Murmurs in Ranks.

The commanding officer said he never had heard "a murmur in the ranks" in connection wtih Fascism or the Fascist party. "The question has never come up to me," he said. He himself did not know the Fascist party's platform or what it stood for and "I've never taken it seriously here."

If inquiry revealed there was in the party platform anything subversive to constituted government, he would look into it, Col. Hollinrake said. Asked to define possible action he said: "There would be military discipline should it be found to be an organization against the government."

There was nothing in army regulations to prevent members of the non-permanent force belonging to a 'political party or attending political meetings. But there were regulations against men taking part in the activities of a political organization.

Arcand returned the salute while the audience of 300 cheered and the uniformed men sat down to hear the speeches. One man wore the braid of a sergeant, two were dressed as corporals and two as privates.

The sergeant, who said the five had come from a regimental drill, refused to give names and when photographers tried to take pictures his companions covered their faces. Arcand told reporters he knew one of the men.

Asked if there was liable to be an inquiry into the men's demonstration, Brigadier W. H. P. Ekins, officer commanding military district No 2, said: "I couldn't give you any information about that just now." But members of the militia, while wearing uniforms, "are not supposed to take an active part in a political meeting," he said.

Police Get Booed

Before the meeting police were called on to quell anti-Fascist demonstrators outside the building. Signs were taken from the paraders and police were booed for "protecting" the Fascsts.

After the meeting Arcand announced the National Social Christian party would hold its annual convention in Toronto, starting June 30, instead of Kingston, Ont. The Kingston City Council has passed a resolution saying the convention is not wanted there.

"We won't go where we are not wanted," Arcand said. "Kingston doesn't want our convention. Very well, it will be held in Toronto. We will need three days to get through all our business."

135-Pound Man Handles Elephant Herd

A dull morning with intermittent showers failed to keep Peterborough children, young and old, away from the C.P.R. station to watch the circus come to town. Hundreds lined the platform as the long circus train pulled into the city at 8.30 a.m. Many of them had been waiting since 5 o'clock.

It was a thrilling sight, one that made many a boy's eyes nearly pop from his head, to see car after car, all vividly painted, shoot past the crowd. On every car dusky negroes were sitting or lying, waiting for their morning's work to begin. More than half a hundred cars passed the station. Further down the train was split into several sections and unloading commenced, still watched by a large crowd of spectators. Fifty or more boys won free entrance to the show when they were chosen to help with the work.

Elephants, camels, zebras, water buffaloes, a dozen other strange types of animals, pounded through Peterborough streets to the Exhibition grounds in preparation for the big show. Scores of horses and ponies pranced in a drizzle of rain. Huge trucks lumbered into the grounds, carrying precious cargoes.

Three Hours Late

An especial burst of speed was necessary today in preparing the show for the train was nearly three hours late in arriving. A storm during the night forced the train down to ten miles an hour for part of the trip.

If a circus is famous for one thing more than all others, that thing is team work. And team work in plenty there was this morning. Most spectacular free exhibition of closely timed skill was given by five negro stake drivers, whose huge hammers fell so rythmically and accurately that each stake seemed to slide into the ground as though it had been a common pin. Grinning from ear to ear, shouting strange words, they worked with a cooperation all their own, soon had the big tent ready for erection.

At the same time preparatory work was progressing in other parts of the grounds. Tents were going up, trucks were being unloaded, animals were being fed and groomed. The place was a veritable bee hive of activity.

Great interest was shown by the crowd, which had followed from the station, in two water buffaloes. These two beasts were the same that appeared in moving picture of Pearl Buck's book, "The Good Earth."

Renowned Clyde Beatty

The fame of Clyde Beatty has gone far ahead of him. On the lips of every boy in the crowd was the query "Where is Clyde Beatty?" And every one of them knew a dozen of his feats that have made him so renowned.

Circus day was a boon to a large

Japs Oust China From Lead As Buyer of U.S. Arms

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Japan has become the United States' best customer for war supplies.

The state department published figures today showing that Japan had passed China during the last six months, although Brazil led all other nations in May alone, when she bought $1,494,824 worths of arms and ammunition. Japan spent $1,334,608 to rank second in May.

Exports of war supplies to China and Japan in the six months exceeded those for the entire previous fiscal year, which, for the National Munitions Control Board of the State Department, begins Dec. 1.

From last Dec. 1 to June 1, Japan spent $6,091,090 for war equipment in the United States, compared with China's purchases of $5,819,739 worth. Their combined total was $10,112,152 in the previous year.

Exports of war materials to all nations during the six months totalled $31,090,054, compared with $60,704,808 for all of 1937. Aircraft and parts, including commercial planes, from the largest category of exports under control of the munitions board.

Russia Buying Less

Soviet Russia declined sharply as an arms customer. She was a leading buyer last year, importing $12,446,025 in war equipment.

The State Department meanwhile sought further information on a new British suggestion that the United States participate in an investigation of aerial attacks in Spain. Previous invitations of that nature had been declined quickly.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, ranking Republican member of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, questioned the propriety of American participation in the plan suggested by the British.

"Even if we did learn the facts what good would it do?" he commented.

Citadel At Quebec Houses Lord Tweedsmuir

Quebec, June 7 (CP)

LORD TWEEDSMUIR was installed in Gubernatorial quarters on the historic Citadel last night after his arrival here for his regular summer sojourn.

Attended by members of his staff, the Governor-General was greeted as his train pulled in at Union Station by Lieut.-Col. H. S. McCreevy, General T. Tremblay and Brigadier J. M. Prower, honorary aides-de-camp.

Lady Tweedsmuir is at present visiting in England.

See Bloodshed Over B.C. Jobless Case

OTTAWA, June 7.—(CP).—Warnings that bloodshed and death were likely to result from the unemployment situation in Vancouver unless the Federal Government moved quickly interrupted an otherwise quiet but progressive session in the House of Commons yesterday.

For the third time in recent weeks attention was sharply drawn to the conditions leading up to the occupation 18 days ago of the Vancouver post office and art gallery by hundreds of unemployed transients.

No evidence was forthcoming that the government would recede from its previous stand that the transients should accept an offer to return to their home provinces and take their chances with other unemployed.

To set up a preferred position for unemployed in British Columbia by conceding demands of the men in Vancouver, Labor Minister Rogers said, would be to aggravate the situation. He urged the men to go to their native provinces to which transportation had been offered them.

Action Needed At Once.

Angus MacInnis (C.C.F. Vancouver East) raised the question and urged the government to act at once to prevent riots.

C. Grant MacNeil (C.C.F. Vancouver North) made a strong plea on behalf of the men whom he described as normally law-abiding but driven to extremes by hunger and hopelessness.

These men, he said, had been "driven from pillar to post" and "hounded from town to town by police." Now, hopeless and desperate, they preferred to fight out the issue in Vancouver after ascertaining they were not wanted in any municipality.

The Government's measure to provide loans to municipalities for self-liquidating projects was passed through all remaining stages, after technical amendments had been adopted. It was sent to the Senate.

Another Government measure designed to facilitate mineral development on Indian reserves and to provide for a $350,000 revolving fund available as loans to Indians for industrial and self-improvement projects was passed through committee stage and stands for third reading.

Transport Minister Howe's widely discussed measure to reorganize the Board of Railway Commissioners into a transport commission extending its powers to cover transport by aid and, with certain limitations, by water, made good progress through committee stage.

Only a few clauses were left for later discussion, the chief debate arising over the clause permitting railways to effect special charge

Juveniles Appear On Theft Charge

Two juveniles, charged with stealing a camera, stopwatch, a guitar, and a number of Eversharp pencils from Gordon C. Minty of the Y.M.C.A. were remanded for a week when they apeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in a session of the juvenile court on Monday afternoon.

One of the pair, who at that time stated he was seventeen years old, was arraigned in open court last week and pleaded guilty to the charge.

However his mother informed the authorities afterward that the lad is only fifteen and it became necessary to have him tried in juvenile court. It was impossible to go on with the case Monday, Magistrate Langley declining to proceed until the boy's father had been properly notified to attend.

"I have never allowed a charge against a juvenile, unless he was represented by a lawyer, to proceed," the magistrate declared, "unless I knew that proper notice had been served on the parents. Whether they attend court or not is immaterial but is essential that they should be notified."

number of Peterborough merchants as well. For the circus buys as it goes, where it goes.

Grain and hay and meat for the animals, milk, butter, eggs, meat, bread, all manner of groceries for the retinue of workers and show people, even gasoline for the trucks and other machines, all were purchased locally, paid for in cash.

Nor are these things bought in small quantities. Each lion or tiger in Clyde Beatty's display eats 15 to 18 pounds of choice prime beef every day. His entire cast of animals consume about 750 pounds of meat daily, the cost being about $125 a day. On Sundays they get only milk and eggs. In all the show uses more than 2,000 pounds of meat daily for the people connected with it.

Every elephant eats 150 pounds of hay each day—a total of three tons daily for the herd. They weigh, in a group, 100,000 pounds, and are handled at each show by Eddie Allen, a 135-pound man.

A hundred superstitions have been handed down from generation to generation of circus people. No performer every whistles in the dressing room. Putting a hat on the bed is taboo. In all the hundreds of trunks that travel with a circus there is not one "camel back." That type of trunk is considered to bring bad luck and property men will not load them into the wagons.

French Troops Line Spanish Front

FOIX, France, June 7 (AP). — France sent reinforcements to the Spanish frontier today as Premier Edouard Daladier, who also is National Defence Minister, took personal charge of military preparations to repel aerial invasions.

Daladier, who spent last night in Foix on a tour of the frontier, made it plain he considered the repeated aerial attacks on French territory were deliberate.

"I am convinced this bombardment was made with a double object in view," the Premier said cryptically, after an investigation of the spot where power-lines and the right-of-way of the Toulouze-Barcelona railway were damaged by bombs dropped from nine planes of "unknown nationality" Sunday.

"We will not have war if we are strong and decided," he added. "If we look straight ahead and without fear we will be able to avoid it."

He did not comment further.

The Premier's visit to the mountainous border regions, unfortified for centuries between the two traditionally friendly nations, was the result of the visit yesterday of nine unmarked planes over France's Cerdagne valley.

As a result of this, the third border violation by aircraft in two weeks, units of the 14th Infantry and 404th Anti-Aircraft Regiments arrived late yesterday at Ax-les-Thermes, centre of the region 15 miles north of the border which was bombed Sunday.

Night Marches Ordered.

From Tarbes in the Eastern Pyrenees, infantry detachments made a night march to Pamiers, north of Foix, with 15 anti-aircraft guns of heavy calibre and anti-aircraft machine guns.

The attacks generally were considered to have been made by Spanish insurgents, although an official insurgent communique from Salamanca declared Spanish government planes disguised as insurgents made the raids in an effort to provoke French intervention in the civil war. From Burgos the insurgent general staff asserted no insurgent planes had flown closer than 62 miles to the French border.

One report published by several newspapers, both Rightist and Leftist, said the raids were made by insurgents who took advantage of the chance to make elaborate photographs of French fortifications and roads behind the frontier.

This report said the decision was made at an insurgent war council at which General Franco presided last week at Burgos. General Franco was said to have opposed the plan but gave in to the insistence of his German advisers.

Hundreds Watch As Circus Train Unloaded

Peterborough today had the rare opportunity of seeing at first hand just what "stupefiant", that brand new word to the English language, actually means.

"Stupefiant", adopted from the French via a press agent's mind, means a combination of astounding, amazing, stupefying and breath-taking. In short, "stupefiant" means "stupefiant".

The actual demonstration of the meaning of the word was aboard the all-steel trains of double-length railroad cars which roared into Peterborough late this morning, carrying the mammoth Cole Brothers Circus and its myriad of wonders from the far corners of the world.

The tremendous ease with which the long trains were unloaded — only a few hours after they were loaded early this morning in Ottawa—and carried t the Fair Grounds was "stupefiant". The acres and acres of canvas housing the huge city of white .ops were "stupefiant". The population of upwards of 1,100 persons and over 1,000 animals making up the itinerant city were "stupefiant".

Advance notices from other Canadian and American cities, where the 1938 edition of the great Cole Brothers Circus has been shown, indicate that the circus performance itself, which will be presented today at 2 and 8 p.m., is "stupefiant" from the dazzling opening parade and pageant to the thrilling presentations of the Great Florenzo and his triple-somersaulting automibile and the exhibition of skill and daring presented by Ken Maynard and his Congress of Rough Riders of the World.

In returning to Canada, the Cole Brothers circus is back in its native land, since it was founded many years ago in Ontario by the original Cole Brothers. The traditions of honesty and clean entertainment care—fully founded and nurtured through decades by the Cole Brothers are now being just as carefully nurtured and protected by Zack Terrill and Jess Adkins, two veteran North American showmen.

Soon after the work of unloading the long trains commenced, the glittering white ticket wagon, presenting reserved seats for the afternoon and night performances, went into action at the Fair Grounds. At the same time, a downtown ticket office, also offering seats for both performances, was opened at Bond's Drug Store, 399 George St. for the convenience of shoppers. The red ticket wagon, purveying general admission tickets, was to be opened at 1 and 7 p.m., simultaneously with the gates to the menagerie and the huge big-top itself.

The big-top is one of the largest tents in the world and is brand new this year. A wonder itself because of its size and bulk, it is as nothing when compared to the breath-taking displays of nerve, skill, agility and death defiance presented twice daily under its white spread.

Foremost, unquestionably, is the

Puppy Is Playing Charity Role

As an added attraction for the big Rotary Carnival on Thursday and Friday of this week, there will be a special draw for a very fine terrier pup which is making its second appearance in a charity role. He was first donated to the Nicholls Hospital Auxiliary to assist that organization in their Penny Fair, and the winner has in turn presented the puppy to the club to be drawn for at the annual carnival. Tickets will be sold Thursday and Friday night and the draw will be made on the second night.

All arrangements have been completed for the carnival which will be held at Riverside Park. There will be a merry-go-round and Ferris wheel for the benefit of the youngsters and a large array of games and booths at which everybody can have fun and at the same time help to open the door of opportunity to some crippled child or assist some under-privileged boy.

Incidentally the sale of tickets for the Chevrolet coach which is the main prize of the carnival and which will be drawn for on Friday night and sold for one dollar to the person holding the winning ticket, is speeding up rapidly as the big event draws near and it is the hope of the Rotarians that the receipts this year will set a new record. Funds are needed as the demands of the crippled children's work have been heavy in recent months and the club is anxious that its activities should not be curtailed.

Even Works Minister Gets No Post Office

OTTAWA, June 7 (CP).—There are times when even a Cabinet Minister cannot get what he wants for his own constituency. Works Minister Cardin said so last night as he sought to console A. W. Neill (Ind., Comox-Alberni) in his disappointment at the government's failure to erect a new post office in Alberni this year.

Mr. Neill said the city needed a post office badly, had deeded a site to the government free of charge, and the cost of a building would be only $17,000.

Mr. Cardin said he had an almost identical case in his own constituency, and had done his best to obtain a building without success.

Claim Comba

lified the verdict and sentence passed on Comba, one of whom found the evidence not only consistent with innocence but inconsistent with guilt.

Mr. Greer said it was an unusual thing Chief Justice F. R. Latchford did when he consulted with the trial Judge, Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier, before hearing the Comba appeal. By so doing he put himself out of court as an appeal Judge.

"I suppose you mean we really have no dissenting judgment," said Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff.

"That is my point,' said Mr. Greer. (Chief Justice Latchford gave a dissenting judgment favoring a new trial for Comba).

Chief Justice Duff recalled that at one time trial Judges sat in on appeals. Chief Justice Latchford may have observed the old custom.

Mr. Greer urged the court to consider carefully whether Chief Justice Latchford had not disqualified himself from sitting on the appeal by going to the trial Judge before the hearing of the appeal. He knew of no case precedent.

Mind Made Up Previous?

"I contend any judgment he has rendered is a mugatory judgment and should not be given effect," said Mr. Greer, alleging the Ontario Chief Justice had made up his mind before hearing the appeal.

A vital point in the evidence, said Mr. Greer, was where the mother of the slain girl swore she ate no potatoes for breakfast on the day she was slain. An autopsy report showed potatoes in her stomach.

There was only the unsworn evidence of three children to put Comba near the scene of the girl's death around the time the Crown alleges the crime took place, said Mr. Greer. For three weeks after the girl's death they never mentioned having seen Comba. Then a provincial police officer bought them candies, gum and ice cream and they said they saw the man whom they identified as Comba at the trial.

"That is the history of the three children's evidence. The story goes unrevealed for three weeks and then is revealed by the blandishments of police with ice cream and other things," said Mr. Greer.

Prospects Bright For Ontario Crops

TORONTO, June 7—(CP).—Crop prospects are bright throughout most of Ontario, but rain is needed in Western and Eastern Ontario, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, released to-day.

Brant and Lambton counties reported bumper crops of Spring grains looked likely. The fruit crop seemed good in Lincoln. Corn and root crop planting were ended in Brant County.

Corn planting was general in Hastngs and other Central Ontario counties, Muskoka, Parry Sound, Northumberland, Prince Edward and Victoria reported ideal growing weather with crops making good progress.

Grenville farmers saw the prospect of big clover and alfalfa crops with orchard men enthusiastic over the growth of apples. Rain was needed in Glengarry, where corn planting was general and in Lennox and Addington for late planting.

Sudbury farmers said crops looked better than for several years with plenty of moisture assuring a heavy hay crop and exceptional growth of clover and grasses. Manitoulin and Nipissing pastures were good. Temiskaming reported an increased acreage in potatoes.

Czechoslovakia has restricted the importation of precious stones by parcel post.

6,000 Casualties As Japs Bomb Canton 11th Day

CANTON, China, June 7 (AP)—Japanese air raiders twice bombarded terrorized Canton today, the 11th successive day of aerial attack on the congested city and its environs.

The raids have caused an estimated 6,000 casualties, destroyed more than 1,000 buildings and created a dire problem of relief.

After an early morning foray, Japanese fliers returned this afternoon and methodically bombed government offices and the railroad line to Hankow, provisional seat of the government.

The bombarded areas, however, had been objectives of previous Japanese bombs and had been completely evacuated. It was believed, therefore, civilian casualties would be small.

The first raid today was brief and the damage comparatively slight. The raiders came at dawn while authorities still were endeavoring to cope with 1,500 casualties from yesterday's deadly attacks on the sleepless city.

The Japanese objective, apparently, was to wipe out Canton's importance as the gateway for foreign munitions for China's armies.

As a result of two destructive raids yesterday, in which a side of the French Doumer Hospital was blown out, officials said it had been necessary to remove many patients from the institution. It was damaged extensively and much valuable equipment was destroyed.

Prince of Wales Captures Prize Cadet Inspection

Prince of Wales Public School this morning captured first honors over all public schools in the city in the annual Cadet inspection. Inspecting Officer Captain P. M. Millette of Kingston awarded the school first place over five others for their general appearance and ability on the training ground.

The six schools comprise a battalion of between 250 and 300 Cadets, all of whom are far above the average in training and execution of their drills, according to Captain Millette. Each boy seems to take keen interest in the work, a thing he does not always find, he said. He praised the work of the officers, and said much of the credit for a splendid performance was due to them.

The unsettled weather necessitated changes in procedure and the ease with which the Cadets made those changes was indication of the splendid training they had received, Capt. Millette said. At two or three schools rain was falling heavily during the drill, but the youngsters braved the weather and went smartly through their paces.

The inspection commenced at 8.30 a.m. and continued until noon, the Governor-General's holiday being declared for the afternoon so that school children might attend the circus.

Saskatchewan Wheat All In

REGINA, June 7 (CP).—Wheat seeding is practically completed in Saskatchewan and only about 10 per cent. of the coarse grain acreage remains to be seeded, according to reports received by the Department of Agriculture.

Growth of wheat has been fairly good and germination and growth of coarse grains are reported generally satisfactory. Taking the province as a whole, 90 per cent. of the wheat and over 90 per cent. of the coarse grains are above ground.

Some soil drifting has occurred during the past two weeks, but damage has not been great. Cutworms are reported in scattered areas and some injury has resulted. Very severe damage is reported from wireworms at several points. In the Truax area some fields show as high as 75 to 80 per cent. damage and some reseeding has been done, while at Beaver Flats 50 to 75 per cent. has occurred. From Swift Current west to the Alberta boundary wireworm activity is apparent and possibly an average loss of five to 10 per cent. has occurred.

Hatching of grasshoppers is becoming more general and some heavy local hatches are reported. Some damage has occurred around the edges of fields and in some stubble crops. Control measures are underway where necessary.

Some good local showers have fallen but high winds have prevailed an many areas, and coupled with the extra demands of the growing crop, have drawn heavily on soil moisture. Moisture conditions on the whole are fairly satisfactory for present needs in most of the southern and in eastern districts and over much of the central and the northwestern areas. Good rains are needed at points in Southwestern Saskatchewan.

Mrs. Ira Lowe, Mount Pleasant, Heads East Durham Institutes

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Jun 7. — Delegations from every branch in the East Durham district, informative addresses, reports of constructive activities, and fine weather combined to make the annual meeting of the eight branches comprising the East Durham Women's Institute, which was held at Bailieboro on Friday, outstanding in attendance, stories of work accomplished, and interest.

The first session opened at 10.00 a.m., with the president, Mrs. Cecil Williams of Morrish in the chair, and Miss M. V. Powell of Toronto assistant general W.I. secretary for Ontario, who has had a wide experience in Institute work from many angles, as the guest speaker for the occasion.

The financial report for the district, given by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, showed total receipts of $91.47; balance on hand $43.71. For the combined eight branches and the district the figures were: Receipts $1,375.50, expenditures $992.58, balance in bank $382.92.

The reports from the individual branches were a feature of peculiar interest, Morrish having 46 on the roll; ten regular meetings, with an average attendance of 28; eleven papers and five addresses had been given at the meetings, and a delegate had been sent to the provincial convention. A community picnic and a banquet for the members and their husbands had been among the activities.

All branches reported sending cards of sympathy to bereaved members, fruit and other "treats" to sick and shut-ins, and baskets of good cheer at Christmas time.

Millbrook has 39 on the roll, 13 being the average at the 12 regular meetings; two executive meetings had also been held. Euchre parties, booths at the rural and fall fairs, catering for teas, etc., had been among the means used for raising money, and included in the activities had been the purchase of oil for the floor of the new bandstand, and paying for the hedge on the Government lot. Two girls had been sent to the conference at Guelph, and two demonstrations put on at meetings; six girls had been helped to attend the Youth Training School at Hampton.

Garden Hill reported 30 members, an average of 20 in attendance, 11 regular meetings held, and 11 papers given. Hydro had been installed in the W.I. Hall at a cost of $85; help given where a home had been destroyed by fire; $11.75 paid for new curtains for the hall, and an autograph quilt made and sold as one means of raising money.

Bailieboro has 56 on the roll, but a small average attendance; eight regular meetings were held, and activities included the repairing and painting of the village flagpole, plants and seeds provided for members, relief sent to the flood area, and to other centres.

Elizabethville showed 44 on the roll, 11 meetings, average 27; this branch provided the paint, and put it on, the floor in the Sunday School Hall, had demonstrations on canning, appointed an active visiting committee of three young ladies, and had entertained the Morrish branch; it had also repaired the church furnace at a cost of $75, made quilts, and helped needy families.

Bethany reported 24 members, 11 meetings, with an average of 17; it planted two maple trees on the Town Hall lawn, and afterward held a public gathering in the hall for a social time; a cistern had been sunk for fire protection; plants and seeds had been exchanged and relief, in money, sent to the flood sufferers.

Cavan branch has 44 members, held 11 meetings, with 18 as the average attendance; it plans its programs for the year, provided a playground for the young folks, and conducted a campaign for the destruction of starlings; it takes three magazines for its members' use, sent two girls to Guelph, and has had demonstrations, together with many constructive papers and addresses.

Mount Pleasant also drafts its programs for the year, makes quilts, does relief work, entertained the Omemee branch, and keeps the work going successfully.

Committee Reports.

All standing committees, except the one on Canadianization, gave excellent reports. Mrs. R. S. Staples, of Cavan, was appointed to represent this area on the committee which will plan the program for the fall W.I. convention in Toronto, and Miss Juan Shields will provide the musical selection asked from this district. A letter from Mrs. Arthur Boyd, of Newcastle, regarding the question of unemployment and how to keep the young people away from the cities, was read, and a copy ordered to be sent to each branch, asking that they take such action as may be deemed best, after full discussion of the matter.

Concluding the morning session was Miss Powell's capable handling of the "question box," her replies bringing much helpful information before the delegates.

The hostess branch entertained the delegates at dinner, and again at the tea hour, when the social side of the large gathering was stressed, the warm welcome and invitation being extended by Mrs. Reg. Armstrong, president of the Bailieboro Institute. The meals were served in the Bateson Hall, and the convention sessions held in the basement of Christ Church; hearty votes of thanks were passed for the courtesies extended, before the convention closed.

A pleasant feature of the opening part of the afternoon meeting was the solo, "A Little Brown Bird is Singing," by Edith Cook, gold medalist at the recent Northumberland Music Festival at Colborne, and the chorus singing of the Bailieboro school, which came first among thirty-seven competitors, at the same gathering. Mrs. George Campbell, musical supervisor, was the accompanist for her pupils.

Miss M. V. Powell's address was outstanding in importance, covering fully the obligations of the standing committees, and urging that not all of these be carried in each local branch, but a choice made of three or four that might prove the most helpful, if the entire slate is a burden.

Emphasis was also laid upon the necessity of sending in the reports promptly to the head office so needed statistics and other information would be immediately available.

Course Is Planned.

Helps in the way of speakers and short courses which the Department is ready to furnish were clearly stated, and at the close it was decided that East Durham would have the course on "Bindmanship and Clothing," Millbrook to be the centre for the classes, and instructions on the necessary leadership training followed.

Mrs. W. H. Armstrong gave the report on junior girls' work, and Mrs. Thickson, of Elizabethville, the report of the Federated Institutes' convention at Toronto; Mrs. Garnet Shield, of Mount Pleasant, who is now a member of the Provincial W.I. Board, brought a message to the convention, and Mrs. Martin, of Morrish, spoke on "W.I. Exhibits at the Fall Fair."

The election of officers resulted in the following slate for 1938-39: President, Mrs. Ira Lowe of Mount Pleasant; Vice-Presidents: Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Millbrook, and Mrs. W. A. Caldwell, of Campbellcroft; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Millbrook; Federation Representative, Mrs. G. Shield, Mount Pleasant; District delegate to convention, Miss L. Jackson, Bailieboro; Auditors: Mrs. George Fallis and Miss Pearl Burnham, Millbrook.

Standing Committee Convenors—Agriculture, Mrs. C. Beaton, Morrish; Education, Miss Burnham, Millbrook; Health, Mrs. O. Carley, Cavan; Home Economics, Mrs. Price, Bethany; Relief and Community Activities, Mrs. W. Caldwell, Garden Hill; Historical Research, Mrs. H. Gardiner, Mount Pleasant; Legislation, Mrs. Soden Elizabethville; Canadianization, Mrs. R. S. Staples, Cavan; Peace Education, Mrs. G. Shield.

The invitation from the Bethany branch to hold the next district annual there was accepted with thanks, and the convention closed with the National Anthem. A display of handsome quilts, belonging to a number of the branches, was a feature of this year's district annual, and the retiring president asked that some similar display of work be shown at next year's gathering.

Papal Delegate Arrives For Congress

Aberhart Warns Ottawa On Bank Threat

EDMONTON, June 7 — (CP). — Withdrawal of "essential services" by banks will force the Alberta government to 'take such action as may be necessary to safeguard the welfare of our people," Premier Aberhart informed Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a telegram, text of which was released here last night.

Protesting against what he said might be interpreted as a "coercive threat" the banks may close branches in the province, the premier said he had urged in a wire to the federal government that it make sure the banks discharge their obligations or give notice of their unwillingness so Alberta could "be left free to organize our own banking system to serve the needs of our people."

Premier Aberhart also wrote a letter to bank supervisors in the province asking "what instructions you have either received or issued in this connection and what action, if any, has been taken."

In a separate statement issued to reporters, the premier said the government had been informed certain local bank managers have been telling businessmen and others that unless "they can bring pressure to bear for the disallowance or repeal of laws to which the banks object —in particular the securities tax, the purpose of which is to enable the government to reduce taxation on individual citizens—the services rendered by many branch banks will be withdrawn."

Pressure On Residents.

"This government has been advised of several instances in which local managers of banks have informed residents that unless the existing laws in regard to certain taxation is disallowed or withdrawn, branch banks throughout the province will be closed," the premier said in the telegram.

"The matter is being investigated at this end, but as your Government claims complete jurisdiction over banks and banking it must point out that this action of the banks has serious implications.

"Firstly, it could be interpreted as a coercive threat to the people of Alberta and directed against His Majesty's Government in this province.

"Secondly the withdrawal of an essential serivce will place this Government in a position of being forced to take such action as may be necessary to safeguard the welfare of our people.

"The banks are under definite obligation to see that such obligation is adequately discharged or alternatively that due notice is given to the Government of Alberta of the banks' unwillingness to maintain these necessary services in which case we must insist that we be left to organize our own banking system to serve the needs of our people."

Scouts and Guides Plant Shrubbery

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 7. — A colorful procession headed by the Campbellford Bugle Band under direction of Walter Lowe and including Boy Scouts and Girl Guide troops, marched from the Public Library at the corner of Bridge and Ranney street to the Cenotaph on Saturday evening. After first pausing to salute the two large flags which waved in the breeze the young people began the flower planting ceremony which had been planned by A. H. McKeel whose work on the present site of the monument has been the subject of great praise by all people throughout the district. The Girl Guides under command of their captain Miss Grace Payne lined up along the north and south side at the base of the monument where plots had been allotted to them while the scouts took over their work around the bird baths.

After planting the flowers which they themselves had provided the flowers and plants donated by H. N. Carr, M.P.P. were put in place. Each Guide and Scout was provided with a trowel with which to make the hole for the plant or flower they were given while another member of the group sprinkled the ground with water.

Slip Of The Memory Reveals Senator As Nightgown Fan

Lansing, Mich., June 7 (CP) SENATOR Prentis M. Brown of Michigan wears a nightshirt —and doesn't mind admitting it. The 49-year-old member of the United States upper house wrote a Lansing hotel recently asking the return of the nightshirt he left there recently while enroute to Washington.

"Old-fashioned nightgowns are such a rarity in these pajama days that the loss is more serious than the intrinsic value," the Senator wrote. The garment was returned.

Investigation revealed 1,000 male nightgowns have been sold in Detroit department stores since the beginning of the year, and the gowns are available in sizes from a 15 to an extra large "hotel size," of the circus variety.

Japs Sweeping On Chengchow

SHANGHAI, June 7 (AP)—Japanese shock troops today began the envelopment of Chengchow, key to Hankow, after having captured Kaifeng, one-time capital of China.

One column, driving west hard from Kaifeng in pursuit of retreating Chinese forces, advanced to Chungmow, 23 miles east of the important junction of the Peiping-Hankow and Lunghai Railways, while other columns closed in from the south and southeast.

Some were withdrawing to the west, it was said, where they were forming a defence line against a Japanese advance into Shensi province which would cut off the flow of munitions from Soviet Russia. Others were forming a line 30 miles to the south near Sincheng to prevent the Japanese from severing the Peiping-Hankow line and striking Chengchow from that direction.

The Japanese aim is to capture Chengchow and then advance down the Peiping-Hankow railway to China's provisional capital.

It was estimated half of the Kaifeng's normal population of 250,000 was evacuated before the city was captured in 24 hours of hand-to-hand fighting.

"MAKE A GOOD FIRST IMPRESSION" SAYS DALE CARNEGIE
Author of the famous book
"HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

● "Today the world moves fast, people haven't much time to study and analyze other people. That is why first impressions are so important and so lasting.

"Success is usually won by men who possess the ability to talk well, impress people, 'sell' themselves and their ideas quickly."

● "It is astonishing how little you need to do—or say—to make a favourable first impression. Think back to the last occasion when someone you met for the first time made a strong impression on you.

"The chances are he said very little—but what he said was just right. He was sincere, assured and self-possessed."

● "If you want to make a good first impression, be natural in word and gesture. Don't be affected. Don't try to dramatize yourself. An employer is experienced in judging men and he is but rarely deceived by appearances. What he thinks of you is the result of what he sees in you. And the first things he looks for are ability and honesty.

Making People Afraid

One Old Country science master is moved to write something about what would happen if there were a gas raid on the country. He says the subject has been so thoroughly explored and exploited that a good many people are living in a state of fear all the time. He makes the assertion there are some who cannot go to sleep at nights for thinking about it because the subject is so frequently brought before them.

This science master, H. Anderson, agrees that one ton of poison gas could possibly destroy one million people "If they were so obliging to line up with their tongues out." In the same way he argues a few road rollers could probably kill off the population if the people would all lie down as the road roller came along.

People are not unduly alarmed about the casuality list from traffic accidents and yet the annual toll in Britain is 6,500 killed and 250,000 wounded.

Mr. Anderson claims that people know about autos and road rollers and therefore are not much afraid of them although they can inflict injury or death. But gas is a mysterious thing about which they know little and are therefore in dread of it. Mr. Anderson claims that poisonous gases are all known and identified.

One can have respect and patience for all reasonable measures to guard against gas attacks in case of war, but there is something to be said for the claim of Mr. Anderson that continued talking about the subject creates a state of mental fear which is not serving any good purpose. Being afraid of something never yet increased our ability to deal with it.

Not The Best Plan

At the last meeting of Smith township council a bill was presented because a detachment from the Peterborough Fire Department answered a call to a fire in Chemong Park on May 2. The amount of the bill was $200, and whether members of Smith council considered it too large was not stated.

The bill as sent in was refused payment because the call to the fire department had not been authorized by the Reeve of the municipality. There is a standing motion on the books of the township that unless the Reeve gives authority to send in the call the bill for such calls will not be paid. They are put in the class known as unauthorized.

No doubt there is need enough to have some form of keeping a check on such calls as sending for a fire brigade at $200 is something not to be encouraged outside of an emergency. But the plan has an apparent weakness in that it puts it up to the Reeve to make a decision and also raises the rather important question: What is to be done if the Reeve cannot be located by the person who knows of the existence of a serious fire? It is not possible that the Reeve can be at all hours within call.

It Cannot Be Done

State Secretary Cordell Hull speaking at Nashville, Tenn., made plain remarks about the horrors of war. That of course is an old subject but Mr. Hull kept it from being too general by applying it to the custom of bombing civilian population, and that in turn narrowed it down to China and Spain.

Mr. Hull said too United States was willing and anxious to meet with any other nations or with all of them to consider "humanizing rules of warfare." That is, he would restrict warfare more or less to the soldiers who went out to do the fighting rather than inflict suffering on the entire population.

We believe Mr. Hull said exactly what he meant. People in United States would regard war in about the same way as we would in this country. They would not want it but they would not shrink from it if it were thrust upon them.

There is a good deal of honest doubt attached to the feeling that humanizing warfare is something which can be done. A few years ago nations of the world sent their representatives to Paris and there they solemnly attached their signatures to a document which was to outlaw war as a matter of national policy. But it didn't work. Wars which have broken out since the signing of that pact have seen the civilian population bombed as never before. The idea today seems to be to kill as many people as possible whereas wars of other years were won by reducing the fighting forces to the point of exhaustion of manpower or resources.

War cannot be humanized because it is essentially inhuman; it is like trying to make something reasonable which is primarily unreasonable.

A concrete case would be this: Japanese bombers flew over Canton in Southern China and in a short time killed 2,000 people—men, women and children. If this sort of warfare or slaughter had been outlawed as suggested by Mr. Hull, and Japan persisted in fighting that way, what would happen? Would United States or other nations be prepared to take military action against Japan? The answer is no. That is the reason why war cannot be made human. The nation offending against any such ruling knows nothing more serious will be done than the writing of a note of protest.

Ananda Going On a Trip

Word from Bangkok, Siam, says the king of the country is coming to make a visit. Siam itself is tucked away in southeastern Asia and has a population of some 9,000,000.

The name of the king is Ananda and he inherited the throne rather unexpectedly when his uncle abdicated. Ananda is but 13 years of age and has been attending school in Switzerland. There are schools in his own land and there has been an advance in educational matters at home, but King Ananda is frail and fears he could not stand the heat in his own land.

And yet this king of 13, ruler of Siam, rather delicate too—is the richest juvenile ruler in the world. In addition to the regular royal fortune to which he fell heir when his uncle left, he inherited scores of palaces, pagodas, temples of almost unbelievable beauty and $10,000,000 worth of crown jewels.

So little King Ananda is going to take a trip home to let the people see what kind of a king he is going to make. A good many millions of his subjects live in huts and are glad enough when the rice crop is abundant.

The Moon Off Its Track

Harold Spencer Jones is an astronomer who lives in London and he addressed a meeting at the Royal Observatory at Greenwich. When one advances to the stage where he speaks at Greenwich we are inclined to pay heed; the place was founded by Charles II, and from there is reckoned the zero meridian of longitude in British maps and charts, and from there also is reckoned what is known as Greenwich mean time. What's more Greenwich Observatory is a difficult place to enter. For a small fee one can go through London Tower but not so at Greenwich. Only those bent upon making serious scientific inquiries are admitted.

That is why we were somewhat impressed to find that Harold Spencer Jones was speaking there. And what did he say? Just this— the moon has jumped its track. The moon's course is plotted by the earth's time, and the earth's time is reckoned by its rotation. The trouble now is that something like a gigantic brake has been clamped on the spinning world, slowing it down.

One might be inclined to remark that the world, becoming older, is not getting around as quickly as it used to , but such a view is not sufficiently scientific. Turning again to the serious side of this question we find this slowing-down process has been going on at the rate of about 1-1000th second every century. So it would take 100,000 years for a full second's change to take place in the timing of the earth in its relationship to the course of the moon.

One might again facetiously remark that this would indeed make little difference, but before dismissing the subject so lightly it is worth thinking a moment about the perfection of the instruments at Greenwich Observatory which would detect and properly measure a part so utterly infinitisemal.

It Hardly Seems Right

A peculiar situation is reported from Fort Erie district. The Lake Erie shore area has a large number of summer residents from United States, and there had been an unofficial assurance there would be no attempt made to collect radio licenses from these residents who would be in the country only a few months during the summer.

Information now is that an inspector is on the ground with the purpose of offering to give owners opportunity to purchase radio licenses and thus avoid any other steps which may later be taken against those who are not in possession of them.

There is no radio license collected in United States and for the most part these people would be listening to the American programs to which they have become accustomed. So there are protests being made at the collection of the fee.

The only reason for collecting the fee would be because the department needs the money, and we can think of a number of reason why it should not be collected.

He Wanted To Go Home

Hon. Morrison Mann MacBride Minister of Labor is dead. He had not been feeling well at his office in Toronto and like any other man in that condition he wanted to go home; he wanted to see his own doctor and his doctor ordered him to go to bed. And that would be in his own bed. No doubt if he were going to be sick he would probably prefer to be in his own bed rather than any bed in Toronto. Brantford would be home to him because he went there when a young man.

Mr. MacBride went to Brantford about 1900 for two reasons — there was an opening for a printer in the job department of the Expositor office and he was also a good lacrosse player. When he paired off with McIlwain of the old St. Catharines team there was a contest worth watching. "Mac" was afraid of nothing and it must have been that he carried that feeling all the way through. He became an alderman and the next year he was mayor and he was mayor for many years. He entered the Legislature as a Labor man and although he ran under other auspices afterward he was essentially just that—a Labor man.

As years went by his hair remained but it turned white; truth is it was an ornament. In an election campaign he was a hard man with whom to contend. He stressed the human element in existence and in government and he was undoubtedly a strong and persuasive platform man. In all these experiences he was essentially "Mac" of the famous old Brantford lacrosse team; he was in the struggle to win. "Mac" went to Brantford to play lacrosse and when he died he was Hon. Morrison Mann MacBride, Minister of Labor. His career was one which reflected plainly enough that in this country a strong man can move toward the front ranks.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The wonder is that some enterprising barber has not yet announced that he is running a hair-conditioned shop.

We have invented so many new war machines that we are threatening our own continued existence.

Premier Duplessis says that Quebec's interest in connection with Anticosti is being protected. He probably intends to padlock the place.

Mosquitoes in the Orillia district must be tough. It is said they are taking the oil the town is using for theid destruction and thriving on it.

Marlene Dietrich, screen actress, earned $370,000 last year and we hope that with strict economy she was able to get by on that amount.

Collecting a radio license from a tourist only in Ontario for a short time is not a gesture that helps develop the tourist industry.

It costs Toronto $472 a mile for street cleaning every year. At that price the Queen City should be like the mythical Spotless town.

Naturalists gathered at Oakville over the week end to study wild life. Somehow we do not think we would go to Oakville if we were looking for wild life.

The British amateur golfers have captured the Walker Cup in their seventeenth attempt. Perserverance has its reward even on the golf links.

Regina man fell under a truck and was then able to get up and run for a street car. That is indeed a happy ending, but it could not take place in our city as we have no street cars to which one could run.

Kingston has refused to allow Canadian Fascists to parade. The authorities would probably have authorized the thing if they had been sure the route would be along Princess Street straight into the St. Lawrence.

Three men on their way to a Toronto links upset their car which was badly damaged but they crawled out of the wreckage and went on to play their game. It takes a lot to discourage a golfer.

Cabinet ministers in Equador have all quit to go to the war against Peruvia. If cabinet posts the world over were on the same basis they would be carrying—like our ownership of bank stock— a double liability.

An estate of $2,000,000 in St. Louis has drawn 140 claimants from Canada, Britain and United States. An estate of that size generally provides opportunity to show how the family tree has grown. Grown so large that court officials conclude that many of the branches should be cut off.

OUTLOOK

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Old Jim one time he owned two farms, he had two houses and two barns, and cattle in the stall; bad luck and fire just cleaned him out, he'd nothing left to talk about, that was three years last fall.

¶ He was too old to start again ,and work like did the pioneer men, for he was too far down; Jim hardly knew what next to do, the things he had were mighty few, and so he moved to town.

¶ He rented just a little shack, not much room at front or back, there's little he can grow; and yet the vines climb here and there, old fashioned flowers most everywhere, a place I like to go.

¶ I thought Jim would have felt the frost, complain a lot on what he'd lost, and be inclined to scoff; he might get bitter in his ways, and talk a deal about the days, when he was quite well off.

¶ He picks up odd jobs now and then, and travels most with humble men, nor moans about his wealth; if Jim speaks of himself at all, why first he starts in to recall, that he has wondrous health.

¶ He knows a lot of folk does Jim, and now and then they're dropping in, just like they ought to be; he knows their troubles in a way, and he was telling me today—"there's lots worse off then me."

Much History In Quebec City

(By L. P. K.)

A LETTER FROM an American visitor in "Old Quebec" is responsible for this article.

Quebec is old as centuries are counted on this continent. The city streets are peopled with shadows from the past, Indians, gentlemen adventurers, Nuns, (the Ursline Sisters arrived as early as 1639) politicians, Bishops, soldiers, sailors and the courageous settler. They crowd so thickly that they jostle one another — One can almost hear the echo of their footsteps as they pass.

It was away back in the year 1535 that Cartier spent a winter in the Indian Village of Stadacona, at the mouth of the Charles River. Seventy three years later, where Stadacona had once stood, Champlain built his rude fort and warehouse.

Quebec grew up from the river front. In the early days all the shops were down in, what is now called, "the lowertown." The first Parish Church was down there in the Rue de Notre Dame. It was up a narrow street, from the landing place, between two lines of waiting husbands-to-be, that the Brides had to pass. The young women whom Louis XIV sent out to Canada to be wives to the settlers. Before they sailed Louis summoned them to Versailles and admonished them to be "Godfearing, faithful wives; to bear children to populate this New France." Poor Brides! what were their thoughts when they first beheld that little cluster of buildings under the great frowning rock? Many must have had aching hearts as they walked up that muddy path, facing the scrutiny of those staring men.

The Intendant's palace was near the wharves. When Talon built it he intended it to be a brewery, but later he converted it into the official residence. Nothing is now left of the structure but the cellar which, strange to say, is now a brewery's storehouse.

While Intendant Bigot was in office the palace was the scene of many a gay party. A gallery extended round three sides of the ballroom, and to it the citizens were admitted, and from there they, sharpeyed, watched the guests in the ballroom below, the officers in their resplendent uniforms, the elegant gentlemen in satin knee-breeches, silk coats and lace ruffles; the pretty vivacious women whispering, and glancing coyly over the top of their fans, and the many flirtations.

✧ ✧ ✧

To arrive at the old Chateau St. Louis one had to climb a steep path cut in the rock. The first Chateau was built, in part, by Governor de Montengry and finished by his successor D'ailleboust. Later this Chateau was torn down and a larger building was erected on the same site. In 1784 Governor-General Haldimand lead the foundation stone of an extension, a large assembly hall for use on State occasions. The new wing was called "Haldimand Castle" in honour of Sir Frederick.

The curious old stone that is inserted in the wall above the porte cochere of the Chateau Frontenac was found by the workmen when they were levelling the ground for the new addition.

This assembly hall was said to have the finest floor in Canada, for dancing. Objections were made to visitors wearing creepers in the hall and marring the floor, so the orderlies were instructed to watch the visitors' feet, and see that the offending foot wear was removed. The "creeper" of those days was a very sturdy contraption, the spikes were set in a leather heel that extended under the instep; it was held on by two straps that fastened over the instep, and two, attached to the back of the heel, were buckled round the ankle.

Balls were a popular form of entertainment. "Dancing commenced at seven or eight; at one guests sat down to "a magnificent and sumptuous supper"—after a few toasts, dancing was resumed and continued until seven in the morning."

Quebec owned a theatre in 1780 and such dramas as "High life below Stairs," "Love a la Mode" and the "Fashionable Lovers" were presented. The plays were interspersed with music. The patrons were requested to have the exact price of admission ready as "no change would be given."

Evidently all sorts of finery was to be had in the shops for the advertisements that appeared in the Quebec Gazzette of 1781 announce, "Elegant figured silk; velvet for winter vests, moloshkin velvet for breeches, paste shoe buckles, gold snuff boxes, double gilt canes, silver lace; gold, silver and pearl buttons" etc. "For the ladies, stays of all kinds in the most fashionable tastes; elegant hats, caps, laces, satins, sarsnets, silk shoes and slippers, perfumery, lockets; pearl, garnet and paste broaches" etc.

Castle Haldimand was saved from the fire that destroyed the old Chateau St. Louis in 1830, and it was used, in connection with Laval University, as a normal school until 1892 when it was pulled down to make way for the Chateau Frontenac.

Laval University has a long history, it dates back to 1663. Its roots are planted in the "Grand Seminaire," for the education of Priests, and the "petite eminaire," a preparatory college, that were founded by Bishop Laval, the Bishop who did so much to build up the Church of early French Canada. To the work of his Church, and to the poor, Laval devoted his entire income.

✧ ✧ ✧

Quebec was seventeen years old when David Kirke anchored off Tadousac and sent his letter to Champlain stating that he had "commission from the King of Great Britain, my honoured lord and Master, to take possession of the countries of Canada and Acadia." The letter was rather long, but very courteous. Kirke having met with, and overcome a French squadron, returned to England, and it was not until the next year that a British fleet appeared before Quebec, and David Kirke's two brothers, Thomas and Louis, sent their polite note to Champlain, assuring him of their brother's friendship "as we do of ours; and knowing very well the extereme need of everything in which you are, desires that you shall surrender the fort and settlement to us, assuring you of every kind of courtesy for you and yours."

Champlain, knowing that the fort could not withstand an assault, to hold out would only mean loss of life to the half-starved settlers, bargained for the best terms possible before he delivered up the keys to Louis Kirke, and for the first time in its history, the British flag flew above the ramparts of Quebec. Three years later Charles the first gave back Quebec to France and once more the white lilies floated in the breeze.

✧ ✧ ✧

A little more than half a century later a New England fleet slipped into Quebec harbor, and Phipps despatched an envoy to Frontenac with a lengthy letter demanding, "A present surrender of your forts and castles undemolished, and King's and other stores unembezzled" etc. Frontenac, dressed in a gorgeous uniform accompanied by his staff and principal military and civil officers, received the envoy in the reception room of the Chateau St. Louis. Frontenac's reply was, so Phipps said, "A reviling answer."

The fortunes of war went against the New Englanders. Many fell ill, ammunition became exhausted, the provisions ran low, and a number of his ships were badly crippled, so Phipps withdrew and sailed for home. Bad luck still followed for on the way to Boston two or three of his vessels were lost.

AND A HALF CAR

"But, George, you can't say it's ruined our whole day; we've already had a jolly half day." —Humorist.

• Will the Hon. Members Be Quiet!

(From Parliamentary Reports)

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. I think there is too much disturbance in the chamber. I will call upon hon. members to remain in their seats and to be silent during the debate.

Mr. STEVENS: Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I submit that, while these observations of mine do not interest hon. members very much, the subject matter must challenge the attention of parliament. I am warning parliament that if we do not grapple with these problems this session we shall invite disaster.

I was just about to make an observation regarding these unemployed single men.

Mr. DUNNING: I hesitate to interrupt my hon. friend, but there are many opportunities, on appropriate questions, to survey the whole field of problems of this kind. I gather that the motion for second reading is still before the house. I suggest that, in order to prevent a very wide range in debate over the whole economics of the country, hon members should at least stick to the principle of the bill, which is the making of loans to municipalities for these purposes. I know that it permits a pretty wide latitude, but I do think my hon. friend is rather exceeding it at the moment.

Mr. Speaker: Will the hon. member confine his remarks as much as possible to the principle of the bill, which has to do with the lending of a certain amount of money to municipalities?

Mr. STEVENS: Mr. Speaker, no member of the house is more desirous of submitting to your ruling than I am, and if your ruling is that this trend of observation is out of order I shall not pursue it. Nevertheless I am getting to say a few words on the bill. I did wish to approve it, but if we are to be precluded from discussing the other elements of unemployment, only one small part of which is dealt with in this bill, I am going to say that I think the bill is wholly inadequate and is not an answer to the demands and the needs of the country.

Mr. DUNNING: Well, it is not put forward as a complete answer.

Mr. STEVENS: I know.

Mr. DUNNING: I so stated in my remarks the other day.

Mr. STEVENS: Yes; and the moment I refer to some of the others—

Mr. DUNNING: Oh, no, no.

Mr. STEVENS: Just a moment,—and the moment I refer to some of these other needs, and recite or indicate what provisions is made to take care of that condition, a point of order is raised and I am asked to limit myself strictly to this bill.

Mr. DUNNING: That is cheap.

Mr. STEVENS: The minister says "that is cheap." Perhaps I might on a point of order ask you, Mr. Speaker, if language of that kind is warranted, from the Minister of Finance or any other hon. member?

Mr. DUNNING: It is not. I will anticipate your ruling, Mr. Speaker, and withdraw it.

Mr. STEVENS: Well, that is that. Another point; if you want to hair-split on rules,— usually an hon. member rises in his place when he addresses the Speaker. I am not a hair-splitter on rules, and I was not desirous of wandering far afield. I shall take my seat now, but I am going to say again to the house, we are playing with fire—

Mr. DUNNING: Not on this bill.

Mr. STEVENS: — when we disregard the unemployment situation as it applies to single homeless unemployed men. That is what we are doing, and this bill is not an adequate answer to that. I simply close with saying that as far as this bill goes, which is a very short distance, towards the solution of these problems, I welcome it. But the government must not expect that the acceptance of this bill or the meagre votes in the supplementary estimates will be an answer to the demands of this country for a solution of the unemployment problem.

• Making Buttons from Skimmed Milk!

(Ayrshire Post)

ONE RESULT of the extensive research into the complete utilisation in Scottish creameries of the by-products of manufacturing milk will be the production, for the first time in Scotland, of considerable quantities of whey powder which can be used as an ingredient in food preparations.

Whey is the by-product of cheese-making and the latter to-day forms about one third of the total dairy produce manufactured from Scottish milk. A few years ago cheese absorbed even a larger proportion of the milk manufactured in Scotland. Whey contains a small percentage of fat when it is run from the cheese vat, and research has shown that this fat can be profitably extracted from the whey by centrifugal action and changed into butter for the use of bakers and confectioners. This whey-butter sells at prices on a level with those ruling for the cheaper brands of imported butters. The remainder of the whey, after the fat is extracted, contains valuable minerals and also a high proportion of sugar of milk (lactose), one of the most easily digested of the seven known sugars.

For the production of powder the whey is dried by a roller process and subsequently ground. In the liquid state whey is very sweet, but when dried it has a malted flavour and although mainly designed for inclusion in animal-feeding rations, it is claimed that mixed with hot milk it is a valuable food.

Hitherto whey has been a serious problem of the manufacturing side of the Scottish milk industry. Its discharge into streams and rivers passing the creameries was a source of pollution against which many local authorities and landed proprietors complained repeatedly. The landowners found that the fish population in those rivers suffered from this form of pollution.

Methods for the full utilisation of skim milk have also been adopted by the Scottish Milk Marketing Board at their creameries. Skim milk is a by-product from cream-making and butter-making. Since there are annually larger quantities of skim milk to manufacture than of any other milk by-product, attention was directed to the utilisation of this milk residue first.

Three different products are made from skim milk at the Board's creameries and the extent of the manufacture of any one of these outlets depends on market exigencies. The three products are skim milk powder made by a roller process, acid casein used in the making of high quality papers and rennet casein used in the manufacture of hard materials such as buttons and other similar goods. Skim milk powder is also made by a spray process. From the manufacture of rennet casein another form of whey is produced which, like the whey from cheese-making after the fat is extracted, is dried and ground into powder.

There are available annually in the area of the Scottish Milk Marketing scheme approximately 9,000,000 gallons of skim milk and 2,000,000 gallons of whey. The utilisation of these by-products, it is stated, yields annually to milk producers a sum of fully £50,000.

OFF WITH THEIR HATS.

(Guelph Mercury)

IT REMAINED for Supreme Court Justice Abram Zoller of New York state to get ten women to remove their hats at the same time. True the action was achieved by a stern court decree, but it was brave just the same.

Presiding at the trial of a damage suit in White Plains, N. Y., the justice announced that hats could not be worn in the jury box in his courtroom—not even by women. There were ten women jurors.

The judge explained that litigation was a pretty important matter and that the women shouldn't get the idea they were invited to a social function when asked to serve on a jury. What made the judge especially irate was the time when one young woman went home at noon and came back with an entire new ensemble for the afternoon session.

The judge's ideas are entirely sensible. Jury duty is serious business and ought to be taken in dead earnestness—and no fretting about how that new off-the-face model is impressing the handsome young prosecutor.

LOOKING TO JUNE.

WITH THREE inches of rain in May on top of better than average subsoil moisture, Southern Alberta, and especially the southwest section of it which had fair to good crops last year, enters the month of June with a feeling of buoyancy. The new crop is all sown in good season, the germination has been good, pests have not yet developed to any great degree, and now we await what the Weather Man has in store for us in June.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

GIVE THANKS unto the Lord, call upon his name, make known his deeds among the people. . . .

Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the Lord. . . .

Remember his marvellous works that he hath done, his wonders, and the judgments of his mouth. . . .

Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name: bring an offering, and come before him: worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness. Fear before him, all the earth: the world also shall be stable, that it be not moved.

Let the heavens be glad, and let men say among the nations, The Lord reigneth. . . .

Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all.

Both riches and honour come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might; and in thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all.

Now therefore, our God, we thank thee, and praise thy glorious name.—I Chron. xvi, 8, 10, 12, 29-31; xxix, 11-13.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT.

(Brandon Sun)

FROM THE Canadian National railways comes this "believe it or not:" Recently its officials received a letter from a patron who confessed that on a certain date last spring he had "stolen a ride" on a passing freight train from a small Saskatchewan town to the coast. He asked the price of the trip and promised to remit on receipt of that information. Not to be outdone, the railway people checked their records for the length of the stolen ride and its price on the date named. They found an excursion had been operated at reduced rates on that day. Accordingly they quoted the excursion rate to the penitent patron, whose remittance, promptly as promised, was accompanied by a note of thanks for the "reduced rate" quoted.

NOT MUCH COMFORT.

(Vancouver Province)

MR. KING does not give advice to Mr. Chamberlain, but he does not give him very much aid or comfort either.

There is still a British Commonwealth of Nations in the world, and Canada is still a member and Great Britain is still a member. If we want a rough and ready test of the validity of Mr. King's definition of Canadian foreign policy, let us put it as simply as this.

Let us ask what it would be if Mr. Chamberlain had said the same thing as Mr. King has said, only putting Canada in the same place as Mr. King puts Great Britain: No commitments by Great Britain to Canada, if the enemies of Canada and the Empire should involve Canada in war. It does not sound so well, does it?

FOLLY OF YOUTH.

(St. Marys Journal-Argus)

IT IS TO BE noted in the hea reports for Ontario that there is an increase in the incidence of tuberculosis among young girls between the ages of 10 and 21. This is attributed according to the Ontario Minister of Health, to lack sufficient rest, proper food and warm clothing, mainly due to the tremendous activity of the social life of today. Getting back to a more Elizabethan type of living would seem to be the remedy.

Peterborough Boy Established White Cross of St. John In Montenegro and Albania

It should be of considerable interest to this community to learn that it was a native of Peterborough—Brigadier-General F. W. E. Burnham—who established the White Cross of St. John in Montenegro and in Albania, and who directed the noble work of that order there until his activities were rendered inoperative by persecution.

General Burnham is the son of the late F. E. Burnham and grandson of the late Elias Burnham, both of whom practised law here many years ago.

Born in Peterborough, General Burnham spent his early life in Manitoba. Of his later experiences the Vancouver Sun says:

"Brigadier - General Burnham, widely known as surgeon and author, on the outbreak of the late war, offered his services to the Allies. In 1915 he was chief staff surgeon of Plevije Military Hospital. For services in that capacity he was awarded the Order de Danilo, the Croix d'Officier, and the Croix Rouge of Montenegro. Upon the occupation of Montenegro by the enemy he was caught in the great retreat, but succeeded after many escapes in reaching the coast and freedom.

On Western Front.

"During 1916 Colonel Burnham served as chief medical officer on an ambulance train on the Western Front, and by Royal decree was awarded the Medaglia del Re Nikola. The following year he was transferred to the Salonika front in command of Military Hospital No. 1 at Vodena, Macedonia, and in recognition of his services received the thanks of the Governor of Macedonia and the Mayor and Council of Edessa, Macedonia.

"It was this year that the Order de San Save, Croix de Commandeur, was conferred for his splendid work among the Serbian soldiers.

"Returning to Canada in 1918, Colonel Burnham organized the White Cross. On his return to the Balkans in 1919 he made a tour of Montenegro on foot, making a personal investigation of the needs of the country from a medical viewpoint. The White Cross was then established in Montenegro, for which service he was awarded the Ordre de Danilo, Croix de Commandeur, and the Croix Rouge Serbe.

"Owing to the constant clashes between the Serbs and Montenegrins the White Cross devoted part of its energies to assisting destitute women and children to leave Montenegro for homes which had been established elsewhere. While engaged in this work of mercy Colonel Burnham was arrested by the Serbs at Antivari and upon his protest against Serbian atrocities was ordered by the Serbian Government to leave Montenegro. The headquarters of the White Cross were then established at Scutari, Albania.

Uncle Sam's Thanks.

"In 1921 Colonel Burnham received the thanks of the United States Embassy for assistance to American citizens in Montenegro. At this time he forwarded to the League of Nations a memorial protesting against Serbian atrocities in Montenegro, Albania, and Kossovo, and appealed for justice to the smaller nations, for which he received the thanks of the Albanian Government.

"In 1922 Colonel Burnham was created Brigadier-General and was awarded the Grand Cross of Danilo and the Medaglia Commemorative. He received the thanks of the Albanian Government and the Italian Government for services to Albania and Italy along the Adriatic and by royal decree was awarded the Royal Montenegrin uniform.

"Brigadier-General Burnham and his wife are now living in British Columbia, and it is interesting to note that as a mark of gratitude for what they had done the Montenegrin people sent the distinguished sculptor-patriot, Yanko Brayovitch out to British Columbia to execute in remembrance two statuettes of General Burnham and his wife, one in bronze, the other in marble."

Hermit Claims Loss of $10,000

Fred Delaney, 65-year-old hermit of Toronto's Don Valley, claims he has "lost" $10,000. Suffering from a mild form of amnesia for 22 years, Delaney does not remember much about the money, except that it was left to him by his father, who was a Nova Scotian, and deposited in a bank in Prince Albert, Sask., "about 1915 or '16". Relief officials are investigating the claim. Delaney is shown here inside the cave, in which he is now living in the Don Valley.

Strike On Vessel Ties Up Thirty

CORNWALL, Ont., June 7—(CP)—Traffic crowded Cornwall canal today as the waterway was worked at 50 per cent. capacity following a 12-hour tie-up yesterday of boats along its eight-mile length.

The freighter Damia of Inland Lines, Limited, which caused the tie-up when its crew left it through labor trouble, was backed last night into a basin between locks. But its position forced a cut in traffic of the canal which takes vessels around the Long Sault rapids.

The freighter was moved out of the lock when officials of the Dominion Department of Transport issued an ultimatum that if it continued to block the canal the department's tugs would move it.

The crew returned to the Damia and it was moved, enabling 30 vessels tied-up in the canal to start through its several locks. Others which had been held by transport department orders at Cardinal and Soulanges canals to prevent further crowding of the Cornwall waterways were permitted to continue.

It was reported an agreement was reached to hold the Damia in the canal until after a federal probe into the cause of the trouble.

The tie-up started yesterday morning when some 100 men from Montreal and Great Lakes ports, members of the Canadian Seamen's Union, boarded the Damia and, according to government officials, forced its crew to leave the vessel.

Havelock Institute Take Needle Craft

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, June 7.—The Havelock Branch Women's Institute met Monday afternoon in the council chamber with Mrs. Robert McCutcheon, vice-president in the chair. There was a very good attendance, thirty-five members being present.

The meeting opened with the Institute ode and prayer followed by reports from committees. Mrs. Armstrong reported that the cemetery committee were progressing and urged the canvassers to complete their lists.

The Institute decided to have the welcome signs at the edge of the village repainted and appointed Mrs. Armstrong to interview Jack Clark in regards to this.

The members will take up "needle craft," the co-operative program for this year, beginning next October. Twelve members have already signed up to take this course.

The roll call, "health building habits" was well responded to.

The afternoon's program was then conducted by Miss E. Wright, the convenor, beginning with a community song, "Blest Be The Tie That Binds." A very interesting and instructive paper was presented by Mrs. George Chiles on "Health and Child Welfare."

Miss Ruth Hagerman, delegate of the Junior Women's Institute to the Guelph convention, presented a full report, relating many of the amusing incident which occurred during her trip as well.

The topic, "current events" presented by Mrs. H. W. Roche proved very interesting. Drawing her information from dominion statistics which show that during all the year's of depression, there has been only one farmer's divorce in Canada, she proved the point that young people should stick to the farm.

Report of the annual district convention was presented by Miss E. Wright.

The meeting then adjourned after which refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Walsh, K.C., defence counsel, the Board of Education should consider some instruction by which the girls would learn to say 'Yes' or 'No' rather than merely offer "Uhugh—or Yeah"—in reply to questions.

Janetville Barn Fire Threatens Village

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, June 7.—Residents of Janetville were startled Sunday morning with the ringing of telephones, honking of car horns and the cry of fire when it was discovered that Clayton McGill's large barn, which is in the heart of the village, was on fire.

In a few minutes over one hundred neighbors had gathered and formed a volunteer bucket brigade in an endeavor to save the surrounding buildings, as the barn was already too far gone.

Panic was strife for a time for on one side was the large frame C.O.F. hall and on the other, with the high wind blowing in a direct line, was J. R. Hall's general store, in the rear of which was stored a large quantity of coal oil, etc. The nearby buildings caught fire several times despite the efforts of the workers. Several of the men and a number of the spectotors were burned with flying embers.

Owing to the heavy rain the night before and to the asphalt singles, plus the untiring efforts of the men the store was eventually saved.

The cause of the fire is unknown the family being still in bed. There is some insurance.

The loss included the 40 x 60 ft. barn, a fresh supply of hay, straw, several thousand shingles, lumber, two buggies and a cutter. The horse and cow were fortunately saved.

Mr. McGill is the mail man for the north route and has the sympathy of his many friends at this time.

LOUIS-'MAXIE' HEAVYWEIGHT FIGHT POSSESSES HIGH DRAMA

No Ballyhoo Needed For Bout With As Many "Pay" Angles

NEW YORK, June 7. — There is enough raw drama alone in the meeting of Joe Louis and Max Schmeling on June 22, to make the fight another million-dollar event. It is a bout that needs no bally-hoo. It will not be necessary for the commuter from Germany to rescue a drowning child in his training camp to attract the world's attention. Pictures of the Brown Bomber blasting assorted sparring partners will be superfluous.

Schmeling is from a country where a new credo of Aryan superiority has become a boastful watchword and slogan, as well as an excuse for conquest. Max's confidence might be interpreted in some corners as Teutonic arrogance. His fierce will to win could be, and is being interpreted as a personal desire to prove the new Germanic superiority shouted by Nazi politicians.

The Other Side.

If you prefer to believe that Schmeling wants to recover the heavyweight championship to satisfy his own blazing determination, his own belief in himself, his own ambition to become the first man ever to regain the title, you have grounds for that opinion, too.

It's merely the idea in these lines to point out the dramatic possibilities. Schmeling is the man none gave a chance to win the first time he met the Dark Destroyer. That great fight is recalled now as background for this one. Schmeling, the iron-jawed plodder, taking all that Louis could administer, then coming on to win after he seemed to be on the verge of oblivion.

Is the Flaw Still There?

Before he fought and knocked out Louis, Schmeling told the world exactly what he would do because he had watched the bomber and discovered his weakness. Since then Louis has had a half-dozen fights, and in each engagement he has sought to correct the flaw that let Schmeling beat him, that dropping of his left hand before shooting his best punch. But Schmeling insists that the error is still there, and that the habit of Joe's early fighting years will undo him again once the fight is in progress.

Another stage element in the bout is concerned with the champion's color. Joe is a descendant of Southern United States slaves. He is a negro, meeting a white man. Some of the ancient feeling that inevitably came boiling to the surface whenever a mixed fight was staged in the old days will become apparent again. This sentiment has been tempered by years, and moderated by the growth of sportsmanship. But it cannot be neglected in an inventory of the dramatic qualities of the struggle between the two men. Joe Louis is Harlem's honey, the hope of his race. Chicago's dark belt will be watching. Men will be tense on Alabama plantations.

Each Has His Own.

Each man is idolized by his own faction. Each man is hated, too. Many will buy tickets for this fight hoping to see Schmeling knocked into the middle of the Atlantic Ocean because they despise the overbearing superiority of which they regard him the symbol. Others will be just as zealous in their wish for a white man's victory—because he is a white man.

From a sporting angle, the fight holds the promise of being the greatest since Dempsey and Firpo staged that wild melodrama at New York's Polo Grounds. Here are two great hitters thrown together in a test of punching power. Will the rugged Schmeling's great right hand blast out another victory. Or, will the lightning from the jungle strike him down?

Aging But Effective

A veteran of 15 years' big league pitching is Earl Whitehill (ABOVE) of Cleveland Indians. After hurling for Detroit, he moved to Washington where he was the potent pitching force in the winning of the 1933 pennant.

Now he's hoping to fill the same role in the drive for the Indians' long-sought gonfalon.

SPORT SPICE

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, June 7—(AP)—Success story: Just seven years ago a flat-broke little Negro named Henry Armstrong migrated from St. Louis to Los Angeles to try his luck...He spent his first night in Los Angeles in a mission flop house...Today he is featherweight and welterweight champion and may be wearing the lightweight crown before the summer is over...He has fixed up his family, built a home for himself and has a $10,000 annuity that will be paid off this year and will net him $100 per week for the rest of his life...This corner predicts Henry will retire, the only boxer in history to wear three crowns on the same dome, when and if he beats Lou Ambers...

But Henry had better steer clear of Ceferino Garcia, who is a full-fledged 147-pound welterweight (not an overgrown lightweight like Ross) and who packs enough punch to put Henry to sleep for a long, long time.

Among those who sat in a box seat at the Yankee Stadium Sunday and pulled hard for Lefty Gomez in his unsuccessful start against the Browns, was June O'Dea, the pitcher's estranged wife...Old Grover Cleveland Alexander is piloting a House of David team through the Florida semi-pro circuits...Big league scouts blame the lure of golf and tennis for the scarcity of baseball talent...

"Old Fox" Clark Griffith of Washington, could step up and take a bow if he wanted to...Even when "Schoolboy" Rowe was in his heydey Griffith gave him four years at the outside...which is just what it took ...He'll turn out to be a crooked armer," said Griff.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

RUGBY is a very live issue around this town now, since last week's announcement that Peterborough Orfuns had gone senior in the O.R.F.U. with Montreal, Sarnia and Toronto. More grid chatter along Sports' Rialto and the Rue de Rumor than baseball or lacrosse gossip. Not a thing to report yet except that local officers are making plans to have the Exhibition Grounds fixed up this summer, a strong squad built up ere autumn and finances raised. They are endeavoring to get H. L. Bamforth, P.C.I. mentor, as coach — and he is a good bet. While the Orfuns have a fine schedule, they start right off with an expensive jaunt to Montreal on Thanksgiving Day. From time to time, we'll garner bits of grid gossip to keep football fans informed of what's going on. Meantime, the topic remains a live issue in the press of the Province. And Montreal.

• • • • • •

HERE'S AN ITEM in Baz O'Meara's column of the Montreal Star: "Inclusion of Peterborough in the O.R.F.U. series is bound to help that organization. Hamilton Cubs, while a hard striving team, were never of the same calibre as Balmy Beach or Sarnia. Peterborough turned out some great players in the olden days. There was Hurtubise among others. Then they sent Dick Sheehy and Jack Corkery up to Ottawa University. Sheehy afterwards played for Varsity and he was a great ball carrier. Corkery was a star broken field runner of the Jack Maynard type, and Jack was a regular Gordie Perry on the breakaway. If memory serves right, the Gonter brothers, long prominent in Toronto rugby, came from Peterborough. Which town has a sentimental interest for your observer as five brothers were born there."

• • • • • •

THEN the St. Thomas' scrivener states: "Football may seem a long distance away, but is it? Only the other day it was announced that a new senior O.R.F.U. would include the Peterborough Orfuns, while officials of the University of Western Ontario have announced their opening game for Oct. 1st when the Mustangs will play the Dundas intermediate O.R.F.U. squad. So the time will slip by and the thud of the pigskin will be head before you know it. Many clubs even indulge in midsummer drills. In fact, the Sarnia Imperials have held spring training already. To what extent O.R.F.U. will be carried on here this fall isn't known at this time." Sarnia is arranging for early fall exhibition games with several U.S. colleges.

• • • • • •

LINDSAY POST WRITER says Cobourg intermediate "B" grid champs are rather disappointed that the Orfuns have moved up, as they had high hopes of bolstering their squad this year and knocking off the locals for an "A" championship. They are supposed to add two new linemen, if not others, besides retaining Meikle, Jacobs, etc. And will be coached by Chuck Peck. Wonder if he'll play. If it weren't for the fact the ex-Queen's star is teaching and football coach also at Trinity College, he might have been available for the Orfuns in senior company. We'd suggest that the locals line up an exhibition contest in September with the Galloping Ghosts, not only to satisfy the Cobourgites but to gain a good practice.

GOOD NEWS for the local fight and rassle fans. The Riverview A.C. has lined up another mitt-mat card for next Monday night in the George St. lacrosse arena. A rematch of the main rasslin' bout between Red Garner and Bert Crothall (who knocked 'em out of their seats last show here) is a feature. Pete Pernokie and Spider Shakleton also tangle in a grapple bout. And the fight end of it sees Nick Orlando paired with Ernie Hicks of Toronto in the main eeeeevent of the eeeeeevening. With Joe Hobbins against Joe Scott of Toronto in the semi-final. Among the prelims, are Joe Tumblin of Ottawa meeting Wallie Hicks of Toronto, Bill Joiner throwing leather at Hal Jones, and a curtain-raiser between Buddy Redmond and Bobby Quirt.

OUR LACROSSE TEAM is off for Woodbridge tonight to open the O.L.A. senior "B" schedule. Elsewhere in tonight's paper is the schedule of home and away games for the Petes this summer. It'll be a tough grind, and followed by a knock-down and drag-out playoff series. Eventual winner going into Provincial finals. Toughest teams in Ontario are in this interlocking schedule, and the Petes will have to hustle and fight in every fracas. The Brampton bunch open here next Friday night in a loop fixture and, as an added attraction, Rowan Chute wil lhave two midget teams playing before the big game and at halftime. By the way, a pair of glasses and case were picked up at the arena last Friday eve and may be obtained by applying to Wm. Heffernan at 56 Aylmer St.

QUITE A TIDY TILT over at the Bowl last gloaming, when Westclox men softballers snuck off with a 5-3 City Loop decision over Omemee. Both Bateman and Stephenson showed up smartly on the slabs and had fair backing. Fans are seeing some nifty men's games this season, despite the abbreviated setup. Jones and Curry hit homers last p.m., and several others conked the turnip for two-base hits. Fielding of Gainey, O'Leary, Weir and Brockley stood out. One hitter played a bank shot off Dormer into the end pocket, Curry pocketing the pill. Doug Mowry has signed with Westclox and will split receiving duties with Carlson. Westclox go to Omemee on Wednesday, while Motorists meet the Hawks of the Southend Loop that night at the Bowl.

KINGSTON SCRIBE, commenting on our 11-0 win over the Ponies, says records were wrecked, form reversed and a shock sent through the C.O.B.L. by this result. Oh, we dunno. He adds: "What the ultimate result of all the happenings will be a person can only guess but the fans should benefit as the race is much closer and clubs are gambling on strong teams in an effort to attract crowds and revive the game in this section. It is impossible to figure if the clubs are tackling the situation in the correct manner by going after high-class teams and running the risk of losses, but that is the method that is being tried and at present the teams in the Central circuit appear the strongest in the province. Whether the O.B.A. sanctions the certificates or grants entry in provincial playdowns at the end of the scheduled season is another problem." Yes, quite, but what did the O.B.A. say when the C.O.B.L. urged it this spring to let them play with the east or Toronto or anyone to round out a decent loop? The O.B.A. said: "Nix, you'll have to get along as best you can this year with three clubs." Well, that's what the Central Loop clubs are doing!

Gene In Workouts With Joe Louis

DETROIT, June 7 (AP)—John Roxborough, co-manager of heavyweight champion Joe Louis, said here last night that former champion Gene Tunney had recently worked out with Louis and that another workout was planned.

Roxborough, here on business, said "Tunney spent a few hours with Joe up at Lafayetteville, N.Y. last week, and they got along well.

"He was showing Joe how to avoid being hit with a right hand," Roxborough said.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Today we feel as if we should apologize to our readers for not reporting Monday night's activities in more detail—but the reason for that is we were almighty busy trying to impress upon four grown-up men the idea that a game is never won or lost until the last bowl comes to rest, so all you can do is read our scores and figure it all out for yourself.

It was pointed out to us, last night that R. F. Downey's rink put over the possible 8 end on Eb. Taylor's quartette—on the 15th end we think—so that entitles Mr. Downey's rink to have their names engraved on the honor roll.

Just as we were leaving the greens last night we noticed some of the chaps go into a huddle on the concrete steps—we believe it was the tournament committee talking over their plans for tomorrow's big tournament.

We were sorry to hear of the sudden illness of Judge L. O'Connor of Cobourg. He will be missed at our tournaments and we know all the bowlers will be pulling for his early recovery.

Clerks In Tie With Outlaws

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, June 7—The Clerks and the Outlaws battled to a 13-all tie last night in a Hastings Softball League game. The game was called at the last of the eighth on account of darkness. The Outlaws had a 3-run lead at the end of the seventh but the Clerks sent three across with the help of Gillespie's triple to tie it up.

McKee shot them across for the Outlaws and got 10 by the strike-out route. He allowed 11 hits and passed five. Blackburn started for the Clerks but ran into trouble in the sixth. Up to that inning he gave up 11 hits, struck out five and walked three. Gibson, who relieved him allowed two hits, struck out two and passed none in the three innings he pitched.

Crate and Downs, each with three hits led the Clerks at bat while Stickles and Phillips also with three each led the Outlaws. On Wednesday night the Tanners take on the Outlaws.

PORT HOPE, June 7.—Port Hope Tennis Club won a 4-2 decision over Peterborough Tennis Club in a partly rained out inter-club match Saturday. Unplayed and uncompleted events were termed draws when rain made further play impossible.

Port Hope won one ladies' singles event, one men's singles, and were leading in a mixed doubles event with Peterborough leading in a men's doubles when play was abandoned.

In the ladies' singles D. Davison defeated H. Cole 6-1, 6-3, while in the men's singles, Carl Harvey defeated M. O'Neill, 6-1, 6-0. Fox and Millson, Port Hope, had won the first set of the mixed doubles match, 6-2, and Marsh and Rutter, Peterborough, had taken the first set of the men's doubles from Wynn and Fraser, Port Hope.

Electrics Beat Havelock 8-3

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 7.—McComb, again on the mound for the locals, pitched a consistent game which held the Havelock Wreckers to three runs, while the Campbellford Electrics scored eight times in a benefit game played on Monday evening. It was the second benefit game of the season played to raise funds for the expenses incurred when Owen Hendy, a Campbellford player, received an injury to his hand in one of the first games of the season. Hendy is still in the Belleville hospital and in danger of losing the thumb of his right hand when it was struck by a ball he was attempting to catch while warming up before a game in Havelock. In Monday's game Campbellford scored 8 runs on 16 hits and four errors, while the visitors got 3 runs on 20 hits and four errors. Brunton was on the mound for the visitors, and though he had plenty of zip in the ball the Campbellford hitters made every strike count.

Score by innings:

Havelock ..... 000 002 1—3
Campbellford ..... 201 005 x—8

Havelock: McMullen, lf; Ketchin, c; Harnden, ss; McCutcheon, cf; Peters, 3b; Kennedy, 2b; Bedford, rf; Moore, 1b; Brunton, p.

A third benefit game will be played on Wednesday evening of this week, when the Electrics will meet a picked team from Pethericks and Seymour.

Knox Bantams Put Up Record Score

The bigger victors kept very much in the running by the high score in the replayed game. Before Knox were leading 23-18 when the tilt was called in the fourth inning. R. Glen, Howard and Millen batted well in this tussle. The teams:

St. John's: Herbison, lf; Millen, p; Batten, c; H. Glen, ss; Leming, rf; Howard, 1b; R. Glen, cf; Marshall, 3b; Dutton, 2b.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, June 7.—In a loosely-played game C.G.E. edged out Keene on the latter's diamond last evening. The Keene club minus some of its regular players, was not at its best, while C.G.E. played a fair brand of ball. For C.G.E. Craig had a homer and Bigelow with a triple were the only extra-base clouts. Doughty had three singles. G. Nelson got three hits for the losers. Marlyn McCarthy allowed Keen six hits, fanned eight and walked seven; Bea McDowell, on the slab for Keene, gave nine hits, fanned 13, and gave three bases on balls.

George St. Majors Nose Out 3-2 Win

George St. Majors nudged out a 3-2 Church Softball League nod over Murray St. last evening. It is the third game George St. won in a row by one-run margins in the last inning. This puts them on top with six wins and two losses. Munroe drove in all the runs, his winning blow crashing through the pitcher and caroming off second base, the throw then being wild. Frank Spencely, with two of the losers' three hits, scored a run and drove in the other. Wilson and Akers made it a nifty pitching duel, each fanning 10. Akers walked three and Wilson four. Murray St. had lost their first three games and won their first three before last night. The teams:

St. James' Juveniles of the Church Softball League last night took a 13-9 decision over All Saints'. It was their first win in six starts and leaves them with a mathematical chance of making playoffs. Both pitchers, Gregson and Abraham, played nice ball after the first two frames. Soccer Notes

The question of affiliation with the Ontario Football Association was held in abeyance for another week by local soccer association so as to give the Deloro and C.C.F. team and players the time to study the advantages to be received from the parent body through being associated with organized soccer in the province. At present, the local clubs must receive permission from the Toronto association before they can travel outside the city.

When the vote was taken it stood on an even basis and the chairman had to give the deciding vote. Deloro will be notified by letter and C.C.F. club representative will bring it before his club and players before next Monday's meeting.

There is no game tonight. Deloro notified the Canadian General last week that they would not be in Peterborough next Tuesday night. A lively discussion took place in regards to the procedure of arranging the games after the final adjustment had been made with the president and secretary, otherwise no written statement had been received.

Owing to the Canadian General picnic on Saturday afternoon there will be no scheduled game but many players associated with the club will participate in soccer sports arranged for them.

Games arranged for next week are as follows: Tuesday, June 14—C.C.F. vs. Deloro at King Edward Park. T. Foster referee, 6.30 kick-off.

Thursday night, June 16—Brinton vs. C.G.E. league game. T. Foster referee, kick-off at 6.30.

Saturday, June 18—Deloro vs. Canadian General at Deloro. C.C.F. vs. Brinton at King Edward Park, 2.30 kick-off.

Tuesday, June 21 — C.G.E. vs. Deloro in Peterborough.

All players that are signed with the Brinton Club are requested to meet on Wednesday night at the corner of Charlotte and George (under the clock) at 6.30 to attend a social evening.

Ronald Smelt, C.C.F. player failed to appear before the board last night, after being ordered off the field of play last Saturday, and according to the rules becomes automatically suspended until he does appear. Art Downer appeared and gave his evidence before the executive and was given permission to play until decision is given by the board.

Players registered — Sam Jones and John McLellan for C.C.F.; J. B. Buchan, Richard Smith and Fred Earle for C.G.E.

Conroy Hurls Cubs To 13-9 Victory

In a Junior City Baseball League game last night at the Ex., Johnny Conroy hurled the Cubs to their second straight win in four days, copping a 13-9 decision over the Pirates. It was a loosely-played tussle on both sides. Neiman started for the Bucs but was driven out in the second. O'Toole hurled a fair relief job for the rest of the route. Conroy and Weir stood out for the winners. A snappy double play, Conroy to Lucano, cut short a desperate rally by the Pirates in the seventh. The teams:

Cubs—Weir, 2b; Thomas, ss; Conroy, p; Condon, 3b; Herr, 1b; Lustic, c; Maher, cf; Lucano, rf, 2b; Armstrong, cf; Dwyer, lf; J. Herr, lf.

LEAFS FALL TO RED WINGS 14-4; ROYALS DOWN THE BISONS 7-3

10-Run Splurge In 10th Frame Wins For Wings

TORONTO, June 7—(CP)—Two jinxes and a losing streak are making the running in the International League race.

Toronto Maple Leafs have been easy pickings for Rochester Red Wings, losing five out of eight to the third-place Wings. Buffalo Bisons, fairly able elsewhere, have kept Montreal Royals out of the lower reaches of the League by dropping six out of seven to the Canadians. And the Orioles have lost 10 straight.

The Hexes were in form last night. The Red Wings jumped all over the Leafs 14-4 in a game featured by a 10-run eighth inning while the Royals, paced by Paul Dunlap were downing the Bisons, 7-3. Newark, riding serenly in first place, pushed the Orioles a little deeper in the cellar with an 8-3 trouncing.

Don Brennan and Woodrow Wilson Davis were the recipients of the Wings' onslaught which broke—and how—a 4-4 tie.

Dunlap got three hits and drove home as many tallies after Catcher Gillie Campbell had opened the winners' scoring with a home run.

Marius Russo had little trouble with the once-feared Baltimore sluggers, while his own mates were slapping out 11 hits.

Jake Mooty set Jersey City Giants down with seven hits for the Stars. A three run sixth inning gave the Stars their winning margin.

Fights

(By The Associated Press)

Baltimore—Holman Williams, 145, Chicago, outpointed Jack Portney, 143, Baltimore (10).

Washington—George Abrams, 159, Washington, outpointed Teddy Yarosz, 160, Pittsburgh (10).

New York—Italo Colonello, 198¼, Italy, outpointed George (Big Boy) Brackey, 222¾, Buffalo, N.Y. (8).

Newark, N.J.—Clarence (Red) Burman, 186½, Baltimore, knocked out Joe Wagner, 180, Newark, in 1:09 of the sixth round.

Yesterday's Stars

(By the Associated Press)

Ducky Medwick, Cardinals — Clouted homer with one on, as well as double and two singles, for perfect day at bat in 11-2 rout of Bees.

Keke Bonura, Senators —10th-inning double scored run that beat Indians 5-4.

Johnny McCarthy and Hal Schumacher, Giants — McCarthy led way in 11-2 defeat of Reds with four singles; Schumacher scattered Cincinnati's eight hits.

Frank Crosetti, Yankees — His eighth-inning single drove in run that beat Browns 6-5.

Kiki Cuyler, Dodgers — Got triple and pair of singles to pace 15-hit, 9-4 victory over Pirates.

Bobby Doerr and Roger Cramer, Red Sox — Doerr's single brought home winning run in 8-7 conquest of Tigers; Cramer got two doubles and two singles in five trips to plate.

Frank Demaree and Ken O'Dea Cubs.—Former bagged three singles, latter two doubles as Cubs whipped Phillies 10-8.

George St. Wins Over Mark St.

George St. Juveniles climbed to the top of the Church Softball League in their section last night by yanking out a 15-8 win over a short-handed Mark St. squad. They led all the way, with E. Routley holding the East City boys in check nicely. Parnall did some terrific hitting for the winners and Robinson was best at bat for the losers. Scriver of Mark Street and L. Routley of George St. fielded well. The teams:

Mark St.: Moore, 1b; C. Eason, 2b; Curtis, 3b; D. Eason, p; Robinson, c; Agnew, rf; Scriver, lf.

Alex Kampouris To Hold Giants In Chi. Series

One of those trades that are optimistically described as helping both clubs, completed just before the Giants left Cincinnati for Chicago yesterday lends lustre to the "crucial" four-game tussle between New York and Chicago for the National League lead which gets under way today.

They're ready to fight it out as seriously as if it were a September series instead of June and the Giants figure they got just what they needed for the scrap when they obtained Alex Kampouris from the Reds yesterday in an even swap for big Wally Berger, a spare outfielder.

Since Burgess Whitehead was laid low by appendicitis this spring, the Terrymen have lacked a dependable man at the keystone corner. They tried Lou Chiozza and Mickey Haslin, but neither had the answer. Both have been hitting around the .230 mark and they don't field the way Whitehead does.

Kampouris, although he's been only about a .250 hitter with the Reds, is somewhat more adept afield. Manager Bill Terry optioned Haslin to Jersey City after the deal went through.

Past Reds 11-2

The Giants, recalling an old "hoodoo," tuned up for today's game by pasting the Reds 11-2 in their farewell game yesterday while the Cubs retained their half-game lead with a 10-8 decision over the Phillies.

With Hal Schumacher on the hill, the Giants blasted Cincinnati's Al Hollingsworth for five runs in the first inning and piled up 15 blows, including Mel Ott's 10th homer, to end a six-game losing streak.

The Cubs, trying to get along without using any of their first-run pitchers, were hard pressed to hold off the Phils as Al Epperly weakened after being given a 3-0 lead in the first inning; Charley Root went out in the seventh and Jack Russell was clubbed hard.

Headline Performers

Jimmie Foxx of Boston Red Sox, Ken Chase and Zeke Bonura of Washington and Roy Henshaw of St. Louis Cardinals were the headline performers in the day's other leading games.

Foxx paced the Red Sox in a comeback that enabled them to beat out Detroit 8-7 after trailing by five runs in the seventh. Foxx clubbed his 14th homer, drove in three other counters and finally scored the winning run, coming home from second on Bobby Doerr's single with two out in the ninth.

The Senators had to go 11 innings but they finally checked the Cleveland Indians' progress, 5-4, as Chase hurled seven-hit ball for the first 10 innings and Bonura doubled to score Al Simmons with the winning run. The defeat cut Cleveland's American League lead to three games as New York Yankees, after spotting St. Louis Browns five runs in the fourth, came back to win out 6-5 on Joe DiMaggio's homer in the seventh and a double by Bill Knickerbocker and single by Frank Crosetti in the eighth.

Henshaw pitched six-hit ball to beat Boston Bees 11-2. For the second straight day, Brooklyn had one big inning and beat Pittsburgh 9-4 scoring seven runs on as many hits in the first inning and the other two in the second.

Alternate broadcasts by Chinese and Japanese bands have been started in Peiping.

Westclox Men Defeat Omemee

Westclox men softballers took a 5-3 City League win over Omemee last night at the Bowl, playing off a postponed fixture. It was the third straight victory for the Clockmen and the losers' second loss in a row. Fans were treated to a nifty low-score scrap with the issue in doubt till the last out in the ninth inning. It was in the nature of a hurlers' duel with Stephenson of Omemee fanning seven, walking four and allowing eight hits; while Bateman of the winners struck out five, walked one and was touched for five safe blows. Both hurlers had fair support throughout.

Curry hit a homer and single for Westclox, as Bateman clouted two singles, and Stanger, O'Leary and Carlson had two-baggers each. Jones banged out a four-base blow and single for the O's, with Brooks getting a pair of singles. Weir and Brockley of Omemee and Gainey and O'Leary of the homesters were outstanding in the field. An odd play saw a line drive deflected off Dormer to Curry. The teams:

Harlemites Win Over Hawks 5-0

Little Harlem kept its unbeaten Southend Softball League record intact last night by blanking the Hawks 5-0 at the Brinton Field, its fourth straight win. It was a good game with neat hurling and fielding. The winners reached Cavanagh in the first inning, getting four hits and three runs. Craig pitched shut-out ball and was touched for but three hits. Tompkins hit a homer for the Harlemites and Calladine shone in the field. Pryde was the best fielder for Hawks, robbing his rivals of several extra-base blows. The teams:

Hawks: McDougall, ss; Cavanagh, p; Jay, 3b; Calladine, 2b; Creighton, c; Hallihan, 1b; Pryde, lf; Busby, cf; Kearney, rf; McGregor, rf.

Somerville Will Compete in Play For U.S. Amateur

NEW YORK, June 7 (CP).—In 1932 quiet, soft-spoken C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville toted his golf clubs off to Baltimore and won the United States amateur golf championship. And now Sandy wants that crown again.

Back from Troon, Scotland, the shotmaker from London, Ont., was scarcely down the gangplank of the liner Queen Mary last night before reporters nabbed him. Under questioning, he admitted he would seek his second United States amateur championship at Oakmont, Pa., August 12.

Before that, though, Sandy will defend his Canadian amateur championship at the London Hunt and Country Club in July. He said he felt his recent efforts in the British open tournament, against an especially strong field that included the United States Walker Cup team, would serve as a healthy background for summer competition.

Somerville carried his bid in the British amateur at Troon to the semi-final round, losing to Cecil Ewing, the Irish giant, who went on to lose to Charley Yates of Atlanta, Ga. But Sandy offered no alibis. And he had nothing but praise for the new British champion.

"Ewing and I played erratic golf and if he had lost he would have been unlucky," said Sandy. "I feel a month of practice in the south during the spring brought my game to as high a pitch as it has ever been.

Brilliant Golfer.

"Yates is a brilliant golfer, who held top form all through the tournament. He was very popular with the galleries for his happy-go-lucky manner."

Somerville left for his London home today. Before leaving, he had a word for Jim Bruen, the brilliant 18-year-old Irish golfer who was beaten in the Walker Cup singles by Yates. He said it would take more than a prodigy to beat Yates in his present form and, while Somerville hadn't seen Bruen in action, he said the Irishman was credited with "being in a class by himself."

Somerville believed the United States open system which eliminates all but 64 golfers before the match play begins, lends itself to better golf by top flight golfers, whereas good players are often eliminated in the early 18-hole matches of the British tournament before they have found their game.

"Most good golfers need 36-hole matches to find their game," said Sandy. "Of course, in golf luck counts a bit too, but I'm not through trying for the British amateur title yet."

French Hospital Bombed By Japs

CANTON, June 7 (AP).—Japanese warplanes scored a direct hit on the French-owned Doumer Hospital today as they subjected this south China metropolis to terrific bombardments for the eighth successive day.

One side of the building was blown out and a French military surgeon slightly wounded. Two Chinese patients were killed and many injured. Corpses were strewn over the wide macadam road in front of the hospital as buildings nearby were hit.

French authorities immediately sent 30 marines to the scene and erected barricades around the hospital.

Forty-five bodies were laid in the street outside a Red Cross unit next door to the hospital. Others were placed outside the nearby Y.M.C.A. building where Edward H. Lockwood of Indiana, secretary, narrowly escaped injury.

Other bombs fell among the tightly-packed sampans in the river, creating terrible havoc.

British consul A. P. Blunt telephoned a protest to the Japanese consul general in Hong Kong against the raiders flying over the foreign quarter on Shameen Island.

No bombs were dropped in the foreign settlement, but planes were said to have released numerous bombs over the settlement in order to hit nearby buildings.

(A Hong Kong dispatch said between 40 and 50 planes took part in two raids today, directing their attack chiefly at government buildings, railways stations and electric power plants).

investigate relief conditions resume its work. The men claimed that members of the committee were spending too much time campaigning in Saskatchewan.

Premier William Patterson, leader of the Liberal government which has been in office since 1934, told a meeting at Carlyle that co-operation with the Canadian wheat board and the federal government's marketing policy would be followed by his administration.

Some Liberal Promises

A $2,000,000 summer-fallow program and further debt adjustment policies also were promised by the Liberal leader who said the farmer must be protected in first demands on his 1936 crop.

J. S. Woodsworth, national leader of the C.C.F., told a meeting at Morse that he was opposed to repudiation of debt. He urged a policy of co-operation, patterned after the system followed in Denmark, Norway and Sweden which would make repudiation unnecessary.

Mr. Woodsworth agreed with Social Credit forces in advocating socialization of money and credit and he declared it was no trouble for Ottawa to vote $40,000,000 for armament purposes, though money could not be found for other needs.

The C.C.F. leader compared the $20 monthly pension allowed the ordinary pensioner with judges and others who received two-thirds of a former salary of anywhere from $8,000 to $10,000.

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, who has been campaigning for the Liberals, called Hon. J. G. Taggart, Saskatchewan Minister of Agriculture, the father of the rehabilitation program upon which the Dominion is spending $3,500,000 this year.

Turning to Premier Aberhart and Social Credit, Mr. Gardiner suggested in his speech at Saskatoon that "when a man takes the Bible in one hand and $25 in the other, we're a long piece away from the spirit of the book."

J. G. Diefenbaker, Conservative leader, in a speech at outlook suggested promises of Liberals and Social Crediters were equally impossible of fulfillment. He said the Liberals promised work and wages while the Social Crediters countered with work without wages.

William Irvine of Edmonton, former U.F.A. federal member, told a C.C.F. meeting at North Battleford that Premier Aberhart's political invasion of Saskatchewan was an attempt to divert public attention from Alberta's economic impasse.

Hundreds Watch

famous Clyde Beatty, generally recognized as the greatest wild animal trainer the world has ever known. Clyde, a man weighing less than 150 pounds and standing less than five feet, seven inches tall, battles as many as 43 ferocious, jungle-bred lions and tigers of both sexes at one time in the great circular all-steel arena beneath the big-top.

His beautiful, dainty, blonde wife, Harriet, supports the Beatty family reputation for fearlessness by presenting a huge Royal Bengal tiger, a black-maned Nubian lion and a mighty Siamese elephant, three of Nature's deadliest enemies, in the arena at once, a spectacle never seen before.

Clyde, who knows minutely the wily and treacherous way of his big "cats", is on constant watch outside the arena while Harriet displays her daring and skill. But the petite blonde Harriet, who is apparently wholly unafraid of the tiger, lion and elephant, lacks the nerve—she admits it—to watch her husband in the same arena when it is filled with lions and tigers.

"I sit back in the dressing room, nervous and tense," she explains. "Every shout, every round of applause, every roar of a lion or tiger means something to me. I am so thankful when Clyde is finally through. I simply can't bear to watch him."

Another spectacle in which death is brazenly defied twice daily is that presented by the Great Gretonas, peerless performers of the high wire, who have made two whole continents gasp with their feats in the dizzy peak of the big top without even a net beneath them. They climax their spine-chilling demonstration by building a pyramid with two bicycles as the unsteady base. The topmost figure, a beautiful young woman, can actually touch the highest point of the big-top with her hands when she stands upright on another Gretona's sturdy shoulders.

Brand new and giving birth to the word "stupefiant" is the spectacular display of the Great Florenzo's somersaulting automobile. Florenzo was grievously injured in the opening 1938 matinee performance in Chicago, just after he had arrived from France. He was absent from the circus for 11 days, but a wireless message caused his beautiful sister, Dolores, to abandon her nursing career in the far South of France and to speed to her brother's aid.

Since then, the stunning young French girl, Mlle. Dolores, has made the death-defying nearly-perpendicular plunge in the little scarlet automobile from the big-top's peak to the bottom of the incline, then to shoot into space, turn three somersaults in the car at blinding speed and land in the net.

Dear to the heart of every Canadian boy is Ken Maynard, famous western cinema star and cowboy, who was actually born in the little "cow town" of Mission, Texas. Ken will positively be seen at both performances of the Cole Brothers Circus today. His spectacular Congress of Rough Riders of the World, every one of them a riding, roping or marksmanship champion, also will be introduced at both performances.

These are only a few of the famous stars of Spangleland who appear under the Canadian-born Cole Brothers Circus banner and support the famous institution's claim to being "The Finest Show in the World". There are also Jorgen M. Christiansen's world famous Liberty Horse act in which 24 handsome Palamino horses are presented in one ring, the largest group of Liberty horses ever presented at once; whole herds of performing elephants trained by Eddie Allen; groups of seals, including "Smokey" which blows a tune on horns; Otto Greibling, famous mimic at the head of a vast assemblage of clowns with side-splitting antics and didoes; bevies of beautiful and intrepid bareback riders, aerial performers and dancers; and dazzling groups of other thrilling and spectacular stars of circusdom.

In addition, the Cole Brothers menagerie, one of the largest and most costly traveling collections of wild and rare animals ever assembled, will be on display for one hour before both the 2 and 8 p.m. performances. Included in the menagerie is "Pinky", a ponderous hippopotamus, the only one of its kind presented by any traveling show.

5 Trenton Fliers Roll Car Over

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, June 7.—Five members of the R.C.A.F. Trenton, narrowly escaped serious injury when the automobile in which they were riding turned over four times along Highway No. 37 at the outskirts of the village of Tweed shortly after midnight, Sunday. The men were returning from a week-end furlough at Ottawa and enroute to Trenton air base. The motor car was driven by a man who gave his name as Stewart Martin, R.C.A.F. The accident was investigated by Chief Constable J. C. Hayes of Tweed, who found that in some unknown manner the vehicle struck the soft shoulder, as it was leaving Tweed, but before it could be righted, had turned over four times. The car was badly damaged. The occupants of the vehicle gave their names as P. A. Jones, R. Lalonde, T. A. Wilkins and T. Calow. All escaped without injury.

When the automobile he was driving got beyond control, and crashed through a fence into a farmer's barnyard oposite Marysville Catholic Church, Sunday. George H. Tomlinson and his wife of Cornwall, escaped without injury.

The driver stated that the road was, at that point, rather rough, and that his car suddenly lurched to the left and hurtled into the ditch and came to a full stop among the livestock before he could right it.

Insurance Plan Ready.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House the Government has legislation for a National Unemployment Scheme ready, and will submit it to Parliament as soon as all the provinces consent. He said it is unlikely this consent will be gained in time for the measure to be considered this session.

Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Alberta have either refused to approve of the insurance scheme or have reserved decision.

In the evening Works Minister Cardin made rapid progress with his estimates. He told questioners the national war memorial in Ottawa would probably be set in place in Ottawa this year, but would not be completed until next year.

Want Work Anywhere.

"The Provincial Minister of Labor has said British Columbia will care for her own," Mr. MacNeil said in discussing the Vancouver situation. "That statement does not square with facts. The province has made no effort up to this time to meet the necessities of those who are without work.

"These men are looking for work anywhere—any kind of work." They had written to the principal municipalities across Canada asking if any work was available. All replied they could not absorb any additional single unemployed.

"The men are made to feel they are no longer being treated like human beings. They have a hunted feeling. If they accepted transportation home they would be worse off because their own people were in "terrible circumstances."

In his conversations with the transients Mr. MacNeil said he had been told "we would rather take it here at the end of a policeman's baton, we would rather be knocked insensible on the streets of Vancouver than go back to the hopelessness of drifting about and searching for the work they tell us is there, but which we never can find."

It should be possible not only to give the men transportation to their homes, Mr. MacNeil said, but to say to them, "We shall see that you get a decent deal when you arrive at these points."

If the men were forcibly ejected from public buildings there would be bloodshed and probably lives lost and great property damage, he said.

Rogers Sees Camp Plot.

Mr. Rogers said organization of the Vancouver demonstration started in the British Columbia forestry camps last winter where these men were occupied during the winter months. The purpose was to force the Government to keep the camps or similar works going during the summer.

The offer to send single transients back to their homes had been made by the British Columbia Minister of Labor who had expressed the opinion those domiciled in his province could be absorbed in certain projects. That would remove about 700 transients from the province.

"I do suggest that these men who are now in Vancouver would be well advised to accept the offer as far as they are not residents of that province. Certainly every effort will be made to see they, with others who are now unemployed, will be given full opportunity as such opportunities are available for employment on public works projects."

Further Appeal To Department To Start Work On Road To Port Perry Being Planned

A further appeal to the Department of Highways to begin work this season on the Peterborough-Port Perry link of the Central Ontario Highway will be made by a local deputation from the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce and the Peterborough Business Men's Association.

It was proposed in a letter last night from J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and supported by Alderman Dutton, who said the Department had done some maintenance work on the road, putting it in fairly good condition and also setting up directing signs.

"There is a strong feeling that the government should be urged to undertake some construction work on the highway this year," Alderman Dutton said. "A. L. Elliott, M.L.A., has expressed his willingness to assist in any way he can, and although some representations have been made of late to the Department it believed that because of the importance of this highway to the province as a whole and to this city and district we should go further, and ask that some work be begun this year."

"That's the only way you will get it," Alderman Gordon commented. He moved, seconded by Alderman Wilson, that the council be represented by Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Dutton, Cotton, Glover and McCannan in any conference and appeal to be made by the proposed delegation from the city.

Ald. Stocker's Invitation.

Alderman Stocker suggested that the members of the council should visit the Queen Mary Hospital to see the improvements that have been made to the grounds.

"Last year the Isolation Hospital won first prize for the best grounds of any public institution," Ald. Stocker said, "and I think the council should see for themselves what has been done in the way of beautification."

City Hall Picnic.

M. E. Shaver, city treasurer, requested the council to grant a half-holiday for the city hall staff for a picnic to be held late this month. A motion by Aldermen Juby and Cotton, agreed to the closing of all the departments for whatever afternoon is chosen by the staff. Mr. Shaver said that it would not be until after the tax bills have all been sent out, one of the major operations of A. S. Couper's tax collecting department.

City Hall Reports.

Seventy-three building permits issued in May amounted to $33,542, City Engineer Parsons reported. Five dwellings represented a value of $17,200, four garages $425 and miscellaneous new work $15,917.

Relief expenditure last month as reported by City Clerk Armstrong totalled $10,205.04, and Chief Gimblett's statement for May told of forty-one fire alarms with damage to buildings and contents of $545.98.

Alderman Gordon informed the council the expenses of the city's reception to the Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir, were $198.93. He moved votes of thanks to C. H. J. James of the General Motors Company for supplying an automobile for the use of His Excellency during his visit, to Gerald and Karl Duffus for arranging for the automobile, and a third resolution thanking Carl A. Salmonsen, works manager of the Canadian General Electric Company, for his courtesy and the gift presented by his company to the Governor-General. Alderman McIntyre seconded these resolutions. The gift from the C.G.E. Company was a mounted replica of the original electric lamp made by Thomas E. Edison.

Gift From City's Guest.

And as an appreciation of his reception and of his visit to Peterborough, Lord Tweedsmuir presented to the council, through Mayor Hamilton, a picture of himself and Lady Tweedsmuir with both their autographs.

The expenses of the Governor-General's visit were comparatively small, and as the county officially participated in the welcoming function, the amount will be reported to the County Council, by reason of the fact that Warden E. N. McDonald intimated that the county would pay part of the cost.

Alderman Gordon complimented Mayor Hamilton for his successful management of the details of the reception, and reported that A. L. Killaly, superintendent of the Trent Canal, had told him Lord Tweedsmuir was delighted with his visit.

Rebel Bombs Hit Sea, Valencia Gets Rich Fish Harvest

Valencia, June 7 (AP)

THE backwash of war brought Valencia an unexpected blessing yesterday — thousands of pounds of fresh fish.

Insurgent air raiders, soaring away from Government pursuit planes, unloaded their bomb-racks in order to gain altitude quickly.

The projectiles fell into the sea, apparently hitting a huge school of fish.

The Mediterranean soon swept the freshly killed fish to shore, where Valencians in boats and swimming suits thankfully reaped a rich harvest.

CIRCUS STOWAWAY

When the first circus train arrived in Peterborough this morning a young Ottawa boy, twelve years of age, was found in one of the cars and was taken to the police station here by Provincial Constable Silvester. He told police he was not actually a stowaway but said that he had fallen asleep on a car while watching the loading proceedings. His relatives in Ottawa have been notified.

HEALTH IS VALUABLE

Many things of incalculable value to each individual depend upon his or her good health. Happiness, contentment, usefulness and prosperity in their generally accepted meaning can prevail to the fullest extent only in proportion as good health is experienced. Health is one of our most valuable possessions, for without it the world holds few attractions.

ONE OF THE BEST WAYS

To promote health is the chiropractic way because spinal manipulative treatments do help in relieving constriction from nerves, thus permitting the life-giving impulse from the brain to reach the tissue cells. Nerve energy is that "spark of life" which animates the body and causes every organ and part to do its allotted work.

A Kitchener proposal to impose a $5 poll tax on women from 21 to 60 was referred by the council last night to the Finance Committee of which Alderman Cotton is chairman.

INVITED TO CHURCH.

OPPOSES UNION PLAN

At a largely attended meeting of the ratepayers of S.S. No. 17 (Rifle Range) School held on Monday evening the advantages and disadvantages of the much talked about school merger were discussed. After considerable discussion a motion was carried unanimously that the section was opposed to any change in the present system.

SINGLE MEN ON RELIEF.

Oshawa City Council has reversed its decision in regard to relief for single men. They were all struck off on the first of June and now they have all been put back on. Coupled with that a resolution was forwarded to Ottawa saying that the problem should be handled by the Dominion Government.

ARRIVED TOO SOON

A circus employee who had been visiting his home in Saginaw, Mich. because of a death in his family, arrived in town Monday morning expecting to find the circus here but discovered on his arrival that he was 24 hours early. He had no money so he was given shelter and food by the police department until Cole Brothers big show arrived today.

CHINESE INTERESTED

News of the terrific bombing of Canton by Japanese aircraft has aroused great interest in Peterborough's Chinese colony for many of the local Chinese hail from the Canton section of China, although as the Examiner has been able to check none of them lived in the city itself. Several have visited Canton and know the section of the city that was bombed.

ON THE CLOTHESLINE.

One lady in the west end of Peterborough is now impressed by the seriousness of having caterpillars around. When it came washing day and the hour arrived for putting the clothes on the line it was found the caterpillars had taken possession. It was necessary to give the line a thorough shaking and cleaning before proceeding with the business of putting out the family wash.

TO CHANGE PROCEDURE.

In accordance with Alderman Gordon's suggestion Monday night the rules of the council will be changed by by-law giving precedence to the hearing of deputations. This business will be transfered to the top of the list, with priority over even the brief phrasing providing for "taking the minutes as read." Alderman Gordon said sometimes the reading of communications took considerable time, keeping citzens waiting to be heard by the council.

NOVEL SCRAP BOOK

Harry Yeates has in his possession a novel scrap book of the size which one can readily slip into the pocket. In it he has neatly arranged pictures of orchestra leaders and singers of note, leading people of the screen and radio world. Nor has he forgotten to include the Dionne children. World events are also covered, one page showing Haille Selassie and across from that Hitler and Mussolini. The book concludes with pictures of a number of birds from various parts of the world.

TREES DESPOILED.

"If they were in Russia they'd be stood against a wall and shot for a thing like that," Alderman Stocker told the Examiner Monday night as he grieved for two of the double flowering crab trees along the King Edward Park front on George street south. "Some one tore off the two branches and took a long string of the bark with them. Actions of that kind are an offence against every ratepayer who is paying for beautifying the city; but there's nothing we can do about it when we are not sure who did it."

TO TEST BRAKES

A special committee composed of Alderman Wilson, Chief Constable Newhall and City Engineer Parsons, was appointed by the council Monday night with full authority to assist the Garage Operators' Associations in their plans for free testing of automobile brakes and general fitness against accidents. Further announcements will be made later when the location of the testing strip has been determined.

SPLIT HOSE ORDER.

Instead of buying 500 feet of new hose from the Kingan Hardware Company, the council divided the order, half being for the Dominion Rubber Company's Keystone brand bought through J. K. Hughes, and the other 250 feet being Bi-Lateral from Kingan Hardware Company.

SEEK CITIZENSHIP

Two applications for naturalization of citizenship were favorably received by Judge Smoke at the opening of the general sessions of the peace this afternoon. One was from Dominic Mayo, born in South American of Italian parentage, and a resident here for seventeen years. He was representd by G. N. Gordon, K.C., and character evidence was given by Detective Sergeant Meagher. The other applicant was Arthur William Pearl, 135 Rubidge street, born in Lima, N.Y., and resident here nine years. He was represented by J. A. Fair. Judge Smoke said he would recommend that both applications be granted.

RESENTED STATEMENT

Joseph Wheeler, former constable of the city's police department, stated to the council last night that he objected to Alderman Gordon's assertion at a recent committee meeting that he did not think Mr. Wheeler's assertions respecting certain charges, which he has asked to be investigated, were correct. "I don't want people to think I'm a liar," he said. "I have proof of my complaints. The Police Commission hasn't heard it yet. I was told to keep off that beat." Ald. Gordon said his words were that the charges were not substantiated, but he was willing to let them stand as reported, although he was not responsible for what the paper published. Mayor Hamilton commented that the case would come before the Commission, and further that there was nothing the Council could do about a newspaper report.

Pin Game Permits To Be Withheld

While waiting for definite action by the Federal Government respecting pin games, the City Council Monday night decided not to issue any new licenses. Alderman Dutton's resolution to that effect was seconded by Alderman Stocker.

"It is the opinion of the City Solocitor that these games are illegal," Ald. Dutton said, "and I feel the council is putting itself in a delicate position by granting licenses.

"Do you want the council not to renew the existing licenses?" Mayor Hamilton enquired.

"That is entirely for the council to decide," Ald. Dutton answered.

The result of the passing incident was that the present licenses are to be permitted to continue in effect until the Dominion Government makes some enactment definitely banning them.

Council Expresses Its Appreciation Of Vacation Number

CONGRATULATIONS of the council were extended to the Examiner on the recent publication of its special tourist edition. Alderman Cotton's resolution, seconded by Alderman Bradburn, expressed "our sincere appreciation to the Examiner for their splendid edition which we believe will have the effect of increasing the number of tourists coming into this district." Alderman Cotton also extolled the interest of Ald. Glover in efforts to publicize Peterborough, and a word of praise for Alderman Dutton's road campaign and map was also added.

Drunken Driver Is Given 10 Days

For the third day in succession a drunken driver was sentenced to jail in the local police court this morning when A. Wellie Patterson, Park street, pleaded guilty to driving a motor vehicle while drunk Monday night and was given ten days imprisonment by Magistrate E. A. Gee.

Patterson was arrested shortly before midnight last night after he had back his big truck out of the laneway leading to Magee's garage on Hunter street straight across the street, crashing into a taxi owned by Arthur Collins and parked in front of Mr. Collins' garage on the south side of Hunter street. The taxi was damaged to the extent of $25 by the impact.

In court Patterson who is 32 and married pleaded guilty to the charge.

"What had you been drinking?" asked Magistrate Gee. "I had been in a beverage room and had a number of draughts," the accused explained.

Magistrate Gee imposed a jail term of ten days.

"The next time take something home to your children instead of going into beverage rooms," he advised the accused, "or buy your wife a box of chocolates. That is a good way to keep out of trouble."

Her 258-foot length allowe da clearance of only one foot in Canadian docks.

Engineer Asked To Report On Incinerator

Warned by successive chairmen of the property committee, Fred T. Tuggey, Alderman M. McIntyre and again last night by Alderman McCannan, that the incinerator is on its last legs and may tumble down any day, the council took steps toward replacing the furnaces that were constructed in 1913, and renovated only five years ago at a cost of $5,000.

Alderman McCannon said he was convinced that something should be done without unnecessary delay to repair the present dilapidation of the big fire pots that burn the city's garbarge. He believed it would be possible to overhaul the furnaces, reline them and restore the incinerator's usefulness for quite a number of years at comparatively small cost.

Ald. Dutton said he had not much faith in trying to make over the present furnaces. His experience with heating plants and his observation of incinerators in Toronto and elsewhere suggested it would be necessary to construct a new building designed for the needs of the city for fifty years.

It was Alderman McIntyre who recalled the expenditure of five years ago, $5,000 for a new crown in the furnace, a new top and stack and other repairs, and after that investment only a few years ago the reports about the condition of the incinerator were "startling."

A resolution by Alderman McCannan, seconded by Alderman Glover, asked for a complehensive report on the incinerator by City Engineer Parsons, assisted, if he desires, by the men who made the last repairs, or by any one else who could advise him in an independent capacity. This motion was adopted, as was also another by Alderman Gordon, seconded by Alderman Dutton authorizing W. F. Huycke, City Solicitor, to prepare a bylaw authorizing the council to construct a new incinerator. Alderman Gordon said the bylaw might not be required but its preparation woud take some time and would be ready if the council decided to proceed with a new building.

As to change of site, Alderman Stocker reminded the council that a municipality in the Toronto district had to move nine times before obtaining a location from which they could not be ousted by injuction. "You will make a great mistake if you go looking about for a new location. You're in possession where you are, so hang on to it," he said.

Another porject that has been discussed several times this year was the need of laying a water main from Bonaccord street to Jackson Park for the Kiwanis Club camp for children asd also for the use of the many citizens who visit the Park during the summer.

The water in the old well at the Park has been condemned, and Ross L. Dobbin's estimate of the cost of laying a main through the shale dock below the surface in that district is regarded as being too high. Alderman Cotton suggested last night that another effort be made to enlist the co-operation of the Utilities Commission and also the Nicholls Park trustees. He named Mayor Hamilton, Alderman Dutton and City Engineer Parsons to interview the Commission and the park trustees 'to see what arrangement can be made to get water into Jackson Park, and report to the council."

Alderman McIntyre said a summer service to the park would cost "very little" and would be all that was needed for the present. However, it was finally agreed that a permanent main would be of service to houses that may be built on Monaghan Road, and that a "three way split of the cost" would leave the city's contribution at a reasonable figure. The Cotton resolution was adopted.

The Rambling REPORTERS

CAR DRIVEN UP RAILROAD

Express men and station agent at the C.P.R. depot watched in amazement at three o'clock this morning when a car driven by a man and travelling at a high rate of speed turned west of George street and raced down the tracks past the station. A few feet from a parked box car the driver brought his bumping vehicle to a stop, put it in reverse and backed to George street and against the steel base supporting the drop gate. Then started south at a terrific rate of speed.

The car had the right wheels between the rail of the tracks and the driver missed the high water pump by a narrow margin. Two bumps in the tracks where drains have been cut failed to convince him he was off the road, and only the box car which loomed in his headlights forced him to turn back. One spectator who watched the performance described the driver as a cross between a speed demon and a boiled owl, and the driver's actions indicated he was if not intoxicated, certainly highly excited.

Driving Permit Is Cancelled

William Langford, who yesterday pleaded guilty to reckless driving and failing to return to the scene of an accident was fined $20 and costs by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning on the hit-and-run charge and given suspended sentence on the reckless driving count with suspension of his driving permit for 30 days.

The charges were the aftermath of an accident on the Young's Point-Burleigh Falls section of Highway 28 on Saturday night when a car owned by Allen Days of Young's Point was sideswiped by the machine driven by Langford.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for the accused and told the magistrate that so far as the hit-and-run charge was concerned, he was informed that the reason Langford did not stop was because he believed that the other car had also gone on. The accused, counsel told the court, had a crippled mother whom he was looking after. Mr. Gordon suggested that possibly one of the charges might be dropped.

Provincial Traffic Officer Broughton who arrested Langford refused, however, to drop either charge.

"I would be satisfied with the minimum penalty for each offence," he informed the court.

Officer Broughton said that after the accident Davis had remained for several minutes waiting to see if the other car came back and when it did not he had taken after Langford.

"There is a conflict in evidence according to my information," Mr. Gordon said.

The traffic officer said that the car Langford had been driving was in poor mechanical condition. The windshield wiper would not work properly and the steering mechanism was in bad shape. He said that at the scene of the accident the driving surface was 51 feet wide and Langford's car had struck the other machine which was well over on its own side of the road.

Magistrate Gee decided to suspend sentence in the reckless driving case and cancel Langford's driving permit for a month while he imposed a fine of $20 for accused's failure to remain at the scene of the accident.

Gordon Renews Attack On Restaurant

Renewal of the "eating house" license for the Home Lunch restaurant was suspended by the council Monday night until the compartments upstairs are altered to conform with the city's bylaw. The enclosing partitions and walls are lower than the four feet required by the regulations, but the openings to them are not wide enough. The changes could probably be made in a day.

Alderman Gordon attacked the renewal of the license with a broadside ranging from his assertion that there are too many restaurants in the city, that the Chinese escape the minimum wage act and thereby set up embarrassing opposition for their Canadian competitors and finally questioned the circumstances of the sale of the restaurant from Hum Lee to Hum Sam. The debts incurred by Hum Lee totalled $14,605 of which $10,057.50 was loans, wages $395, and bills to tradesmen made up the rest. The largest of these accounts was for $1,000, most of the others being comparatively small. Ald. Gordon said the business men would not collect three cents on the dollar.

"There's something the matter with that deal, but I can't put my finger on it," Alderman Gordon declared.

Alderman Cotton observed that if so much money could be borrowed by Hum Lee, there should also be enough available to pay off the merchants.

Favorable Health Report.

Alderman Glover said he had every confidence in Hum Sam, proprietor of the Paris Cafe, who has taken over the Home Lunch, and would like to see him get a chance to revive the business. The Health Department's report on the Home Lunch was favorable, and under better managament the restaurant might be maintained. Ald. Glover pointed out that to cancel the license would be a hardship on the owner of the property, T. H. G. Denne.

Alderman Dutton said he had no brief for the Home Lunch, but he understood the beginning of its financial straits was the expenditure of $6,000 during the depression on improvements and changes as required by the city's bylaw.

"I am told that every dollar of the loans to Hum Lee was made in the spirit of helping a member of the family," Ald. Dutton added. "It seems to be a custom in China that when one member of a family gets in trouble the others come to his help. I am also told that the Chinese who made the loans will lose every dollar they put into it."

Some of the loans were: Hum Poy, Montreal $1,750; Hum Toy, Halifax, $280; Hum On, Peterborough, $3,850; Hum Sam, $930; Hum Jim, $1,800; Hum Jack, $220; and so on.

City Clerk Armstrong informed the council that the Home Lunch license expired last night. Hum Sam has been in possession of the restaurant since May 23.

A motion by Alderman Dutton, seconded by Alderman Glover, instructed the city clerk to grant the Home Lunch a new license when its new stalls conform with the city's regulations for "eating houses."

FICTION AND FEATURES

FIESTA

by OREN ARNOLD

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Bill Baron, a footloose Texan, and Ellen Dale, Hollywood Film star, are staying at the Montoya ranch across the Mexican border where they found themselves after a lucky parachute jump from Baron's plane during a storm. The wealthy Montoya family and Ellen grow alarmed when Bill and Panola, their host's daughter, fail to return from a ride together. Ellen, enchanted by the atmosphere of old Mexico here, finds herself growing much interested in Bill. Don Julio Montoya and his son, Felix, set out to trail the missing couple.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 7

THAT MORNING in the dining room when Panola Montoya invited Bill to go horseback riding with her, he told himself he had no choice in the matter. He allowed himself to be led out of the dining room. He wanted to tell Ellen that he would return in a half hour or so and resume their plans for leaving Montoya Rancho, but Panola was talking constantly

"Is good to have guests," she was saying. "Excep' for dances every two three weeks, iss not much of fun and pleasure on a dirty ranch, senor. Now you have come."

"Thank you," Bill replied gravely. "You have been most kind to us, and we shall be sorry to leave today."

"But you cannot go today!"

He looked questioning at her, pausing there by the horses.

"Oh, no, senor! We have plan thee partee!"

"I am sorry, Miss Montoya, But—"

"Joost call me Panola,Ple-e-ease?"

The Mexican girl had a manner about her. She was a vixen, obviously, but a doggoned pretty one when she wanted to be. Her lips seemed particularly expressive, moving, molding, suggesting things even when she was not smiling or speaking. It is a trait, said Bill, which he had never observed in anyone before.

Her voice, too, could have a distinctive quality about it, a cuddly intimate quality. Its tone was pitched high, so as to make it laugh and tease and sound almost juvenile. Bill suspected it could track with fire too, when occasion arose.

"All right, Panola. It is a pretty name. And as to the party—it would be a pleasure, but Miss Dale is already over-due in California. I must get her out of here.

"She go to California?"

"Well, no," Bill had forgotten, for the moment, his and Ellen's unfinished plans for the border home. "Possibly so, I mean."

"But do you have to go wiz her?" She can be escort to Nogales."

Panola made it plain that she didn't give a whoop if Ellen did leave, but she wanted Bill to stay. Bill grinned, a trifle sourly. Mounted now, the man and girl started their horses at a brisk walk. Bill liked the feel of his. An animal with spirit, with energy and zest for action, always pleased him. This was almost a show horse.

"Iss name Yanqui," Panola said.

"Yanqui—Yankee!" Bill leaned to pat the horse's shoulder affectionately. "All right, Yank, old boy!"

"Mine iss Fuego."

"Ah, Wildfire! But why such a name as that, Panola?"

"He run like thee wildfire, iss why. Listen, Beel, I make you thee race on los caball—on thee horses, no? I race you, you race me. The espeed. Yanquil is moch fast, tambien."

Bill laughed out loud. He was enjoying being in the saddle, and he was enjoying the little-girl talk of Panola Montoya. Back in the ranch home she had impressed him as a more serious type, a person given to formality, and perhaps a little hard.

But in the open her gaiety shone. Moreover, it was contagious and that can prejudice people in anyone's favor, Bill was thinking. He looked at her on her horse. She was dressed much as an American girl would be on any of a hundred southwestern resorts or ranches—riding trousers, boots, shirt, neckerchief, some kind of band around her black hair, gay colors, rouge on her cheeks.

"Yonder iss a sahuaro cactus—see, with three arm?"

"Unh hunh," Bill nodded assent.

"Iss wan-half mile from here. I have race here many time." They had stopped their horses beside a huge red boulder. The landscape was truly inspiring.

"Okay," Bill agreed. "But what'll we have for a prize? Let me see—" He was entering into the game of it.

"Las' time, when I race wiz Carlos Villaverde, we bet thee box of candee against thee—kees!"

Her eyes twinkled mischieviously at him. He could not help smiling down at her. No honest man will deliberately ignore a pretty girl's wiles, even when he sees through them. Bill laughed aloud.

"A bet it is, Panola! But I warn you, Yankees are faster than wildfires. I intend to collect that kiss."

He had a hunch that she also intended him to collect, but she certainly didn't hold Fuego back. Her smaller horse responded, when she touched his ribs with her heels, like some sort of animated spring that had been tense and waiting. Yamqui was heavier. He was a length behind when he got going, but his longer more powerful legs began to close in soon.

"EE-YOW!" Bill Baron yelled like a cowboy, bending low in his saddle, rising slightly on his stirrups to smooth Yamqui's rhythm. This really is a horse, he thought, admiringly.

But Fuergo snorted and got down to business too, and it was obvious that Panola was ranch reared, perhaps literally nursed in a saddle as many another southwestern kid has been. The smaller pony stretched his neck, threw gravel at Yamqui from fast-pattering hooves. "Home stretch!" shouted Bill, when they neared the cactus goal.

The race apparently was one of those photographic finishes you read about. Yank and Fuego jolted to a stop at the insistent pull of reins. They had not been satisfied, whatever their riders wanted, and would have dashed on. The man and girl were laughing.

"Well?" said Bill.

"What you theenk?" Panola smiled prettily.

"Looked like a tie to me, Panola. Maybe I'm wrong."

"Then we can pay no prizes."

"Oh no! I think we each ought to collect. Huh? Is there a confectionery near? Anyway I shall surely send you the candy."

What man doesn't like thus to make talk with a pretty girl, to pretend he is teasing even when they both know he isn't, to enjoy the subtle intimacy and fellowship with her? It makes no particular difference whether she is "nice" or not, whether he entirely approves of her or knows positviely that she is a conscienceless flirt.

Panola looked happily at him, admiring him openly.

"I pay you thee kees—when you want. But to kees on thee horse iss not so good. Maybe you aim at thee lips and kees thee cheen, or thee ear!"

Bill laughed again and made a motion as if to grab her and collect his kiss; but both Yamqui and Fuego had ideas in the matter. They thought the race was on again, and resumed galloping.

The man and girl had climbed a long slope and down the other side, circled a cup-shaped pile of rock cliffs higher than an ordinary city skyscraper, and were heading up a mountain trail. The scenery was impressive, always. When they two had reined their horses to a walk and went steadily climbing, Bill permitted himself to use that favorite conversational chromo:

"Glory, but thar's gold in them that hills!"

It is not really such a trite phrase any more. It means now that the hills hold treasures of color and form—of scenic beauty—regardless of any yellow metal. And that was what Bill had in mind.

"Thee view—iss grand," said Panola, pointing.

"Is grand," he nodded.

They penetrated deeper into the mountains than they realized, just riding, talking little, stimulated by clean thin air and by youthful buoyancy of spirit, carried by horses who had needed and wanted exercise.

Once beside a great boulder around which the now faint trail turned, they paused to blow their horses and look back and down. Bill estimated that they could see a hundred miles now, across hills and valleys to the next horizons. In it was the thrill he loved so well—the indefinable soul lift that comes with aviation.

The two sat there staring for perhaps half a minute, oblivious almost to each other, so commanding was the scenery. The spell of the outdoors had gripped Bill, like the heavenly narcotic it is to esthetic souls.

Wherefore, he could not have heard any possible strange noises near them, any cracking of twigs, any slipping and rolling of gravel, any swish of air.

All he knew was that a sudden abrupt "plop!" startled him, then he was jerked from his horse.

Panola turned, screamed. Bill's body struck the ground.

Be Clever and Avoid Such Etiquette Slips

Giggling at Compliments

So embarrassing! You looked so sophisticated and charming to the vacation crowd. Then you got a compliment—and fell all over yourself.

But compliments, like everything else in social life, are just a matter of etiquette.

If you receive them with a titter and "Aw, you don't mean that," you betray a sad lack of manners.

But if you smile graciously, say, "You're nice to say so," you show poise and breeding.

And how it helps to have a reputation for perfect manners. Invitations a-plenty for the girl who knows enough not to rise when she's introduced to men; who says good-by to the sponsors at a dance; who to an apology says a quiet, "It doesn't matter." And so few invitations come to girls who don't.

Know what's expected of you—at dances, dinners, motoring—all occasions. Our 32-page booklet gives tips for girls and men.

Victim of Lightning

ROEBUCK, Ont., June 7—(CP).—Thomas B. Dixon, 68, was killed Sunday when struck by lightning as he stood under an oak tree on the farm of his brother, David Dixon, whom he was visiting. No inquest will be held.

Dixon, a retired Montreal railwayman, came here last Thursday to spend the weekend with his brother. He was alone when the bolt struck. Searchers found the body under the tree, the shoes torn from the feet and the hat Dixon was wearing split in two and thrown some distance.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I feel that you are unjust when you advise men not to marry pretty girls, or clinging vines, or bossy girls, or girls with tempers, or those who dress beyond their means, or pessimistic girls, or girls with family complexes, or girls who hate domesticity.

If a girl is pretty, it does not mean that domesticity and child-bearing will rob her of her beauty. And marriage can make a homely girl homelier. There is no use in scaring men away from the good-lookers. Besides, men don't stay Robert Taylors, either.

If a man doesn't marry a clinging vine, one of them is mighty likely to come along and break up his happy home, anyway. So what's the matter with the clinging vine? She keeps her husband so busy working and taking care of her that it keeps the "other woman" away. Besides, men like to be babied.

Nine times out of ten a bossy girl is one with large responsibilities that she would like to slide onto the shoulders of a big strong he-man. It would make her happy to completely surrender to a bossy man. So what's wrong with the bossy girl?

A girl without a temper is not emotional. She is ice, not fire. Temper is in the air, in life, in plants, in the universe. It is what makes the world go round.

How is a fellow who knows nothing about women's clothes to tell when a girl is dressed beyond her means? There are women who spend fortunes on clothes and look like rag dolls, and girls who look like a million dolars in hand-me-downs.

Maybe the girl who is not jolly and good-natured has worries and there is something wrong in her environment, and she would be sunshine in the home if she had a husband to support her and understand her.

There are girls who have no family complex before marriage, but develop a violent case of it after marriage. How is a man to know beforehand whether he is going to play second fiddle to Mother or be the boss of his own house?

Many girls hate domesticity because they have never had a chance to get acquainted with a gas range. Yet I have known girls who were crackerjack cooks who had got so fed up with housework before marriage that they went out of the kitchen during the honeymoon and never went back. If men do not marry any of the girls you warned them against, what other type is left? There are no perfect women, and no man would want a perfect woman any more than a woman would want a perfect man. PRETTY.

Answer:

Well, Pretty, if you had read my article more carefully, you would have observed that I did not warn against marrying any of the various types of girls I mentioned. I merely set forth the advantages and the drawbacks to each particular kind.

And I think my estimate is not unfair. The man who marries a girl simply because she is pretty is bound to lose out, because Time robs the fairest of her beauty.

The clinging vine flatters a man's vanity, but she gets to be a burden in the end. And she doesn't baby her husband; she makes him baby her.

Bossiness in either man or woman is not the result of circumstances. It is the love of ruling that is born in them and any girl who runs her father and mother and sisters and brothers will make her husband say yes ma'am to her.

The girl without temper may not be emotional, but she is mighty comfortably to live with. Wives who make scenes do not promote domestic peace and harmony.

No doubt men are poor judges of how much it costs to dress a wife, which is the reason that the marriage bells still ring out. Becky Sharp said that any woman could be virtuous on five thousand a year, and undoubtedly there are girls who would be cheered up by having everything they want the way they want it, but what a man wants in a wife is one who can take life on the chin and come up smiling.

And so on and so forth. But, as you say, there are no perfect girls and most any girl is good enough for the man she marries. So there.

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—I am engaged to a young man who came from Sweden six years ago. Have my hopechest filled and the date of the wedding is set. He wrote his mother and told her he was going to be married and she has written me a letter imploring me not to marry him because she feels that if he marries me he will settle down in America and never go back to Sweden. She says that he has written her that I am his whole life and that if anything should ever happen to separate us he would leave the United States forever. So she begs me to break the engagement. She says she wants all of her children married and settled about her in their own country. She ends the letter by entreating me to heed the prayers of a heartbroken mother. I have not shown my fiance the letter yet. We love each other so much that I cannot bear to give him up. Neither can I bear bringing sorrow to a mother. So what must I do?

BROKENHEARTED.

Answer:

Show the letter to your fiance and leave the decision to him. If he loves his mother better than he does you and thinks more of her happiness than he does of yours, and if he wants to run back to Mamma and marry a nice Swedish girl whom she has picked out for him and live just around the corner from her, let him go.

But my guess is that he will be hopping mad with Mother and tell her to mind her own business; that he proposes to run his own life and marry whom he chooses.

He came to America in the first place because he thought he could better his condition, and evidently he has done so as he has stayed six years. He wasn't so devoted to his mother then that he couldn't leave her. So why should he want to throw up everything he has gained now to go back to her? And why should you think you are doing him a good turn by breaking your engagement on the eve of your marriage in order that he may marry some other girl and sending him back to the country he forsook? Use your head a little.

There is no sense in wrecking your life and his to gratify the whim of a selfish and possessive mother. It is a sad thing when parents and children have to be parted, but the parents who love their children most make them free to follow their own fortunes. DOROTHY DIX.

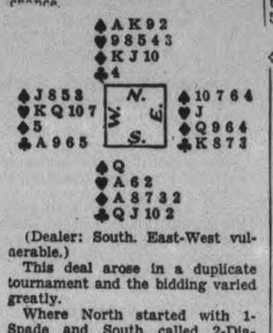
TRY ONCE MORE

WHENEVER your partner bids a suit in response to your opening suit bid, it will pay you to make a general practice of bidding again. Try another suit if you can, or a rebid of your original suit, or possibly no trump. This holds true even if your partner had passed before you bid. Unless there was something sour about your own bid in the first place, it usually will pay to give your partner one more chance.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a duplicate tournament and the bidding varied greatly.

Where North started with 1-Spade and South called 2-Diamonds, some of the North bidders, remembering that their partners had originally passed, and figuring that 2-Diamonds was as good a spot as any, let the contract die at that point.

Different bidding resulted where the North players started with 1-Heart, South responding with 2-Diamonds, North 2-Spades and South 3-No Trumps.

Hearts having been bid, the 3-trump bidders received a club opening and as a result made five, with the loss of only two club tricks. Even with the heart lead 5-Diamonds can be made.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Have you ever gone sailing in a soap-bubble? That's what Knarf and Hanid, the shadow children with the turned-about names, were doing.

And Knarf was very clever, too. He had gone down into the cellar and come back with some cobweb which he threw over bubble with the ends hanging down. Then he tied the ends to the top of a buttercup That made the carriage of the balloon. Then he filled some ant eggs with sand for sandbags.

He threw some cobweb over the balloon bubble.

Finally Knarf brought on the most remarkable thing of all: A telescope. This was made of a bit of hollow straw.

"I'm the captain of this balloon," Knarf told Hanid as they rose over the garden wall and floated gently with the breeze toward the oak tree which stood at the end of the field. "You're my assistant. You have to do what I tell you. I want you to take this telescope and look through it and tell me if we're coming to the oak tree at the end of the field."

Oak Tree Near.

So Hanid took the telescope and looked through it. The next instant she said: "Captain Knarf — we're coming to the oak tree at the end of the field. I think that we are going to crash right into it."

"Assistant Hanid — throw over some of those sandbags."

So Hanid threw some of the sandbags overboard and the balloon immediately began to rise.

"We're going to go right over the top of the oak tree now," she said to Captain Knarf.

"That's very good. Now Assitant Hanid, look through the telescope once more and tell me if you see any eggs in any of the birds' nests."

Puppet Play Presented

A unique evening's entertainment was presented Friday evening in the Parish Hall, when a puppet play entitled "The Wishing Fairy" was given before a large audience, and was under the auspices of the Junior Auxiliary of All Saints church.

This little play in three acts portrays the adventures of two children who, being disatisfied with their wholesome food, are taken to the home of a giant. When he talks about cooking snakes, and possibly roasting little children, they are most delighted to return home on the broomstick of mother witch to their own kind mother, and their own wholesome food!

The puppeteers for this clever little play were Miss Adele Milburn, Mr. Newton Hamilton, and Bobby and Joyce Milburn, and the puppets were made by them.

Splendid Meeting of Home and School Association

The regular June meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held yesterday, June 6, in the Kindergarten room, when the annual reports were brought in.

The concise reports given by the convenors showed that it had been a very progressive year, and that all departments were in a flourishing condition.

The retiring president, Mrs. L. M. Richardson, expressed her thanks to officers and convenors individually, and to the membership at large for their co-operation during her term of office. An enjoyable musical program was then provided by the girls of Mr. J. E. Munro's and Mr. R. E. Frost's room, when they sang songs from their regular course of study.

Mrs. V. R. Henry, newly elected president, took the chair for the rest of the meeting, when regular monthly reports were brought in. Arrangements were made for the annual picnic, which is to be held June 17. The social convenor recorded that the ice cream treat had been given the children May 30.

The association will open for the fall on the second Monday in September.

Just before refreshments were served, with Mrs. S. Kingdon and her committee in charge, a delightfully informal ceremony took place when Mrs. L. M. Richardson, the retiring president, was presented by the treasurer, Mrs. E. Wellwood, on behalf of the association, a beautiful lace tablecloth and a bouquet of red roses. The address was read by Mrs. A. W. Nelson, secretary.

Presentation Made To Rev. and Mrs. C. Kitney

The congregation of St. James' United Church held a farewell "At Home" on Saturday evening for Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Kitney at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brumwell, River Road.

After viewing the lovely flowers and lawns, the guests were received in the house, which was beautifully decorated with spirea and peonies. A sing-song with Mr. Harold Kitney at the piano, was much enjoyed. Rev. F. Craik (pastor) then spoke of the pleasure it was to have one of the boys from St. James' Church answer the call of the ministry, and spoke of the prominent part played by the minister's wife, which is all too often overlooked. He then called on Mrs. Buckler to read the address of the Sunday School and congregation, and Mr. Prest was asked to read the address of the Church Board.

Mrs. A. Wilson then made the presentation, on behalf of the congregation, of a purse and individual communion set to Rev. and Mrs. Kitney, to which Mr. Kitney replied in a few well chosen words of appreciation.

Numerous friends spoke of the pleasure and influence Charlie Kitney's life had been to the church, and best wishes were extended to the young couple in their new field of Christian work.

Dainty refreshments were served, and a hearty vote of thanks tendered to the hosts by Mr. Hogan.

Rev. and Mrs. Kitney will make their new home at Monteney, B.C., in the Peace River district.

Banquet Held by St. George's A.Y.P.A.

The annual A.Y.P.A. banquet of St. George's Church was held last Friday evening, with an attendance of about thirty-four members.

The president, Tom Alcock, proposed the toast to the King, and Miss Francis Legon proposed the church, Mr. A. Knott responding. The toast to the A.Y.P.A. was proposed by Ken Gibson and responded to by Rev. T. S. Gault.

The secretary's report, given by Mrs. G. Ray, showed a very successful year.

Dancing was then enjoyed to the music of George Rutherford's Rythm Kings. The lucky door prize was won by Frances Legon and Arthur Kenwood. The prize for the spot dance was won by E. Millard and H. Porter. Mr. and Mrs. F. Darrel won the birthday dance, and Mrs. Curly Fallis and B. King the second spot dance.

Guests of the evening included the two wardens, Mr. G. Ray and Mr. A. Knott and Mrs. Knott, Rev. T. S. Gault, Mrs. R. King, Mr. and Mrs. F. Darrel, Mr. and Mrs. C. Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. T. Interest Program Given at Meeting

The Queen Mary Home and School Association held a meeting Tuesday evening, with about 56 members present.

Mrs. E. R. Shirley acted as presiding officer in the absence of the president, Miss E. Deyell.

A very fine poem, entitled "Home," clipped from the Home and School Review, was read by Mrs. C. E. Stanton, and was followed by a brief business meeting, at which reports were read from the various committees and from the Home and School Council. The Refreshment committee reported on the May Tea, which had realized the pleasing sum of $39.65. The convenor of current events gave a regime of conditions in Czechoslovakia, which was brief and to the point, and extremely interesting. Mrs. L. L. McGuire, in her report on "Help," explained the benefits of the pre-school clinic. Mrs. C. H. Crowe made an announcement of the summer school, and presented suggestions for summer tonic occupational activities for children.

The Junior banner was won by Miss W. Batten's room, and the Senior by Miss M. Stenton's room.

An interesting program followed, and consisted of two concertina solos by eight-year old Ross Crobbis, piano solos by Evelyn Martin, and some splendid films shown by the principal, Mr. O. M. Steer, which were loaned to him by the A. Wander Company through the kindness of Mr. Charles Shaw.

It was decided to hold the Home and School picnic on the 23rd of June.

Saving His Windows

CHICAGO, June 7 (A.P.).—When the window of a sporting goods store was smashed three times and merchandise valued at $750 stolen, Karl W. Keefer, the manager, had an idea. Instead of merchandise, Keefer posted signs in the window. They inform passersby it is an unsafe place to put sporting goods because of brick-wielding thieves.

IN MEMORIAM

RONCO.—In loving memory of Joseph Ronco, who passed away seven years ago to-day.

Those whom we love go out of sight.
But never out of mind;
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days;
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own;
And day by day I miss him more
As I walk through life alone.
Peaceful be thy rest, dear father;
It is sweet to breathe thy name;
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.

TO EXCHANGE IDEAS

WELLAND — Nine counties, Brant, Grey, Wellington, Waterloo, Welland, Lincoln, Haldimand and Wentworth have agreed to form an organization to exchange ideas and to aid the members of the various county councils to settle common problems, said Reeve Fred J. Kilgour of Crowland today, on his return from Hamilton, where the representatives of the nine counties held a conference.

Quinte Conference Highlights As Seen By Delegate Who Attended For First Time

(By Rev. Dr. E. W. Young)

It has often been said that an onlooker sees most of the game, it is equally true that one who attends a church conference for the first time gets impressions of the place and the people that an old timer would not receive. This was the writer's experience this year at Napanee. Compared with the London conference the Bay of Quinte is smaller in numbers, yet larger in geographical area. There are no large cities in this district like London and Windsor. Rural life, however, is more fully represented here. We have too such cities as Peterborough, Belleville, Kingston, Oshawa, each of which has several important churches.

The welcome of the town. There was no doubt about the welcome of the people of Napanee. Cards were displayed in shop windows assuring us of it. Mayor A. S. Hughson spoke in gracious terms to the conference. The Ven. Archdeacon Dumbrille of St. Mary's Magdalene Church expressed the greetings of the Anglicans of the district. Several of the delegates were entertained in Anglican homes and were treated royally by their hosts. Other churches also co-operated.

The Queen's University Influence. It was apparent from the beginning that the professors of Queen's were at the conference, and determined to take a leading part in the discussoins. Professors J. O. Watts, M.A., J. M. Shaw, M.A. D.D., C. E. Walker, M.A., J. R. Watts, B.A., D.D., Principal H. A. Kent, M.A., D.D., and Dean John Matheson all took a prominent part in the proceedings and were heard with great respect. The theological college of this famous university has turned out many learned and devoted ministers, and it was never more effective than it is at the present time.

The Diversities Of Men

The ex-president, Rev. J. Manwell Allen of Calvin church, Pembroke, had a Scottish burr which stamped him for what he was. Other leaders proclaimed their Scottish ancestry not only in their speech but in their countenances. The newly-elected president, Rev. W. P. Woodger, B.A., of Trinity church, Cobourg, was one of the sturdy sons of Canadian Methodism. This we admit looks like electing a representative of each of the former churches each alternate year. I am informed however that this is not the case. A few years ago the younger ministers squelched the old plan, and men are now elected solely on their merits, irrespective of former affiliation.

The Layman's Association

H. B. Fetherley of Belleville, the president for 1937-38 presided at the layman's session. Reports were given of men's associations throughout the district. At the layman's banquet the Armouries was crowded with both men and women. It was by far the most enthusiastic meeting of the conference, and gave one the impression that the laymen are active, and determined to make the United church a real spirtiual force in Canadian life.

Women At Conference

There were few if any women delegates, but three women gave reports from the platform. The president of the W.M.S. went beyond the allotted time of 15 minutes, and remarked as she finished that she had a watch at home but forgot to bring it with her. A young lady represented the deaconess movement, and another the primary department of religious education. All three did well, and made one feel sorry that women were not more fully represented in the membership of the conference considering the large part they play in the regular work of the churches.

The Public Meetings

The wider interests of the church were dealt with at the night meetings. Trinity church was well filled on each occasion. At the missionary meeting Rev. J. W. Tanner, D.D., told of an increasing wave of anticlericalism in Quebec and of need of increased missionary work in that province. Rev. Robert Laird, D.D., who was congratulated upon his election as president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, spoke of the mass movements to christianity in India. The Wesley bicentenary night brought to a climax the celebratoins that have been held in all our churches. In fact one heard of John Wesley's conversion many times each day. There is a wistful longing in the churches for a revvial of religion in our own time and in terms of modern need.

The young people's night was marked by the response of the 8 young men who were ordained to the ministry on Sunday last. Three of them came from Newfoundland and one from Western Canada. They were a fine group and their testimonies called forth deep sympathy from the older men.

The Men From Headquarters

There were several of the secretaries from Toronto. Rev. John Coburn, D.D, made a scathing attack upon modern gambling. Rev. Bruce Gray, a winsome and able young man, spoke of the heroism of our home missionaries. Dr. A. E. Armstrong told of the co-operation of the government with our schools in Trinidad. Dr. J. W. Woodside of Ottawa, though not in a departmental office, is one of our outstanding leader. He spoke to the ministers on the need of higher spiritual standard in the church, a greater reverence in worship, and a separation from the clamour of the streets. His address was one of the finest of the week. Dr. George Little of Toronto roused the conference in his forcible attack upon the growing liquor evil.

An Old Landmark

A pilgrimage was organized to the historical U.E.L. church at Hay Bay where a brief service was held. This church is the first Methodist place of worship in Upper Canada. It was built in 1972 on land donated by Paul Huff. For years the old building was almost in ruins but a few years ago it was restored through the efforts of interested people, Messrs. A. R. Davis, F. L. Hooper and Rev. A. J. Wilson. We heard again the thrilling story of Philip Embury and Barbara Heck Palatines from Ireland, who founded Methodism in the United States and in Canada.

A Criticism

The one defect of the conference was the lack of time to discuss important phases of the work of the church. We met in sessional committees and brought in reports which were passed. The conference however had little time to digest them, and less to discuss them. One missed the keen debates, the flashing wit, the ready retort of conference debates in Ireland. Probably the fact that the general council meets in September next prevented the conference from grappling with such questions as the settlement of ministers, methods of raising funds, the missionary work at home and abroad. Important central committees are already preparing to bring these vital issues before the council which alone has authority to deal with them.

The Outlook Of United Church

One heard repeatedly that the church was having a difficult time. There was a decrease in members received on profession of faith, in S.S. scholars, in gifts to the M. & M. Fund. Despite these serious facts the prevailing atmosphere was one of hope and good cheer. Archdeacon Dumbrille said that he was surprised at the cheerfulness of the assembly, in fact he characterised it "levity." The United church has ceased talking about its machinery, this is now almost as perfect as it can be. We face the modern world, and believed that we have the supreme remedy for human need. Faith, hope and love were the high lights of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Council Protests Subsidy Reduction

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, June 7.—The Manvers Council met on Tuesday, with all members present, the Reeve in the chair. The following communications: From the clerk of Cartwright Township, as to the purchase of gravel; from the Department of Municipal Affairs as to municipal subsidy; from theatre inspection branch as to license of Town Hall; from R. L. Newling, inquring if there was any land in the hands of the municipality fit for reforestation; from Department of Highways, requesting the expenditure on highways be curtailed to $5,750.

It was moved by Councillors Neals and Payne, that the clerk be instructed to write the resident engineer and C. G. Mercer, asking them to protest the reduction of the Provincial subsidy on highways expenditure as this township has made certain committments and had always estimated expenditure of their roads.

Moved by Councillors Heaslip and Payne, that the Reeve and Councillor Neals be a committee to inquire as to making a cistern near the Town Hall and report at the next meeting.

Held For Sabotage

TOULON, France, June 7—(AP)—A workman identified by police as an Italian was taken into custody today on suspicion of criminal sabotage in connection with the wrecking of a Paris express train. No one was hurt in the wreck, but the locomotive was derailed and tore up a half-mile of track before it could be stopped. Police said a switch had been blocked with a hammer.

A proposed survey of Australia will involve the triangulation of 3,000,000 square miles.

125 Beekeepers Hold Meeting At Bridgenorth

Beekeepers learned a new trick in the extraction of wax from honey, when they met more than a hundred strong at the home of W. J. Telford in Bridgenorth on Monday. They heard W. R. Agar of Brooklin, a well known commercial beekeeper, describe the operation of his "solar wax extractor," a new and radical method of overcoming an old problem.

Mr. Agar's modern honey house is of two stories. The upper storey has a glass roof and the honey is placed beneath it, in a resultant extreme heat, which allows the honey to escape from the wax. Customary way to obtain honey is to press it from the wax, in much the same fashion juice is extracted from apples.

Monday's field day saw 125 beekeepers gather at Bridgenorth, representing the Ontario Beekeepers' Association in York, Ontario, Victoria, Haliburton, Peterborough, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, and Lennox and Addington counties. Representatives present travelled from as far west as Hillsburg in Dufferin county, as far east as Napanee. Only rainy weather prevented several hundred more from attending, officials said.

Dr. E. J. Dyce, provincial apiarist associated with the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, addressed the meeting on the benefits of the Beekeepers' association and apiary insurance. He outlined both the short course and the four years' course in beekeeping offered by O.A.C.

J. L. Byer of Markham, who operates one of the large apiaries in this province, described the proper methods of managing an apiary up to the time of the main honey crop.

W. R. Agar of Brooklin described his solar wax extractor's operation, discussed swarm control and extraction of honey. Other speakers included G. L. Jarvis of Bethany, chief apiary inspector of Peterborough, Victoria and Durham counties; B. O. Lott of Holloway, senior inspector for Hastings, Northumberland and Prince Edward counties; Frank Paterson, Peterborough Agricultural Representative; J. Fair, Hastings Agricultural Representative. The meeting lasted from ten o'clock in the morning until four in the afternoon. T. H. Shield of the Ontario Honey Producers' Co-Operative in Toronto, acted as chairman. At the meeting were demonstrations of new appliances in beekeeping, including the new O.A.C. strainer. G. L. Jarvis, W. J. Telford, and Allan Brown were the committee in charge of the field day.

PALM OIL OLIVE OIL

PALMOLIVE

More than 3,000 years ago, slaves blended the tropical tree oils of Olive and Palm. This costly mixture, crude though it was, played a most important part in the toilet of beautiful women. They knew it soothed their skin, kept it soft, clean . . . smooth and lovely.

For 3,000 years nothing has been discovered that is finer, gentler, more soothing for your skin than these wonderful oils of the Orient.

And today, with the most careful scientific methods, these same precious, natural oils are blended into Palmolive Soap.

Palmolive's purity; its safe, gentle, penetrating lather; and its natural, delicate colouring, are due only to the secret blending of these two age-old beauty aids.

So, knowing what Palmolive is made with, you can use it safely, without fear, for your own delicate skin. Truly, Palmolive will keep in your complexion that soft, lovely youthfulness. In 72 countries of the world, more women use Palmolive than any other toilet soap.

New Improved

"I'm thrilled with the New Improved Palmolive," says MRS. C. BEAIRSTO, lovely Winnipeg socialite.

"Of course I'd used Palmolive before, but not regularly. From now on though, Palmolive is the only soap for my skin. It's so much milder. My daily beauty treatment with the new improved Palmolive is really a thrill, especially since the new perfume is so lovely. I've noticed too, that the new Palmolive is harder. So it's thrifty to use."

Gerhard Case Under Ottawa Eye

Reports On German Ban Citizenship Bennett Asserts

OTTAWA, June 8 (C.P.).—State Secretary Rinfret told the House of Commons yesterday his Department was investigating the status of Karl Gerhard, a German holding a Canadian naturalization certificate, and of whom Opposition Leader Bennett has asked several questions in the House recently. Mr. Bennett again brought up the question of Gerhard's naturalization yesterday, and urged the Secretary of State to have a commission set up to examine Gerhard's status. He had reports which, if true, should mean immediate cancellation of the naturalization certificate.

"I do think that for this man to have a naturalization certificate does violence to my understanding of the obligations of citizenship," Mr. Bennett said. "The outstanding certificate of naturalization issued to this man should be cancelled without delay if the evidence is in accordance with my information."

Mr. Rinfret said there were reports of two Gerhards, one Karl R. and the other Emil K., and it was not clear to what extent the questions raised in the House were confusing these two men. An investigation was being made, and Mr. Rinfret said he would like to study reports Mr. Bennett had received and upon which he had based his questions.

(Last Wednesday in the Commons Mr. Rinfret told Mr. Bennett that Karl Rudolph Gerhard of Montreal received his Canadian naturalization papers on November 16, 1937, but "there is no record of the naturalization in Canada of any person bearing the name of Emil Karl Gerhardt.")

Gerhards Side.

MONTREAL, June 8 (C.P.).—Karl Rudolph Gerhard said last night in a written statement that when necessary he would give "ample evidence" he was entitled to Canadian citizenship papers. Gerhard, a naturalized German, was replying to a demand by Opposition Leader Bennett in the House of Commons today for appointment of a commission to examine his status.

"I have no idea on what kind of information Mr. Bennett demands an investigation regarding my naturalization. He ought to know by now, from my own denial and those of the German officials in Ottawa and Montreal, as well as the information given to him by Hon. Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State, that I have nothing to do with Anticosti—and never had—further, that I never left Canada since my naturalization in 1937 and that I am not identical with any Dr. Emil Gerhardt who is supposed to be a personal envoy of the Fuehrer.

"I fail to see any 'gross violation' of the Naturalization Act as far as my case is concerned. When necessary, I shall give ample evidence I am entitled to my Canadian citizenship papers."

Rock Kills Miner

SUDBURY, Ont., June 8 (CP)—Iver J. Fredrickson, 29, was killed in the Falconbridge Nickel Mines yesterday, it was learned here today, when struck by a 10-ton piece of rock on the 302-foot level of the mine, 18 miles from Sudbury. James Skillen, standing within a few feet of Fredrickson, was unhurt.

The men were "scaling" a smaller piece of rock in a stope when the 10-ton piece fell without warning. Fredrickson, struck a glancing blow, suffered a fractured skull.

Face drawn from lack of sleep and anxiety, James Bailey Cash is shown here in the first picture for which he posed since the kidnapping of his five-year-old son more than a week ago. Cash paid $10,000 ransom for the return of his son—return that has not yet been made.

Dome Refinery Looted Of $41,000

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Ont., June 8 (C.P.). — Gold valued at $41,000 was stolen when burglars broke into the refinery at the Dome Gold Mines near here during the night and escaped with 375 pounds of precipitates. The burglary was discovered when mine officials opened the refinery to-day.

The burglary was the largest in the history of this mining camp near Timmins. The burglars sawed through bars protecting windows of the refinery and made off with the precipitates without detection.

It was thought that because of the difficulty in getting the heavy load out of the Northern Ontario mining country the burglars would be forced to cache the gold and wait until an opportune time for its removal.

The burglary was discovered shortly after 4 a.m. when refinery officials found the steel bars on the windows sawn in two and the cache of gold gone from the spot where it had been placed during the latter stages of the refining process. It was believed a gang of men participated in the burglary.

Police officers from many parts of the mining district united in the search for the gold and the burglars. It was believed a car or truck had been used in removing the weighty metal. Entry for the burglars was easy after the protecting bars had been sawed. They only had to lift a window.

Doors of the building were locked at the time as the refinery staff was off duty. No one connected with the mine was known to have been near the precipitates since shortly after midnight.

Czechs Extending Conscription

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, June 8.—(AP).—Sources close to the government said today Czechoslovakia had decided to extend her army conscription period from two to three years.

The lengthened term of service will become effective October 1, they said, and will include recall to the colors for three months of those who completed their military duty October 1, 1937.

This extension would add a third contingent of 70,000 to 100,000 men to the two contingents which form the present standing army.

U.S. Protests Bombing In Canton

University Shaken As Casualties Mount To 8,000

WASHINGTON, June 8 (A.P.). — The United States Government protested to the Japanese Consul-General at Hong Kong to-day against the bombing by Japanese airplanes of the campus of the American-endowed Lingnan University at Canton.

The State Department said the protest was delivered to the Japanese official by Addison E. Southard, United States Consul - General at Hong Kong.

The Department said Southard cabled that three Japanese bombs fell on the western end of the campus at the edge of the athletic field 200 yards from houses occupied by Americans.

3,000 Slain.

CANTON, China, June 8.—(AP). —A big fire burned furiously tonight after Japanese aircraft in their third raid of the day dropped incendiary bombs on this terror-stricken city, where the air raid toll since May 28 is conservatively estimated at 3,000 dead and 5,000 wounded.

It was the 12th successive day of aid raids on Canton or its environs. To-night's raiders came at 10.30 p.m. (10.30 a.m. E.D.T.), apparently aiming at Canton's old power plant, the only one not yet put out of commission by bombs. They missed that target, but started a big fire within 400 yards of Shameen, Canton's International Settlement.

It was believed the raiders came from bases established by the Japanese navy on islands off the coast, near the Portuguese colony of Macao.

300,000 Jap Casualties.

SHANGHAI, June 8.—(AP). — Casualties in recent fighting in Central China have raised the Japanese total to well past 300,000 and the Chinese to more than 1,000,000 foreign military authorities estimated to-day.

These estimates, based on undisclosed sources of information, said Japanese had lost 32,000 killed between April 1 and May 22, including fighting about Taierhchwang, Suchow and Lini in Shantung province.

Eire Is Handed Back Her Treaty Ports

DUBLIN, June 8.— (CP).—Eire received her treaty ports back from the United Kingdom with no strings attached, Prime Minster Eamon De Valera told an election rally last night at Port Laoighse.

The allegation has been that the ports are to be fortified under British supervision.

"We got those ports without any commitment whatsoever," Mr .De Valera said. "We, or any other government coming after us, are free to do anything that is regarded in the national interests with these ports. The Dail (Parliament) will not be asked to spend any money until it is asked to do so on the basis of a general defence plan."

In a speech earlier in the evening at Tullamore, Mr. De Valera spoke again of his hopes of a unified Ireland.

"I can say to you," he said, "that I have far greater hope of seeking in my lifetime a united Ireland than I had in 1932.

"The task of getting the six counties (Northern Ireland) is now merely the task of converting the relatively small number of those claiming to be Irishmen to recognize that this island could be far happier and more prosperous and contented in a single state than divided as at present."

Election day is June 17.

Niagara Span Fight Taken To Senate

OTTAWA, June 8 (CP).—The contest between Ontario and the International Railways Company regarding the proposed new bridge at Niagara Falls was transferred from the House of Commons to the Senate today. The railways committee of the Upper House heard arguments but adjourned for lunch without reaching a decision on the bill.

Members heard R. S. Robertson, of Toronto, counsel for the company, declare the Ontario Government had no jurisdiction to build and operate bridges across international streams. The section of the bill which would transfer ownership from the company, which it is proposed to set up, to the province was consequently valueless, he argued.

Jurisdiction over such works lay solely with the Dominion, he contended. He also predicted that if the government-sponsored bridge was erected, instead of being in a position to be turned over toll-free in 15 years, as provided for, it would incur an annual deficit of approximately $65,000 a year.

Crowds Watch Officer Slay Wife and Home-Wrecker

Theatregoers Gasp As Vengeance Nips Lovers At Chicago Loop Rendezvous

CHICAGO, June 8 (AP).—Hundreds of theatregoers and pleasure seekers who thronged the Loop rialto last night witnessed the slaying of a policeman's wife and a man with whom she had just kept a rendezvous.

They stood horror stricken as a man fired four pistol shots at the couple seated in the front seat of a car at Randolph street and Wabash avenue.

Then scores fled in panic. Hundreds of others dashed to the scene from nearby streets, cafes and night clubs. Policeman William McCarthy arrived with drawn gun.

"Put your gun away," said a man near the car. "I'm a policeman, too. Here is my gun. Those people in the car are my wife and the man who wrecked our home."

The man, said policeman McCarthy, was John Lewe, 53, a policeman of 22 years' service. The victims were his wife, Phyllis Lewe, 40, whom he married 14 years ago, and Harry Johnson, 40, a motor technician.

Snake Bite Victim Puts Hope In Faith

HAMMOND, La., June 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Joe Rushing, 56-year-old mother of two children, insisted to-day that "faith" would overcome the poisonous effects of snake bite received on Sunday night at a religious sect meeting.

Writhing in pain on a plain iron bed in a small cottage here last night, her left hand and arm swollen twice normal size, Mrs. Rushing spurned medical treatment. Faith has cured her of other afflictions, she said, "and it will cure me again."

Her husband, a Crystal Springs, Miss., Sawmill operator, sat nearby swinging a black fan above his wife's perspiring face, and shared her confidence.

"She's coming back all right," he said, "because her faith is great." Other members of the sect stood around the bed, saying prayers for her recovery.

Rushing explained that his wife was bitten while she handled the snake, a three-foot water moccasin, during "the thrill and surprise part" of the Sunday night program. Another member of the band said the snake became "ill and mean" after biting Mrs. Rushing and was destroyed.

Joseph Ellis Put On Trial Robbery Count

Trial by jury of Joseph Ellis on an indictment of having robbed with violence Maurice McCarthy, in Louis street, Saturday night, May 14, was begun this mornin, in the sessions of the county court before Judge Sheldon L. Smoke.

The evidence by witnesses examined by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry reviewed the case as it was recently presented for the prosecution in Magistrate Langley's court. J. A. Fair was counsel for the accused. At Mr. Fair's request, Judge Smoke directed that the jury be taken to Louis street during the noon recess to see for themselves the locale of the alleged crime.

The first witness examined by Mr. McElderry was Thomas Lansfield, cleaner and dyer at Charlotte and Louis street.

"I was sitting in the back part of my shop with Joe Murphy," he said. "A boy came to the side door and as a result of what he said we went into Louis street. I saw a man lying on the west running board of an automobile."

Two men were coming up the street as I went back to the shop, as I was alone in the shop at the time.

Mr. Lansfield said the man on the runing board was Maurice McCarthy, and the men coming up the street were the Ellis brothers.

"I said to them, "there's a man in distress over there," and one of them said, "Lead us to him."

Witness identified the prisoner as one of the two men.

"They helped him off the car, took him about 50 feet to an alleyway. I saw the three of them running out of the lane, McCarthy following them. There was some yelling, but I didn't know what they said. A few minutes later the police car arrived."

Replying to Mr. Fair, witness said the incident he saw occurred about 8.30 on a Saturday night.

"What condition was this man in?"

"He tried to use his legs, but he

Judge S. Smoke Sets Up Record For Judiciary

Judge S. L. Smoke probably set up a record for the judiciary of the district Tuesday by presiding in two separate courts during the one afternoon.

His Honor opened the county criminal court and the general sessions of the peace here at 1 o'clock, addressed the grand jury, surveyed the panel of petit jurors, accepted proposals by counsel for the adjournment of several civil actions and then left for Lindsay where he was to open and adjourn the June court sessions for Victoria county. Returning to Peterborough about four o'clock, Judge Smoke received a true bill from the Grand Jury in the Crown's prosecution of Joseph Ellis on a charge of assaulting Maurice McCarthy on Louis Street May 14. His Honor thanked the Jury for their promptness, discharged them and adjourned the court until ten o'clock this morning. Included in his afternoon's duties was the hearing of two applications for admission to citizenship in Canada.

At the opening of the Court, Judge Smoke welcomed the Grand Jury of which Frank Merritt was chosen foreman, and congratulated them upon having been selected for the important duty assigned to them as members of the Grand Jury. Essentially they were to find out whether any persons were being detained in the jail. Persons committed for trial by the Magistrate had the right to be tried by a jury if they so desired, and it was the Grand Jury's duty to hear the evidence adduced by the Crown in

Turner Valley Oil To Move East

CALGARY, June 8 (CP).—Imperial Oil, Limited, is expected to accept within a week or 10 days about 3,000 barrels of Turner Valley crude daily for processing in its Sarnia refinery for consumption in Eastern Canada markets, J. J. Frawley, K.C., attorney for the Alberta Department of Lands and Mines, declared at a meeting of the Petroleum Producers' Association here last night.

F. A. Gaby, vice-president of British American Oil Company, Limited, while in the West last week, told him he thought Turner Valley now warranted movements of crude to the east, and that possibly his company would be in a position to take about 2,000 barrels daily at its main refinery in Toronto, Mr. Frawley stated.

King's Birthday Is Statutory Holiday

OTTAWA, June 8.—(CP).— Tomorrow is a statutory holiday in celebration of the King's birthday, though he was born on Dec. 14. At the office of the Secretary of State it was said the King expressed a wish the holiday be celebrated either on Dec. 14 or on some other day to be fixed by proclamation.

In England the birthday will be celebrated to-morrow and Canada followed this lead, the weather being more suitable for outdoor events in both Canada and England now than it would be in December.

Though the day has been proclaimed a statutory holiday, it will be work as usual for most Canadians. Bank and some other financial institutions will close, but most retail shops will be open.

British-Owned Spanish Port Bombed By Rebels, London Officials Aroused

Blasting Of Gandia Brings Halifax, Foreign Secretary From Holiday, Hint Franco Lost Control Of Fliers

LONDON, June 8 (CP-Havas).—Viscount Halifax returned to London unexpectedly today as tension mounted over the bombing of British shipping in Spain.

He went immediately to the foreign office as new reports of attacks on British property by Spanish insurgent aircraft were received. Parliament is adjourned for the Whitsuntide holidays and the foreign secretary's return had not been anticipated.

Indignation in the press grew, the Times (Independent) hinting at an international crisis "far graver than any which has yet come out of foreign intervention in Spain." Several newspapers expressed the opinion that General Franco no longer is able to control the foreign fliers in his army.

British Port Ripped Up

MADRID, June 8—(AP).—Spanish insurgent planes to-day bombed the British-owned port of Gandia, 36 miles south of Valencia, disabling a British dredger, destroying two warehouses and tearing up a railroad.

The harbor of Gandia, a small, modern port, is owned and operated by a British company. It is used exclusively for exporting Spanish agricultural produce and importing fertilizer.

The British manager of the port said damage was extensive but there were no casualties.

It was the first time Gandia, whose rooftops are covered with the British colors, had been raided.

Because of the frequency of air raids on Valencia, Gandia has been used for about two weeks as a port of call for British destroyers and cruisers in the Mediterranean.

Saskatchewan Voters Pour To Polls

REGINA, June 8 (CP)—Candidates ended their bid for ballots in the Saskatchewan general election campaign today and voters trooped to the polls to pick membership of the province's ninth legislative assembly. Election of six men at a Social Credit meeting at Melville featured election eve gatherings.

Balloting started at 9 a.m. (noon EDT) and will end at 5 p.m. (8 p.m. EDT) when deputy returning officers and their staffs will begin counting more than 400,000 ballots. Fair weather was promised by the weatherman for voters to select 50 members from a field of 156 candidates. Voting in two other ridings, Athabaska and Cumberland, is deferred to July 28.

Premier Patterson, head of the Liberal government, wound up his campaign with speeches at Windthorst and Kipling; George Williams, leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation opposition in the legislature, spoke in his home constituency of Wadena and J. G. Diefenbaker, Conservative leader, spoke in his Farm River riding.

It was left to Melville to take the spotlight. Premier Aberhart of Alberta, leader of the Western Canada Social Credit Association, wound up the Social Credit campaign with a meeting attended by 5,000 while a block away Hon. J. G Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture and former Saskatchewan premier, addressed a gathering of about 500.

Five of the six men ejected from the Aberhart meeting claimed to be spokesmen for Calgary unemployed who sent a delegation to Saskatchewan seeking return of the legislative committee appointed to investigate relief conditions in Alberta. A similar occurrence took place at Estevan Monday night.

Five Are Ushered Out

As Premier Aberhart started his speech, W. Robinson, vice-president of a Calgary unemployed association, attempted to address the meeting. Some one in the crowd immediately shouted "what about Calgary soup kitchens" and others cried "throw them out." One by one the five were ushered from the hall and later a sixth was ejected after raising questions about a candidate and unemployed in Medicine Hat, Alta.

The sixth asked a series of questions when the Alberta premier had concluded his speech. First of all, he wanted to know if F. J. Herman, Social Credit candidate in Melville, who once before ran on a C.C.F. ticket, would be bound to accept Social Credit principles or C.C.F.

"There are some points in the C.C.F. program which correspond with Social Credit and some which

Alberta Withdraws Privy Council Appeal

OTTAWA, June 8 (C.P.). — The Alberta Government has withdrawn its appeal to the Privy Council against the Supreme Court of Canada decision on disallowance and reservation, but the appeals against decisions of the Supreme Court finding three Alberta Acts unconstitutional will be continued.

Justice Minister Lapointe to-day issued the following statement:

"Our London agents advised me this morning that the legal representatives of the Government of Alberta have been instructed to withdraw the appeal to the Privy Council from the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada with regard to the powers of disallowance and reservation of Provincial legislation.

"The appeal of the Alberta Government from decisions holding certain statutes invalid and unconstitutional will proceed and be argued at an early sitting of the Privy Council."

Last Minute News Flashes

TORONTO.—Uniformed soldiers who attended a fascist meeting here Sunday addressed by Adrian Arcand of Montreal will be questioned by military authortiles, Col. O. S. Hollinrake, officer commanding the Royal Canadian Artillery unit here said today.

Mechanized Living Feared Menace To Britain

WILTON, England, June 8 (CP).—Machanized amusement, mechanized reading and mechanized thought, says Earl Baldwin, constitute a danger in Great Britain today.

The former Prime Minister, opening a community hall here, declared: "Our England has always been a country of individuals, of individual thought, of individual work, of individual minds, and I pray God it may always be so."

Modern transport had increased the influence of the town on the country. The same films were seen, the same newspapers read, in town and country.

"The danger of that," contended Lord Baldwin, "is getting a kind of standardized, suburban, mechanized mind, and it is, in our view as Englishmen, the improper use of these media that in many countries today has enforced upon the people a regimentation of thought which we believe is a great danger for the future."

Hoping the community hall would be a means of recreation and enlightenment, he warned: "Be yourselves of the old English countryside. Be your own performers for your own amusement. Be yourselves, think your own thoughts, act as you will, be individual, be independent."

MR. AND MRS. Robert W. Rollain, who have a child in every class in grade school, decided some time ago that, if another child was born it would be named "Enough." The birth of Evelyn Enough Rollain, the Rollain's eleventh child, was recorded in the Bureau of Vital Statistics yesterday.

Vanderbilt Weds

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, heir to a $20,000,000 fortune and a leading turfman of the United States, was married today to Miss Manuela Hudson, auburn-haired daughter of a San Francisco attorney.

The ceremony, culmination of a romance that began at Santa Anita race track last winter and continued through the meets at Pimlico and Belmont tracks, took place at the Sands Point, Long Island, estate of Mrs. Margaret Emerson, mother of the Vanderbilt heir.

European Farmers Hard Hit By Drought, Frosts, Pests

NEW YORK, June 8 (C.P.). — A drought "worse than any in 100 years," combined with unseasonable frosts, insect pests, and plant and domestic animal diseases, has created a "very alarming" agricultural situation in Europe, Howard D. Salins of Chicago, managing director of the Flax and Fibre Institute of America, said to-day.

He returned on Monday from a two-month trip abroad during which he made an agricultural survey for the institute.

Salins said in an interview the European farming picture had become so "amazing" in the last two months that if the United States had the agricultural products to send abroad "our farmers would be on a high plane of prosperity."

"In Europe, and that takes in practically every county in Europe, including Great Britain, they have been faced with a drought worse than any in 100 years," he said. "There isn't a country that hasn't been hit quite hard."

The drought began in March and was almost continuous until the middle of May, he said, and there were frosts into May, nipping wheat crops that had pushed above ground. He also said farm animals had suffered serious epidemics of hoof and mouth disease.

"Italy agriculturally is in a deplorable condition," he said. "Russia has been hit. Germany has had not only drought, but such heat that fires have burned crops. The potato crop in Ireland has been ruined."

Unemployment List Shows Rise Across Britain

London, June 8 (CP Cable)

LATEST unemployment figures issued last night showed a rise of 31,041 in a month and 382,000 compared with a year ago.

Unemployed at May 16 totalled 1,778,805 with the increase marked in coal and cotton industries. The Labor Ministry attributed it partly to registration of juveniles who reached school-leaving age at Easter.

Employed persons totalled 11,375,000, 15,000 below the previous month.

Federal Rule Dictated By Provinces

Bennett In Charges Points To B.C., Raps King's Absence

OTTAWA, June 8 (CP).—Federal government in Canada is now being dictated by the provinces and Dominion authority is being flouted in Vancouver, in the opinion of Opposition Leader Bennett.

He told the House of Commons last night that "Federal power in Vancouver is a joke and it is held up to the eyes of all the world that the Dominion's own property cannot be safeguarded by the Canadian people." It was an obvious reference to occupation of the post office in Vancouver by unemployed.

"You come to the Province of Alberta," he went on, "and find that province is now conducting the affairs of the nation. There is no national government. It is just what each province says."

Political recriminations and crossfire erupted throughout debates yesterday but good progress was made. Amendments to the Indian Act and the much-discussed transport commission bill were adopted and sent to the Senate.

A clash came when Mr. Bennett was urging the government to use the dumping duty to protect the Canadian market for oil production in Turner Valley.

When reminded by a Liberal member that he had promised in 1930 to end unemployment or perish in the attempt, Mr. Bennett retorted his administration had perished and the present administration would meet the same fate. He then suggested the present government was being led by the provinces.

During a discussion of the progress being made by the House, Justice Minister Lapointe remarked the government had been busy listening to speeches.

"King Poor Attender."

"Well, they have been poor listeners," Mr. Bennett replied. "For the Prime Minister had not been in this House an average of an hour and a half a day since the session opened."

Mr Lapointe said this was not fair, that the Prime Minister was tired and had not been well for a few days. "We did not do the same appeared to be pretty helpless. I never saw the Ellis brothers before."

Joseph Murphy, machinist, testified that he was in Lansfield's shop the night of the Ellis affair, talking to the proprietor.

His evidence substantiated Mr. Lansfield's.

"One of the Ellis brothers said to McCarthy, "I thought you wanted us to buy a car." They went into a lane behind Cherney's, came out, and went into another lane about fifty feet further on. It wasn't long before the three of them came running out. I thought McCarthy was running after them. He was shouting. It sounded like, "hold them."

James O'Donnell, 14, Louis street, said he knew the prisoner, having seen him previously at a house in Louis street. Witness was the boy who called Mr. Lansfield's attention to McCarthy lying on the running board of an automobile.

"The Ellis brothers got hold of McCarthy, one on each side of him. They went into Cherney's lane, came out and went into another lane. The next I saw was Joseph Ellis coming out of the lane. McCarthy was shouting: "Police; stop them; they're thieves." Then the police car came."

Maurice McCarthy said he had been working at the Canadian Nepheline Mine and on Saturday, May 14, he had $52 and some cents. He had a room at the Montgomery Hotel, went out in the afternoon and bought two bottles of rye whiskey. Three friends called on him, stayed till about 7 p.m. and the rye was consumed.

"I washed and shaved and decided to go out for some fresh air," Mr. McCarthy said. "I had four ten-dollar bills in my right hip pocket and one ten dollar bill, a dollar bill and silver in a front pocket. When I got down to Louis street I felt the effect of the liquor, and sat down on the running board of a car. Two men came along and lifted me by the arms. They took me down Louis street. I didn't want to go with them. One of them was the prisoner. I felt a hand in my right front pocket. I caught hold of the wrist and someone hit me a blow on the back of my head. It was one of the two men. The blow knocked me down. I got on my feet, and saw one of the men on the street. I started to pursue him and he came toward me. He struck me three times, twice on the face, and knocked me down. It was the man in the prisoner's box who hit me. Two of the blows were over my eye. My face was very painful and I felt blood on it."

Money Was Missing.

McCarthy said the police arrived in Louis street and he was taken to the police station, where he was given first aid treatment and found that his $52 was gone.

To Mr. Fair, witness said he wasn't sober when he reached Louis street.

"What were you?"

"I was under the effects of alcohol."

McCarthy asserted that he could remember having adjusted his watch to make it tighter on his wrist as he walked with the two men on Louis street.

Mr. Fair: You didn't know whose hand was in your pocket?

Mr. McCarthy: No

"Nor who hit you on the head?"

"No."

Witness said the blow on the head "brightened" him up quite a bit.

"Did you ever see your money afterwards?"

"No, sir."

"And you don't know who hit you in the first lane,—if you were hit?"

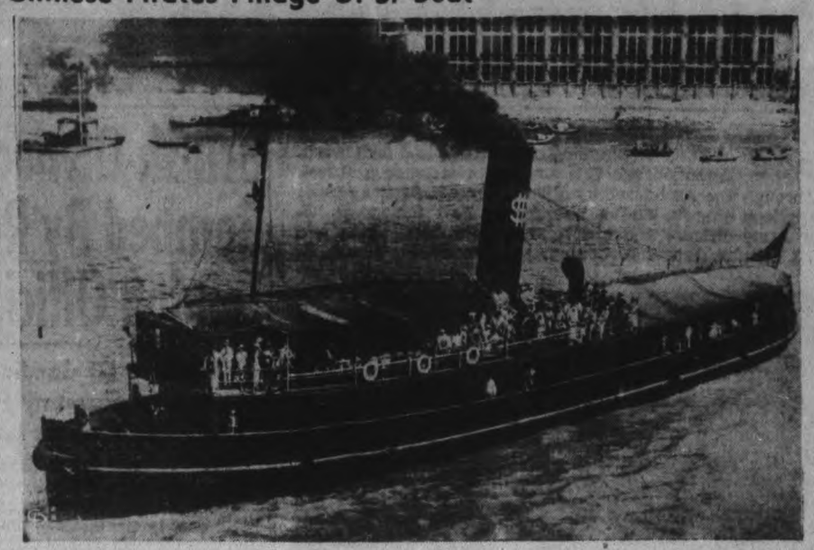
"If I were hit?——I was hit, Mr. Fair."

William Clarke, Louis street, said he was in the bathroom when he heard a commotion in the street. "I saw the two Ellis brothers. Joseph was at the entrance of a lane, and Gordon was south on the street.

I saw another man, McCarthy, close to Joseph Ellis. I saw Joe strike McCarthy on the head two or three times. McCarthy fell down and Joe started to run south on Louis street.

McCarthy was yelling, "hold them," as he ran after them. Joe Ellis struck McCarthy again. I started down the street. When I got there, the Ellis brothers were gone, and two fellows were holding up McCarthy."

Chinese Pirates Pillage U. S. Boat



En route from lower Yangtse river ports to Shanghai and flying the American flag, the S.S. Dollar, ABOVE, ocean-going tender of the Dollar Steamship line, was attacked and taken over by Chinese pirates. The pirates boarded the vessel disguised as passengers and when the tender reached a spot where several junks were waiting they produced pistols, overpowered the crew and passengers, and took command. The passengers, all natives, were robbed of their money and 1,000 bags of rice were transferred to the waiting junks.

Ottawa Checks On R.C.A. "Fascists"

OTTAWA, June 8 (CP)—Defence Minister Mackenzie announced last night Col. O. S. Hollinrake, officer commanding the Royal Canadian Artillery, had been asked for a report on the conduct of five men who attended a Toronto Fascist meeting in uniform last night and gave the Fascist salute.

Mr. Mackenzie said the matter of an investigation had not been considered. He would add nothing more than that the report would be studied when it was received.

His Honor reported to the Jury that his associates of the Bench, Judge McGibbon of Lindsay and Judge O'Connor of Cobourg were both ill.

"Judge O'Connor has been quite seriously ill, but I learned today that he is much improved. I am sure you will join with me in wishing them speedy recovery," Judge Smoke said. "I felt that I should refer again to the increasing number of automobile accidents. Fortunately few or none have been of a serious character that would result in criminal cases for local trial. A great deal could be done to avoid accidents if each of us would do his part in exercising reasonable care when driving on the highways."

Judge Smoke told the Grand Jury that if they wished they could make an inspection of public buildings and institutions, but he suggested to them that at the time of the December sessions and at the assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario this duty had been thoroughly performed, and they need not undertake the same round. In discharging later in the afternoon, His Honor thanked the Jury for the speed with which they had dealt with the only case on the criminal docket, and reminded them that in their attendance and function they were effectively serving their country and their King.

22 Are Confirmed Apsley Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, June 8.—The Right Rev. A. R. Beverley, D.D., Suffragan Bishop of Toronto, visited Apsley on Monday to conduct a service of confirmation at St. George's Church in the evening, when twenty-two young people, eleven of each sex, received the laying on of hands. The capacity of the church was taxed to its utmost, not being large enough to accommodate the congregation who had come from all four stations of the parish. Many had to stand in the aisle and vestibule during the service. The Bishop was assisted in the service by the rector, the Rev. F. C. McMulkin, and Rural Dean Moore of Young's Point. The Rev. R. M. McMullin, minister of the United Church, occupied a seat in the chancel, and children of the local schools composed the choir for the occasion.

Prior to the service a congregational supper was served in the Parish Hall by the Women's Guild, supplies for which were provided by local residents, whose co-operation in this respect was deeply appreciated by the Rector and his helpers. The function was in the nature of an informal reception for His Lordship and Mrs. Beverley. More than one hundred and fifty persons availed themselves of the opportunity, and the ladies had a busy time for two hours tending the tables, which had to be set second time to cope with the situation.

Extra Relief

LONDON, Ont., June 8.—(CP)—Kept out of school because their parents, on relief, said they had nothing to eat in the house, seven children will go back to classes tomorrow after they are given a supplementary relief allowance. The seven are members of a family of 10 children.

Some details of the case had been given to trustees of the board two weeks ago when the father of the family said that a cut in his relief allowance would not permit his children to be properly nourished. It was then intimated that some action might be taken.

Charts Predict Open Scramble In U.S. Golf

DENVER, Colo., June 8 (AP)—A classy field of professional golfers, plus a sprinkling of fairly solid contenders from the amateur ranks, fired final practice shots today in the warm-up for the 1938 United States open championship.

The big show gets underway tomorrow. On the basis of practice spins and form-charts, it shaped up as a wide open scramble, with the seasoned campaigners apparently holding no great advantages over a contingent of lesser lights. Only three places remained to be filled, by alternates, to bring the starting field up to maximum of 170.

Fairways of the Cherry Hills course were a patchwork of divots which only bore mute testimony to the fact the par 35-36—71 layout is considerably tougher than it looks on the surface.

A Fair Test

Its 6,826 yards spread out over narrow fairways, fringed by some ball-snaring water hazards, and terminating in postage-stamp-size greens. Despite much "squawking" over the extent of the rough and furrowing of sand traps, most pros rated Cherry Hills a "fair test."

Betting books listed Ralph Guldahl, Snead and Harry Cooper, Canadian open champion, all at 8 to 1. A poll of players also revealed sentiment for the chances of Paul Runyan, Tony Penna, Horton Smith, Metx, Pickard, Tony Manero, 1936 title winner, and John Revolta.

Car Falls 90 Feet 3 Youths Shaken

HAMILTON, Ont., June 8 (C.P.). —Three youths were treated in the emergency ward of Hamilton General Hospital to-day for injuries suffered in the 90-foot plunge of an automobile from Hamilton Mountain, then left the hospital shortly before police arrived to investigate the accident.

The three, who gave their names as Jack Young 22, Ralph Gravelle 22, and Charles Cox 19, were picked up a short distance from the hospital as they were walking to their homes and were taken to police station for questioning. They were released after assuring officers the wrecked car had been loaned to them by its owner.

Ralph Smith of Arthur, Ont., reported to police his motor car, which he said he had left in care of two friends with instructions to put it into a parking lot last night, had been wrecked on the Mountain. Police found the car a mass of wreckage at a point 100 yards west of Gage Avenue. There is a 90-foot drop at that point. No road is nearby.

Young suffered a fractured rib, Gravelle received back injuries, and Cox was cut and bruised. It was believed the youths taxied from the scene of the wreck to the hospital.

Chain Gang Fugitive Is Sued By Brother

NEW YORK, June 8 (C.P.).—Rev. Vincent G. Burns, former pastor of the Union Church of Palisade, at Fort Lee, N.J., filed suit for $4,950 in Supreme Court yesterday against his brother, Robert Elliott Burns, whose story was told in the book, "I Am a Fugitive from a Georgia Chain Gang."

Although the book was signed by Robert Elliott Burns, Rev. Burns alleges he wrote it from his brother's notes and was to receive half the proceeds. Also, he alleges, he rewrote the story between its magazine and book publications and arranged for the sale of the motion picture version. On the basis of the 50-50 agreement, Rev. Burns asks $3,475 plus $1,475 for "moneys expended in defendant's behalf."

Robert Elliott Burns, the brother's affidavit states, was sentenced to a Georgia chain gang in February, 1922, and escaped from it that June. He was not heard from until May, 1929, when he telegraphed from Chicago to his brother in New Jersey for aid.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, June 8 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures drifted lower to-day on selling prompted by forecast of showers in Western Canada, lack of demand and easier Chicago prices. At the colse of the drab pre-holiday session values were ⅞ to ½ cent lower, July $1.00¾, October 78⅝ to 79, and December 77 to 77¼ cents.

Selling credited to Eastern and Southern interests proved sufficient to push prices under yesterday's close in the final minutes.

Despite overseas buying, estimated at 250,000 bushel, mostly old-crop top-grade wheat, and a good Italian and United Kingdom demand today, Winnipeg brokers were inclined to follow Chicago.

Yesterday's Quotations.

Anglican W.A. Social Proves Huge Success

Five new members were received into the Orange Order at the regular meeting of L.O.L. No. 41, held in the lodge rooms on Monday evening. Orangemen from Reaboro, Peterborough and Nassau Lodges were present for the occasion when the degree team of Reaboro Lodge conducted the initiation ceremonies. The five candidates were Bob McAdam, George Tully, Foster Eggleston, Arthur Boate and Melville Bannon.

At the conclusion of the business period a social hour was spent, when refreshments were serveed to the visiting brethren by members of L.O.L. ..o. 41.

The annual "Birthday Party" of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican church held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McConnell, proved to be one of the outstanding gatherings of the organization. More than seventy-five signed the pretty "Birthday book" and enjoyed the afternoon's program.

Rev. J. H. Johnston, rector of the church, acted as chairman and in his opening remarks said "last year was the first gathering I was present at as your rector and I have looked forward with anticipation and pleasure to this afternoon"

The first number was a delightful Hawaiian duet by Misses Toots Dobson and Muriel Pellow, pupils of Miss Dorothy Rowland. As an encore they played and sang "When the Mighty Organ Played Oh Promise Me."

Main Address

The main address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. (Rev.) Howard, of Bobcaygeon, who with her husband was a former missionary among the Indians at Rupert's House, James Bay.

Mrs. Howard said in part "I am very happy to be with you this afternoon—in fact I have been coming so often I feel quite at home. I have been asked to tell of our work in the far north. Before my marriage my whole desire was to go to the lepers in China, and it seems strange that the place I used to like to draw at school was James Bay and Hudson Bay, and the place I first went to was Rupert's House on James Bay. Moosonee, of which you have heard a great deal, is 170 miles farther north. It requires 2 months to make the trip from Montreal, around the coast of Labrador. The last forty-five miles were made by sail boat, from Charlton Island as far as the liner "Nascopie" can go inland. That was the only time we were sick, and the weather was bitterly cold, even though it was September. There were about 200 Indians on the shore to welcome the missionary and his wife.' I was greatly impressed with the Mission house and especially the almost snow-white floors. What impressed me most was the little portable organ, and although I was sick and dizzy, I sat down and played "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow', after our treacherous trip. That was Friday and the first thing we did was go to the Hudson's Bay store for supplies. To tide us over until Monday, when I intended to make bread. The storekeeper offered us half a loaf, which when we got our bill we found we had been charged 50 cents for."

Mrs. Howard told of her experiences in making bread and later said, "it was eatable, but you wouldn't offer it to your friends.

Later she said "Most of our medical work was accomplished through prayer. Here we depend on so many material things while in the far north we depend wholly on God. Let me leave this final message with you. 'always be earnest in your prayers for your missionaries. prayer is the only thing that keeps them going, so please remember God's servants in your prayers."

Mrs. Hubert Lowes contributed a splendid monologue "Mrs. Kelly at the Seance," followed by two little sisters, Marguerite and Jean Dunlop who sang a duet. The Misses Pellow and Dobson contributed two more Hawaiian numbers. Rev. Mr. Johnson thanked those who attended the gahering and also those who contributed to a really splendid program, also to Mrs. McConnell for the use of her home.

At the conclusion of the program a bountiful supper was served by the ladies, concluding a very inspirational as well as social afternoon.

Canine Impounded After 25 Years

Hastings, June 8.

THE FIRST TIME in at least 25 years a dog was put in pound here yesterday. E. Braithwaite, Percy township complained, a dog, said to be owned by Fred Turner, had torn up his garden. The dog was impounded. The debate arose whether the dog could be kept here due to the complainant residing in Percy. Last night, all charges were dropped and "Buddy" departed for home.

HASTINGS

Constable Takes Charge of Lights

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, June 8.—E. M. Hess, linesman, was instructed by the Hastings Hydro Commission to exercise his authority in dealing with delinquent accounts at the monthly meeting Monday evening. All members were present and Dr. W. E. Wilson was in the chair.

W. Fowlds applied for a three wire service to a new cottage on Homewood Ave. Owing to the fact that necessary materials are not on hand, he will be instructed that a temporary two wire service could be arranged for two or three weeks.

On motion of Reeve L. E. Kelly and H. G. Fairman, Earnest Scriver will be refunded a $4.00 deposit.

Moved by Kelly and seconded by Fairman that accounts as read be paid and remaining accounts on two rural lines be checked by Dr. Wilson and T. A. Coughlan and paid.

A discussion took place regarding a man to take charge of switching on and off the colored lights on Front and Bridge streets. It was decided to instruct Constable William Wellman to turn the lights on and off commencing immediately.

The commission seemed of the opinion that an accurate check was not kept on freight coming in. In future the linesman will receive and sign freight slips.

Millbrook Couple 50 Years Married

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, June 7.—Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Stanton left on Saturday morning to visit their son, Mr. Frank Stanton, and his wife and family, for the next few weeks, at Mount Royal, Quebec. On Monday, May 30, Mr. and Mrs. Stanton quietly observed their golden wedding anniversary, their marriage having taken place fifty years ago, in 1888, at the home of the bride's parents in Owen Sound.

There was no special celebration of the anniversary occasion, the trip to Quebec taking the place of any more formal recognition, neither Mr. or Mrs. Stanton being in very robust health. With the exception of a short time in the States, and eight years in Toronto, all of their married life has been spent in Millbrook, or its immediate vicinity where they have always been held in high esteem as good citizens, neighbors and friends.

After leaving the farm homestead, just north of the village, took up store-keeping first in Millbrook, and then in Toronto; when he sold out his business, a few years ago, they decided to return to Millbrook, where they have been living quietly retired ever since.

Their elder son, Mr. Charles Stanton, lives in Peterborough, and the younger, Mr. Frank Stanton, in Mount Royal, Quebec; the latter served overseas during the World War.

A Wily Spouse

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP).—Anthony Lesich, 40-year-old baker, held on a complaint that he paid a shoe repair bill with stage money, made a quick exit from a detention cell yesterday, thanks to the ingenuity of his wife. She obtained permission to visit him behind the bars and took along their 17-day-old baby. Then—

"Where my husband goes, I go," she said. "We all go together, even baby." She refused to budge. Magistrate August Dreyer promptly reduced bail from $500 to $25—and Lesich paid up, but not with stage money.

Four Teachers Resigning From City Staff

The Board of Education received notice of the resignation of four of their teaching staff, three of them from public schools, at their meeting on Tuesday evening. And Dr. G. R. Scott, chairman, read letters of application from eight other teachers.

Resignations were received from Miss Sybil S. Kendall, director of household arts and a teacher at the Collegiate for the past 12 years; Tom Allen, teacher at the Prince of Wales School for four years, who leaves his post at the end of the term to study at Oxford University for a year or more; Miss Jean Kelly, of the Queen Alexandra teaching staff, and a teacher here for the past 10 years; Miss Helen Throop, teacher at the Queen Mary School for the past 3 years.

The property committee investigated a complaint and the suspicion of a charge that the Board of Education was not receiving full value for the money it spent in electrical wiring, H. G. Walker, committee chairman, said in a guarded account.

Mr. Walker said his committee had received a complaint that specifications in tenders for wiring submitted to the board, did not have to be made specific enough. The same letter reached other board members. "The insinuation was that the board has not been getting value for the money they have been spending," Mr. Walker said. A thorough investigation satisfied the committee that such was not the case and that the board had received as much value last year as in previous years. "In view of that finding we awarded the contract as we did," he said. The contract went to Miller-Powell Company.

In reply to a question by Dr. G. R. Scott, Mr. Walker said his committee had not deemed the complaint worthy of answer and that none had been made.

No Action Taken.

The pre-school medical examination, urged each year by the Home and School Associations, whose urgent supporter on the Board of Education is Mrs. W. R. Morris, was shelved for another year when it came before the board. After lengthy discussion, during which Mrs. Morris pointed out that the contemplated examination would be made in June and that children with ailments would be referred to their own physicians for treatment, the board decided it was too late this year to attempt the plan. D. G. H. Melton moved that some such plan be recommended for next year, and Mrs. Morris seconded.

Children are examined on their entry to school, but frequently the school year is well advanced before the physician gets around to visiting them, so many children has he under his care, Inspector K. S. Wightman told the board. He said that in each school there are about 40 beginners yearly. The Home and School Association plan would have the examination made in June and give youngsters until September to have tonsils and adenoids removed and other ailments attended to.

Bombers Kill 40 In Figueras

BARCELONA, June 8 (CP-Havas)—At least 40 persons were killed and 60 injured today when Insurgent aircraft bombed the town of Figueras, in Gerona province about 20 miles south of the French border.

The attack occurred at 9.30 a.m. Figueras is astride the railway linking Barcelona with France.

Bombs apparently aimed at the railway hit a hospital, the city hall and other buildings in the heart of the city. Figueras officials telephoned Perpignan that many of the seriously wounded could not be cared for there and asked permission to send them to Perpignan for emergency treatment.

Spanish government anti-aircraft batteries opened fire on the raiders but the planes apparently escaped damage.

Turkey will shortly complete its railway from the Iraq border to Diyarbekir.

Industrious

Rather than remain unemployed in Toronto Leonard Jesseman, aged 17 years, has for two consecutive years wheeled from Toronto to Hastings, where he has obtained work on a farm. He appears in the picture after he has completed his trip making it in less than 8 hours. A year ago he made the trip in 7½ hours. Since the age of 13 he has practically earned his own living. When of school age he and a younger brother, Eddie, camped on the shores of the Trent opposite Plant's Foundry. They hired out to farmers for 25 cents a day for all the summer vacation. For the past three years both boys have been employed on farms for the summer. Leonard works as a delivery boy in Toronto during the winter.

Softball Games During Carnival

There will be entertainment for citizens who want to go early to the Rotary carnival on Thursday and Friday nights, for on both evenings there will be girls' softball games that should prove full of interest for the early arrivals.

Thursday night Lindsay and the Westclox girls will clash and on Friday night there will be a battle between Keene and the C.G.E. lassies.

Everything will be in readiness for the first night of the carnival Thursday. The merry-go-round and ferris wheel that provide so much fun for the children are already here, lights will be strug up in ample time, the booths and games will be all set for action and with good weather the first night of the big event should go over with a bang.

It should not be forgotten that seven fine prizes including a radio, will be drawn for Thursday night, the draw taking place around 11 o'clock with Mayor Hamilton doing the honors.

Rotary's work for crippled children is now so well known that it is scarcely necessary to do more than mention that all the money raised by this annual carnival goes into the social service activities of the organization and that this year there is more than the usual need for funds, in view of heavy expenditures in the past and the desirability of extending the work for crippled children.

Missionary Killed

TORONTO, June 7 (C.P.).—Miss Mary Lowe, 26, Fort William, was killed yesterday afternoon in the Canary Islands when an automobile hit a wagon in which she was riding, according to a cable received by the Sudan Interior Mission, Toronto office.

Miss Lowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Lowe of Fort William, was en route to Nigeria in French West Africa, where she was going to be a nurse and missionary for the Sudan Interior Mission.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Why is it that we entertain the belief that for every purpose odd numbers are the most effectual?"
—Pliny the Elder.

Dear Friends:

This is an article requested by "Curious" and I hope it will satisfy her. In our bodies we have many pairs, two eyes, two hands, two lips, two ears, two feet, two lungs, two kidneys, all the rest are ones. (As far as I know.)

But, there were twelve disciples, who with our Lord made thirteen, and one betraying Him, made that number seem unlucky. Then there are the Trinity, the three wise men, two thieves with our Lord made three who died that day on the cross.

Marriage joins two, then the family make three, for no matter how many there be in a family, it still counts as one more. We have morning, noon and night, three meals a day, sun moon and stars, and last but not least, two is company and three is a crowd.

Who has not felt the embarrassment when three get together, for two will talk about something they both know, while the other feels odd man out. But there is no doubt that numbers, both even and uneven have a certain significance.

Wendell Phillips tells us "One on God's side is a majority." In other words, if you have God on your side, you can defy the world. But some times we cannot feel whether God is on our side or not. So many things to confuse us.

And getting back to numbers, if we have someone who loves us we do not feel so alone. Someone to understand us, we are better able to face the world. Someone who sees eye to eye with us, life is more pleasant, someone against us, how far down it will get us.

If we are alone in the house at night, we hear every creak and groan it makes, we are uneasy at each little sound, but if there is another with us our fears are stilled. Yet, in ourselves how alone we are from the day we are born.

If two go ajourneying, the way is pleasanter, this one sees this and the other sees that so that there is always pleasant conversation, but when we travel alone the way is long and wearisome. Yet someone said "he travels the faster who travels alone."

If two are studying the same thing, each can help the other, as each sees things from a different angle and so they reach conclusions sooner. When we have had a family and then we are alone, how tasteless life becomes, how long the days and how dark the nights.

Humanity needs humanity, to enjoy, to sympathize, to understand to help. Many have tried to walk alone, but they became queer, their mentality could not stand up against it, so do not isolate yourself too much from other people.

A leader needs followers if he is to accomplish anything. Readers need newspapers, newspapers need readers. Customers need stores, and stores need customers. Farmers need city people, and city people need farmers. In short we all need one another.

One person resenting things may not do much to alter them, but two or three can do a lot. We need the law to protect us, and the law needs us to stand behind them and to pay them. We need governments, and governments need us.

And so, all through life numbers play an important part. Our Lord had He isolated himself could not have done as much good, but when He made Himself accessable to the throng, He showed us the way to help one another, to understand God our Father better, to ask for what we need.

So, let the hours and the days, the weeks and the years all join in making your life happier.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

WASHINGTON, June 8—(AP).—The American Federation of Labor has gone in for radio drama. The recordings will be put on the air once a month for 15 minute periods.

Dublin wants its own grand opera.

IT WAS a big day in Essex Centre. Pete Picobac had come home after all these years—come home to be married to his childhood sweetheart! A wedding in the Picobac family at last!

Some boy, that Pete.

"Son," said Mr. Picobac, when it was all over and the bride had gone up to change her dress, "you listen to me."

With a beaming smile, the fond father—relaxed from further ceremony, with his rented silk hat pushed back on his head—filled his pipe with Picobac and confronted his only boy.

"From now on," said he, "you'll have a new boss. You'll find that women are women, the world over. They insist on the last word. Let 'em have it, boy; let 'em have it. When you have to grin and bear it, Picobac will help you smile. Smoke Picobac and you'll weather every storm. Last words! Huh! What do last words count when you can fill your pipe with Picobac burley and take a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke."

"O.K., Dad," said Pete. "I get you."

Means a Good Deal To Him

Automobile accidents are so common that we pay little attention to them unless some one is killed. If they occur in our own district people are interested, but the average smash-up where no one is killed is now accepted as routine.

Some of these cases are worth considering. For instance we take one which happened near Ridgetown. Ralph Kaiser was driving along the highway near there when it is suspected he dozed off for a few minutes and ran into a tree.

Who is Ralph Kaiser? His home is in Los Angeles, which is a long distance from Ridgetown. He had been in Detroit where he purchased a new car and it was this new car he drove into a tree and wrecked it.

Kaiser was unconscious for some time and they took him to the hospital at Chatham, where doctors found a broken arm, serious cuts and shock. So Ralph Kaiser is in a hospital, his car is wrecked, and he is several thousand miles from home. So this car accident involving but one man means a good deal to Ralph Kaiser.

Borrowed This Money

In the year 1908 the province of Alberta decided to go into the telephone business on a public ownership basis, and arrangements were made to purchase the Bell Telephone property in that province. Alberta had no money to pay cash for the business and so debentures were issued to the extent of $2,000,000. There is nothing mysterious about issuing debentures; it means that the government needed the money and the debentures were its promise to pay back the money it borrowed from those who might have it to lend.

These debentures came due on the first day of June and no arrangements had been made to deal with them. So they are now listed as being in default. The people who own them may be living all over the country. Many of them would be folk who had a little money saved and were looking for a safe place to put it at 4 per cent. interest which is not a high rate.

This makes the fourth default within recent years in Alberta, and on each occasion there is a good deal said about the monied interests bearing down on the province. There is nothing said about the people who saved their money and loaned it to the government in good faith. But that is exactly the way in which a good many debentures are taken up—by people who saved a little money and sought a safe place to invest it.

After 56 Years

What can they possibly do to John Zuefle? He is 79 years of age and has been living in the village of Hensall for 56 years. He was a member of the municipal council of Hay township for a number of years and Mr. John Zuefle says in all the 56 years he has never missed a chance to vote. Likewise he is married; was married years ago and has a family.

And in all the 56 years of residence in the same village in Huron county Mr. Zuefle has never become a naturalized Canadian. Many years ago he was given a voting certificate by a township clerk. He attached great importance to the paper and put it away in his strong box. He thought it was a certificate showing he was recognized as a citizen of the country because through its use he was given permission to cast his ballot.

If some stickler for the fine points of law cared to take up the case it might be possible to have it declared that all the business of the council where he voted was illegal. The standing of John Zuefle might never have been discovered had he and his wife not made application for old age pension, and the next question to be settled is whether his children are Canadians. A bit of documentary paper comes in handy now and then provided it is the right kind.

A Chilly Reception

Canadian Fascists had intended to hold their national convention in the city of Kingston, but that city was not at all enthusiastic over the event. A good many people there said they did not want the convention; it was announced there would be no opportunity offered to hold a parade. As a rule Kingston is a sociable sort of place but on this occasion its efforts could hardly be said to have become luke-warm, and probably it is more correct to say they were about as chilly as the water when the ice first breaks between Kingston and Wolfe Island.

The result is that the convention will not be held in Kingston, and the leader of the movement says the gathering will be held in Toronto, explaining "We won't go where we are not wanted." There is nothing on record to show the convention is sought after in Toronto. We learn in a report from that city that no attention will be paid to it officially. Also it is stated that Toronto has no power to prevent the gathering from being held, and we learn as well that the police department will make plans to prevent any clashes between the Fascists and anti-Fascists during the days of the convention. There is nothing in all that to indicate the presence of the warm welcome in Toronto which was denied the Fascists in Kingston.

Yes, Times Have Changed

The man in the grocery store turned from the telephone. Without paying much attention to what he was saying it was easy enough to know he was trying to explain something to a customer. It was all over a peck of potatoes. The customer lived a good many blocks from the store, but she had a telephone. Apparently when it came time to plan the noon-day meal it had been found the potatoes were done, then more were ordered. The order had been sent out but there were a good many other calls to make and that is why the telephoning was going on. The man in the grocery store was probably receiving a bit of scolding.

It is passing strange how at times one thing will suggest another. We have been looking through a book published in the year 1867 telling about the early settlement of this district. Dealing with Smith township the writer said this:

"During the first few years great difficulties were often felt in procuring the necessary provisions with which to support life. These had to be brought all the way from Port Hope or Cobourg in the most laborious manner and in the total absence of even the most ordinary roads; the only guide being the "blaze" upon the trees through the interminable forest in which they seemed entombed. Under these circumstances it is not to be wondered at that whole families were often for weeks without tasting bread and that the herbs and roots of the rich woods were often called into requisition to lengthen out their scanty fare.

✦ ✦ ✦

Late in the autumn during one of these critical junctures a number of the younger men of the settlement started for Port Hope to bring in a supply of provisions of which their families were sorely in need. The journey was made by way of the Otonabee river to Rice Lake, and on their way back they camped for the night on an island in Rice Lake. The season was late and next morning they found themselves hemmed in with a sheet of ice. With no shelter they had to wait there another night and day until they found the ice strong enough to bear them and they proceeded on their way dragging their canoe filled with provisions behind them.

✦ ✦ ✦

The more robust and vigorous indeed not infrequently shouldered a bag of wheat and carried it through the woods of Monaghan, Cavan and Hope to Smith's Creek, as Port Hope was then called, returning with it ground into flour to the great joy of the family.

We do not know just how much association or connection there is between telephoning to a store for a few potatoes and starting off from Bridgenorth to Port Hope on foot through the bush to secure supplies. But the connection is there because the problem is the same—getting something to eat. Today in the city a person steps to where the telephone is located and calls a number. The wants are stated and in a short time the goods are at the door. In the earlier days their were no telephones, there were no roads and the trip to the grocery store or the mill was made on foot or part way by boat, a distance of some 35 miles!

Not So Great Now

David Lloyd-George has been speaking in a by-election in Stafford, and his chief business has been to attack the government. The war-time Premier does not think much of the manner in which the British government has been handling business in recent years. He says the policy has been one of crawling before the dictators; claimed that no person now paid any attention to a protest from the British government and was certain the British flag was becoming a jest among the nations of the world.

The fiery little Welshman now in his 76th year, was content to be critical. He did not say what he would have done had he been in office; he did not put his finger on an incident or a date and say "Right there and then I would have declared war." Rather was he bent on one of those excursions where he just ripped everything to pieces and was content to let it go at that.

The history of men shows there is a time when they reach the height of their career. There is a great work to be done and the man comes to the surface who can do it. It often happens that with the completion of that great work the need for the man to continue in public life passes with it.

Something like that happened in the case of David Lloyd-George. In the days of the World War there was need of a man who could provide leadership at home. The exact story of how he succeeded Asquith in the premiership has never been candidly written. Lloyd-George was not a man of war; in his day he had openly espoused the cause of the Boers. But in 1916 he knew Britain was fighting for a purpose and he proceeded to organize for the production of munitions and the supplying of manpower. There were dark days when Lloyd-George appeared to be the one man who had faith that the war would be won. He was the human dynamo which kept the thing going, and it is no exaggeration to say that the British Empire owes its continued existence as much to David Lloyd-George as to any other man or collection of men.

That was the time when he was on high ground. It seemed that once again he had exemplified the theory of a man being raised up who was sufficient to meet the need of the hour. Probably it is the function of no one to say when this man should retire or when that man should cease, but it is a matter of record and plain fact that Lloyd-George has never been as great since as he was when directing and giving forth the pulsating energy which solidified and increased the effort of the British people in the dark days of the war.

He is not so great when he appears now in a by-election as the critic of a government which itself has been working and travelling through perilous and dark days. His ridicule of sincere effort on the part of the British statesmen of today is something which could be left to others who had never scaled the heights of national fame, or better still it is something which might better be left undone. We believe history would have granted a greater place to Lloyd George had he retired from public life following the World War.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is not quite clear whether it is the case that Parliament talks too much or says too little of real importance.

They have invented a new cigarette wrapping that does not need paper and the next thing will likely be a filling with no tobacco.

If tossing public money around can lift a country out of a recession the United States should be out in front of the band in the prosperity parade.

It costs Toronto folk over a million and a quarter dollars a year for water and that seems large until you compare it with what they spend for beer.

Gas masks are to be assembled for the Canadian army. The militia will continue, we presume, to supply their own boots.

The governor of the county jail in Halton has been suspended because a prisoner got away. So it's a loss all round—the jail lost a prisoner and the jailer lost a job.

Massachusetts plans to stage a Grandmothers' Day and after that Grandpop will likely have his special 24 hours. If the thing keeps on some of these days will have to be doubled up.

The budget is not to come down this week so everybody has a little extra time to guess at the tax reductions, if any, that Hon. Charles Dunning is going to hand out.

Gautemala City picture shows have to close at midnight to let citizens get their sleep. With some of the films in circulation nowadays patrons should be able to take a nap in the theatre.

Report from Stratford says the magistrate is away on vacation and the Crown Attorney is nursing an injured foot. That is, the Magistrate got 30 days and the Crown is off on suspended sentence.

The Federal recovery program includes $450,000 for the restoration of historic sites, which brings up the thought there should be some kind of a memorial here to mark the spot where the first Peterborough citizen, Adam Scott, landed.

The New York Giants have added a Greek player to their lineup. He would have had a tough job breaking in during the early days of the McGraw regime where sons of old Ireland monopolized the box scores.

In the town of Alymer, Que., the tax rate for the year will be 16 mills and a surplus is expected. That means a 20 per cent. reduction, pleasant for the people who live there and cheerful for those who do not as it shows the thing can be done.

WEE ANGUS

(By A R K.)

¶ When Angus gets to be a man, and if he carries out his plan, things will be pretty fine; in winter we'll be housed all nice, and sheltered too from storm and ice, and cool in summer time.

¶ Each week he thinks of something new, and plans outstanding things he'll do, and some I think are queer; he's told me twenty times before, that I won't have to work no more, a pleasant thing to hear.

¶ He'll have a cottage by the bay, where we can always go and stay, in summer time each year; he's going to have a cabin boat, the finest thing there is afloat, likewise an engineer.

¶ And there'll be lots of money too, Wee Angus knows the way he'll do, a box upon a shelf; and he'll have bills and coins in there, and if I'm going out anywhere, why I'm to help myself.

¶ He'll own a bank Wee Angus will, with heaps of money in the till, and quarters in a cup; and any time I'm going that way, and I have heavy bills to pay, why he will fix me up.

¶ I asked Wee Angus just last night, if he was sure his plans were right, and would his purse be fat; he'd need much cash to go ahead, and then he thought a while and said—he hadn't thought of that.

Much History In Quebec City

(By L. P. K.)

DURING THE SUMMER in that momentous year in Canadian history, 1759, the British navy again had a part in the shaping of Quebec's destiny. So completely did the fleet, under Admiral Saunders, cooperate with General Wolfe in his plans for the capture of Quebec, that Montcalm was taken entirely by surprise. When the French rushed out upon the plains of Abraham they found an army ensconced; their astonished eyes beheld "the long, close, silent, red line of the English infantry," the colourful tartans of the Highland regiments and through the grey morning light caught the glint of the naked broadswords. They beheld the pipers marching to and fro before the lines, and heard their wild defiant challenge. Both Montcalm and Wolfe met their death that day. General Montcalm is buried in the Chapel of the Ursuline Convent. His body was laid in a grave formed from a cavity that had been torn in the floor, near the altar rail, by a shell that crashed through the roof. The fleet sailed for England late in October, and Wolfe's body went home with the fleet, on board the Royal William.

The tall shaft that stands in the Governor's garden overlooking the St. Lawrence was erected by the Government in memory of the two brave generals, Montcalm and Wolfe. The French abandoned Quebec. Claude de Ramesay signed the capitulation in the dining-room of Kent House, the old house on St. Louis Street. The British took possession of the shattered, half wrecked fortress and the British flag was raised on the heights near the top of Mountain Street.

From time to time during the winter and early spring that followed there were skirmishes and encounters between the French and British, and always the British carried the anxiety of an assault on the weakened fortress. Hardly a man in the garrison was free from scurvy, and fever and dysentery wrought havoc. They suffered intensely from the cold, especially the Highlanders, and the Nuns, whether from the kindness of their hearts, or because of shocked modesty, or perhaps for both reasons, spent their scant leisure knitting them long woollen hose.

✦ ✦ ✦

LEVIS SUCCEEDED Montcalm. He spent the winter at Montreal gathering up provisions and munitions from frontier posts, and he impressed the merchants of Montreal for stores of all kinds. In April these supplies were loaded on board the French vessels, two frigates, two warsloops, and a number of small vessels, that had wintered at Montreal. The army embarked in a fleet of bateaux. They were on their way to re-take Quebec. General Murray, who was in command at Quebec, only learned of this threatened danger the night before the planned assault. He decided to march out and meet the French on the plains. On April 28th, the second battle on the plains, "the battle of Ste. Foy" was fought, a frightful bloody struggle in mud, slush and sometimes in snow to the knees. Success came first to the British, then it swung to the French, and the British were forced to retreat. Owing to the mud and snow they were unable to drag off their cannon, so having spiked the pieces left them behind.

Shut within the walls of Quebec, officers and men set feverishly to work at strengthening the fortifications, even the invalids were busy filling sand bags. The general hospital and Hotel-Dieu were filled with wounded and dying. "The excellent nuns . . . were above praise in their assiduous devotion to the sick and wounded."

The French wounded suffered horribly, crowded in barns and stables; there was little linen for bandaging and they were dependent on the people of the neighbourhood and soldiers for care and attention. The iron pillar surmounted by a bronze statue that stands on the Ste Foy road was a gift from Prince Napoleon Bonaparte to commemorate the heroism displayed by both French and British during that desperate struggle.

Levis entrenched without the City. His hopes were centered on the arrival of the ships he had requested France to send with siege guns and munitions, and a ship that had wintered at Gaspe. The British close-lipped, with tightened belts, waited for the ship they had been promised. On May 9th, word was brought to General Murray that a warship was in the Basin beating its way towards the town; officers and men divided between hope and fear crowded to the ramparts by the Chateau St. Louis where they watched with straining eyes the approaching vessel. If she were French success for Levis; if English relief for the half-starved garrison. With fast-beating hearts they saw the flag slowly rise to the mast head — the red cross of St. George fluttered in the wind. Both men and officers, in the face of the enemy, scrambled up on the parapet, cheering madly, waved their caps in the air and the gunners recklessly fired salute after salute. The ship was the Lowestoffe. She brought word that a squadron was on its way up the river. A week later two ships arrived and they with the Lowestoffe passed the town and attacked the French vessels in the river above. The French commander Vanquelin's ship fought on till his ammunition was exhausted, and even then, he refused to strike his flag. All but one of the other vessels drifted on shore and were wrecked. The loss of their ships was a death blow to the French. Levis retreated to Montreal, and on September eighth Governor Vaudreuil signed the Capitulation of Canada. Canada and all its dependencies passed to the British Crown. The terms assured "Free exercise of the Roman Catholic religion to the people; religious communities were to retain their possessions, rights and privileges." All persons who wished to retire to France were allowed to do so, and Canadians were to remain in full enjoyment of feudal and other property. There terms were ratified by the Peace of Paris 1763. The Quebec Act 1774 quaranteed the same rights; in addition to those and other provisions, it established the French civil law, the criminal law of England; it also outlined the boundaries of Quebec. It provided that the clergy of the Roman Catholic Church, "May hold, receive and enjoy their accustomed dues and rights with respect to such persons, only, as shall profess the said religion." Another section allows the King to make provision for "the encouragement of the Protestant religion and for maintenance of a Protestant clergy out of the rest of the accustomed dues and rights." This Act brought forth an outcry from Suffolk County, Pennsylvania, and the celebrated Suffolk Resolutions were passed denouncing the Act.

Congress, the representatives of the thirteen colonies to the South, declared that England was setting up a "French Autocracy under an English King."

• Speaker Allows Use of "Absurd"

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. FACTOR: That is why paragraph (d) is put in.

Mr. BENNETT: A solon has now come to the rescue of the government. What an absurdity that an observation of that kind should be made, that that would cure this difficulty.

Mr. FACTOR: Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. The right hon. gentleman said that my statement was absurd, or words to that effect. I say that is the reason paragraph (d) is there.

Mr. BENNETT: That is not a point of order, Mr. Speaker, and there is no necessity for the hon. gentleman to demonstrate it.

Mr. FACTOR: I have the floor, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BENNETT: It is not a point of order.

Mr. FACTOR: Mr. Speaker will rule on that.

Mr. BENNETT: You cannot interfere with the conduct of debate by jumping up and saying, "it is a point of order," just because you do not like the language that is used by the speaker, unless such language contravenes the rules. To say a statement is absurd does not contravene the rules.

Mr. FACTOR: I rise to a point of order. Mr. Speaker. The right hon. gentleman has made the statement that my words are absurd. I say that is not proper language to use in this house. I was giving the reason for paragraph (d).

Mr. BENNETT: There is no necessity to give it. The hon. member has raised a point of order, and he cannot make a speech. He says the word "absurd" is unparliamentary. That is the point, and the Speaker has to decide it.

Mr. FACTOR: I have a right to say why the statement is not absurd.

Mr. BENNETT: No. That is exactly what you do not have the right to do.

Mr. MACKENZIE (Vancouver): Which is absurd?

Mr. Speaker: I do not see the word "absurd" mentioned in Beauchesne's Rules and forms, but I may be mistaken.

COMMON FAULT

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I have never written a letter to a newspaper before, but I believe it may do some good to call attention to what I believe to be the most common fault of drivers of cars.

It is this—when they are pulling away after being parked at the curb they do not give any sign that they are going to move. Other cars may be coming behind them but that seems to make no difference at all. They just barge out as though they had nothing to consider but themselves.

These drivers are reasonable people and most of them have been driving for years without ever having had an accident, but they persist in this dangerous practice. I can write about it with a free mind because I used to do it myself until I got called down about it by an officer and I admit I had it coming to me.

MAKES DISMAL READING

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The Right Rev. Dr. A. F. Irwin former moderator of the United Church of Canada and chief executive officer of that churche's social activities at the present time issued his annual report on Saturday and it is dismal reading. There has, he says, been "a tremendous increase" in drinking, immorality and general delinquency. The falling away in attendance at the churches and the Sunday schools is serious he says. Whereas in former times of depression people flocked to the churches and there was a marked revival in religious interest, there is in the present slump a marked tendency the other way. When people are given the idea that the supernatural no longer exists and that their responsibility ends with themselves this state of affairs is what must be expected and unless that fact is once more recognized we many look for even a greater moral falldown.

THE FARMER'S WHEAT

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I sincerely hope that The Examiner's editorial concerning the price of wheat when the farmer hasn't any—entitled "The Farmer Takes the Risk"—gets re-printed in the columns of your Western Canadian contemporaries. In the meanwhile this reader would be ready if not to "eat" his hat (a la the voracious British Prime Minister) at least, to supply a brand new piece of headgear worthy to grace ye editorial dome!—if said piece of rural truth attracts the "scalping" shears of the writing-masters in the home town of the Winnipeg Grain traders!

And yet, sir, that editorial viewpoint of The Examiner's is factual from stem to stern. The price of cash wheat today—while there is little or no grain for sale and 95 per cent. of the farmers are out of the market—stands around $1.20 for the top grades of the grain; but it is the aggregate opinion of the "speculators" and the "trade" that the same grain should be worth $1.01 in July; $0.77½ in October, and $0.75 in December. As all the world knows, Canada's wheat farmers will be hauling their grain in the three-month period September, October, November—a period in which even the casual reader will have no difficulty in "sensing" that valuations will be ranging along the price-structure's basement, under normal weather conditions, politically and otherwise.

The system does not look as smart as it used to—and it cannot be successfully denied that the general principle of the men and women, who invest their year's energy in that grain, handing it over to a lot of market-wise fellows (either "bull" or "bear") to play with, is unwise and certainly uneconomic, with every government across Europe in the wheat business and with both hands on the control machinery within the country and at the frontier.

"The husbandman that laboureth must be first partaker of the fruits" is the Biblical injunction. Too many of us are inclined to think that principle outmoded. Today's political turmoil and uneconomic conditions are inescapable reminders of that abiding truth.

EAGLE LOST TO PLANE.

(London Times)

A DUEL between a large eagle and an airplane is reported from Addis Ababa. The machine was returning to the capital from an inspection flight in the interior, carrying two airmen and some soldiers, when it was attacked by an eagle.

A machine-gun was fired at the bird without hitting it. The eagle however, struck and damaged the machine and injured the pilot in the forehead with its beak. Finally it was hit and fell to the ground. The airplane had to land.

The eagle, which was found by some natives, measured 11 feet four inches between the wing tips.

LET'S SING MORE.

(Exeter Times-Advocate)

NO, THIS IS no tirade against radios and phonographs. It is an appeal for more singing. Yes, and, incidentally, it is a plea for more whistling. Singing and whistling drive away the blue devils. They heal neighborly quarrels and promote domestic felicity. The old Methodist church won her way to dominance in the world and to a special service at untold value by her singing. When she degenerated to having her singing done by proxy, she lost ground. No nation is great, or remains great long, unless her people are singers. Denmark was saved by her songs and her religion.

CHANGE IN KING.

(London cor., Ottawa Journal)

DURING HIS recent visits of personal inspection to the fighting services King George met a great many officers. Without exception all those who knew him in former days as Duke of York, and who have had an opportunity of meeting him again now, are amazed at the remarkable change that manifests itself in his speech, manner, and general bearing.

All trace of his former shy diffidence, amounting almost to an inferiority complex, has vanished completely. He is now as dignified and assured in his demeanor, and easy in manner, as was his reversed father King George V. It seems in fact, as one distinguished R. A. F. officer phrased it, as though the Abbey coronation ritual had really worked a miracle, and endowed the King with a new poise and a firmer outlook.

He was in high spirits, enjoyed all the service quips, and showed keen interest in the up-to-date equipment. He was much impressed by the latest gadgets of the R. A. F., and by the evolution of the fighting plane since he served with the Royal Flying Corps.

IN 15 FATHOMS.

(Time)

ON NOV. 6, 1935, Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith took off from Lympne, Kent, in a Lockheed-Altair, Lady Southern Cross, to break the England-Australia record. He said it would be his last flight before settling down to aviation administration. Somewhere east of Allahabad, India, he disappeared. Eighteen months later, when he was almost forgotten, a wheel and a piece of undercarriage were found on the shore of tropical Aye Island, off the Burma coast. Photographs of the wheel were sent to Lockheed Aircraft Corp., makers of the plane. Last week Lockheed definitely identified the ship it came from as the Lady Southern Cross. Rangoon botanists, after examining weeds clinging to the wreckage, guessed that Sir Charles and his Lady Southern Cross lie in 15 fathoms of sea water close by Aye.

Talk Treatment Found Cure In Mental Cases

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8 (AP). —A mental treatment for the millions who are morbid, unhappy, fearful, unable to make decisions, and haunted by feelings of insecurity was reported to the American Psychiatric Association here to-day.

The treatment is entirely talk. But is carefully selected, almost like lectures explaining mathematical theorems. The treatment has been used successfully on thousands of persons, the authors of to-day's report stated. They are Dr. Henry H. Dixon, Dr. Laurance Selling, Dr. David E. Baird, Dr. G. B. Haugen, and Dr. W. H. Hutchens, all Portland, Ore., physicians.

The persons they described are not insane. The sufferers are in a similar frame of mind to the large masses of people who are to-day wondering what has gone wrong with the world, but have drifted further than the average man into the morass of fear.

Psychasthenic is the medical term describing this borderland state. It arises initially, the report stated, from lack of security in childhood and early life.

To the victim life becomes a "minute to minute battle." He is under constant tension and his dream of Utopia is a state in which no tension exists. In general, the report stated, this victim, whether man or woman, is equal or superior to the average person.

Unable To Face Changes.

Because of internal tension, because each decision is a battle, these persons fail to develop all round personalities capable to facing the risks of a changing world.

The first step in the mental treatment is to teach that the conflicting thoughts "are in reality only the stored content of the mind." Both mental, physical and emotional states which are common to all persons are very carefully explained. If the psychasthenic can be made to listen attentively, he is likely to be cured. The physicians said that there is usually difficulty in getting him to listen.

They cited the case of a well educated heating engineer. He had quit work because fear kept him from concentrating. Tall buildings seemed to lean toward him when he walked past and he felt they would fall on him. He had terrific headaches, heart palpitations and abdominal pains.

All this was cured by three weeks of patient conversation and explaining to him in a hospital. His pains and fears disappeared. He went back to work, the report said, and has become one of the company's most valuable men, in charge of handling antagonisms between groups in the concern.

New Street Lights For Trent River

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 7—Trent River is to have at least seven street lights it was decided at the regular meeting of the township council which convened in Campbellford on Saturday afternoon. It was a petition signed by the property owners at the summer resort which brought the matter which had been hanging fire for the past three years to a head and forced the council to take action. Mrs. Thos. Brown of Trent River headed the delegation which presented the petition asking that seven lights be placed on Highway 30 at this point. Following some discussion by the council members the clerk was instructed to take the matter up with the Hydro Electric Power Commission.

On motion of Councillors Bateson and Kelly the report of School Attendance Officer G. W. Anderson was received and filed. The matter of a grant of $15 to the school fair was discussed and a motion authorizing the grant to be made was passed.

$1,000,000 Power Line

WINDSOR, Ont., June 8—(CP). —Windsor Utilities Commission will attempt to arrange a conference with Ontario Hydro Commission officials in Toronto next week to arrange for construction of a proposed new $1,000,000 power line from St. Thomas to Windsor, according to Roy R. Hicks, Commission chairman.

The proposed line would give Windsor a second source of supply, reducing to a minimum the chances of service interruptions here.

Storms Do Little Crop Damage

TORONTO, June 7—(CP).—Minor damage to garden plants was reported from several points in Central and Western Ontario today, aftermath of a severe electrical and rainstorm which swept those sections of the province during the night. Greatest loss was in Norfolk County, where high winds wrought untold damage to tobacco plants.

A brilliant electrical display accompanied heavy rains in Toronto late last night and early today, but no early reports of damage were received. Young plants and flowers were broken in Hamilton during a series of storms. Power service was disrupted there for a short time by lightning.

A half-inch of rain fell on the St. Catharines district of the Niagara Peninsula's fruit belt. Farmers termed the precipitation a "Godsend," and said it would be of benefit to cherries, potatoes, and other fruit and vegetable crops. High winds tore branches from trees in that district but no other damage was reported.

Brantford reported a night of storms, but no property damage. High winds accompanied the storm around Galt, breaking branches off trees and flattening garden plants. Farmers there also welcomed the precipitation. They said the land was dry and was beginning to 'crust.' Showers continued today.

Oil first was sold commercially as a medicine.

Cornwall Ship Friction Ends

TORONTO, June 8—(CP)—Hon. G. D. Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, announced to-day that provincial police sent to Cornwall in the event of disorders arising from labor difficulties that crippled the Cornwall canal this week-end would be withdrawn "forthwith" following the clearing of the freighter Damia, cause of the canal tie-up.

"The steamer Damia sailed with a full crew at five o'clock this morning, without any disturbance," he said. "I am very glad of that. We are anxious to avoid trouble in all these situations where at all possible, but are determined to suppress lawlessness where it occurs with every means at our disposal.

"The provincial police will be withdrawn forthwith."

From 20 to 30 members of the provincial police were sent to Cornwall yesterday. Traffic on the canal was tied up for 12 hours Sunday when the crew of the Damia was forced ashore by members of the Canadian Seamen's Union as the vessel was moving through the last lock. The crew later returned and moved the Damia to a basin, permitting canal traffic to flow at 50 per cent. capacity.

Police Chief Fred Seymour and Staff Inspector E. T. Doyle and District Inspector Thomas Cousins of the Provincial Police Force, will confer with Crown Attorney John G. Harkness here to-day. It was understood the conference was in connection with the action of C.S.U. members who boarded the Damia Sunday.

Chinese Retreating To Mountain Area

HANKOW, June 8.—(CP-Havas). —The Chinese High Command is carrying out a new defence plan, calling for abandonment of Chengchow and creation of a new semi-circular defence line running roughly south-eastward from North-western Honan to south-eastern Anhwei province, the Havas correspondent confirmed to-day after a week's visit to the Langhai war zone.

The present Chinese operations in the Chengchow zone are designed to permit a strategic, orderly withdrawal in conformity with this plan.

The defence plan provides for a broad withdrawal in a southerly direction. This would remove the Chinese forces from the immense Northern Honan plain where the mechanized Japanese forces can operate to good advantage, and concentrate them in mountainous terrain.

An ailurophobe is a person who hates cats.

Young Actress May Wed Sultan

The engagement of 24-year-old Lydia Cecilia Hill, former London actress, to the 64-year-old Sultan of Johore is expected to be announced very shortly. The Sultan, ruler of a 7,000 square mile state in Malaya, recently parted from his Scottish wife, the former Mrs. Helen Wilson, whom he married in 1930. The British government is expected to register it's disproval of any marriage between the Sultan and the young actress.

Bombings Cut Canton Power

CANTON, China, June 8—(AP).— —Japan's war planes bombarded this terrorized South China city three times to-day and swelled the toll of dead and wounded which had reached 6,000 since the punishing series of raids began 11 days ago.

The third raid was made by moonlight, beginning at 8.30 p.m. (8.30 a.m. EDT), and incendiary bombs were dropped in northern sections of the city.

Canton, including the foreign settlement on Shameen Island, was without electric light or power tonight. During an afternoon raid nine bombs plunged into the compound of the power station and waterworks in the Saichuen district near Shamee, putting the power station out of commission.

Twenty civilians were killed on Honam Island, separated from Canton City by the Pearl River.

The first raid came son after dawn, when Japanese planes for 10 minutes bombed the congested Tungshan and Saichuen districts.

Local Chinese authorities have ordered all women and children to leave the city. Facilities are entirely inadequate to handle the exodus.

More than 100,000 already have fled to Hong Kong. Many more have sought refuge in the interior or in ports further south.

Canton has drawn Japan's air attacks because it is the gateway for most of China's imported war supplies.

(In Shanghai a Japanese navy spokesman declared Japan would continue bombings of Canton and Hankow because of their military importance. He denied they were undefended cities.)

Spry Grandmother

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho, June 8 (AP) — A motorcycle-riding grandmother, Mrs. Marie Blasius, 77, will leave today on a 1,000-mile trip. Mrs. Blasius prefers mortorcycles to automobiles "because they ride easier and you can see better." She will be a side-car passenger with her son.

For Thursday, June 9.

Judging by the ruling force of certain mutual aspects for this day, there may be perplexing conditions where strategem, intrigue, or collusion may be effective in untangling menacing situations. Compromise and subtlety may succeed where direct action might fail.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of rather problematical conditions, with curious or undercover matters holding menace unless tact, diplomacy, vigilance and corresponding stratagem are exercised. Connivance and intrigue may be required for success and to avert rather vicious situations born of duplicity, enmity, and jealousy.

A child born on this day may have a rather subtle and challenging nature, with strong leanings to gain its ends by strategy, collusion, or similar methods. It may be shrewd, clever, and probably captivating of personality.

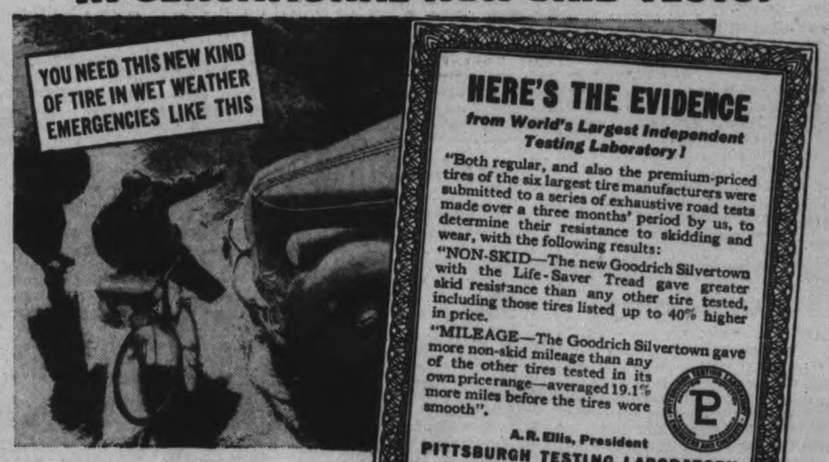
NEW TIRE WINS

IN SENSATIONAL NON-SKID TESTS!



HERE'S THE EVIDENCE

from World's Largest Independent Testing Laboratory!

"Both regular, and also the premium-priced tires of the six largest tire manufacturers were submitted to a series of exhaustive road tests made over a three months' period by us, to determine their resistance to skidding and wear, with the following results:

"NON-SKID—The new Goodrich Silvertown with the Life-Saver Tread gave greater skid resistance than any other tire tested, including those tires listed up to 40% higher in price.

"MILEAGE—The Goodrich Silvertown gave more non-skid mileage than any of the other tires tested in its own price range—averaged 19.1% more miles before the tires wore smooth".

NO tire tested, regardless of price, came up to the new Goodrich Silvertown in skid resistance! And these tests were made against the regular and premium-priced tires of the six largest tire manufacturers.

That's because the New Silvertown Life-Saver Tread accomplished what Goodrich engineers had spent years in trying to perfect a tread that is actually a road dryer. LOCAL LACROSSERS OPEN '38 SCHEDULE WITH A 14-5 VICTORY

Strong Second-Half Drive Give Petes An Easy Win

Locals Work Hard After Slow Start

The Peterborough lacrossers opened their 1938 O.L.A. season Tuesday evening with a 14-5 victory over Woodbridge on the latter's floor in a senior "B" scheduled fixture. It was the first game played in the newly-arranged interlocking grouping of the Ontario Lacrosse Association. The Petes were full value for their verdict, staging a strong second-half drive to cop the decision handily. They were trailing 4-3 in the first frame, but had a 5-4 margin at halftime. The Randle-coached crew outscored Woodbridge 6-1 in a one-sided third heat and had a 3-0 edge in the fourth.

It was a good lacrosse match, fast and keenly contested. The Petes were slower getting organized but once they began to click, the homesters couldn't hold them. Their passing, shooting and checking was good in the last two quarters. Despite a little rugged checking in spots, Referee Len Smith kept the game clean throughout. Red Creighton turned in nice work goaltending, and had a stiff defence in front of him. Both front lines worked well after a slow start. Westonfelt, Worthy, Dundas, Chute, Crowe and Magee were all prominent for Peterborough, while Bagg, Harrington, Kingdon and Hutchinson looked good for the losers.

The teams:

Petes: Goal, R. Creighton; defence, Westonfelt and J. Creighton; centre, Worthy; wings, Dallin and King; rover, Dundas; alternates, Chute, Sloane, Magee, Crowe, E. Creighton and Bowen.

Woodbridge: Goal, Hayward; defence, Bagg and Wons; centre, Kingdon; wings, Harrington and Banting; rover, Wilks; alternates, Norton, Hutchison, Hawstrasser, James, Brewer, Miller and Castator.

Referee—Len Smith of Toronto.

SPORT SPICE

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP).—They say the Giants really kicked in with $20,000 cash and Wally Berger to get Alex. Kampouris from the Reds... Which makes it a good deal for the "Zinzinnatis," who got back almost as much as they paid for the Greek boy four years ago plus a slugging outfielder.

The White Sox have a bird named Myrus, an ouija board expert, along trying to diagnose the club's ailments via the stars, crystal ball, etc.

The Canadian hoss, Tackman, ran last in his first start here, but keep an eye on him his next time out.. Highest paid front office man in baseball is said to be Ed Barrow of the Yanks (who is supposed to get $25,000 per and is worth every dime of it)...Branch Rickey of the Cardinals gets $50,000, but then he is vice-president to boot...Jesse Owens received 65 per cent. of the $200,000 he grossed for exhibitions following his triple victory in the last Olympics and has put by enough of it to put him on easy street for life.. Says Lefty O'Doul (quite a ball player in his day): "I've had some luck in my time, but when I was at my best I was never qualified to carry Joe DiMaggio's bats for him."

Windsor Militia Marksman Leaves For Bisley Shoot

Hayhurst inherits his shooting eye from his father, Thomas H. Hayhurst, Hamilton, who was the first "colonial" ever to take the coveted prize away from the British Isles. What is now the King's Prize was the Queen's prize when the older Hayhurst won it in 1895.

"Young Tommy" has led many Essex Scottish shooting teams to victory since coming here in 1929, especially Lewis machine gun teams at Ontario and Dominion Rifle Association meets at Toronto and Ottawa.

He began serious shooting with Hamilton public school cadets in 1913. During the war he was a member of the Hamilton home guard, and was associated with the 13th Royal Hamilton light infantry. He was captain of the University of Toronto rifle association for many years.

Hayhurst sails from Montreal Friday with 17 other Dominion representatives to the Bisley.

Predicts Victory For Armstrong

LOS ANGELES, June 8 (AP.—Baby Arizmendi upset many an apple from the cart last night when he battled lightweight champion Lou Ambers to a draw in a wild 10-round non-title fight before 10,000 fans at the Olympic auditorium.

The Bellicose Baby, veteran of a thousand and one nights in a prize ring, came out flatly and predicted that welterweight champion Henry Armstrong would knock Ambers out when they meet in New York July 26.

Arizmendi should be an authority on the subject. Two months ago he took a beating—but never a knockdown—from Armstrong in a vicious 10-rounder at the Olympic.

"Armstrong is stronger than Lou and throws too many punches. Ambers is easy to hit. I staggered him and while I took my best shots at Henry, I couldn't phase him," Arizmendi declared.

Mark St. Seniors Defeat Buzzers

Mark St. Seniors defeated George St. Buzzers by a 13-8 count last night in a Church Softball League schedule contest. Hits and errors in the first gave them a five-run margin to put them well in front and they were never headed. Ferguson and Parsons hit triples, Joe Weir got a homer and Akers a double for the winners. Akers pulled a nifty catch to rob Darwin of a homer in the fifth. Hunter fanned one and walked two while Burnham struck one out and issued no walks. Rennie retired in the first for Burnham. The teams:

Mark St.—Ferguson, 3b; Parsons, ss; Boulter, cf; Brady, 1b; Hawks, 2b; Townsend, c; Craig, rf; Darwin, lf; Hunter, p.

Buzzers—Kingdon, lf; Rennie, p, ss; Burnham, ss, p; Weir, cf; Ash, 3b; Skitch, c; Parnall, 2b; Metcalfe, 1b; Akers, rf; Galley, rf.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

A COUPLE of girls' softball contests have been lined up for the Ashburnham Bowl this Thursday and Friday evenings. They are exhibition tilts in conjunction with the Rotary Carnival, the proceeds going to aid local crippled children. A most worthy cause, and we hope the fans kick in generously at both games. Lindsay lasses and Westclox meet tomorrow in the twilight, and Keene plays C.G.E. Friday e'en, both games at 7.15 o'clock. These tussles will not count in the league standing, being put on purely for charity in connection with the Rotary Club's activities. Next loop game is between Keene and Westclox here on Tuesday.

QUINTE COLUMNIST quotes: "Every game being played in the C.O.B.L. this year has resulted in a shutout. There is one thing we can't really understand—why the Petes bring in a fourth moundsman, when they need potent bat wielders, despite their 11 runs Saturday. Kitchen, Jakafby and Whitehill are good enough hurlers for any man's senior league. While snatching off his mask to go after a foul fly on Saturday, Bob Elliott stuck his finger into his good eye—the rest we can't print. No doubt Skipper Elliott will welcome the return of Tony Paczkowski and his catcher with open arms." Seems to us there is always room for one more twirler—if he is a winning tosser.

THAT RETURN rasslin' bout between Red Garner and Bert Crothall next Monday night at the lacrosse arena here threatens to steal the spot light from the boxers in the Riverview A.C. mitt-mat show. A thousand fans stayed to the finish and roared themselves into the lower bracket of hysterics two weeks ago as this pair of grapplers defied the laws of wrestling, gravity and mayhem in the liveliest and best mat bout seen here since Hangman Howard Cantonwine and Alex Kasakoski were in flower. They shoved each other out of the ring, kicked the last guy coming in hard on the face, slugged with fists, pulled hair out by roots, tied each other up in the ropes—and in short nearly tore the place apart with their hot action. The return go is a natural and we—who frequently hold our schnozzle at rasslin' shows—must admit these maulers are good.

* * * * * *

ANOTHER MAT BOUT is between Pete Pernokis of Ottawa and Spider Shakleton of Toronto. Dunno much of either one. Nick Orlando is in the main boxing spot against Ernie Hicks of Toronto, and Joe Hobbins takes on Joe Scott of Toronto in the semi-final. Joe Tumblin of Ottawa meets Walter Hicks of Toronto, and Bill Joiner and Hal Jones tangle. Also a curtain-raiser. As the Riverview A.C. officers point out, they've staged three shows here in the past year and each one has been better than the previous one. Big crowds have thoroughly enjoyed each card—and they promise this one will be at least as good as the last. Which is enough for us.

* * * * * *

OPENING GAME of the O.L.A. schedule here will be Friday p.m. in the George St. lacrosse arena. Between Brampton and the Petes, now raised to senior "B" calibre. With a decent break in weather, around a thousand cash customers should decorate the stands for this setto, as the gutted-stick artists really turn on the heat. Especially in league competition. Fans have been flocking out the past several weeks to see the classy Petes win three exhibition games—but now the chips are down and every game counts. Those Bramptonites have been building up lately and will trot out a tough crew Friday, but they'll need to be strong to slip Coach Frank Randle's outfit a reverse. It'll be a good game, all right.

* * * * * *

LAST NIGHT in Woodbridge, the Petes pulled out a 14-5 victory to open their O.L.A. senior "B" schedule in auspicious manner. Took 'em a couple of heats to get really untracked but they were fairly flying in the final two frames. Woodbridge led in the first quarter and were only down a goal in the second, but the Petes netted the rubber ball for a 6-1 edge in the third and a 3-0 margin in the fourth. All the boys looked good in a lively lacrosse struggle, and if the lads can cop another here Friday they'll be off to a commanding start in the '38 senior "B" race. Squad has to be cut down to 13 active players in O.L.A. games, so fans won't see as many subs thrown into action as they did in exhibition frays. Dunno the starting lineup for sure Friday, but no doubt it'll be much the same as the one used in Woodbridge last eve—and listed in tonight's sheet.

* * * * * *

LOOKS LIKE those Westclox lasses, gals' softball champs in this section last semester, are on the high road toward another title these days. Last e'en at the Bowl they rang up their fourth win of the season, as Lindsay rang up "No Sale" for the third time in four starts. A goodish game, despite nearly enough boots afield to start up a shoe store. Marg Snowden twirled fair ball whilst one J. Channon of the Scugog contingent fanned a flock but was nicked for some solid smashes with the cushions cluttered up and had to take the reverse. Irene Pavy got a finger nail in front of a pitch in the seventh and the nail got the worst of it, so Irene retired in favor of H. Bradley as catcher. Lindsay had a double play, short to first. Marie Ferguson led the local hitters, and M. Allison belted out a circuit clout.

* * * * * *

RAIN in Kingston yester eve forced the postponement of the tilt between the GM-men and the Ponies. It may be played today, but no definite announcement had been made this morn. The Ponies plan to play an exhibition fray Thursday with Clarkson Tech. The Petes are working out this week in preparation for their struggle Saturday in Oshawa. They go to the Limestone City the following Wednesday and are idle the following Saturday. Ought to line up an exhibition tussle with a strong club—maybe one in the Knotty Lee pro circuit, if one is available. Ed Poller was ready to pitch for the Ponies yesterday, while both Turner and Biddle were on deck for Oshawa when 'twas called off.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

Judging by the scores handed in Tuesday night one is almost led to believe that the boys were playing for a high single. In six of the games played the winning score was well over 20 points. Only one game was close and that was the Allan-Loftus affair.

We draw the attention of the bowlers to the mixed tournament on Friday night, and remember if you have not bought your ticket on the pair of bowls you have plenty of time to get one from any one of the members of the ladies' membership committee. The draw will be made on Friday night.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, June 8 — Defeating the Outlaws by a score of 13 to 4, West Seymour took their second game of the season in a game played on the school lot on Tuesday. C. Anderson was on the mound for the winners and backed by a strong outfield was able to keep the Outlaws from scoring in all but three innings. G. Petherick got their only run in the first on a two-base hit and a double by Fry. They were blanked in the next three innings and in the fifth Fry got around on his third hit of the game. R. Fry and Joe O'Sullivan scored in the last inning to bring their total up to four. G. Petherick subbed for Reddick in the fifth and in the sixth inning Kerr was put on the mound in place of Irwin.

A Nifty Pair of Baseball Lefties

It just means "no fun" for the opposition when Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, trots out either of this pair for mound duty. They make up the most potent pair of left-handers on one team in the majors . . . left, Carl Hubbell, outstanding hurler in the National League over the past decade, and Cliff Melton, second year star. King Carl is mowing the opposition down with very little fuss or bother, as is his custom, and marked up major league victory No. 198 by shutting out the Phils with a single hit. "Mickey Mouse" Melton won 20 games last year in making his bow in the big time, and to all appearances, is out to repeat. Between them the Cheerless Leader's southpaw aces have been responsible for over half the New Yorkers' wins. Handy guys to have around!

MEL OTT'S 11th HOMER SHATTERS LEE'S SHUTOUT STRING

Chicago Pitcher Beats Giants For His Sixth Straight Win; Indians Win At Boston 7-5

Second-Place Yanks Go Down To Defeat Before Chicago Sox

NEW YORK, June 8.—In the excitement over this New York-Chicago struggle for the leadership of the National League, don't forget that Cleveland Indians, too, are engaged in some highly important encounters and coming out of them successfully.

The Cubs, triumphant in the opening battle of pitching and home runs, have a 1½ game lead, but they can lose it all this afternoon when they tackle the Giants in a doubleheader. Carl Hubbell is due to hurl one of the games for the Terrymen.

Chicago won the opener 4-2 yesterday on the combination of big Bill Lee's seven-hit flinging and the four-ply swatting of Billy Herman and Joe Marty. Lee, who had pitched three straight shutouts, had his string broken after 35 innings when Mel Ott socked his 11th homer of the year in the fourth frame. The Chicago pitcher tied the count himself in the fifth when he singled, took second on a fielder's choice and galloped home on Carl Reynolds' base hit.

Ends Melton's Stand

The rest of the Cubs' runs came in the seventh and ended Cliff Melton's stay on the mound. Herman broke the deadlock with a long homer, his first of the season; Frank Demaree singled and Marty finished the job with his homer.

The Indians, whose nearest rivals in the American League all are in the east, won one the hard way from Boston 7-5. Since leaving home last week, the Tribe has won two out of three each from Philadelphia Athletics and third-place Washington Senators, and the first from Boston, which is a good fourth in the standings.

A one-man rebellion by Johnny Allen, the fiery flinger, preceded Cleveland's comeback. Johnny was given a two-run lead in the first but lost it when Jimmie Foxx belted his 15th run. Then he got into an argument with Umpire Bill McGowan after Joe Cronin, Boston manager, protested that Allen's tattered shirt sleeve gave him an unfair advantage. McGowan sent Allen to the clubhouse to change the shirt and Johnny just stayed there. Even Manager Oscar Vitt couldn't get him out, so he handed out a $250 fine instead and sent Bill Zuber to the mound.

Stretches Indians' Lead

Victory stretched the Indians' lead to four games as the second-place New York Yankees went down 8-5 before Chicago White Sox.

St. Louis Browns smacked four Washington pitchers for 15 hits and won 11-8 despite a five-run Senator rally in the seventh. Aided by Rudy York's 11th homer, Detroit Tigers beat the Athletics 5-4.

Brooklyn's surprising Dodgers hung up their fifth victory in seven games in the west. A four-run fifth inning, plus brilliant relief hurling by Vito Tamulis after Joe Medwick and Don Padgett had hit for the circuit in the same frame, enabled them to turn back St. Louis Cardinals, 7-6. The Philadelphia-Cincinnati and Boston-Pittsburgh games were rained out.

British Champ

The attire may not appear to be in keeping with a golf course, but it's no handicap to Mrs. Helen Holm who flashes a very good brand of the links game while wearing it. Mrs. Holm, Scottish internationalist, regained the British women's golf title this year by defeating Elsie Corett in the final. She had previously taken the crown in 1934.

Westclox Girls Defeat Lindsay

Westclox continued their winning ways in the Girls' Softball League last night with a 10-6 victory over Lindsay Supremes at the Bowl, as a good crowd looked on. It was the fourth Westclox win in as many starts and three out of four reverses for the Scugog squad. Two big frames, the fourth and fifth, gave the local lasses seven runs and the margin on the game. It was a good battle with fair flinging, some hard hitting and good-and-bad fielding. The winners had an edge in hitting and fielding.

Marg Snowden twirled fair ball for Ab Delahaye's gang, allowing 11 hits, fairly well scattered, as she fanned four and walked one. J. Channon pitched for Lindsay and was reached for 14 bingles and three walks, but struck out eight. I. Pavy had a finger nail split in the seventh and had to retire. M. Allison hit a homer and single for Westclox, as M. Ferguson led with three singles, A. Sturgeon got a two-bagger and single, and M. Hawthorne a double. For Lindsay, M. Mackey banged out a two-baser and single, and E. Campbell and J. Channon hit a double each. Neat fielding was shown by F. Mark, M. Mackey, A. Sturgeon and M. Hawthorne. The teams:

Canadian Fighters On the Way Home

LONDON, June 8 (C.P.).—Having acquired a sizeable reputation with their fists, the Canadian brothers Pahl—or Paul as they are known in some English rings—are on their way back to Canada with their long-headed ringmaster, Bud Davis, to look over the heavyweight situation.

The Richdale, Alta., brothers should arrive in Montreal about June 16 and will entrain immediately for Toronto, where they have been promised a twin-bill feature with choice of opponents, including Eddie Wenstob, Tom Osborne, and Jack Munro. But they are only staying until October, for Bud expects to crash the inner circle of Empire fightdom early next year, and he has already lined up matches in London for November.

Light-Heavy Champ Eyes Two-Ton

Hardly in a class with the Louis-Schmeling scrap or the Armstrong-Ambers affair, but a bout that will attract a good deal of interest, will be held in Philadelphia's Municipal stadium, July 13, between the two huskies ABOVE. On the LEFT, John Henry Lewis, ruler of the light-heavyweight class, and squaring off with him, just after they had signed the papers, Tony Galento, the bull-like beer baron from Orange, N.J. No title will be at stake.

Newark Clicks For 11th Win, Birds' Expense

TORONTO, June 8.—(CP).—The champion Newark Bears, a bunch of sluggers who don't pull any of their punches, left the Orioles reeling in Baltimore yesterday, victims of the Bears' 11th consecutive triumph and their own 12th straight defeat.

The Bears, already eight games in front of the second-place Buffalo Bisons, who open a series with the league-leaders in Newark today, walloped 20 assorted hits last night in trouncing the Orioles 18-6.

Syracuse Chiefs, who met the Bears just before the Orioles and were taken for three in a row, found the pickings more to their liking in Jersey City where they hung up their third straight victory by 5-3, in the only other game on the International league program.

The Chiefs' victory moved them into the first division in place of the idle Toronto Maple Leafs who dropped to fifth place. Ted Kleinhans held the Jerseys scoreless for seven innings but weakened in the eighth when the Giants scored twice and was replaced in the ninth. Red Barrett retired Tom Padden and Pat Redmond to put down the uprising.

The Leafs and Rochester Red Wings, and the Bisons and Montreal Royals, had a day off, having played their scheduled games as part of doubleheaders Sunday.

Setting Records

He got off to a wobbly start this year, but he's more than making up for it now. We mean the smiling gent above, William G. Lee, a steady winner for Chicago Cubs for the past four years, and practically invincible of late. He has won his last five games, the last a shutout, the next 4 to 1, and the last three also shutouts. One more whitewash and Bill will equal the National league record set by a former Cub, Ed Reulbach, and tied by Grover Alexander.

Hamilton After Fourth Place In Senior Race

TORONTO, June 8 (C.P.).—Amid the excitement aroused by Orillia's pursuit of the first-place St. Catharines Excelsiors, another duel has broken out in the Ontario Lacrosse Association's senior series.

Brampton and Hamilton are involved in a stern fight for fourth place, with Brampton's Excelsiors holding the upper hand for the moment. The clubs meet to-morrow at Hamilton and on Saturday at Brampton, and the games should be among the best of the young season.

The Excelsiors stepped into fourth position alone last night by defeating Fergus 9-5, while Mimico was whipping Hamilton 18-9. Mimico entered a second-place tie with Orillia, two points behind St. Catharines and two ahead of Brampton.

Len Wilkes, former Toronto Marlboro player, led Brampton's last-period rally that outdistanced the Thistles. He scored two goals and added two assists as the Excelsiors increased a thin 4-3 margin at the three-quarter mark. A home crowd of 1,100 watched the Brampton victory.

Mimico won in a breeze from Hamilton, leading 14-3 after three periods and coasting the rest of the way. Ross Gimblett, already the Mountaineers' leading scorer, added seven points to his total with five goals and two assists. Bill Isaacs of Hamilton added three goals to bring his total of points for the year to 23, the same as Gimblett's.

Orillia gets a chance to pull level with St. Catharines to-morrow night in a home encounter with the winless Brantford team. However, the Excelsiors will have played one game less than the Terriers and are unbeaten so far.

MOTHER DOOMED TO HANG FOR SON SLAYING REPRIEVED

Five-Year-Old Boy Was Imbecile—Gets Word 24 Hours After Sentence

HUSBAND THANKFUL

Leeds.—Little more than 24 hours after Mrs. Kathleen Mumford, the 40-year-old Leeds mother, had been sentenced to death at Leeds assizes for the murder of her five-year-old imbecile son Derek, she was reprieved by the home secretary.

It is the quickest reprieve ever granted, beating by a day the reprieve granted to a Harrogate mother sentenced to death at Leeds three years ago for killing her son in somewhat similar circumstances.

The husband, Arthur Mumford, was scrubbing the floor at their flat when a reporter took him the good news.

"Thank God for that," he said; "that's absolutely wonderful.

"This is only the first step. What we hope for now is a very early release. Her home will be waiting for her when she comes back, and I am going to save hard to give her the holiday she will need after her ordeal.

"When I said good-by to her I broke down completely, but she remained calm, a calm which she has shown throughout. She seems to have a wonderful capacity for bearing up.

"Her last words to me were, 'Don't worry. Look after yourself.'

"It seemed that she was glad that the trial was over and she knew the worst. It was a sort of relief to her."

Mr. Mumford has moved his home from the Middleton Housing Estate, where the tragedy occurred, and has taken a flat in Dewsbury Rd., so that when Mrs. Mumford is free she will be away from her previous surroundings.

He secured work as a builder's laborer after a long spell of unemployment.

Tears shone in the eyes of Mrs. Mumford's sister, Mrs. Mary Barker of Geneva Rd., East Darlington, when she was told of the reprieve.

JAIL FRENCH BOXER FOR BRITISH TAXES

Champion Surprised Payments Are "Taken So Seriously"

Belfast.—"You do take income tax seriously in this country," said Valentin Angelmann, the French fly-weight champion, who was released from prison in Belfast after four hours' detention and the payment of income tax arrears.

He had defeated Jimmy Warnock, the Irish fly-weight champion, and was afterwards faced with an income tax bill for £178 ($890.)

The bill was in respect of previous bouts in Britain, and when negotiations were unsuccessful, he was removed to Belfast police headquarters. Later the inland revenue accepted £100 ($500) in full settlement.

PARISHIONERS' GOSSIP HALTS BOXING PASTOR

"Narrow-Minded Churchgoers Do Not Think It Right for Vicar"

London.—Rev. Frank Jones, vicar of St. Michael's, Wood Green—the boxing parson—is having to sacrifice his pleasure because his parishioners do not approve.

A boxing exhibition in which Mr. Jones was to have sparred with Mr. C. Burry, captain of the Alexandra Boxing club, has been cancelled because of "gossip."

Mr. Jones said: "Tongues have been wagging, and I have been accused of hunting with the public. Some narrow-minded churchgoers do not think it is right for the vicar to mix with all classes of the people.

There has been so much fuss that I decided to cancel the exhibition. All my boxing in future will be done behind closed doors.

"It seems hard that gossip should deprive me of my pleasure. "The Bishop of London plays golf, but nobody thinks any the worse of him. Why shouldn't I enjoy myself in the ring without people thinking I am in league with the devil?"

Mr. Jones was formerly a London policeman.

THWARTS CONDEMNED IN PRISON'S HOSPITAL

Foils Threat of Man Under Death Sentence—But Gets Four Years

London.—While in hospital at Brixton prison, Charles Lemon, 19, of Barking, went to the assistance of warders who were being threatened by a violent man, convicted of murder and under sentence of death.

The doomed man was holding a chair and threatening anyone who touched him. Lemon tried to pacify him, and while he was engaging his attention warders rushed in, took the chair away, and removed the man.

This story was told to Mr. Justice Acquit at the Old Bailey before Lemon was sent to four years' penal servitude.

The judge told him: "What you did was a very meritorious act, but it is impossible for justice to be satisfied without awarding you a term of penal servitude."

Lemon and Arthur James Morris, 19, of Blackfriars, S.E., were charged with being concerned in breaking and entering a garage at Camberwell and stealing a car, receiving the car, breaking and entering a furrier's shop in East Ham, and stealing furs and receiving the furs.

Morris was sent to Borstal for three years.

TOLD 'SAFETY FIRST' IS CARRIED TOO FAR

"Boy Refuses Post—Wants Career With Pension"

Sheffield.—"The motto 'Safety First' is carried to absurd lengths when a boy refuses a post because he wants a career with a pension."

This indictment of caution in youth is made in a report to parents by L. Smith, headmaster of Sheffield secondary school for boys.

Four universities have written to him, he says, stating there is a shortage of trained civil, mechanical, and fuel engineers.

HIS ALIAS O.K.

London.—"What is your real name?" Registrar Friend asked a man at Clerkenwell county court, who had said it was "Alias Cohen," and the man replied, "Alias is my name."

TO PAY HEART BALM TWICE IN NINE YEARS

$750 Damages Awarded Against 59-Year-Old Ex-Councillor

Redcar (Yorkshire)—For the second time in nine years, William Powell Nicholls, 59-year-old ex-councillor, of Aske Rd., Redcar (Yorks.), learned that he would have to pay a girl in a breach of promise action.

A Durham assizes jury took 20 minutes to decide he must pay Eva Willoughby, 27-year-old former school teacher, of Queen's St., Redcar, £150 ($750) damages.

During the hearing Nicholls admitted that in 1929 he had been concerned in an action for breach by "a relative on his mother's side." His counsel, Paley Scott, explained that on that occasion Nicholls "settled the action and paid up like a man."

Mr. Paley Scott said Nicholls admitted giving Miss Willoughby a number of dresses and a fur coat costing about £20 ($100). Had he been engaged to her he would never have dreamed of giving her the "tawdry ring" produced in court.

RAILROAD DISRUPTED WHEN CALF IS BORN

Barn-Yard Event Occurs on Surrey Tracks

London.—Southern Railway traffic between Staines, Egham, Virginia Water and Chertsey, Surrey, was dislocated because a cow gave birth to a calf on the up line.

The animal was being driven with others across the line near Egham when the event took place.

Two trains could not make the journey and others were delayed.

ENGLAND'S RULERS SEE AIR DEFENSES

RE-INTER SCOT HERO OF WATERLOO CHARGE

Ensign Charles Ewart Captured One of Napoleon's Standards

Edinburgh.—The remains of Ensign Charles Ewart, Scots Greys hero of the Battle of Waterloo, were brought from Salford, Lancashire, to Edinburgh Castle.

The exhumation took place at dawn. The grave was in a Swedenborgian cemetery, now a timber storage yard, and part of the property of a printing works.

Ewart was a leader of the charge at the Battle of Waterloo, which was referred to by Field Marshal Lord Wolseley as "the greatest charge of all time."

He captured one of Napoleon's most cherished eagle standards, now preserved in Chelsea hospital.

When Ewart died in 1846, aged 77, he was buried in Salford. Months of inquiry by a Scots Greys veteran, Squadron-Sergeant-Major H. Otto, led to the discovery of the grave two years ago. The remains were re-interred. A memorial service and the unveiling of a memorial to the ensign was held in Edinburgh.

MUST HAVE THE NEWS

London.—A. P. Herbert, author-M.P., told the London master printers the world might get along without radio, telephone or aeroplane, but it must have the printing press.

GHOST OF MONK INTERRUPTS VIOLIN PRACTISE IN CHURCH

Last Time Apparition Reported as Seen Pillars Crashed to Ground

CAPTAIN SAW IT

Lewes.—Appearing in Fletching parish church, near Lewes, a ghostly, hooded monk has terrified the villagers.

Last time the monk appeared the pillars of the church crashed to the ground.

Captain P. Miller of the Church Army is now said to have seen the ghost.

He was practising his violin in the church when the monk appeared behind the pulpit, walked across the chancel, and disappeared through a door.

Capt. Miller picked up his belongings and fled.

Legend says the monk, messenger to Simon de Montfort before the battle of Lewes, was killed at the church.

The vicar, Rev. R. W. Burns Cox, related another omen associated with the ghost.

"On the wall near the chancel are the helmet, sword, gauntlets and spurs of the earls of Abergavenny," he said.

"They fell at the outbreak of the Crimean war and the great war.

"To allay anxiety I am going to have them fixed with strong copper wire so that they cannot fall—I hope."

E. W. JOHN, 90, DIES FATHER OF ARTIST

Walked Three Miles Weekly to Play Church Organ

London.—For more than a quarter of a century, Edwin William John, of Tenky (Pembrokeshire), played the organ in the tiny village church at Gumfreston.

He would walk there and back—three miles—every Sunday.

Last January, he was taken ill, he had to stop his walks and his organ-playing. And, recently, at the age of 90, he died.

John s a common enough name in Wales. But this Mr. John was no ordinary person. He was the father of one of the greatest painters of our time, Mr. Augustus John.

DIPLOMAS FOR BRIDES

Social Worker Prescribes Certain Educational Standard Ere Marriage

London.—British girls should go to school and get diplomas before they can become brides, like they do in Germany, Mrs. Elsie Cannenford, Australian social worker, said in an interview here. "Only then shall we have really happy marriages that last," she said.

COACHING ON THAMES

Southend, Eng.—For the first time in 30 years passenger boats known as "water coaches" are plying the lower reaches of the Thames river.

BRITISH WANT MALTA NEST OF WAR 'PLANES

Plan New Bases for Air Force —Double Garrison Barracks

Malta.—Great Britain is pushing a 10-year program to make Malta, her strongest naval base in the Mediterranean, a nest of war aeroplanes.

Malta to-day has only six flying-boats, two squadrons of bombers and one squadron of reconnaissance aeroplanes—not counting the navy's aeroplanes which always fly ashore to land bases when the fleet is in port. When the new defence program is finished, Malta will have a new flying-boat base at Kalafrana and aerodromes at Hal Far, La Venezia, Luka and St. Paul's Bay.

Additional flying-boat and seaplane anchorage is available in Marsaxelt harbor and another aerodrome could be built in a week on the Harsa football and polo grounds.

Harbor anchorage for five battleships, an aircraft-carrier, 20 destroyers and four 10,000-ton cruisers already exists. Two other good harbors are available in St. Paul's Bay and Marsaloc Bay. These are not yet equipped with anti-submarine nets.

Malta soon will have modern barracks for six battalions of infantry—double the present garrison—500 engineers and 1,000 artillerymen.

LITTLE GIRLS LURE SAILORS IN PORTS, SAYS UNION HEAD

Reports on British Centres So Bad Not Publishable, He Says

URGES REGULATION

London.—Revelations of bad conditions in British ports, the exploitation of sailors, degradation of young girls, and the spread of disease were made by Leonard Bowden of the National Union of Seamen.

Mr. Bowden, who is leading the campaign for a national clean-up of these areas, said the problem was largely a public-house one.

The main responsibility rested with the local authorities.

Little has been done to divert the seaman from the disreputable haunts which masquerade as cafes.

In Cardiff these cafes usually display only a few fly-blown pastries and a bottle of lemonade in their windows, but a smart girl at the door usually invites the sailor in, and carries a bottle of whiskey under her skirt.

A recent survey proved that 88 per cent. of the venereal disease in Cardiff came from abroad, and more than 50 per cent. of the cases in the mining valleys were traced to Cardiff.

"In Grimsby the undesirable houses are run as clubs," Mr. Bowden went on.

"The worst feature is the number of young girls—many of them mere children—used to lure the seamen into these places.

"Reports from five ports were of such a black character that it was decided not to publish them.

"Regulations are lax in port areas, as there is a general feeling among the authorities that sailors don't care."

Mr. Bowden said their plan was to set up in London, with government support, a committee of shipowners, seamen and representatives of local authorities.

Port areas should be scheduled and special regulations passed prohibiting unlicensed cafes which were really illegal pubs.

HONESTY SAID MARK OF CIVILIZED AREA

Belfast Stockbroker "Failed in Supreme Test"

Belfast.—"Honesty is one of the marks of a civilized community. Your honesty failed when put to the supreme test."

James J. H. Coates, 40, Belfast stockbroker, was sentenced to five years' penal servitude, following these remarks by Lord Justice Babington at Belfast commission. He had pleaded guilty to more than 70 charges of fraudulent conversion of clients' money, involving £25,000 ($125,000.)

GERMAN NAVAL MEN AT ENGLISH SERVICE

Falmouth, Eng.—Three hundred officers and men came ashore from the German warship Schleswig Holstein to join in a service at Falmouth parish church with British ex-servicemen and representatives of public organizations.

Rev. George Finke said that they were very happy in the thought that they were bound together by the bonds of peace and Christian belief.

'TIGON,' HALF TIGER FIERCE AS HE LOOKS

British Artist's Pet Resents Attentions of Boy

Sheffield.—A "tigon" cub—half lion, half tiger—which had been regarded as docile, yesterday clawed Joseph Skelton, aged six, of Carlisle Rd., Grimesthorpe, Sheffield, about the face. The boy was not seriously injured.

The cub, a pet, belongs to an artist appearing at a local theatre. The incident occurred outside a caravan where the cub was chained.

ASK CHIEF CONSTABLE STOP ROOSTER'S CROW

Requested to See If He Could Soothe Bird "A Little Bit"

Brighton. — Round three of the great Brighton cockfight was staged here when a summons was granted against the owner of the crowing rooster of Bear Rd.

The chief constable, Captain W. J. Hutchinson, who had promised the magistrates to "do what he could," failed to silence the rooster, which is owned by Arthur Chick.

The mother of a woman who has twice protested to the magistrates against the din, asked for a summons against Mr. Chick.

"We decided to leave this matter to the chief constable to see if he could soothe the rooster a little bit," said the chairman, B. J. Saunders. "How did the rooster behave last night?"

"It woke us all up at 5.40 yesterday," the woman replied. "This morning was the first time it has been quiet."

The deputy chief constable said the police had made another effort to stop the rooster from crowing.

BARONET MOTORIST'S LICENSE SUSPENDED

"Consider I Can Drive as Well Backwards as Forwards"

Sir Richard Powell, Bart., of Coleshill, near Amersham, was fined at Amersham for driving a car dangerously.

Constable Cliston said Sir Richard drove his car backwards for 390 paces in a busy shopping centre at a speed between 18 and 20 m.p.h. towards some cross-roads, where the car was turned.

Sir Richard said the road was clear at the time, but vehicles parked on the roadside made turning difficult, the manner in which he drove from one shop to another caused less inconvenience than would have been the case had he turned.

"I consider I can drive just as well backwards as I can forwards," he said.

It was stated that Sir Richard's driving license contained seven endorsements for speeding, involving fines. The magistrates disqualified him from driving for six months.

Sir Richard gave notice he intended to appeal and asked for his license back, saying: "I am not a rich man. I have not a chauffeur and cannot afford one. I travel all over the country and cannot do without a car. It will mean a very serious loss."

The magistrate refused to remove the disqualification.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

FOUR NATIONS CONCERNED IN PENAL COLONY FUGITIVE

Britain, France, United States and Denmark Take Note

HIS BOARD IS PAID

Kingston, Jamaica.—When Raymond Vaudet, 36-year-old fugitive from France's penal colony of Cayenne, stowed away on the Danish steamship Amerika, bound from Kingston to Colon, Panama, he started a four-cornered international problem. It involves France, Great Britain, Denmark and the United States.

Vaudet was jailed when the Amerika docked at Cristobal. At first it seemed another simple immigration law offence and canal zone officials intended returning him to Kingston by the Amerika or any other ship of the same line at its cost. Then they discovered Kingston refused to take him.

An appeal to the French consul brought no better luck. While Vaudet claimed to be a fugitive from Cayenne and even described the details of the house-break which resulted in a five-year sentence, French prison authorities showed little interest in having him returned to complete his term.

Meanwhile the line pays his canal zone jailers $1.50 a day for his keep. The steamship owners brought pressure on the Danish government and at the latter's request the French consul in the canal zone has forwarded Vaudet's dossier to Paris for action.

REFUSED GERMAN-MADE

Pretoria.—M. C. Green, Labor member in the South African assembly, deplored the fact members were supplied with German-made pencils. He refused to use them.

FUNERAL IS DELAYED TO BRING IN CROP

Mourners Save Deceased's Wheat Ere Burying Him

Melbourne, Australia.—The funeral of Herbert J. Harper of nearby Horsham was delayed while mourners harvested his standing crop of wheat.

Women assisted 39 men with eight harvesting machines. They began work at dawn and paused in mid-afternoon to bury the farmer.

After the funeral they worked into the night to save the crop from an impending rainstorm.

BONE OF 'PEKIN MAN' FOUND NEAR PEIPING

Peiping.—Another portion of the "Pekin Man," a thigh bone, has been discovered by archaeologists who have been at work ever since the first portions of the "Pekin Man" were unearthed.

The latest discovery was made while sorting out material excavated before the Sino-Japanese hostilities broke out.

Since then no work on the actual site of the original find outside the town has been permitted.

(The "Pekin Man" is considered to have lived as early or earlier than the "Java ape man".)

10 DAYS IN 24 HOURS

New Delhi, India.—Normally taking 10 days by railway, motor car and mule, the journey from Delhi to Gilgit, of the Tibetan frontier, was made by a Royal Air Force aeroplane carrying vaccine in 24 hours.

GERMANY MOBILIZED IN WAR UPON RATS

There's a Rodent for Each Individual in Land of Naziism

Berlin.—Nazi Germany has declared war on its countless rats.

There can be no doubt that the Nazis will come out victorious in that battle, and they have sworn to fight until the very last "enemy" is killed. Preparations for this war have been almost scientific.

German statisticians rate the total number of rats equal to the number of human individuals—one rat per person—that means 75 millions of rats are living the underground life of outlaws right within the borders of otherwise minutely regulated Nazidom.

Every rat, it is stated, eats two ounces of food daily, that amounts to more than 25 pounds a year. The horde of rats, therefore, consumes 780,000 tons of foodstuffs every year. This means a yearly loss of 300 million marks to the German food budget.

Every German has been ordered to take part in the war on rats. Special days have been fixed for "general mobilization". On these days every owner of houses, estates, and every authority owning buildings and other property must distribute rat poison on its area.

MORE JOBS IN AUSTRALIA

Canberra, Australia.—Australia's industrial employment is hitting an all-time high, with more than 500,000 persons engaged in factory work.

Employment in factories is 15 per cent. higher than in 1928-29, last of the "boom" years. It is four per cent. higher considering the increase in employee population in the intervening years.

DIVORCES HIS WIFE BY SAYING GET OUT

Sultan of Johore Will Visit England and United States

Singapore.—The Sultan of Johore, who divorced his wife, formerly Mrs. William Watson, widow of a Glasgow doctor, by pronouncing the word "talak" (get out), is shortly to visit England and the United States.

He left for Ceylon and will reach London in July, staying for a fortnight.

The sultan stated that he had treated the sultana with "extreme generosity, which should ensure her a very comfortable existence." It is understood that the Sultana is to receive £5,000 ($25,000) a year and to retain her personal jewelry valued at £44,000 (220,000) under the Malay custom that all the jewellry and household requisites are the property of the divorced woman.

According to the Mohammedan faith, they were married at Woking mosque seven years ago.

Besides the ceremony at Woking they were married at Prince's Row register office, Kensington, so the marriage still remains valid in British law.

Mohammedan custom allows a husband to divorce his wife by saying the work "Talak" (get out) four times.

BURGLAR APOLOGIZES

London.—Sentenced to four years' imprisonment, 26-year-old John Shadwell offered apologies to a couple whose flat he burgled.

LIVED TO RECOVER

Beaconsfield, Eng.—Walking about for a month unknowingly with a fractured skull, L. Vaughan Watkin at length consulted a doctor. He is recovering.

BLONDE CURLS IN HER HOME HAS WOMAN SHOOTING MAD

Husband Is Awarded Three Cents Damages for Wounding

PROMISES DOCILITY

Paris.—Damages of one franc —(three cents)—were awarded by a Paris court to a German who was alleged to have been shot and wounded by his English wife.

The woman, Mrs. Eugene Lindauer, 37-year-old ex-chorus girl, who has relatives in Sheffield, was given a suspended sentence of two years' imprisonment and fined 100 francs (about $3.)

She met Lindauer in Morocco when he was a sergeant in the French Foreign Legion. On leaving the legion he came to Paris, where they were married in February, 1936.

Lindauer became a hotel porter in the Rue de la Boethie, while Mrs. Lindauer gave English lessons.

One day, the court was told, Mrs. Lindauer found blonde curls in their home, purchased a revolver, and told her lawyer she was going to kill her husband. The lawyer took the weapon away from her.

On Nov. 12 of last year, however, a stormy scene took place, and Mrs. Lindauer, who had meanwhile purchased another revolver, shot her husband.

In a final appeal to the judges, Mrs. Lindauer said she would not molest her husband and would return to England.

ON LIGHT DIET

Rome.—Eating plums and reading his newspaper, a man in Naples picked up a small electric light bulb and swallowed it. X-rays showed the bulb intact in his stomach. It was removed.

PARIS BUILDING LAW PLANS FOR AIR RAIDS

New Structures Must Resist Bombs

Paris.—New buildings in Paris and the Seine department must now conform to certain standards of safety against air attack.

Regulations for builders specify —Roofs strong enough to withstand a 20-pound incendiary bomb; walls separating buildings at least two feet higher than the roof; basements able to take the weight of the whole house if it collapses.

PARIS AUTO DEATHS DECREASE STEADILY

Paris.—The French are angry because certain authorities want to limit the legal speed of automobiles.

And, much to the surprise of every foreigner, fatal accidents in Paris have actually decreased in the past seven years although the number of automobiles has increased. The French, like the Italians, drive at a speed and apparent recklessness that terrifies the American visitor. Yet here are the fatal accident figures as compiled by the chief of police: For the year 1930, 280; for the year 1935, 231; and for the year 1937, 216.

CAPE RECORD BEATEN

Cape Town.—Using a Junkers aeroplane, Capt. J. D. Rademan set up a new commercial record flying from Cape Town to Durban, 863 miles, in four hours, 15 minutes, an average of 205 miles an hour.

ORGAN BREAKS AFIRE IN NORWICH CHURCH

Cathedral Clergy Take Off Surplices and Join Firefighters

Norwich.—While the first psalm was being chanted at evensong in Norwich cathedral fire broke out in the organ, which was almost completely destroyed.

Flames were first seen coming coming from a switch above the vice-dean's stall. A lay clerk, Mr. Frazer, turned off a master switch. In his cassock and surplice he went up into the organ with another lay clerk, Mr. Shackleton.

Blinded by smoke and scorched by the heat, they fought the flames with extinguishers.

The precentor, Rev. Noel Boston, the choir and congregation continued to sing the psalm, unaccompanied, till Mr. Frazer, seeing that efforts to extinguish the flames were of no avail, shouted "Fire brigade."

The service ended abruptly, a member of the congregation summoned the brigade, and the clergy, led by the dean, Dr. D. S. H. Cranage, took off their surplices and joined the firefighters.

When the Norwich city brigade arrived a hose was run through the great west door to the choir. Water was showered on the organ. Rivers of it ran down the floor of the nave.

By this time the whole cathedral was filled with smoke. When firemen hacked at the woodwork of the organ the great pipes came tumbling into the choir loft.

The outbreak, which was soon under control, is believed to have been due to a defect in the electrical blowing apparatus.

700 Men Attend Mission In Ashburnham

More than 700 men crowded the Church of the Immaculate Conception Tuesday night as the Mission being conducted by two priests of the Passionist Order continued. Last week the women of the three Catholic parishes took part and the services this week continuing until Saturday night, are for the men.

Rev. Father Augustine, who preached rapped the indifferent Catholic who does not attend Mass every Sunday, and dubbed such an action as a "deliberate mortal sin of sloth." This habit of missing Mass is increasing and he added the man who expressed belief in the Catholic faith, then refuses to practise this belief by attending Mass is no better than a pagan."

"Mother Church has made its law that every Catholic must attend Mass on Sunday, but still the Church does not command impossibilities, and there are times when it is necessary for a man to miss Mass." These exceptions are rare and we usually find that the man who has an alibi to miss Mass on Sunday finds the alibi does not apply when he has to go to work on Monday. The man who is the victim of some secret sin such as immortality is usually the one who stays home on Sunday morning.

Power of Example.

We often hear a Catholic man say, "I do not attend Mass but I make my children go." This man said the priest, is talking nonsense. He may have some success while the children are young, but only the power of example can induce young men and women to attend Mass. If the parents are lax in this regard the children follow in their footsteps.

"It is a fact that many men are stingy with God. You will find that the last person into church is always the first one out, and if you investigate further you will find these same people are never late for a theatre performance or a baseball game.

Father Augustine said that man by his very condition as a creature is bound to adore God, and the chief form of adoration is sacrifice. Sacrifice is the highest form of external religion. It is the one form offered to God alone, and from sunrise to sunset throughout the world the greatest sacrifice, the Holy Eucharist, is offered to God. He explained that the Church teaches the sacrifice on Calvary and the sacrifice of the Mass are the same.

At the close of the sermon Father Augustine urged the men to attend confession early in the week, and if possible to receive Holy Communion twice before the Mission ended.

Bring Men Closer to God.

Referring to a common belief among many Catholics that they will be severely reprimanded when they confess their sins to a Mission Father, he said: "We are not here to drive you away from God, it is our hope to bring you closer to Him; any sins you may have committed are not offences against us, but against Him. Do not have any fear of going to Confession, you will not be scolded. He told the audience that a person who makes his confession should be able to say as he leaves the church, "If I died this minute I am ready to meet my God.' Confessions will be heard every evening after Benediction, during the 5.30 and 7.00 o'clock morning masses, after the last mass, and between 4 o'clock and 5.45 o'clock every afternoon.

Rev. Father Canice, the other Missioner, gave a brief talk of instruction on confession dealing with contrition and said in part: "It is possible for a man to obtain forgiveness without confession, but it is not possible without sorrow. Sins may be confessed, but if the sorrow does not exist there is no forgiveness. This sorrow, he added, must come from the heart and does not consist of any hypocritical striking of the breast or shedding of crocodile tears.

Contrition, said Father Canice, is as necessary to penance as water is to the Sacrament of Baptism, and the most perfect form of contrition that anyone can have is the sorrow one feels because their sins have offended God.

He urged the men making the mission to make the Stations of the Cross at every opportunity and at least once a day. Meditating on the passion of our Lord as the stations are being made is one of the finest ways of arousing genuine sorrow for sins.

Benediction, reciting the rosary and sermon will be held every evening, including Saturday, with Masses at 5.30 and 7.00 in the morning. Each morning Mass lasts exactly 45 minutes. On Thursday evening Father Augustine will speak on "Religion in the Home" and every married man in the parish should hear this discourse.

It was largely attended by relatives and friends both from this district, and from Rochester and Pennsylvania where the deceased was known. The profusion of floral tokens and the numerous spiritual offerings, as well as the host of friends who visited the home over the week-end gave testimony of the high esteem in which the deceased was held. Plea Is Changed To Not Guilty

"I did not know then that a man could not be convicted of the theft of something of which he was part owner," Louis M. Corbett told Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning as he asked that he be allowed to change his plea to not guilty in the charge against him of stealing two sets of boxing gloves, the property of the Riverview Athletic Club.

Corbett had previously pleaded guilty to the charge and was to have been sentenced today.

Magistrate Langley decided to remand him until Friday. "I am not going to change the plea until the crown attorney has been consulted," he told Corbett.

The latter was also remanded until Friday on a charge of false pretences on which he had pleaded guilty and of non-support to which he had entered a plea of not guilty.

Kenneth Roy who had also pleaded guilty to the theft of boxing gloves also asked the court today to be allowed to change his plea also to not guilty. He too was remanded until Friday.

Drunken Driver Given 10 Days, Car Impounded

Visiting Cole Brothers Circus here Tuesday night has proved to be a very expensive luxury for Charles Orr and Roy Bryne of Campbellcroft. The two arrived in town in Bryne's car, with Orr doing the driving and the automobile was in poor mechanical condition and apparently the occupants were not in good shape either.

At any rate the manner in which the car was being driven on Lansdowne street, just as the circus crowd was dispersing attracted the attention of Provincial Traffic Officers Lloyd McClure and Gordon Broughton who were on duty at that point and Officer Broughton arrested the two men and brought them to the police station where they were locked up.

This morning before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Orr was charged with drunken driving and pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

Traffic Officer Broughton told the court that the car Orr had been driving was in very bad shape mechanically and Magistrate Langley announced that he would call the attention of the authorities to the necessity of forbidding the use of the machine again until it had been satisfactorily repaired.

Orr explained that the car was not his but belonged to Bryne.

A second charge against Orr who incidentally was the fourth drunken driver to be sentenced here in four days was withdrawn.

Bryne was charged with being drunk and pleaded guilty. He was fined $15 and $4.50 costs.

"I never impose the minimum fine in cases where there has been drinking in cars," Magistrate Langley told Bryne.

"You will not be allowed to take that car out again until it is placed in satisfactory condition," he added.

Reckless Driving Charges Adjourned

A number of charges of reckless driving were adjourned when called in traffic court before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning.

Carl Stevenson pleaded not guilty to reckless driving on Romaine street on May 30 and the case was adjourned until June 14 when the Crown was not ready to proceed.

He was represented by J. Walton Stevenson.

Harold Forsythe, facing a similar charge arising out of the same accident, was also told that his case would be heard next Tuesday.

By consent two charges against J. J. Brady of reckless driving and driving with inadequate brakes, were adjourned for two weeks. The court was told that the woman who had been injured in the accident had had to be taken to Toronto for treatment for a badly fractured arm and her testimony would not be available for some time. T. J. Carley, K.C., is acting for Brady.

Edward Mullins, 19, of Norwood, pleaded guilty to driving a motor vehicle on Highway No. 7 without a license and was fined $10 and $1.25 costs, the Magistrate giving him two weeks in which to find the money to pay his fine.

Driving without a license also cost Roger C. Benton and George Close $10 and costs, while Georgina Davis paid $2 and 75c costs for failure to procure a license.

J. J. De Carlo was assessed $5 and $2.50 costs for speeding in the township of Smith. N. Duranceau was fined $2 and 75 cents costs for angle parking and Sidney Rutherford the same amount for double parking.

Exceeding the speed limit set I. V. Hughes back $10 and $2.50 costs on a plea of guilty.

Groom Is Given Lighter Fine

The fact that he has just recently joined the ranks of the benedicts made conditions a little easier for Victor Brown, 20, of Lakefield, when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in traffic court this morning to reckless driving on Highway 28.

"He drove across the railway tracks at Kendry at 45 to 50 miles an hour and across the crossing at Fraserville at between 55 and 60 miles," Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure told the magistrate. "He also tried to pass another car when traffic conditions made the operation dangerous.

"Brown has only recently been married," the traffic officer added with a smile "and we do not want to be too hard on him."

"We might throw off part of the fine as a wedding present," suggested Magistrate Langley.

Brown was fined $10 and $2.50 costs and his license was suspended for ten days.

Gored By Pet Bull

LACOMBE, Alta., June 8—(CP).—Victim of the attack of a "pet" bull Saturday, W. L. Ingraham, district farmer, is in critical condition in hospital here with a throat wound. Ingraham's dog drove the enranged animal from his wounded master, enabling Mrs. Ingraham and a hired man to drag him to safety.

Japanese War Machine Stalled

This machine, a tank, that goes with hundreds of others to make up the great Japanese war machine in China, seems to be having difficulties, as it stalls while trying to plow through a shell-shattered wall west of Hsuchow. The Japanese met an unexpected set-back here, being forced to retreat before a determined Chinese counter-attack.

WILD STAWBERRIES.

Kenneth Stewart, student minister of Wesley United Church, North Smith, called at the Examiner office on Wednesday morning and displayed several luscious ripe wild strawberries, a sample of some he picked the evening before as he strolled along the south shore of Buckhorn Lake. Mr. Stewart states that although he has picked all varieties of wild berries and enjoys the avocation, this, he believes, is the earliest occasion (June 9) on which he has gathered wild strawberries. "I picked and sold hundreds of quarts in my boyhood days in the highlands of Haliburton County," said Mr. Stewart. Prospects for a bumper crop abound, but Mr. Stewart is certain his patch is secure.

HORSES INSPECTED

On receipt of a complaint that some of the horses in the Cole Brothers-Clyde Beatty Circus were suffering from sore shoulders Dr. T. Johnston, inspector for the local branch of the Royal Humane Society and Provincial Constable David Silvester made a thorough examination of all the circus horses Tuesday and found everything in most satisfactory condition. "There was not a horse in the whole show that had a sore of any kind," Constable Silvester stated today. The officials were thanked by the management of the circus for their visit. Circus executives said that their animals were always available for inspection and that every effort was made to keep them in perfect shape.

Unusual Charge Heard In Court

There was an unusual charge against F. E. Whipp in Traffic Court this morning, that of having, while riding a bicycle, taken hold of another vehicle for the purpose of being drawn along.

Whipp, who had been riding with his hand on the back of a motor car, pleaded guilty, and was fined $2.00, and 75 cents costs.

"It is a dangerous practice," the Magistrate said.

Whipp intimated that he would take the alternative of three days in jail rather than pay the fines.

"If I give you a week to get your fine, will you be able to pay it then?" asked Magistrate Langley.

Whipp replied to the effect that he could not afford to do so.

"Well, I am going to give you a week to pay, anyway," replied the Magistrate.

School Sections Favor Merging

Although several scrool sections in Otonabee have voted against the unified administration plan, others have taken the opposite attitude declaring themselves in favor of a merger of present trustees' boards into one generally directing body. The Keene ratepayers meet to-night. Mather's Corners section was unanimously in favor of the idea. Zion is also on the affirmative side and so is Providence School near the Golf Course. It was rumored that Lang ratepayers may hold another meeting to reconsider their decision of last week. Another report intimated the Villiers section wish to retain the present system.

At any rate there is a group of schools that might be amalgamated to form one large section for economy of administration and the other advantages including the special grant from the Department.

Demands Autonomy

The hard-pressed democracy of Czechoslovakia was hurled into a new crisis when Father Andrej Hlinka (above), white-haired chief of the Slovak Catholic People's party, led 100,000 persons in turbulent demonstration for autonomy of the southern province of Slovakia, home of three million. Meanwhile, Nazis, under the leadership of Konrad Henlein, are demanding autonomy of another three million Sudetan Germans. Caught between two fires, so to speak, is President Benes, who must rule on the demands of both Hlinka and Henlein.

Find Drowned Man

QUYON, Que., June 8 (C.P.). — The body of Gaspard Chene, 35, of Ottawa, who drowned with three companions while on a fishing trip last May 14, was found floating in the Ottawa River last night. Bodies of Russell Radcliffe, Wilfrid Bolduc and Paul Paquin were found during the last two weeks.

Only eight per cent. of union labor workers in Australia are unemployed.

Clyde Beatty Went Fishing

Clyde Beatty is a great fisherman as well as a great animal trainer, according to Charlie Carson, who took Beatty, his wife, and Cole Brothers' top notch clown Crinkle on a fishing expedition on Tuesday afternoon following the performance.

Charlie wouldn't tell whether Beatty caught any fish, but he said he is a great sportsman and knows the game from the ground up. The party fished on Rice Lake near Keene.

Stopping briefly at one farm house in the district, the fishermen asked the lady of the house if she intended going to the circus. She said she was not, bemoaned the fact that people in that district seldom saw the great show attractions. She did not know that the show's greatest drawing cards were there in her own farm yard.

Two-Month Term For Illegal Sale

Changing his plea to guilty, Ray Lee, who had a few days ago pleaded not guilty to a charge of illegal sale of liquor was sentenced by Magistrate Langley in police court this morning to two months in jail.

Lee's arrest had followed the finding by the police of two men drinking beer in a car on Memorial Park hill.

"You understand this means imprisonment," the Magistrate said.

Lee nodded assent, and the magistrate went on to point out that a sentence of from two to four months could be imposed.

"Would you just as soon have the four as two?" he asked the accused and when there was no reply from Lee the court made the sentence two months.

FIESTA

BY OREN ARNOLD

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

CHAPTER 8

If you have never worked with a lariat or lived around Mexican cattle ranches, you can have no idea what a formidable weapon the looped piece of rope can be.

It can be made to dart out with the accuracy and power of a striking snake, can render a man helpless in the time that would be required to unholster a gun. A true expert will choose his rope and give you a loaded pistol—and beat you in combat every time. In a flash your arms wil lbe entangled. In four, six, maybe 10 seconds, you will be tied hand and foot and prone on the ground, pleading for your life.

But whoever handled the loop that unseated Bill Baron was no expert. Bill was jerked from his saddle, but he hit the ground fighting.

Six or eight bronze-black men rushed out. Bill met the first one with a terrilfc lunge of his two feet, caught the Indian full in the stomach and flattened him.

"Beel! Beel!"

Panola waited there screaming. Her horse was rearing in the excitement, and she might much better have urged him to flee so that she could send help. But she was transfixed with terror. In another moment it was too late. One of the Yaquis had grabbed her bridle reins.

The second Indian went down as a result of a head thrust. Bill's arms still being held by the loop, he butted this attacker in the chest, as he had occasionally done in amateur wrestling. He himself bounced back, slipping the loop above his shoulders.

For a few seconds grave danger indeed confronted him; the loop was about to tighten around his neck, which would of course have choked him down immediately. But Bill Baron had remarkable strength. He fought free.

A hubbub of voices had been added to Panolas calling and screechings. The girl herself was putting up a good scrap so that two and finally three men went to handle her.

"Don't fight, Panola!" Bill yelled. "They'll kill you!"

But he did not practice his own preachment. He fought with astounding fury, wondering why some of the men didn't shoot.

The Yaquis were almost naked, except that all wore breech cloths and one man wore a pair of old pants. Their hair was long and matted, their skins like copper statues that sadly needed grime and tarnish removed.

Each one had carried a gun or other weapon, but evidently they had agreed not to use the arms, for they might have shot the two riders from ambush in the first place.

Bill Baron's fist connected with one grimacing attacker, smacked him full in the face. The man sat down, grunting, dazed.

But in the same instant something struck Bill, and when he shook his head to consciousness again he was trussed securely with the rope.

"Panola!" he called, instantly.

She was behind him, similarly tied. An Indian had the palm of his hand clamped over her mouth to silence her. But she was still grunting and groaning and squirming. When the man took his hand away, she gave him what must have been a classic bit of vituperation in the Spanish language.

"It wont do any good," said Bill, sensibly. "We'd better wait and take it easy.

"But what iss it? Why they do thees?" Panola demanded.

"You've got me there. Aren't these Yaquis? And don't they hate Mexicans"?

"Yes, Beel, but w-what have we doze?" Panola was trembling, her face strained. The girl was obviously frightened as well as angry, and of colurse justifiably so.

"Quien sabe," said Bill, reverting to Spanish.

They couldn't talk any more then because they were being picked up and carried by the Indians, who were themselves maintaining a constant chattering. Yaquis usually speak a dialect of their own language but combined with Spanish, thus Bill and Panola were able to follow most of their talk.

The man whom Bill had first flattened with the stomach blow presented a problem to the Yaquis. He was still very much in pain; Bill's two feet had hurt him. He appeared unable to travel.

Worse than that, he wanted to kill Bill, now that the white coupie were secured tied.

"Es la pavalina!" the man growled, pointing at Bill.

That was figuratively true, for Bill had indeed fought like the javalina—the long-tusked ferocious hog that runs wild in Sonora, as dangerous as a jaguar and feared by all men. The Yaqui would have dispatched his captive with pleasure now.

But killing evidently wasn't in the Indians' plan. They put Bill and Panola back on the Montoya horses, and led the animals a few hundred yards farther up the trail where mounts of their own were concealed.

"They must have seen us comming from a distance," Bill told Panola in English, "and decided to ambush us."

"They hate us," she told him, fearfully. "My brother Fay-leex, he have fight them, with the soldier. Los Yaquis are enemy of Montoya, Beel."

"It might be a kidnaping then. Or revenge."

"I am escared."

Bill grinned a little wryly.

"So am I, sister, if it gets down to that. These ropes aren't any too comfortable, either."

"What weel we do?"

"You haven't made up my mind."

It was as near as Bill ever came to telling her that she was to blame, that she had led him out to ride and was technically responsible for taking him too far from the safety of the Montoya acres.

He began to consider that ride. They must have come six or eight miles, for it had been most pleasant and the horses had been full of energy. The sun now told him it was past noon, too.

Anger suffused the young American anew. Anger at Panola as well as at the Indians. She must have known of the danger, known when they rode off her father's lands and into a region where enemies of the Montoyas lurked. For a moment he even considered the possibility of her having arranged the capture for some reason of her own, but her evident fright precluded that, he realized. Panola really was a scared girl, pale and trembly. And she was being roughly handled.

"Best not make any more trouble than necessary," he suggested. "These men have us outnumbered, and helpless now. It will be easier to bide our time. Maybe we can get our hands free later, some way."

Bill tried conversing with the Indians, but they would not talk. He inspected their horses, their scanty clothing, their weapons. It was obvious that these men lived a hard life, almost of savagery. Their faces looked as uncivilized as those of any American Indians he had ever seen or ever seen pictured.

"I don't need to tell you that these Yaquis are a tough lot, Panola," he said, after a bit. "You ought to know more about them than I do. I've heard of them, the way the Mexican people have been fighting them off and on for years, and have never subdued them. You say your dad and brother have had trouble with them before. Have you anything to suggest now? I mean, as to what they want?"

"No. I am escared."

"Yeah, I know that."

He role in silence for 10 minutes or so. The party was winding up a rocky canyon, climbing fast, moving past great boulders. The valley back behind them was hidden from view now. They travelled no very well defined trail, but the Yaquis seemed to know where they were going. Bill imagined a village would be somewhere over the next mountain ridge, which he estimated to be four or five miles farther on. It was going to be a hard journey, tied as he and Panola were.

Suddenly, though, he laughed a little to himself.

Bill Baron was still a young man. Indian wars in America had ended long before he was born. If anybody had told him a week ago that he could be captured and taken into a camp of savage Indians, tribesmen still as wild and dangerous as the Apaches or Comanches were 70 years ago, he would have put it down as childish romancing.

And yet—here he was! With a white girl on his hands, too; just like something out of a story book.

The United States might be safe and modern and settled now, but in Mexico, he realized, time definitely has not marched on! He smiled again.

A Lovely Rock Garden Easy to Start

Beautify Bare Spaces

Fascinating to make a rock garden, to transform a dull corner into a beauty spot!

You can easily make a little slope—if you haven't one already—with garden loam and sand. The rocks you tuck snugly into the earth, arranging them irregularly to give the effect of a real woodland dell.

To give height to your miniature "landscape," plant dwarf evergreens, tiny pines, yews, firs.

If your spot is shady, ferns, bleeding hearts and arbutus do beautifully. If it's sunny, lichens, creeping phlox and yellow alyssum thrive best.

And plant with a plan! It's a delight to create an unusual effect—a "waterfall" of pinks cascading over the rocks. Clever to think ahead, too, and put in the evergreen bearberry for winter cheer.

Start now to enjoy your rock garden this summer. Our 32-page booklet gives easy instructions. How to make lily pools, too.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO MAKE ROCK GARDENS AND LILY POOLS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

DOROTHY DIX

Much of the Matrimonial Turmoil of Today Is Due to the Fact That Couples Are Unsuited to Each Other Because of Their Environments

BOYS and girls, if you want to be happy though married, marry in your own class, intellectually, socially, financially. There is nothing like having the same background to prevent arguments between husband and wives, and nothing so promotes harmony between them as to be able to see eye to about things because they were brought up with the same point of view.

An intelligent man has nothing to say to a stupid woman after he quits asking her: "Oose prettikens is oo?" and he is bored to death with her. A cultured woman is always ashamed of her ignorant husband and rubs her college degree in on him.

Both the man and woman who marry above their station find that they have invaded the Arctic Circle and it takes them pears and years to get acclimated and grow a skin thick enough to withstand the frozen welcome they get from their new relatives.

Poor girls who marry rich men are suspected of being gold-diggers by their husbands, and nothing but the grace of God can support a man under the strain of being the poor husband of a rich wife.

Marry someone who is as much like you are as possible and who has the same tastes that you have. This may be the expression of ultimate vanity, but it is the best insurance you can take out against divorce. None of us want originality and individuality in our mates. What we crave is a rubber stamp; some one who likes the same kind of food that we do; who reads the same books; laughs at the same jokes and wants to spend money on the same things we do.

Any couple can be happy who dote on symphony concerts or swing music; who like to step out or stay at home; who enjoy spending money or watching the savings bank grow. The trouble comes in when one has classical music taste and the other beer; when one is a pinch-penny and the other a spender; when one wants to go places and the other stays put.

Take a good, hard, long look at your prospective in-laws before you really annex them. Don't kid yourself into thinking it doesn't matter who or what they are because you are not marrying Mary's or John's family. It is going to make a whale of a lot of difference to you whether you can stand listening with fortitude to father-in-law's views on how the world should be run, or whether it is going to drive you to drink. And your happiness is going to depend more than you thing on how you react to mother-in-law's advice. Because, like the poor, they will always be with you.

More than that, if you will observe how John's or Mary's father and mother treat each other, you will get a good line on what sort of husband and wife John and Mary will make. If Mary's mother is a husband-spoiler, her husband will be petted and coddled and deferred to. But if Mary's mother walks roughshod over her husband, Mary will follow suit and make a doormat of hers. Similarly, if John's father regards a wife as merely a useful household convenience, that is the light in which John will always see his.

Count the cost before you marry, not only in dollars and cents but also in personal sacrifices. Like everything else in life that is worth having, marriage comes high, and, if you aren't willing to pay the price, keep out of it. Don't marry unless you are making enough to live in reasonable comfort. You will be just as hungry after marriage as you were before. You will have the same need of a decent shelter. You will need clothes and amusements, have doctors' bills, and you will find that there isn't much love that wil survive doing without all the things you are used to and being harried by debts and pursued by bill collectors.

Don't marry until you are ready to give up your personal freedom and adapt yourself to the ways and habits of your mate. Don't marry until you have had your fill of flirtations and are ready to settle down and be faithful to the one you marry.

And, above all, be loved, pick out the kind of husband and wife you want and need instead of selecting an entirely different piece of goods and expecting to make it over when you get it home. Don't mary a drunkard or a roue or ne'er-do-well thinking you can reform him. Don't marry a silly, selfish, spoiled girl thinking you can turn her into a wise, unselfish saint. It can't be done. Use your head as well as your heart in making your choice. Then stick to your bargain and make the best of it. And luck to you.

ONE ROUND TOO SOON

WHEN YOU see the declarer can win the third round of trumps in the dummy, then run its long suit, you may embarrass him by making the dummy ruff. If that cuts the dummy's trumps to a doubleton, the declarer's sole entry there may come too soon for him, before your side's trumps are gone. By so doing, you make it impossible for him to run the dummy's suit, as your side then has a trump to ruff it.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

North and South reached a contract of 4-Hearts on this deal and West led the spade 2 to the first trick. After cashing the spade K and the spade A, East tried to fathom just what defense could set this contract.

With the heart Q as an entry to dummy, East reckoned that the diamond suit looked dangerous, as two leads of that suit and one ruff of it would set it up.

The lead of the spade 2 by West indicated that South probably held one more card in that suit, so East led the spade Q, forcing declarer to ruff in dummy. This play killed South's chances of ever setting up the diamond suit, as South was obliged to lead trumps three times to clear the suit.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"Now look through the telescope," Knarf said to Hanid, "and tell me if you see any birds' nests with eggs in them." The shadow children, you remember, were floating over the oak tree in their soap-bubble balloon. The telescope was a bit of hollow straw. Knarf was the captain of the balloon flight; Hanid was his assistant.

"No, I don't see any....Oh, yes," she exclaimed suddenly. "I see one bird's nest.

"Very good. How many eggs are in the nest?"

"No eggs at all. A bird is sitting in the nest."

"H'mm, then she's sitting on the eggs. What kind of a bird is it? Can you tell me that?"

"It's a robin."

"Very good," said Captain Knarf. "That will be all. Put the telescope down and hold my legs while I lean over the side of the balloon and talk to that robin."

"Tell me if you can see any nests."

So Hanid held Knarf's legs while the captain leaned over the side of the balloon and called down to the robin: "Hello there, Mrs. Robin. Hoy many eggs are you sitting on this time?"

She Has Four.

"Four eggs," Mrs. Robin said, looking up at Knarf in the bubble balloon.

"When will they hatch?"

"The day after to-morrow, I hope. Will you come and see them? I'm quite sure they're all going to be fine birds."

"Of course, we'll come and see them."

Here Hanid, who had heard th conversation while holding Kna from falling out of the balloo broke in to say: "Ask her, Knar if she minds if the children com and see them. They'd love to, yo know."

'Do you mind if the children com and see them, too?" Knarf calle down to Mrs. Robin.

"Mind? Well — I don't mind they promise not to disturb then or take them out of the nest. Wi they promise that?"

"Oh yes. They won't distur them at all. I know they won't They'd just like to see them, that all."

And then the breeze came alon and blew the bubble balloon bac over the garden wall and bac into the garden where the children wer sitting . Then it fell to the groun and burst. The two shadows ra over to the children to tell the about Mrs. Robin and her eggs.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

Looking Back
On This Date

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 8

It may be true, sometimes, that spectators see the best of the game, but it also happens, at times, that the details of an event can be better told by a participant. That was the case concerning the landing of British troops near Louisbourg on June 8, 1758, 180 years ago. One of the most succinct records of that expedition was written by William Amherst, brother of the great Jeffery. After telling how operations had been delayed for some days by heavy fog and rolling seas, he thus narrated the manner in which Wolfe and his men landed on Gabarus bay and were thus able to begin the real atack upon the great fortress:

At daybreak the ships began their firing. Under cover of this the boats moved briskly in to the shore, where the surf was greater than was expected, so much that a place could hardly be found to put a boat on shore; an attempt was made and succeeded surprisingly. The Grenadiers (with Wolfe in command) landed first, to be followed by the Light Infantry, Irregulars and Highlanders; and this was done at a place which appeared almost inaccessible, from the violence of the surf, under a very brisk fire of cannon and small arms from entrenchments all around the cove. The Light Infantry were very alert, flanked the entrenchments and forced the enemy to retire. We seized their batteries, took and drove some skulkers out of the woods and pursued the main body, who ran hard for it towards the town. The men behaved with a great deal of spirit in the affair and showed a remarkable instance of coolness in keeping their fire, not a shot being fired from the boats, nor till it could do execution on shore.

"The centre division followed and landed immediately after the first at the cove and then the division upon the right landed at the same place. By this this the second embarkation were ready to land. The troops were all marched in by noon and that night we lay upon our arms. Fewer men were killed in this attack than could be expected. We took about 20 pieces of cannon."

The next day camp was marked out and supplies and ammunition were landed. Then commenced the siege, with all its desperate attacks on forts and in trenches until July 27, when the French surrendered. But this landing on June 8 was the real beginning of the fall of the "Gibraltar of America" and gave James Wolfe that renown which put him at the head of the army which attacked Quebec a year later.

MARMORA

Daniel Campion Pioneer Passes 83 Mark

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, June 8. — To have seen eighty-three summers is now the claim of Daniel Campion, who had his birthday anniversary on Monday of this week.

It was in an old shanty on what was known as The Island in the old Johns Settlement in North Marmora that this sturdy retired farmer first saw the light of day. The shanty with its scoop roof, as Dan will tell you, was built by his father, the late George Campion. Later the Campions resided in a residence belonging to the Kingston family, other pioneer residents of that district, and later still, acting upon the advice of a neighbor, George Campion built the substantial residence from stone quarried on his property that is the present home of Harry Campion, younger brother of Daniel.

These two brothers are the surviving children of five born to their parents. Dan received his education at Beaver Creek School, the teacher which he best recalls being the late Robert Wiggins. Schoolmates most readily recalled by him were Hugh Shannon, Alexander Johns, Murchison Johns, and George Irving. When Dan was twelve years of age, flour was selling at $2 a barrel that particular year. "You can understand it couldn't be afforded, and so we went rather heavy on corn meal," said this old-timer.

At an early age he was helping his father with the cutting of maples for the extraction of potash, and he drew the potash to Marmora Village on jumpers. Oxen were the beasts of burden then. "I broke in four yoke of oxen before I was eighteen years of age," remarked Dan. His mother, who before marriage was Mercy Bronson of Madoc Township, would utilize the oxen drawn jumper in taking butter and eggs to Marmora, with Dan detailed as the driver.

In his younger days Dan was fleet of foot. When he was 21 years of age, he won a foot race at a picnic held by the congregation of the Sacred Heart Church, outstripping twenty-five other contestants.

Swaps Bear-hide for Clock.

"Bears were thick in those times, but young people always got in before dark," said Dan in reminiscent mood. He particularly remembers one bear he shot with his flintlock rifle for he took the hide to Belleville and purchased a clock with the money received for it.

Dan is one of the few living to-day who can claim to have been baptized by the Rev. Grandier, a missionary with some knowledge of medicine also, who was sent to North Hastings by St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, on temporary duty in those bygone days. The tall figures of this cleric, his wife and four sons, all good singers, have left an indelible mark in the memory of those few who remain and who attended the services in which the Grandiers took part.

With the exception of a slight deafness, Dan has fullest possession of his faculties and seems destined to see many more anniversaries of his birth.

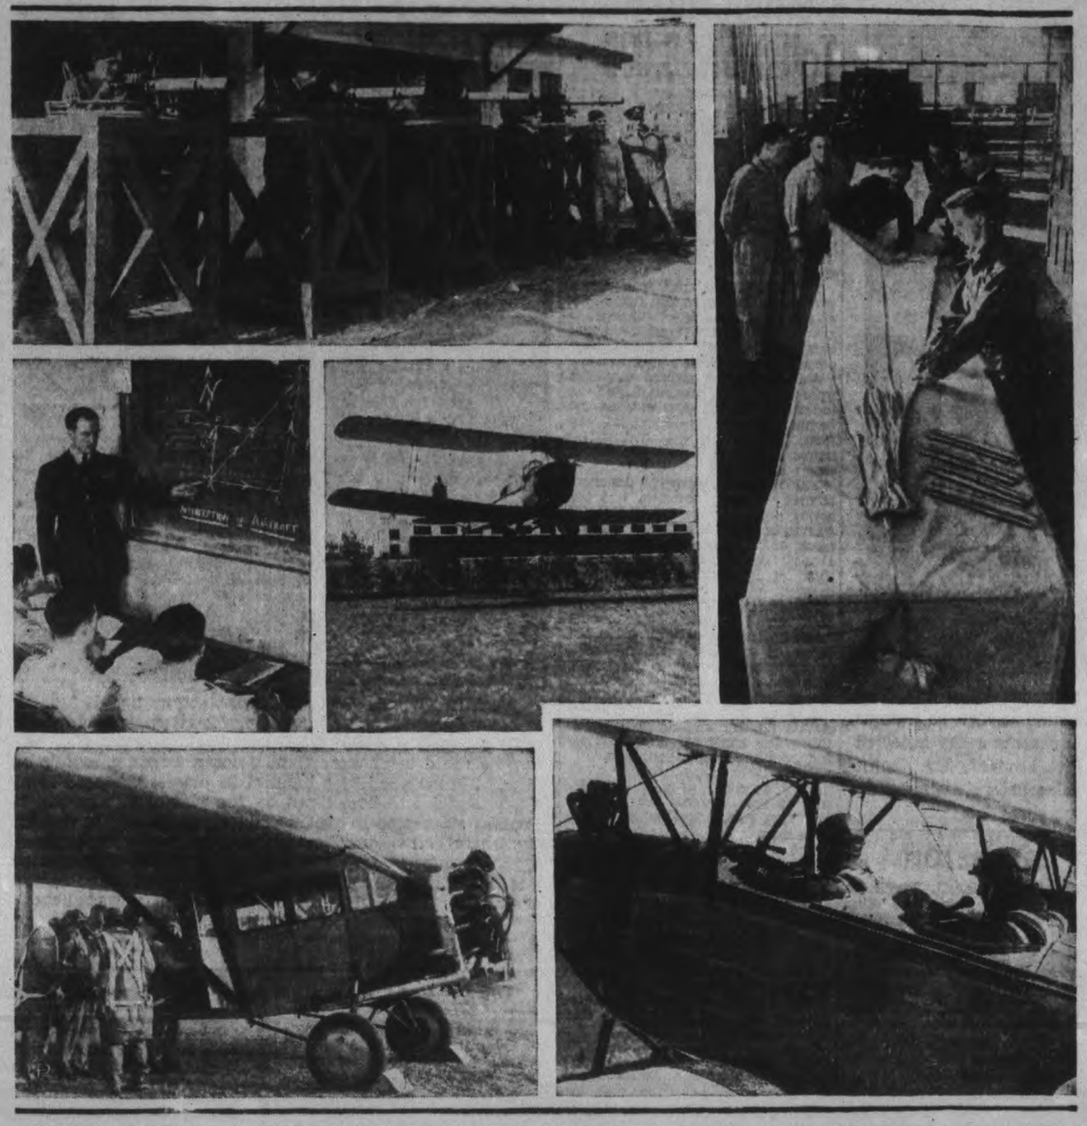
Canada Trains Her Airforce Pilots For Any Emergency



Canada's peaceful intent toward all nations notwithstanding, student pilots in the Royal Canadian Air Forces, are receiving a thorough training in the art of aerial combat along with the lessons which turns them out as capable fliers under any conditions. These pictures from the R.C.A.F. base at Trenton, Ont., illustrate some of the phases of military flying which the pilots study. At top LEFT, the student fliers are practising operation of machine guns on the 25-yard range; at the RIGHT parachute instruction is the subject—just in case a sudden "bail-out" is necessary some time in the future. The class is learning to properly pack a 'chute. In the LEFT CENTRE panel an instructor is giving a lecture on the interception of aircraft in flight, and the machine just coming over the hedge, CENTRE RIGHT, is engaged in forced landing tests. In the lower section the pilots get some actual flying practice, with instructors and pupils discussing the forthcoming lesson, LEFT, as they prepare for the take off, RIGHT. When and if a demand for war pilots is made, the R.C.A.F. will not be caught napping.

Silicois Worries Welsh Miners

CARDIFF, Wales, June 8 (CP).—South Wales authorities, like those in some of Canada's hard-rock mining centres, are worried over the high incidence of silicosis among the country's coal miners, especially those employed below ground in the anthracite industry.

Analysis of medical certificates granted those suffering from the dread disease—a lung condition induced by inhaling dust which frequently leads to tuberculosis—shows 4.2 per cent. of those working in anthracite mines contract the disease. The rate for all underground workers in the United Kingdom is .3 per cent., and for South Wales 1.3 per cent.

Dr. David Jones, Professor of Mining at the Univerity College, Cardiff, told the South Wales Institute of Engineering 889 silicosis certificates had been issued in a little more than six years among the 21,333 underground anthracite workers, 1,515 among 116,465 workers in all South Wales mines, and 1,738 among 627,886 underground workers in the whole United Kingdom.

Dr. Jones suggested the possibility of reducing the hazard by minimum use of explosives in mines, contending their use is one of the major causes of noxious dust. He also drew attention to beneficial results attained through use of a respirator to protect workers from dust.

(Research work carried on at the McIntyre Gold Mine at Porcupine, Ont., on co-operation with the Banting Institute at Toronto, indicated mine dust carrying silica which dissolves in the lungs, inducing the disease, may be rendered harmless by spraying aluminum dust into mines.)

Creepers Slow Trains

SUDBURY, Ont., June 8—(CP)—Millions of caterpillars hampered train movements today on a 500-mile front between here and the head of the lakes. Railwaymen said the insects crossing the railway tracks on their annual pilgrimage were killed by the millions, leaving the rails as if they were greased. Courtroom Becomes Art Gallery

Seeking to collect $3,500 from Actress Connie Bennett for a portrait he painted on her instructions, but which she declines to accept, Artist Willie Pogany brought the disputed painting to court to prove that he couldn't paint the ruby-red fingernails that Miss Bennett wanted because "one spot of red would unbalance the entire color harmony and make the painting fantastic." There were other complaints Miss Bennett made however—that her waist was too large, that the hair was the wrong color, that the eyes weren't just right, and lastly that she promised only $500 for the painting. So here is Willie trying to convince the jury.

Canton Air Raid Toll Now 8,000

CANTON, China, June 8.—(AP)—Two new bombardments today raised civilian casualties in this crippled city to at least 3,000 dead and 5,000 wounded in 12 successive days of Japanese air raids.

Two United States-owned properties, the Lingnam University and oil tanks of the Standard Oil Company were struck by Japanese bombs today.

The oil tanks burst into flame, spreading a conflagration that burned the terminal of the Canton-Hankow railroad and a 16-car train that had just arrived from Hankow, temporary seat of China's government.

At least 300 new civilian casualties were inflicted on Honam Island, an industrial district. Several Japanese bombs, apparently aimed at the Pearl River bridge, exploded in Honam's congested areas, demolishing about 100 houses.

The recurring waves of Japanese bombing planes, however, was exacting a diminishing toll of lives. It was estimated fully 500,000 inhabitants of this war-crowded city of about 1,000,000 had fled. About one third of its residences have been vacated.

No accurate list of dead and injured could be completed because many bodies still were buried in the debris of wrecked building with rescue squads unable to keep pace with the destruction.

Alarm System Cut

A direct hit on Canton's power station cut off electric power, disabling the city's air alarm system and crippling hospital services.

Police dashed from house to house ringing doorbells to warn inhabitants as the Japanese planes came over, first before daybreak and later in mid-morning.

The city's telephone system was silenced, making more difficult the work of relief and public safety.

Besides the power station and railroad terminal, which still was burning hours after the second raid, heaviest damage caused by the Japanese explosive and incendiary bombs was at a cement works and a British-owned waterworks.

Flight from the congested, panic-stricken city was hastened by fear the attacks might be the signal for general Japanese offensive in South China. Officials ordered women and children to leave and transportation facilities could not cope with the rush.

Alarm was increased by pamphlets from Japanese planes yesterday on Swatow, 170 miles northeast of Canton, warning the war zone now was extended to South China and urging the seaport's inhabitants to flee immediately.

Anti-aircraft defences proved ineffective against the Japanese air raiders.

Chinese planes have battled the invaders in the air only about a half dozen times since the outbreak of the war 11 months ago. Apparently both planes and guns are inadequate in number and are being shuttled back and forth between the north and south in an effort to make the most use of them.

U. S. Socialist Leader "Egged"

Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, screws up his face as an egg splatters off his head during his attempt to address a milling crowd of 4,000 in Military Park, Newark, N.J. Before he could utter more than a dozen words, a parade of nearly 200 men, led by a band of 30 pieces, appeared from a side street and bore down on the platform from which Thomas attempted to speak. Suddenly somebody hurled an egg which landed on Thomas' head. Instantly hundreds of eggs, cucumbers and ripe tomatoes filled the air. Thomas was rushed away by police. He was the recent storm centre of a street meeting in Jersey City, N.J., when he was allegedly "kidnapped" and escorted out of town for attempting to address a public gathering.

The Women's Institute served supper on the grounds and the refreshment booth also did a thriving business.

Galloway's Orchestra of Bethany supplied excellent music for the dance, which was held in the C.O.F. hall later in the evening, and yhich was attended by two hundred people.

Prizes were given to the group winners of a contest entitled "Flowery Romance." Immediately following the contest, a mock wedding was staged. The wedding march was played by Lillie Race; the part of the minister by Marion Rea; the groom by Doreen Morcombe, and the part of the bride was taken by Betty Deyell. A basket decorated in pink and blue, and overflowing with beautiful gifts, was drawn in a decorated wagon by little June Parker and Gerald MacTavish.

The address, rolled in the form of a scroll on two dish mops and tied with a pink satin ribbon, was a novel idea, and contained seven verses of poetry composed by Helen Moyer.

After the gifts were opened and displayed, a buffet luncheon was served in the dining room, which was also decorated in blue, pink and white.

Rev. M. C. Parr Guest Speaker

George Street Women's Association met in the church parlors on Tuesday afternoon, with a large attendance, the president, Mrs. W. G. Harris, presiding.

The meeting opened with the Doxology, followed by the Lord's Prayer. A poem by Edgar Guest, "I Have to Live With Myself," was read by the president, and the devotional period was under the leadership of Mrs. Wilbert McMillan. Two of Charles Wesley's hymns, "Talk with us, Lord, Thyself Reveal" and "Love Divine," were sung. The Scripture lesson, read by Mrs. F. E. Latimer, was taken from the fifth chapter of Matthew, followed by prayer led by Mrs. Airriess.

A delightful piano duet, "The Shepherd's Evening Song," was given by Mrs. M. C. Parr and her daughter, Eva Blanche.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Rev. M. C. Parr, whose topic was just one word, "Opportunity," which, the speaker remarked, was apt to be abused by all.

The artists and speaker were accorded a sincere vote of thanks by Miss M. E. Elliott and Mrs. A. M. Weldon.

During the business session the secretary, Mrs. G. C. Staples, and treasurer, Mrs. Percy Hetherington, gave their reports, followed by the report of the Sick and Visiting Committee by Mrs. Sarah Armstrong, which recorded seventy-nine calls. Mrs. Percy Hetherington reported seventeen calls for the Lookout Committee, and Miss Lillian Morrow reported that fourteen bouquets of flowers had been sent to the sick. A number of letters of appreciation for flowers received were read by Mrs. W. McGee.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Central School

The June meeting of Central Home and School Association was held in the kindergarten room of the school Monday evening. Mrs. J. H. Quirt, the newly-elected president, occupied the chair, and parents and teachers were well represented. The attendance picture went to Principal Bolton's room.

The chief business was in connection with the annual school picnic, which will be held in the school grounds and Victoria Park on Thursday, June 16, and in case of rain will take place the day following. The association is hoping for a large attendance of mothers, and seats will be provided for them so they can enjoy refreshments with their children.

Membership cards are now ready, and those desiring of joining the association can get them from the secretary, Mrs. L. Callander.

After the business session a pleasant little ceremony took place, when the retiring president, Mrs. C. H. McWilliams, was the recipient of a beautiful silver hors d'oeuvres dish, in recognition of the long and valued service which she had given to the association. Mrs. N. Stanger made the presentation, and Mrs. McWilliams, though completely taken by surprise, made a suitable reply in her own pleasant inimitable manner.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, with Mrs. A. H. Radford playing the piano accompaniment.

A service of dainty refreshments was then enjoyed, under the convenorship of Mrs. Honor and Mrs. Payne, and their assistants.

Plans Made For Picnic

A good attendance was reported at the May Home and School Association meeting, held Tuesday night.

After a short business meeting, at which the new officers took their places, and during which plans were discussed for a picnic to be held on June 17, and for a Father's night, which will be the main feature of the first fall meeting, delicious refreshments were served by the social convenor, Mrs. A. Lee.

Fife-Evans

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Evans, Indian River, when their second daughter, Eleanor Patricia, became the bride of John Ashton, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Fife of Peterborough, Rev. J. U. MacIntosh of Norwood officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, entered the room to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Phyllis Kidd of Millbrook. Her gown was of pink chiffon with white veil, her accessories of white, and her bouquet of premier roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Ruth Evans, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a gown of green lace over satin, and carried a bouquet of briarcliff roses and sweet peas. The groomsman was Harold Fife, brother of the groom.

The groom's gift to the bride was a yellow gold wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a white purse, to the pianist perfume, and to the groomsman a pen and pencil set.

Mrs. Andrew Evans, mother of the bride, received the guests wearing navy printed sheer and a corsage of lilies-of-the-valley. Receiving with her was Mrs. J. O. Fife, mother of the groom, wearing navy sheer over printed crepe and a corsage of roses.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served. The table, decorated in pink and white rosettes and streamers, was centered by the bride's cake.

For travelling the bride wore a yellow linen dress with brown bolero, and a beige herringbone tweed coat with brown accessories. On their return from a trip to Niagara Falls and other points in the States, the couple will reside at 2477 Princess street, Peterborough.

We Noticed

....Someone wearing a smart two-piece frock with navy blue skirt and polka dot blouse which buttoned from waist to neckline. A high-crowned hat with streamers completed the ensemble.

....That jigger coats in shades of coral, champagne, paddy green, white, robin red, canary yellow or powder blue are high on the fashion list this summer.

....Something new and delightfully cool in a resort shoe made of woven tapes in various colors of cotton.

Watson-Newbatt Wedding

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in Havelock on Saturday when Gladys Margaret, younger daughter of Edward Newbatt and the late Mrs. Newbatt of Bancroft, became the bride of Herbert Carmen, youngest son of Mrs. Isabel Watson and the late James Watson of Havelock.

Bishop O'Connor Addresses C.W.L.

The regular meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held Monday evening at St. Alphonsus Lyceum, with Miss E. Dainard in the chair. The meeting opened with the league prayer.

The meeting was honored with the presence of His Excellency, Bishop Dennis O'Connor.

His Excellency based his short address on three specific topics. First, by exhorting the ladies who wished to attend the Dominion convention of the Catholic Women's League, held in Quebec, to make their reservations immediately. Accommodation for the Eucharistic Congress, which follows the convention, is being rapidly secured, and he expressed the wish that delegates would not fail to remain. Bishop O'Connor also brought to the attention of the League the fact that about 56 years ago Peterborough was part of the archdiocese of Quebec because Kingston was at that time the oldest daughter of the Quebec archdiocese.

The second subject was a short discussion on the recent meeting of the Catholic Church Extension Society held in Toronto. The work done by the Auxiliary formed in the various diocese was exceptionally worthy of note, and the missions were their chief interest. His Excellency expressed the hope that the Peterborough League would become more interested in missions and form a live auxiliary.

The third and fourth subjects combined in one were also of a diocesan nature, and were with regard to Catholic papers and literature being mailed to the northern districts. Some of these people in the isolated parts, stated Bishop O'Connor, rarely see a Catholic periodical.

His Excellency expressed a wish for renewed interest in the lay retreat. He outlined a few of the ideas regarding them, and mentioned one place which he thought suitable for just such an occasion; which was the beautiful Kirkfield Convent, where adequate accommodation; beautiful surroundings and restful quietness pleased him very much. If such an undertaking were considered, he advised the League to get in immediate touch with the sisters of St. Joseph.

In closing his remarks, Bishop O'Connor thanked the ladies for their good wishes and congratulations on his eighth anniversary as Bishop of Peterborough on Saturday next, which is also the twenty-ninth anniversary of His Excellency to the holy priesthood.

Appreciation of the Bishop's address was voiced by Mrs. J. F. O'Brien and Mrs. J. E. Sullivan.

Rev. Father Kelly said a few words more about the importance of sending Catholic papers to the northern district, and then acknowledged a letter of congratulation from the ladies on the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity conferred upon him by the Ottawa University, which he is receiving next month.

Miss L. Hurley arranged a most pleasing musical program, which consisted of a piano solo and encore by Miss Anne Donoghue, a violin solo and encore by Catherine Corkery, accompaied by Margaret Corkery, and a vocal solo by Phyllis Cowie.

After the regular business was discussed, the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Clothes for Summer Fun in the Sun

This summer the stores are filled with new and exciting fun-in-the-sun clothes, and time off for a little treasure hunt through the shops is a worthwhile relaxation. Let's see what's being offered:

White, the ever popular classic for summer coolness, is worn with colors, singly or in pairs. Imagine a simply styled white dress worn with wide sash of two colors...lilac with mauve, perhaps, raspberry rose with a touch of emerald green; dark purplish blue and deep rose red, or no other color note save a triangular brilliant scarf knotted at the throat!

Or wear pure, sparkling white and depend on shoes, hat and bag for color accent. A number of shoe shops on George Street are showing such pretty shoes in wicked little prints of every hue, and soft suede in striking color combinations of tan, green, red, beige, rust, blue, etc., which, matched with a bright bag, would add dash to any costume.

We noticed one dress, a strikingly vivid print worn by a young lady who came into our office the other, was combined with brilliant tri-colored shoes, hat and bag...bright as a June morning...and an effect that was breath-taking, perhaps, but wholly satisfying!

One shop has an adorable little frock in an entrancing shade called "Strawberry Crush." There are stitched diagonal lines in the skirt, and the diagonal lines repeat in the blouse to create a chic, slim effect.

Pleats in the skirt and jacket sleeves trim another pastel crepe outfit; a linen coat, dress length, goes over a shere black crepe...perfect for motoring.

Nautical motifs in bright color on white rayon hopsacking, shell buttons tacked up the front, make another warm-weather dress, and lots of cool suits with short-sleeved jackets are available to those who like to be smart and practical at the same time.

In prints, flowers seems to be fading and jungles of leaves popping up all over the place! And speaking of leaves, have you noticed the bracelets, clips, pins and necklaces made from metal or leather leaves? As leaves suggest insects, so they appear in jewelry windows. Beetles, bugs and even caterpillars are clipped on summer dresses (if the wearer is not to sensitive!) We saw a gold fish, though, that was really a pet, and it was set with red and green stones.

A red and white polka dot dress just about asked for a little white panama and short white gloves, but a cartwheel hat of natural straw with polka dot quill would also make good company, and command a second glance.

Flowers are still popular for tucking in belts or pinning on lapels, and economically find themselves blooming on a hat brim or crown.

A Prize Winner

Billie Eckstein Is Heard in Concert

A swift reputation for brilliant execution and fine control of tone-coloring was established with a large Peterborough audience by W. "Billie" Eckstein, internationally known stage and radio star, in an entertainment held in the Collegiate Auditorium Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Nicholls Hospital Alumnae Association.

The assisting artist, Miss Muriel Duncan, monologist, impressed the audience with her warm personality, and her ability to completely absorb the role she was enacting. One number in particular, in which she cleverly imitated the gushing manner of a female radio announcer on a program called "Vera Cheera's Morning Sunshine Talk," brought in an advertising product, "Plunket's Pink Pills for Pale People," in a most amusing way during the program, and was highly entertaining, as was her role of the maiden aunt attempting to care for a three months' old baby in the absence of its mother, and her moving portrayal of the wife of a fur trader, whose heart was broken by the haunting eyes of the beautiful animals slaughtered for furs to be worn by some haughty lady of fashion.

Many of Billie Eckstein's numbers were his own arrangements. His interpretation of "The Last Round-Up" imitated the sound of stampeding cattle; the pounding hoofs of mounted cowboys in swift pursuit, and ended in the final mad rush of the stampede itself. "Bie Mir Bust Du Shon," another Eckstein arrangement which had, said the artist, "everything in it but the kitchen stove," was a delightful potpourri of melody expressing a variety of changing moods. Another favorite was "The Muse," written by Eckstein. This was a deeply meditative number with a fine thread of exquisite melody running through it. "Dizzy Fingers" was a number which displayed the artist's brilliant technique and excellent fingering ability.

To conclude the program, Billie Eckstein played his own composition, composed during the Coronation, entitled "British Medley," a number that was full of warmth, color and royal pageantry.

The ever popular "Nola" was given as an encore in response to the hearty applause of an enthusiastic audience.

Other numbers on the program were: "Deep Purple," by Peter DeRose; "Church Mouse on a Spree," an Eckstein arrangement; "Dew Drops" and "Valse Exquisite," by Eckstein; "On the Road to Mandalay," with arrangements by Eckstein; "Poor Butterfly," popular number arranged in classical style; "Canadian Capers"; the late George Gershwin's "Rapsody in Blue"; "May Time in Vienna," by DeRose; an arrangement by Eckstein of "Bells of St. Mary"; a descriptive number, "The Music Goes Round and Round," played in Chinese, German and Metropolitan Opera style; "Chopin Impromptu," in a modern tempo; and "My Darling," a popular number arranged in classical style.

Miss Muriel Duncan's numbers were: "Vera Cheera's Morning Sunshine Talk," "I've Got a Baby," "The Burglar," "The Leap Year Leap," "The Baseball Game," "This Side of Beauty," "Jane Plays a Part," and "Shopping Rhapsody."

Mr. Eckstein was introduced by Mrs. F. E. A. Brackenridge, president of the Nicholls Hospital Alumnae Association.

CARD OF THANKS

Miss Viola Menzies desires to express through this paper her sincere appreciation and thanks to her many friends and neighbors for letters, cards, fruit and flowers sent, and other kindnesses shown to her since her accident.

CARD OF THANKS.

The Nicholls Hospital Women's Auxiliary take this means of conveying to the Public their sincere thanks for the support given the Penny Sale, on Monday, May 30, and we remind you once again that the merchants and business firms of Peterborough responded most generously to provide the prizes, the refreshments in the refreshment booth, the equipment necessary to handle the undertaking, and then with others came out to put it across. We realize that the credit for the ultimate success of the evening goes to those men and young ladies who worked so hard to serve you. At this date we discover, too, that we are greatly indebted to the many firms who have sent us donations in the way of discounted receipted bills, including H. R. Scott, Ltd., Col. Hall, Peterborough Utilities, H. H. Lush, Tony Johnston, William Austin, The Examiner, Commercial Press, Review, Peterborough Job Printing, Card and Paper Works, Robert Reid, Miller Powell, and Peterborough Lock. These donations were not mentioned in previous issues. To Col. Dewart and Staff of the Armouries we are indebted for much consideration.

At a later date we will be able to publish the exact receipts which are in the neighborhood of $1,000. This amount will be kept apart and added to, until such time as it is needed for the extension which must come soon, if we are to be adequately protected. Membership in our organization now stands at 2,000, with a large number in rural districts—Lakefield, Bridgenorth, Keene, Norwood, Millbrook, Omemee, and a few in Hastings. Our objective is 4,000, which, with a 25c membership fee, will provide an adequate income to sufficiently take care of the yearly needs and give a surplus, which can be added to the special account which we have established by means of the Penny Sale.

Surely the ladies will appreciate the fact that we are not another organization attempting to make money by social functions. Our new year starts in September. Help us to build up our membership!

Baptists Told Radio Hurts Church

BRANTFORD, June 8 (CP).—The ministerial superannuation board of Quebec and Ontario Baptists, in convention here, will attempt to raise $100,000 during the next year to extend the board's activities and to provide additional funds for the ministerial gratuity plan and the retiring annuity plan.

Delegates passed a resolution yesterday that the board, aided by the convention executive, should approach members in an effort to raise the sum. The resolution was introduced by Rev. H. McDiarmid of Toronto.

Rev. George Arthur Clark, a native of Port Hope, Ont., and a McMaster University graduate now stationed at Malden, Mass., was guest speaker at sessions yesterday. A former convention member, Dr. Clark was introduced by Rev. M. F. McCutcheon of Montreal.

Attendance has fallen off in rural sections because persons listen to church services over the radio, the convention was told yesterday. Rev. J. P. Pryse of Canboro said that people need "to be reminded that listening in to a radio service is no substitute for attending God's House."

don't," replied Mr. Aberhart. If elected, Herman would be a Social Crediter but he could support those sections of the C.C.F. program which harmonize with Social Credit. One thing was sure—Social Credit did not advocate socialization of industry.

The man ran into difficulty when he started to ask questions about school children marching on the streets of Medicine Hat, Alta., last winter protesting against relief conditions.

"I don't know anything about it. It's only a rumor," replied Mr. Aberhart.

"It's not a rumor, I saw the parade," insisted the man.

When he attempted to follow up with further questions, he was ejected.

Quiet Hearing for Gardiner

Mr. Gardiner, who has been stumping Saskatchewan for Liberals, was given a quiet and orderly hearing. He said the unsettled world today needed the spirit which was shown in Canada when from all provinces of Canada $116,000,000 had been collected by the Dominion to spend on Saskatchewan relief through the drought years.

At the conclusion of his speech, James Dickson, one of the Calgary jobless delegation, arrived from the Aberhart gathering and asked permission to address the meeting. He described conditions in Calgary soup kitchens and, referring to Social Credit, asked why world leaders had not taken it up.

"Because they haven't the hypocrisy in their beings," he replied to his own question.

At Windthorst and Kipling, Premier Patterson defended the record of his government and at Estevan, J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., national president of the C.C.F., spoke in support of Glen Allen, C.C.F. candidate in the constituency.

Three parties have enough candidates in the field to elect a government—Liberals, forming the present government, have named 50 candidates, Social Credit, making an initial bid for power in Saskatchewan, named 39 and the C.C.F., now the official opposition, has named 31. There are 23 Conservatives in the field, four Independents, three Independent Labor, two Independent Social Crediters, two Labor-Progressive one Independent Conservative and one Union Progressive.

Liberals elected 50 members at the last general election June 19, 1934, and the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation took the other five seats in the House, reduced from 55 to 52 seats by a redistribution bill last March.

In that election Liberals polled 106,191 of the total vote of 428,880. Conservatives polled 114,973 votes although they failed to select a single candidate. The Farmer-Labor party, later the C.C.F., polled 103,582 and other parties 4,134.

Health Run Down Housework A Burden

Nature intended women to be strong, healthy and happy instead of sick and miserable, but is it any wonder that when they are run down in health they become nervous and irritable, weak and worn-out, and the lightest household duties seem a drag and a burden?

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills are a remedy that all nervous, tired-out, weary women should take to help them back to the blessing of good health, and when this is done their household duties will be a pleasure instead of a burden.

Mrs. A. K. McLean, Pleasantfield, N.S., writes:—"A short time ago I was in a badly run down and nervous condition. I got so that my housework became a burden to me. I started taking Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills, and now I feel like a different person, and again am able to do all my own housework.

Hereafter I shall always recommend H. & N. Pills to my friends."

Jagged forks of lightning ripping earthward from black thunderheads that marked a severe but brief electrical storm that passed over the district last night, killed a valuable horse belonging to John Weese, farmer, residing near Melrose, early Tuesday morning.

Rain that followed in the wake of the storm caused considerable damage in outlying districts, and farmers claim continued rains would act as a slight deterrent to crop growth.

thing to my honorable friend," he said.

Mr Bennett replied that "day after day, week after week, you referred to the fact that I was not in my place because I was working long hours on work that I had to do."

Mr. Bennett and Hon. H. H. Stevens (Recon., Kootenay East) made last minute objections to the agreed charges clause in the Transport Commission Act, the former on the ground it destroyed the protection heretofore afforded all shippers by the equality of freight rates, and the latter because it had the effect of "blackballing" the highway trucking industry over which the Dominion has no constitutional jurisdiction.

Mr. Stevens objected to the clause on the ground that it denied trucking companies the right to appear before the transport commissioners to oppose any agreed charges arrangement that might be under consideration.

Mr. Bennett chose another point of attack, declaring the bill removed the "equality under the law which was the basis of our freight rates structure."

Market For Canadian Oil.

On motion to resolve the House into committee of supply, Mr. Bennett brought up the question of Alberta oil production and of the advisability of seeing to it that Canada's market for oil products be maintained for the domestic industry.

Increase of production of crude oil in Alberta was accompanied by increasingly lower prices for crude oil brought in from Montana. He suggested a dumping duty might be considered when the budget was in preparation.

Finance Minister Dunning said the surplus of oil production in Turner Valley is so much greater than the Canadian requirements in the area that can be economically served from the Alberta wells that a dumping duty would have little effect.

He suggested oil would not suffer by being left in the ground, and said the government of Alberta controls development of the wells. It was the concern of both governments to consider the problem of controlling the extent of the development and prorating existing wells so that the market would not be flooded.

When the public works estimates were being considered, Mr. Bennett took exception to a vote for construction of an armoury in Hull, Que., across the Ottawa from the capital, costing about $270,000, asking how the item got through council in view of the speeches of the Prime Minister during the campaign of 1935.

"I can recall," he said, "the speech of the Prime Minister to the effect that armouries scattered around the country spelled the loss of liberty and freedom of the people, and demonstrated the growth of militarism.

"Here we have an armoury that overawes the capital itself. I have no doubt the Minister got this estimate through council in the absence of the president of the council, who happens to be the Prime Minister."

See Beer Parlor Menace Increasing

TORONTOO, June 8—(CP).—Toronto conference of the United Church of Canada was on record today as condemning beverage rooms as constituting "a more sinister evil and greater menace to sobriety and morals than the old, discredited and outlawed barroom."

The conference approved such a resolution in its sessions yesterday and asked also either for restriction of the sale of beers and liquors, or a referendum. A special committee report dealing with the Toronto relief administration also received approval of the conference, which discussed the Quebec padlock law, rights of labor to organize, and the recent action of Premier Mitchell Hepburn in ordering the arrest of several Lakeview relief strikers.

The conference endorsed a recommendation by the Committee of Evangelism and Social Service that a judicial investigation be requested of relief administration here. The request was made in a report submitted by a special committee headed by Rev. John Coburn.

Delegates passed resolutions opposing the Quebec padlock law and a bill now before parliament intended to legalize sweepstakes for charity purposes.

Premier Hepburn was criticized for having ordered the arrest of men while they were in his office as a relief deputation. The motion was approved only by a narrow margin.

Baptist Records Said Lost By Carelessness

BRANTFORD, Ont., June 8—(CP)—Many priceless documents have been destroyed by fire and by carelessness, H. S. Robertson of Stratford, member of the Historical Committee, told the annual convention of Baptists of Ontario and Quebec here to-day in urging better care of church records.

College Street Baptist Church, Toronto, and Pembroke Baptist Church were cited as two cases where fire had destroyed all records. Mr. Robertson recommended that all church minute books, except the one in immediate use, be filed with the convention Historical Committee which has a fire-proof room in which to house them.

Rev. C. J. Cameron, committee secretary, said in his report that one church clerk who had deliberately destroyed all church records "because they were outdated" should be a fit subject "for the mansion on Hamilton Mountain."

Nearly 500 Attending.

Approximately 500 delegates, including Hon. Albert Matthews, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, were present as business sessions opened in First Baptist Church. A message from Rev. N. S. McKechnie, convention president, who is ill at his Brockville, Ont., home, was read to the convention.

The Rural Church Committee recommended resuscitation of prayer and a denominational simultaneous evangelistic campaign to solve the rural church program. Of 375 churches in the conference, 187 are rural, with 11,208 members.

Rev. A. C. Carr, Tillsonburg, for the Committee of Christian Stewardship, reported that "Christians are not educated to giving or putting God first." Economic conditions had suffered a reverse and the churches had suffered therefrom, he said. The committee favored naming of a person to direct stewardship promotion.

Budget apportionment recommended was: Up to $1,000,000; Home Missions 32 per cent., Foreign Missions 32 per cent., Western Missions 10 per cent., Religious Education three per cent., Superannuation Board two per cent., Church Edifice Board one per cent., Social Service one per cent., Grand Ligne Missions eight per cent., Christian Education 11 per cent., Canadian Baptist $1,500.

Moon Jumps Track By Six Seconds Astronomers Blame Earth

London, June 8 (AP).

THE MOON, Astronomer Harold Spencer Jones said yesterday, has jumped its track. "And it's all the earth's fault," the astronomer told a meeting of the Royal Observatory of Greenwich.

"It took us years to pin this on the earth," he said. "The apparent deviation now is greater than at any time since records have been kept."

The moon's course is plotted by the earth's time and the earth's time is reckoned by its rotation, Mr. Jones explained. Somewhere an unknown gigantic brake has suddenly been clamped on the spinning world, slowing it down, he said.

Dr. Martin Davidson, president of the British Astronomical Association, estimated this slowing down process was going on at the rate of about 1-1000th second every century.

At present, he said the moon is about six seconds of time off its beaten track.

Britain's Protests To Spain Said Joke

HENDAYE, June 8—(AP).—For the fifth successive day heavy Spanish insurgent attacks failed to-day to make decisive gains toward Valencia and the coast. The entire eastern front of Spain's Civil War was deadlocked.

Despite insurgent reports yesterday of the encirclement of Albocacer, a keystone of the Government's defences of Valencia, an official communique to-day acknowledged there was "nothing to report on any front."

A lengthier government despatch said all insurgent efforts to advance had been repulsed with heavy losses, and reported several successful government counter-attacks in the mountains between Teruel and the coast.

Death toll in insurgent air raids yesterday on the Mediterranean seaboard was at least 132, government advices said. Among the dead were three British seamen, killed at Alicante when an insurgent air bomb set the British freighter St. Winifred afire.

The foray, made by five German-made Junker bombers, followed a week of seaboard raids in which more than 400 persons were killed.

(David Lloyd-George, Britain's World War Prime Minister, charged at Stafford, England, in an election campaign speech, that Britain's protests to the Spanish insurgents over attacks on British shipping were becoming a world joke. He accused the Government of "crawling before dictators.")

AT 83 SHE DEFIES RHEUMATISM

After Suffering Acute Pain For Years

Rheumatism first attacked this old lady in 1931, and gradually spread from her arms to other parts of her body. Then she started to take Kruschen Salts, and now she sends the following letter in her own handwriting:—

"I have suffered from rheumatism since 1931. At first, I felt acute pain in both arms. I could not sleep for pain. It grew worse, and gradually crept down to the tips of my fingers. Next it reached my knees and ankles, which made me quite helpless for a long period. A friend recommended me to take Kruschen Salts. I find they do me more good than any other medicine, liniment or ointment I ever used. This is my own writing, though I am in my 84th year."—(Mrs.) H.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are often caused by deposits of needle-pointed uric acid crystals in the muscles and joints. Kruschen Salts stimulate your liver and kidneys to healthy regular action, and assist them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is frequently the cause of your suffering.—Advt.

New Sunday School Contest Devised

TORONTO, June 8—(CP).—The drive for adjournment tomorrow or early Thursday began at the annual assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada here to-day.

Commissioners still have a lot of work to do, but they have decided to limit their talking about it. On motion of Dr. T. Wardlaw Taylor, Goderich, Clerk of the Assembly, speeches of those presenting reports will be restricted to ten minutes and those speaking about reports to five minutes.

The Assembly heard last night an imaginary automobile journey from Vancouver to Toronto is the device adopted by St. Andrew's Sabbath School, Calgary, to increase attendance.

It was described by George Munro, Superintendent of St. Andrew's Sabbath School. He explained that attendance fell from 265 five years ago to 150 last year, and something had to be done.

A large chart hangs on the school wall showing the route from Vancouver to Toronto. A car represents each class. The cars change position each Sunday according to the following schedule. Church attendance, five miles; Sabbath School attendance, five miles; Memory Work, five miles; Offerings, one mile for every cent offered; Teacher, deduct 20 miles; Rowdiness in class, deduct 20 miles.
